NORTH PACIFIC SEAL FISHERIES

A FEW chronic grumblers in Canada are aiding the United States authorities in their endeavour to keep distinct the fishery questions in the Atlantic and Pacific, and to prevent the latter from being considered by the Fishery Commission.

We can see no sense in this. If the Commissioners have any powers at all, which we rather doubt, it would be absurd for them to separate without considering recent occurrences in the North Pacific. Gross piratical outrages have been committed there in the open seas, upon Canadian and other vessels, in behalf of a monopolising fishery company. So far the Washington authorities have not repudiated these pirates, nor have they definitely endorsed their proceedings. If the United States are responsible even by harbouring and supplying them they should pay exemplarary damages, for which the Alabama award is a precedent. If they repudiate them and allege that they cannot preserve peace in that far away region and suppress piracy, either British men of war must undertake the duty or Canadian fishermen must go prepared to meet pirates.

When these pirates are settled, there is another aspect of the case that deserves the attention of the Commissioners. It would be a pity if the North Pacific seal fisheries should be destroyed through reckless greed. To afford the seals the requisite protection international regulations might be framed. If Great Britain and the United States agreed upon these the concurrence of other nations would not be difficult to obtain; indeed Russia is the only other great power much interested at present.

It would be an absurdity to let the United States select just what matters they choose for adjudication and leave inconvenient questions open We have already had a lesson in their restricting the reference to the Washington joint commission by a date that shut out the Fenian raids, and we should not be caught again.

POOR SECURITY.

THE Winnipeg Sun attacks the banks and other monetary institutions of Canada for not supplying funds for the construction of the disallowed and illegal railway. The monetary institutions of the Dominion are managed by men who have a regard for the law and who are not favourable to revolutionary action by a few discontented individuals. Even if the directors were disposed to aid the attempt to divert commerce from Canada to the United States, they would be too cautious to expose themselves to personal liability for any loss by lending the money of their shareholders on bogus and illegal security on the chance of the people of Canada finding money to pay these valueless bonds. The Sun should also remember that repudiation is a method of meeting liabilities that has been adopted by some of its friends. Monetary institutions are shy of parting with their money under such circumstances.

MR. WIMAN has been addressing a meeting in Quebec, speaking in favour of Commercial Annexation. It is almost needless to say that his representations were very different from those he utters in the United States. The friends of annexation did not venture to move a resolution and take a vote upon it.

WE are told by the Opposition of the people's earnings being sunk in unproductive works, among which they class the C. P. R. Well the C.P.R. has produced a surplus of seven million bushels of wheat, to mention one item only, which is not a bad return for an unproductive investment.

THE London Advertiser asks "What sort of oath did Mr. Thomas White take when he was sworn in as a member of the Dominion Cabinet?" The Advertiser might ask its friend and leader Mr. Laurier, who took the same oath—and broke it.

"SCIENTIFIC WARFARE."

Prof. Mazzeroff Prepared to Wipe England off the Earth.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Prof. Mazeroff spoke to-night about scientific warfare. Among other things, he said:—"At the solicitation of Parnell & Co. I have refrained from springing my system upon the world till now, but I will do it right away. Ireland don't want simple home rule and to remain as a tail to the English kite, but to become a nation. Free trade be——. England is a thief among the nations. Twenty five dollars judiciously expended will destroy England's navy; $500 judiciously expended will wipe her off God's earth."

REMARKABLE CAREER

Of a Swindler, Bigamist and Confidence Man.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—It is now asserted that Dr. Andrew Jackson Grant, the bigamist and confidence man, who died in gaol while awaiting trial for swindling Miss Lucy Tower, of Cambridge, whom he had married, was none other than Dr. Contri, who took an active part in the Fenian raid on Canada about twenty years ago. Dr. Grant claimed that he was an illegitimate son of Victor Emmaneul, King of Italy, and was exiled for conspiracy against the throne. Mrs. A. A. Gore, of East Boston, says her brother Dr. McSheehy, formed Grant's acquaintance in France in 1852. It was during the course of their rambling together that Contri is said to have made known the secret of his birth. According to his story he was born in Austria, but was the son of Victor Emmanuel and Archduchess Adelhird of Austria. He was born in 1842, two months before Victor Emmanuel and the Archduchess were married. Victor Emmanuel was at that time King of Sardinia. When but a mere child Contri was transferred to the custody of an old abbot in Switzerland, by whom he was carefully schooled in the sciences. Among other things he made a speciality of languages, and so proficient had he become that he could speak at least five with fluency. Finally the old priest told him the history of his birth. When the young man grew up he went to Sardinia and openly conspired against the King, and was forced to fly. His alleged father supplied him with money.

A VERY RICH COUNTRY.

Gratifying Result of Explorations Near the Alaska Boundary.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—Dr. G. M. Dawson, assistant director of the Geological Survey, who headed the party sent by the Dominion Government to explore the country adjacent to the Alaska boundary, has got back to Victoria. Two of the party, Messrs. Ogilvie and McConnell, winter in the district, making astronomical observations, which will give data for the establishment of an international boundary. The expedition so far has secured a great deal of geological, geographical and general information of the country, and it is far from being the Arctic region it is sometimes represented to be. The point from which the doctor turned back, at the junction of the Lewis and Pelly rivers, is 1,000 miles north of Victoria in latitude. There the flora was found to differ but little from that on the banks of the Fraser. A good deal of open, grassy country exists along the streams tributary to the Yukon. No areas of tundra or frozen swamps, such as are reported to be met with in the interior of Alaska, were discovered by the expedition. The Indian population is very scant. The country is an excellent one for fur-bearing animals, particularly for the cross, the silver and black foxes, beaver and other small furs. The doctor's conclusion is that the whole country from Cassair to the vicinity of the Forty-mile Creek on the Yukon River (which must be near the eastern boundary of Alaska,) yields more or less gold in placer deposits, constituting it a gold bearing region fully five hundred miles in length by indefinite width, and which, so far, in comparison to the area, has been very little prospected.

WHERE THEY WERE.

Tracing the Movements of Suspected Dynamiters.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—In reference to the statement of Commissioner Monro, of the detective department, at the inquest over the body of Cohen, the alleged dynamiter, yesterday, that General Millen, the head of the Clan-na-Gael Society, was in London during the Jubilee, the police state that Millen has never set foot in England. They say he resided at Boulogne and Paris. A detective called on him at Boulogne before the Jubilee celebration and warned him that he knew of the plot against the Queen. Millen then fled to Paris. From there he went to Brussels, then to Rotterdam and from that city to Amsterdam. At the latter place he took passage with his wife and daughter on the 22nd of this month on the steamer Edam for New York.

With regard to Melleville, the London agent of the society, the police say that when he arrived in London he took lodgings in a mean quarter in Gladstone street, and was in impecunious circumstances. Melville had visited Mr. Joseph Nolan, Irish Member of Parliament, in company with Michael Hawkins Both Melville and Hawkins had been seen in Cohen's company. Melville went to Paris and saw Dennehey and Maloney, who sailed for America on August 17th Dennehey is a member of the Clan-na-Gael Society and resides in Brooklyn. Melville returned to London in a more prosperous condition. He lived at the Metropole hotel and spent money freely. He was constantly in the company of a Miss Kennedy, with whom he travelled through Ireland and then to Paris. They lived in grand style. In Paris he called on General Millen at the Hotel du Palais. Melville finally sailed from Havre on September 17 for New York. Miss Kennedy accompanied him. On reaching New York Miss Kennedy was arrested for smuggling.

Resignation of Chief Justice Wilson.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—The privy council had a lengthy session this afternoon, at which it is understood the Ontario judical vacancies under consideration. It is definitely learned that Chief Justice Sir Adam Wilson has resigned from the bench, his resignation to take effect from November 14th.

Nova Scotia Coal Output

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 27.—Returns so far received show that the Nova Scotia coa output will be ten per cent greater than last year. Notwithstanding the lateness in the opening of of navigation at Cape Breton ports, the Cape Breton mines have already shipped 60,000 tons more this season that they did last year.

Wanted in Montreal.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—A new way to get Mr. E. E. Sheppard to Montreal was tried to-day. He was handed $25 in Cash and a subpœna to appear in Montreal as a witness in a criminal libel suit, brought by Captain Robert, of the 65th, against Louis P. Kribs. Mr. Sheppard will not go, however, without a fight.

Robbery of Freight Cars.

TUCSON, A. T., Oct. 27.—The systematic robbery of freight cars on the Southern Pacific railroad has been going on for six months between Tucson and El Paso. The detectives arrested J. Griffith, freight conductor, and Charles Eddy and J. Burchell, brakemen, who confessed their guilt and implicated others. More arrests will be made. A large amount of goods has been stolen.

Woman Buried Alive.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 27.—Grave diggers at Bathurst, a few days ago, came to a coffin which, when accidentally opened, revealed the body of a woman turned over on her side. The right arm of the corpse was above the head and the left hand on the head, as if in the act of pulling at her hair. The body was recognized as that of a woman buried several years ago, evidently buried alive.

The Growth of Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—The city assessors completed their work for the year to-day, and the city's assessment amounts to $12,337,845, and increase of a million and a half over last year. This does not include Government property, such as the Parliament buildings, which, if added, would bring up the assessment another ten millions. The population is estimated at 25,000, and this, with the outlying municipalities, makes the total in the neighborhood of 40,000.

The Interprovincial Conference.

QUEBEC, Oct. 27.—It is semi-officially stated that when the report of the proceedings of the conference is in the hands of the Federal Government, the President of the Conference will telegraph to the Prime Ministers of each province, and everything will then be made public, and not before. The Ontario delegates will leave to-morrow morning. The Conference will sit probably a great part of the evening. Some of the members of the Conference were entertained last evening by Mr. Justice Caron.

Another Defaulter in Canada.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The fact that Henry M. Jackson, cashier of the Sub-Treasury, was a defaulter and had fled to Canada was first discovered on Saturday last. The matter has been kept very quiet by Treasurer Canda, although it is understood that he has pursued enquiries sufficiently to assure himself that Jackson is in Toronto. Sub-aTresurer Canda is under the law, responsible for the amount of the defalcation. The defaulter is small in stature, of very dark complexion, very stout and with a full beard, cut close. If he has shaved since his flight it is believed than he can be identified by a singularly retreating chin, and the fact that he is somewhat knock-kneeded. He wore, when last seen, dark clothes, and a black beaver sack overcoat. He is an inveterate smoker.

The Boundary Railway.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—The basis of the agreement between Messrs. Mann & Holt and the Local Government by which the Red River Valley road is to be completed this season has been settled and finally ratified, and operations will be commenced on the road at once. There was a trifling hitch since Mr. Holt's arrival, but all difficulties have been swept away and the contractor has agreed to begin operations at once and push them to a successful conclusion. Mr. Lariviere notified Messrs. Ashdown and A. MacDonald, as representing the citizens of Winnipeg, to meet the Government at four o'clock this afternoon, when satisfactory evidence of the Government's ability to complete the work was laid before them and they were asked to come forward with the required $300,000. Steps to this end will at once be taken.

Opera at the Dressmaker's.

I was passing the establishment of a fashionable dressmaker on a stylish street just off of Fifth avenue, when there suddenly pealed out a most magnificent burst of vocal music that evidently proceeded from the dressmaker's parlor. It was a woman's voice, manifestly of the highest cultivation, for the morceau it sang was one of those tours de force whose execution is reserved for great artists alone. A police officer who had stopped on his patrol to listen, too, furnished an explanation of the impromptu concerto.

"It's one of the opera singers," he said. "She's having a dress tried on, and she sings to see if it will give her room to breathe in. The madam does a lot of dressmaking for singers, and you'll hear a concert here every day for a month at this season of the year. There she goes again."

To a tribute as eloquent as this there is nothing to add.—Alfred Trumble in New York News.

SIR CHARLES DILKE.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Sir Charles Dilke has had an extraordinary reception in Athens as well as in Constantinople. M. Tricoupis and representatives of the whole nation have taken part in it. He and Lady Dilke were dined by the ministers, and received formally by the university, from the rector and deans of the faculty to the students. They were shown over the temples under the care of the Director General of Antiquities, and were waited on by the Metropolitan of Athens in ecclesiastical state. No one has had such a reception in Athens since Sir Moses Montefiore was received by the Eastern Jews. This is no doubt due to the pro-Greek part the Dilkes have always played in foreign affairs.

NO CHANCE OF REUNION.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Mr. Morley's speech on Tuesday emphasizes the fact that there is now no possibility of a re-union with the dissentients of the Hartington-Chamberlain type. "What the people wanted," he said, "is to go for principles rather than to debate small details."

GREVY'S POSITION.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The danger of M. Grevy's resignation is perceptibly increased to-day. M. Wilson has been repudiated, both by the Chamber and his own constituency in Tours, and the Cabinet, which is attached to M. Grevy, has made matters worse by taking his side, the President being drawn into a struggle against his will, but he refuses to give way. He is a very strong family man. M. Wilson has great control over him, but unless the Presidential shield is withdrawn, M. Grevy will become so seriously involved in M. Wilson's unpopularity that his dignity will compel him to resign.

FOUND GUILTY.

DUBLIN, Oct. 27.—Mr. Wilfred Blunt was to-day found guilty of violating the Irish Crimes Act and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Notice of appeal was given.

SIGNOR CRISPI'S SPEECH.

FRANKFORT, Oct. 27.—Signor Crispi's speech at Turin meets with no general sympath in Paris. Even the Government papers say it cannot allay the fears caused by his visit to Freidrichsruhe, and the Republique Francaise prints an article to prove the necessity of fortifications along the Alpine frontier.

AMERICAN THIEVES IN LONDON.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A series of extensive robberies have occurred in and about London of late which have been traced to a gang of thieves supposed to have come from New York, and who were known as an American business firm. Through their operations one London bank was mulcted in the sum of $15,000 by these knaves, and their aggregate booty must have reached upward of $100,000.

AN APOLOGY DEMANDED.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Colonel Dopping, agent of the Gweedore estate, writes to the Times demanding that Mr. Gladstone retract and apologized for the erroneous statement made by him on the authority of Professor Stuart regarding Colonel Dopping's action in the matter of the Gweedore evictions.

ANOTHER BANQUET.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Mr. Chamberlain has accepted an invitation from the Mayor of Liverpool to attend a banquet at the town hall on Saturday, prior to his departure for America.

Burglars Caught.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—Samuel Briggs, 19 years of age, of William street; Robert Graham, 18 years, of Inspector street; Geo. Clendenning, 15 years, Palace street, and Samuel Hundle, 16 years, with no residence, were arrested last evening on the charge of burglary. It appears that yesterday morning before daylight the house of Madame Georgina Menard, on Aqueduct street, was broken into through a cellar window. The burglars rummaged through every room, and finally went to the bedroom of the lady of the house, opened the safe, of which the door was not completely closed, and took out $64. They were just reaching for a drawer containing $800, when the key dropped and Madame Menard awoke. The burglars became frightened and hastened downstairs, where they took along a bundle of clothes, which they had gathered. The parties were arrested, and Madame Menard identified Briggs and Graham as the burglars who were at her safe. They were all committed to the Court of Queen's Bench this morning.

The San Francisco Tragedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—At the inquest last night over the remains of Henry Benhayon, who, it was supposed, had committed suicide, Captain Lees, a detective, created a sensation by appearing before the jury and stating that he had secured information as to where the poison was bought. The purchaser proved to be, according to the Captain's information, John A. Dimmig, book agent and reputed friend of the deceased. Captain Lees had ascertained that Dimmig, for a few days previous to Benhayon's death, had been almost a daily visitor to the cell of Dr. Bowers. The evidence against Dimmig was so strong that he had determined to hold him on a charge of murder.

Captured By Indians.

BLUNT, Dak., Oct. 27.—Yesterday George Barney, Edward Loomis, William Dehartig, W. Duggan and E. E. Lump, farmers, after obtaining permission from a deputy U. S. Marshal, went on the Winnebago Indian reservation to catch driftwood from Missouri river. A band of Indians came up and captured their five teams, fired upon the farmers, caught and beat them and then bound them hand and foot and took them to Fort Thompson, where they are still in captivity.

ABOUT THE HARVEST.

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY REV. GEO. P. HAYES, D. D., LL. D.

Lesson V of the International Series (Fourth Quarter) for Oct. 30—Text of the Lesson, Matt. ix, 35-38—Golden Text, Matt. x, 8.

Vs. 35-38. Mission work—When Christ's people go from house to house and from village reading the Bible and teaching the truth, they are only following their Master's own example.

Verse 36 says that mankind then were not different from the present time. Amid all the various philosophical and ceremonial schools of religious worship then proposed, many became discouraged and many turned away without saving faith. If we have been born into the likeness of the Saviour's spirit, we too shall feel the same compassion which he felt.

Workmen needed—The figure used by Christ in the thirty-sixth verse is changed to one equally vivid in verses 37 and 38. We now look upon a field ripening for the harvest. If we now get discouraged because the more mission work is done the more there seems to be to do, we must remember that it was just so with the Saviour.

That under such circumstances he should urge his church to prayer is simply falling in with the ordinary religious experience.

It hardly lies consistently in the lips of those who will not contribute to the support of these laborers to offer this prayer that laborers should be sent forth. The truth of modern times is that there are far more young men and women anxious to go forth than the church is willing to furnish the means to send. As I write this, there lies before me an appeal from a student of theology, saying that thirty men will go to the foreign field if the church will open the way.

V. 1. Disciples made apostles—The word disciple means a "learner," and the word apostle means "one sent." Christ had hitherto had many disciples. Out of these, in accordance with the petition of the preceding chapter, he was now to select certain ones who should be sent forth, or "cast out," into the vineyard as his representatives to do his work.

Vs. 2-4. Catalogues of the apostles—There are four lists of the twelve apostles—Matthew x, Mark iii, Luke xvi and Acts i. In each case the same four apostles are first named, with Peter first in this list. The same four in all the lists form the second group, and Philip is always first in this second four. Four others constitute the last group, with James uniformly the first of this four, and Judas Iscariot last of all. It must be clear, therefore, that whatever importance attaches to Peter's place, a like relative importance must attach to both Philip and James. Judas is always last, and is omitted in the list given in the Acts because at that time he was dead.

Of some of these disciples we have very full accounts given. Interesting biographies can be written of Peter and James and John. Of others, however, almost nothing at all is known as to their work. These unknown apostles may have been thoroughly faithful in the obscure lot to which they were called. John and Peter had very serious faults to answer for.

Vs. 5, 6. Missions to the Jews—In Luke xxiv, 47, and in Acts i, 8, the church, after the resurrection, was instructed to begin at Jerusalem. Here the same order is given in the form of "go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

V. 7. The apostolic message—The message which these apostles were to utter and the manner of uttering it are both given. The kingdom of heaven, in all the beneficence of its salvation and all the certainty of its judgment, was to be announced as close at hand, and therefore demanding immediate and earnest attention. This was to be accompanied by all forms of temporal blessing. The proclamation of the gospel and the relief of the body were to go hand in hand.

V. 8. Freely give—The last clause of this lesson is to be interpreted in connection with verse 10 of the same chapter. The real point in the "freely give" is an exhortation to ministers and people to spread the gospel everywhere. We are ourselves the descendants of those converted from heathenism through missionaries sent out by the early church. We are as much bound to support the gospel when it is part of our spiritual growth as we are bound to pay for our own houses and daily bread. We are as much bound to send it to others as to send food to the starving and shelter to the shelterless.

SUGGESTIVE APPLICATIONS.

V. 36. He was moved with compassion—The mission of Christ on earth was prompted by tender, loving pity for the lost. With a similar love and tenderness we may now believe that he now looks abroad upon the multitudes in our land and in other lands who are wanderers from God, and who have no spiritual shepherd. To his disciples now he would say, "The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few." If the harvest was great then, it is even greater now. There are more children outside of the Sunday school in the United States than there were twenty years ago. Yet this is the age, and ours the country, of the greatest Sunday school activity. There are more non-churchgoers in our country today than there were twenty-five years ago, and Sabbath desecration is marching on to a crisis.

V. 38. Pray ye therefore—The secretaries and managers of benevolent societies are more apt to pray the Lord to send more money rather than more laborers. There is probably not a single missionary society, home or foreign, which has not now more laborers offering to be sent than there is money to provide for the sending of them. Now the Lord never calls a man to do a work for him without at the same time providing a way for the man to do it.

V. 8. Freely ye have received, freely give—With what a bountiful hand the redeemed soul has received the favors of the Lord he will never know until he comes into the presence of his King and the life beyond. That he is ever likely to give with that freedom with which he has received can scarcely be expected of fallen human nature even when renewed and refined by grace. Yet the command stands. Whoever comes nearest to giving with that bountiful hand with which he has received will come nearest to the fulfillment of this command of the Lord.

HINTS FOR PRIMARY CLASSES.

What is the harvest? Who are the laborers?

When the wheat on a farm is ripe, men cut it down, tie it into sheaves or bundles, beat out the grain and store it for use. This is called harvesting the wheat, or the wheat harvest. When the grain is ground at the mill it makes flour, and from the flour bread and cake are made for children and others to eat. What a sad thing it would be to have no wheat harvest! Suppose the wheat was grown and ready for the harvest, but no men could be found to cut it, or thresh it, or grind it, how useless the wheat would be, and every one would be without bread as much as though there had been no wheat. If the harvest should be great, but the laborers few, much grain would be lost. This is true of all harvests.

Read v. 35. As Jesus did all these things, and everywhere saw multitudes of poor and suffering people that needed help and such labor as he was so kindly and so generously bestowing, he said to his disciples: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Then he gave his disciples an order, which is for us also. He said: "Pray for more laborers." That is, pray for more Christian workers who will preach the gospel to the people of the earth.

He appointed twelve men to be his apostles, or head workers. (If there is time teach the names of the twelve. Their names might be given as a lesson to learn at home. In the "Scholar's Hand Book," prepared by the Rev. E. W. Rice, D. D., the names are grouped in three classes and printed over the number 12. It might be clearer to the little folks to print them around the 12, three on each side. If this should be done on the blackboard and rehearsed a few times the lesson could be easily learned at home.)—Sunday School World.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

ALL THE WORLD AT WAR.

By WALTER BESANT.

It was the ghost of a boat shining in the golden mist, all gorgeous with colors. The hull was yellow and blue and crimson, the colors changing every moment; the sail looked like a sheet of azure silk, and the spirit who stood behind the mast—it was the spirit of my Will—was all glorified. I stood quite still, fearing that the vision would fade. I had often, before this, seen him in dreams of the night, but never in the broad day, and in dreams he vanished so swiftly that I could never find time to speak to him. The boat seemed, at first, to be floating on the water—but she was not. In the light air of the morning she was slowly making for the land; and presently she passed through the mist, and lost all the gorgeous colors which the fog had lent her. But the ghost of my Will remained; pale, as all ghosts of drowned men should be. He saw me, as the bow of the boat grated on the stones—he cried my name—he threw up his arms—he leaped ashore.

"Oh, Will! Will!" I cried, falling upon my knees before him, "let me speak to you. Do not go away, as you do in the dreams. Let me speak to you. I knew you would some day think of me and come up from the grave. Oh, what am I to say, now you are here? What can I say, dear Will! poor Will! my dead love, my lost darling! come from heaven to comfort my poor heart! Oh, it is breaking! Will, it is breaking with grief and pain!"

"Pleasance," he cried, lifting me in his strong arms and folding me to his heart, "Pleasance, I am not dead—I am no ghost, my darling. I am come back to you again, alive—alive. Can you not understand! Oh, my love, my darling!"

I could not understand at first, nor for many days afterward. But joy does not kill. Will had, it is quite true, fallen overboard. But he was picked up by a French chasse-maree, and taken to France, where he lived among the fishermen, no one betraying him, till he could persuade one of them to trust him with a boat. He promised a large price, should he reach England in safety. It is needless to say that he kept his promise.

When I was able to listen to it all—when I could sit with my hand in his, in such happiness as never any other girl, I believe, experienced—he began to talk about our marriage. He wanted to see his mother, but he would tell her himself, not write to her. And he could not go, he said, unless I would go with him. What could I say? Of course we were married, just as he wished, he and I, in Rousdon church, by the Rev. Benjamin Burden. Will doffed his sailor clothes for the first time, and appeared dressed as a gentleman. Dan gave me away. It was agreed that we should ride straight from the church into Lyme, and thence post direct, without stopping, to London.

We left Dan and Job and the poor old rector at the door of the ecclesiastical barn. Will lifted me into the saddle and we rode slowly away, poor old Dan crying and Will promising soon to bring me back. We had ridden half a mile or so on our way along the Seaton road, when I saw before me, just before you come to Colway lane, a figure which seemed familiar to me. It was, indeed, only a part of a figure, consisting of a man's trunk and a couple of very short wooden stumps, on which the owner was pegging his way, literally, with uncommon vigor. I was right. The back of the man was familiar to me, for the face, when we came up with its owner, was the face of Joshua Meech.

He looked around at the sound of the horses' feet. At first he did not recognise us. I was dressed in a dark green riding habit, and wore a veil.

"Joshua," I said, softly, "do you not remember us?"

"Joshua Meech, my boy," cried Will, who knew nothing of what had happened. "How goes it, mate? Where did you lose your legs, man?"

"Where a good many lost their heads, Mr. Campion"—he spoke quite cheerfully, while a horribly guilty feeling seized me—"at Trafalgar. Glad to see you safe home again, sir. The villain who did the mischief, he's well punished, he is; and serve him right."

Now no one, except myself, ever knew who the villain was.

Later on, when Dan came to see us in London, he had a good deal to tell of Joshua.

The mill was set going again, after he found his money by means of a mysterious letter with a London postmark. It had become ruinous, but the wheels were there, and Joshua began again to practice his ancient craft. He went no longer to chapel, but became a firm pillar of the Established church, having been converted on board ship.

The way of his conversion was simple. He once, in his early days aboard, began to argue a point with the chaplain, who was so amazed at the audacity of a common sailor pretending to be skilled in theological subtleties, that he complained to the captain. The captain, a choleric man, ordered an application of the only remedy then employed for offenses and disorders at sea—three dozen.

Before the first dozen had been received Joshua felt conviction pouring in. About midway through the second, the force of the conviction was irresistible. By the end of the third he had steadfastly resolved on adhering, while on board, to the Church of England and Ireland, as by law established. And after coming ashore he continued this godly habit.

It is the last scene of my story.

A bright morning in autumn, when even the city houses look pleasant, and the trees in the city churchyards have not yet lost their leaves, and are pleasant to the eye. We go to the house in the square, Will and I, followed by John Huntspill. Madam has not gone to Chertsey this year.

There are no servants to meet us. John has taken care of that. We cross the hall and mount the stairs, covered with their thick Turkey carpets, which deaden every footfall. On the landing we can look into the great room which madam always uses as her own. We can see madam herself, sitting by the window, pale, rigid and stern.

No one moves, no one whispers. The tears come into Will's eyes as he looks upon his mother. Presently John Huntspill takes my hand and leads me quietly into the room.

Madam looked up in her quick, interrogative fashion.

"It is I, madam," said John.

"Is there anything of importance, John Huntspill? Unless you have news to tell me, why do you come? And who is with you?"

"I have to say a thing of great importance, madam. I bring with me a girl who has suffered much. I ask for your forgiveness for her, and for myself, for the deceit we practiced upon you."

"Oh, madam!"—I knelt at her feet—"we have been very unhappy. Forgive me, and let us be as happy together—as we can."

"I said, Pleasance," she replied, "that I would forgive you when the sea gave up its dead. But that will be long, perhaps. We should wait—till the Judgment day. My dear, I forgive you, for the sake of him whom we both loved. Pleasance, child"—she held out both her hands—"come and let us weep together, and go in mourning and sorrow all our days."

"Not in sorrow, madam. Oh! not in sorrow, but in gladness. For look, the Lord is very merciful. The sea has given up its dead, and here is your son home again. And in your arms!"

THE END.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

French Business Methods.

The French never, or very seldom, allow themselves to be completely absorbed in business. They always set apart a certain portion of time to the amenities of life. They are as serious as you like at work, but in a moment they will exhibit any amount of good humor at play, and again will resume the harness as quickly as it was thrown off. If you go into a shop at dinner time—I speak now of the small provincial towns—you may run the risk of receiving very little attention, or even none at all. I remember once—it was at St. Halo, in the summer—I entered a hatter's shop at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. A well dressed, ladylike girl came out of the back parlor and inquired what I wanted.

"I want a straw hat, mademoiselle," I said.

"O! that's very awkward just now."

"Is it?"

"Well, you see," she said, "my brother is at dinner," and after a panse of a few seconds she added: "Would you mind calling again in an hour's time?"

"Not at all," I replied; "I shall be delighted to do so."

I was not only amused, but struck with admiration for the independence of that worthy hatter. After a few years' residence in England a little scene of that description was a great treat.

An hour later I called again. The young girl made her second appearance.

"My brother waited for you for quite ten minutes," she said to me; "he is gone to the cafe with a friend now."

"I am sorry for that," I said. "When can I see him?"

"If you will step across to the cafe, I am sure he will be happy to come back and attend to you."

I thanked the young lady, went to the cafe, introduced myself to the hatter, who was enjoying a cup of coffee and having a game of dominoes with a friend. He asked me to allow him to finish the game, which of course I was only too glad to do, and we returned to the shop together.—Cor. Kansas City Times.

Chronic Coughs and Colds.

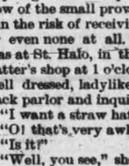
And all Diseases of the Throat and Lungs can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. See what W. S. Muer, M. D., L. R. C. P. etc., Truro, N. S., says: "After three years' experience I consider Scott's Emulsion one of the very best in the market. Very excellent in throat affections." Put up in 50c. and $1.00 size.



Port Au Prince, Oct. 26.—From Sept. 23 up to date shocks of earthquake have been felt almost daily on the island. In consequence a panic has seized the inhabitants and business has almost entirely suspended.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It smoothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, Relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for Diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Palmo-Sulphur Soap.

Is Marvelously Efficient in clearing the Skin of Impurities, and keeping it in a perfect state of health. It beautifies the complexion, while as a Healing agent for Sores or Wounds it passes all praise. There is no Form of Eruptive Disease for which this Renowned Soap has not proved efficacious. In the Bath it is as beneficial as the waters of the Renowned Sulphur Springs. Linens and Woolens washed with it are rendered superlatively white, and are disinfected when germs of disease linger in the material. The value of Sulphur as a Cleansing and Purifying agent is everywhere recognized. Ask for Palmo-Sulphur, and refuse all others, and you wont be deceived.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. Gumpricht is in town. Orders may be left at Mr. T. Menzies' or Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's stores. dtf

Evangelistic.

The Rev. Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, the evangelists, who are expected to be in Peterborough this winter, commence a four weeks mission in Toronto on Sunday and are expected to be in Belleville in January.

Y. M. C. A.

At the Young Men's Christian Association rooms on Thursday evening a meeting of the workers was held, which resolved, after discussion, to organize a training class in Bible study. Mr. Geo. Roger occupied the chair.

Mr. Hugel's Offer.

The Port Hope Guide says:—"Baron Hugel, through Dr. S. C. Corbett, has offered on the part of a number of American capitalists to build and run the Red River Valley Railway. Mr. Hugel is just the man for the position."

An Intellectual Treat.

The P.A.A. Association have succeeded in engaging the world renowned Mrs. Scott-Siddons to give one of her highly entertaining dramatic performances here in November. Quite a number of seats have already been taken

Now Open.

Chamberlain's oyster parlor is now open for the season. Oysters will be served at all hours in styles to suit the tastes of our patrons. After this week shell oysters will be kept constantly on hand. Porter-house steaks, chops, etc., prepared on the shortest notice. d69-tf

Mr. Findlay McGregor.

The concert under the auspices of the Sons of England and patronage of St. Andrews Society, which takes place on Monday next, (Hallow-E'en) promises to be a grand success. Already a large number of tickets have been disposed of, and a crowded house is looked for. The press speaks in the highest terms of Mr. McGregor's abilities as a vocalist.

Journalistic.

The Canadian Advance, a new paper, appears in Toronto as the successor of the Parkdale News. The Advance will publish each week a report of Dr. Wild's evening sermon, and the aim of the publishers is is to give the public a new religious, literary and domestic weekly, conducted in the interests of the Congregational denomination of Canada.

Home Again.

The Fitzgerald party are home again after having indulged in a ten days deer hunt in the vicinity of Gold and Cox Lakes. The party was composed as follows:—Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, captain; T. Rutherford, A. Blade, H. Mathews, H. Evans, J. Clancy and M. McFadden. They took with them ten fine dogs and brought home nine. They had infinite sport in obtaining the result of their hunt—ten deer. Three of these, however, were left at Crane Lake, owing to the difficulty there would have been in getting them to camp. To-day the division of spoils is in progress at Messrs. Fitzgerald & Stanger's carriage shop.

Dogs Killed.

Mr. W. McGreggor, who with his party of deer hunters returned to town on Thursday night, reports that four valuable dogs were killed by wolves in the vicinity of Long Lake, Township of Burleigh, where they were hunting. He says that the wolves are thick up there. Though they cannot be seen in the day their yelps and howls at night show that their numbers are not few. The party, which consisted of Messrs. Geo. Chalmers, J. Blewet and J. Crowe, Young's Point; W. Kennealip, W. McGreggor, Samuel Campbell and David Millar, town, secured eight deer.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

A Hasty Purchase Leads to Legal Difficulties.

The attention of the court was occupied the whole of Thursday on the case Charlton vs. Armstrong et al. William Charlton was the plaintiff and Mary Armstrong and A. Ingram were the defendants. Mr. Charlton owned a farm in Otonabee, which he offered for sale by auction in November, 1886, Mr. McIlmoyle being the auctioneer. The farm was not sold at the auction sale, although it was alleged that $4,600 was bid. Mrs. Armstrong had looked at the farm previously, and was at the sale. After the sale the auctioneer took Mrs. Armstrong into Mr. Charlton's house and offered her the place for $4,500. The statement was made that a large offer had been made, so as to induce her to purchase the property. After conversation she agreed to take it. Her note for $450 was taken, ten per cent. of the purchase money, payable on the 1st of March following. She signed no contract to complete the purchase. The next day she, thinking there was something wrong about the affair, came back, demanded the note and repudiated the sale. Mr. Charlton refused to give the note. He sold the note, having first endorsed it. When the note came due the holder sued both Mr. Charlton and Mrs. Armstrong. Judgment was obtained against Charlton and the suit was pending against Mrs. Armstrong. Mr. Ingram proposed to buy the judgment against Mr. Charlton, provided proceedings were dropped against Mrs. Armstrong. This was done and the judgment was assigned to Mr. Ingram. Mr. Charlton then commenced an action against Mr. Ingram and Mrs. Armstrong, on the ground that Mr. Ingram purpurchased the judgment for Mrs. Armstrong. He asked the court to declare that Mr. Ingram was trustee for Mrs. Armstrong and applied for an injunction to prevent enforcing the judgment. He also asked, in case he could not prove this, that the court give him a judgment against Mrs. Armstrong for the amount of the note. The evidence disclosed the reasons of Mrs. Armstrong for not paying the note—that there was no legal contract in the sale of the land and that she had been deceived in making the purchase. Judgment was reserved.

Mr. E. B. Edwards for the plaintiff, and Messrs. W. N. Hoyles and W. H. Moore, for defendant.

The case McMurtry vs. McMurtry, is up for hearing to-day.

Returned.

The English deerslayers have got back again within the pale of civilization. They brought back with them seven fine deer, huge appetites, thrilling tales and hairy laces. It is whispered that a barber charged one of the party a quarter to mow off the hirsute growth of two weeks. Among the spoil was three fine buck, the heaviest of which will dress close on 300 pounds. It was shot by Mr. Kent. The other two were taken down by Mr. R. A. Morrow. The party numbered eleven:—Wm. English, captain; R. A. Morrow, H. C. Winch, H. LeBrun, H. W. Kent, Fred Winch, T. E. Bradburn, J. E. McIntyre, R. E. Wood, A. Simpson who set out the dogs and Warwick Ayling, the cook. Some trouble was experienced by other parties being too near. Their ground was in the vicinity of Sucker, Ball and Gold Lakes, but frequently they ran into the Fitzgerald party's ground and another party from Buckhorn, numbering 17, were also collided with. In the capture of one deer the representatives of three different camps canoed their way to where the slain deer was, but just in time one of the English dogs hove in sight and the deer was secured. Mr. LeBrun "brought down the house" when he shot a fine doe. The party got to town at about 11 o'clock on Thursday night.

Will not Pass Unchallenged.

The Orange Sentinel, after quoting the address presented to Mr. J. B. McWilliams when he retired from the office of County Master and his reply thereto, says that it is "extremely sorry to learn of Bro. McWilliams' withdrawal from the Orange Association, with which he has been so prominently identified for many years, especially in view of the fact that one of the principal reasons he assigns for so doing is the annoyance and unkind treatment receided at the Grand Lodge meetings and public demonstrations, 'and that only on account of his being a Liberal in politics.' It is due to the entire Association throughout British America that the brethern of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East amongst whom Bro. McWilliams held the office of Junior Deputy Grand Master, should not permit this statement to go unchallenged, and we presume that at the earliest moment after the Grand Lodge meets the matter will be fully investigated."

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Hill was "occupied" in business at the Sun Insurance Company's head office, Montreal, while in that city, not "accepted," as the compositor had it.

Mr. W. H. Moore went out to North Dummer to-day for a few days' shooting.

Mr. Geo. Tate Blackstock is in town on court business to-day.

Mr. A. R. Clarke, a former resident of Peterborough, and his wife were entertained in the parlors of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, on their return from their wedding trip. Mrs. Clarke, who has been organist and teacher in the Sunday school, was presented with a mahogany writing desk.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, County Solicitor, has left town for England to day to watch the case, Bickford vs. County of Peterborough, which is now before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

To Mr. W. H. Stafford on the Eve of His Departure for Peterborough.

A correspondent sends us from Almonte, Ont., the following account of a presentation to a gentleman who, with this introduction, will be welcomed to Peterborough:

A short time ago Mr. W. H. Stafford, student at law, of this town, and son of our esteemed townsman, Mr. Henry Stafford, received an offer to go to Peterborough and assume entire charge of the office of Mr. E. B. Edwards, barrister, Town and County Solicitor, etc., and, after due consideration, decided to accept the proffered situation. The news of his intended departure from our midst was sprung somewhat suddenly upon his friends here, but, even though he was leaving on short notice, they felt that they would not be fulfilling their duty towards him, as a friend and a citizen from childhood up, should they allow him to depart without showing in some way that esteem in which he had always been held by them. Accordingly, they met, to the number of some twenty-five or thirty, in the law office of Mr. R. J. Dowdall, on the evening of the 24th inst., and presented him with a purse containing the handsome sum of $53.00 and the following address:

THE ADDRESS.

William H. Stafford, Esq., Student at Law, Almonte:

DEAR FRIEND,—We, the undersigned, on behalf of your many Almonte friends, beg to express our sincere regret at your intended departure from this town, although it is to assume a more responsible position as manager of a law office in Peterborough. We feel that we would be delinquent in our duty towards you, whom we have always regarded with the warmest esteem and respect, should we allow you to leave without some taken of the kindly feelings which we cherish towards you and yours.

We have watched with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction the marked success which you have achieved during your legal course—the high position acquired by you amongst the students of the Province, as shown by your standing at Osgoode Hall—and we are convinced that by continuing as in the past, your perseverance and industry will gain for you that ultimate eminence in the profession of the law which will render you an adornment to the Canadian bar.

We beg your acceptance of this purse, to mark in some degree that esteem in which we have always held you, and we are quite sure that in your new sphere you will ever remember the precepts and practices of youth, and trust you may be surrounded by friends as sincere, faithful and warm as the present gathering.

Signed on behalf your many friends in Almonte,

D. P. LYNCH, M.D.,
M. DIXON,
JOHN KELLY,
R. J. DOWDALL,
J. M. E. LAVALLEE,
Committee.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. Stafford proved equal to the occasion, an replied in the following feeling manner:—

THE REPLY.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,—To say that I am wholly taken by surprise is putting it very mild, and words fail to convey to you the overpowering sentiments of gratitude that press around my heart to-night. Had it been the friends of my childhood, or in other words, the boys, who so generously and kindly met me here to-night, I would feel honored. But in looking round me, gentlemen, I find not only the boys but their fathers—men of solid worth, whom I have respected and known from my childhood—old landmarks who have been ever foremost in promoting the welfare of the town and that of the boys. I feel most unworthy, I assure you, gentlemen, of the honor conferred upon me to-night, and am at a loss for words to express my deepest gratitude. For the place of my birth and the people thereof I shall ever keep the first and warmest spot in my heart, as I feel that Almonte and her people are part and parcel of myself. I leave to-morrow, as the most of you know, to assume the management of one of the leading law offices of Peterborough, and upon this, the eve of my departure, the accompanying address and purse are most acceptable to me, not alone for the pecuniary gain but for the spirit in which they are given me. I shall always look back with pleasure on this eve as being one of the brightest in the annals of my life, and shall always be pleased to meet any of my Almonte friends in my new home. I hope that I shall always merit the good will and confidence of the people of Almonte in the future as I have done in the past. Once more thanking you, gentlemen, for your kindness and generosity, I beg to resume my seat.

Speeches followed from several of those present, and a few hours were spent in a very pleasant and enjoyable manner.

Mr. Stafford first entered the law office of the late firm of Macdonnell & Dowdall, nearly five years ago, afterwards continued with Dowdall & Fraser, and latterly with Mr. R. J. Dowdall alone. Throughout the whole of his course he has been remarkably successful, and, taking his past record as a criterion, there is a bright and happy future before him. In friend Stafford Peterborough has gained a citizen of good moral and social standing, one who is endowed with physical and intellectual strength, and he seems determined to make his mark in the world. That he may meet with every possible success is the poorest wish of his numerous friends in this town.

TURNBULL'S direct importations of Mantle Cloths please everybody. The styles are new and prices are very low.

Baseball Club's Ball.

A ball will be held under the auspices of the Peterborough Baseball Club in the new hall in the Snowden block, on Thanksgiving Eve. The Committee are Messrs. F. H. Brennan, M. D., J. E. Fitzgerald, J. E. Landy, G. C. Clarke. Mr. A. R. Moore will be floor director. A first class orchestra will be in attendance.

Preparing.

The members of the Saved Army are preparing for the concert and banquet which will be held in the Opera House on Tuesday evening.

The Cells.

The cells were untenanted last night and the docket at the Police Court was nil this morning.

A CONTRADICTION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I see in the Times of Oct. 26th, under the heading of "Fishing for Sympathy," some statements that are untrue. About the pepper, anyone wishing to know the truth will please apply to Lewis Spry and his wife or to John Ryan and his wife, Stewart street. About the fire, please apply to O. Brown, at J. W. Flavelle's store, as I was in there three times between 8 p. m. and 8.30 p.m., the last time to speak to a lady. I left home at 7.30 that evening and can account for all the time up to 9 15 p.m.; also apply to the neighbours near my residence. I asked the Times to publish the truth, but it has not done so.

I remain, yours truly,

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1887.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE undersigned, having sold to Messrs. F. H. DOBBIN and S. R. ARMSTRONG his interest in the Peterborough REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co.'y (Limited), the business of the Company, in all its departments, will henceforth be conducted by them, and, although retaining for a time the nominal position of President of the Company, the limited responsibility which the undersigned has had for some years past for what has appeared in these columns and for the business management of the Company's affairs, will cease on the 1st November next.

In severing his connection with the REVIEW and its large circle of readers and patrons, the undersigned desires to return them his most sincere thanks for the many kindnesses which he has received at their hands, and especially for their having been so wondrous kind to his many faults both of commission and omission, and to solicit for the new management that kindly and active support, without which it will be impossible for them, or anyone else, to render the REVIEW an efficient exponent of the views and interests which it represents, and, at the same time, yield them a modest pecuniary return for the at all times arduous, trying, and too often thankless, duties devolving upon them as conductors of a public journal.

THE AMERICA CUP.

The New York Yacht Club Accepts the Trophy and Makes New Rules.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The New York Yacht Club has passed resolutions accepting the America cup, deeded to the club by the sole surviving owner, George L. Schuyler. It was decided to furnish all foreign yacht clubs with copies of the deed of the gift. The deed specifies that the cup shall be reserved as a perpetual challenge cup, and that any foreign yacht club incorporated, patented or licensed by the Legislature of its country may challenge for the cup, this latter provision to hold in case the course selected shall be an ocean water course. The challenging vessel must be constructed in the country whence the challenge emanates. The challenging club must give ten months, notice in the time intervening between November and May, and must send a certificate with the name and dimensions of the vessel. No restrictions shall be placed on the use of the centreboard or solid keel, and the two competing clubs shall make such arrangements for the race as they can agree upon. In case they cannot agree three races shall be sailed and the winner of two races shall win the cup. In case the club holding the cup shall dissolve, the cup shall go to some club of the same nationality. A defeated vessel shall not again challenge within two years or until another race has intervened.

Fell Over a Cliff.

Mr. Thos. Rutherford, who was north with the Fitzgerald party of hunters, did not have pleasure only in his experience. Being near the edge of a precipice, he accidently fell over and rapidly decended about twenty feet, alighting on a shelf, and lodging against a stump. His side came against the stump with considerable force. On getting to his feet he was surprised to find that the shelf held him from falling over a hundred feet further.

Seduction.

Robt. Scully, of Otonabee, was arrested this morning on the charge of having, in January last, seduced Mary Webster, a girl sixteen years of age. The prisoner was brought before Police Magistrate Dumble and remanded till Wednesday.

NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM CONTEMPORARY COLUMNS.

A Budget of News of the Midland District Carefully Gathered and Condensed.

COOPER WANTED.

The Register wants a cooper shop on an extensive scale established at Norwood.

A NEW BUS.

A new bus will be put on the route between Omemee and the station by Mr. S. Lamb.

A LARGE LOAD.

Mr. George Elliott, of Asphodel, delivered at the elevator the other day a load of grain which contained 104 bushels and 45 pounds.

HUNTING COONS.

Several young men had sport chasing half a dozen coons near Campbellford last week. The coons escaped.

BARNS BURNED.

The barns and sheds of Mr. T. Walker, Rawdon, were burned on Tuesday, together with a season's crop, and also Mr. Jas. Haig's steam thresher and horse.

DWELLING BURNED.

Mr. Jas. Galvin's dwelling house in Seymour was burned on Monday, with all the household effects. A defective chimney is the supposed cause.

BEARS, BEARS.

Bears appear to be numerous in Seymour. A number have been seen in a swamp near Petherick's corners, and others are in a swamp on the Govan farm in Seymour West.

SENTENCED.

Frank Callahan pleaded guilty at Cobourg to stealing money and other articles from Frank Doyle, his employer. He was sent to gaol for three months.

A SERIOUS FALL.

Mr. Wm. Field, of Cobourg, fell on an icy plank in his yard. He fell with violence to the ground and broke the lower extremity of the thigh bone, the fracture running into the knee joint.

AN OWL SHOT.

William Harcourt, of Port Hope, shot an owl on Thursday morning. It had a crow in its claws. It measured 4 feet 2 inches from tip to tip of its wings.

CIGAR FACTORY.

The projectors of the Port Hope cigar factory have met with encouragement and the prospectus has been drawn up. Perhaps, after all, it will not end in smoke.

BOBCAYGEON TEACHERS.

Mr. W. Hickson, of Mount Pleasant, was accepted for the mastership of Bobcaygeon school and Miss Martha Kennedy for teacher. There were some ninety applications before the Board.

BABY IN THE WATER.

A lady left her baby carriage for a moment at the Bobcaygeon wharf. The carriage ran down an incline and with the infant plunged into the water. The child was rescued.

A SMASH.

Two teams collided on the platform of a storehouse at Omemee on Wednesday, and the team and waggon belonging to Mr R. Graham, of Emily, was crowded off, and fell five feet. Mr. Graham was severely bruised and the waggon was badly broken.

CUT OFF BY A SAW.

One of the fingers of H. Clegg was cut off obliquely by a saw in Gilmour's mill at Crow Bay, Seymour. The bone was cut even by a surgeon while the sufferer was under the influence of chloroform.

NEW LUMBERING FIRM.

The Christy Lumbering Company, of Muskoka, have purchased the Strickland limits north of Minden, and have commenced operations in the township of Hindon and Oakley.

FELL DOWN STAIRS.

Mrs. Thomas Stinson, of Minden, while going down stairs without a light, made a misstep and fell to the floor. She was almost fatally injured, an ugly gash being cut in her her head, her wrist broken and ankle sprained.

KILLED FAR FROM HOME.

Frank Loucy, of Minden, met with a fatal accident while working in Michigan. He was engaged loading a car with timber, when he slipped and fell and a log fell on him. A fellow workman, a stranger, brought the body home, and he was buried at Minden on Wednesday.

FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

Mr. Ned. Fitzgerald, foreman for Irwin & Co., met a bear which had been stealing grub, in Harburn, north of Haliburton, and had a fight with it for the possession of a bag. The bear was beaten off with a club. It was afterwards killed, and the Bobcaygeon Independent says that a piece of Ned's shirt was still in its stomach.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

William Sanders, of Lindsay, while driving a grocer's waggon, was ran into by another team, which jumped into the waggon. One of Mr. Sanders' legs was broken in two places and splintered in another, his arm was broken and internal injuries sustained.

A TIE CONTRACT.

Mr. J. E. Gould of Uxbridge and Coboconk has a big contract on hand in supplying the Grand Trunk with 300,000 railway ties. It will give the wood trade in the north country a regular boom this winter.

THE ROSEDALE LOCKS.

Mr. Thomas Walters, superintendent of Ontario government works, has commenced preliminary operation on the locks at Rosedale, for which an appropriation of $8,000 has been made. The lock will be rebuilt in a substantial style. The coffer dams will be put in now while the water is low.

LOW WATER.

The water has been very low this fall, owing in part to the volume of water passing through with the late drives of logs and also to the very dry season. The Esturion was compelled to leave part of her cargo at Sturgeon Point one day this week to enable her to make Lindsay.

COAL OIL FOUND.

When digging a well on the farm of Mr. J. Buigley, lot No. 1, 9 h con., of Verulam, a strata of rock was struck that gave promise of coal oil being found in the vicinity. The well was sunk through nine feet of gravel when the rock was exposed and a strong smell of coal oil was developed. A piece of the rock was taken to Lindsay and the Post says that inspection certainly verifies the supposition that the seam is oil bearing strata. Further investigation will be made.

A BIG FIRE AT PEMBROKE.

The Total Loss $22,000—The Work of an Incendiary.

PEMBROKE, Oct. 28.—Fire was discovered in Mr. Walter Beatty's sash and door factory this morning about 4.30 o'clock, and before the alarm could be sounded and the brigade called out the whole of his large factory, together with Angus' paint shop, outbuildings adjoining, Shield's Hotel, outbuildings and stables adjoining, Mrs. Rowan's properties and Mr. Beatty's lumber yard were enveloped in flames The firemen worked nobly and got the fire under complete control before it had much chance to spread. No doubt, however, had there been a strong wind blowing at the time half the town would have been swept away. Mr. Beatty was one of the largest contractors and builders in the place, and his loss at this time of the year will be more particularly felt. He has a large number of contracts well under way and much of the stock is consumed. The telegraph and telephone wires were badly damaged, communications over both systems being completely blocked for a time. Mr. Beatty will rebuild at once.

The amount of damage is as follows: Mr. Walter Beatty's loss $17,000, insurance $1250 in British American, $1250 in the Glasgow and London; total insurance $2500 R. H. Roe, lumber and machinery, loss $700, no insurance. John Shield, outbuilding, loss $1000, no insurance. S. Richardson, loss $300, no insurance. Mrs. Esther Rowan, house, loss $1000, no insurance. J. G. Angus, sign writer's shop, loss $700, no insurance. G. Code, shops, loss $300, no insurance; men's tools, etc., $1,000; total loss $22,000; insurance $2,500 Mr. Beatty was Mayor of Pembroke during 1882 and 1883, and loses the greater part of his fortune by this calamity. The feeling of sympathy is so strong that a subscription was organized on the spot for Mr. Beatty. At 3 o'clock this afternoon it amounted to $1,700. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an incendiary.

TEEMER-GAUDAUR.

Details of the Boat Race for the Championship of America.

LAKE MARANACOOK, Me., Oct., 28.—The great race for the championship of America and $2 000 stakes, between Jake Gaudaur, of St. Louis, and John Teemer, of McKeesport, Pa., was rowed this morning on Lake Maranacook, in the presence of 10,000 spectators, who had come from all the surrounding cities and towns. Teemer won in 20 minutes 28 2-5 seconds. Gaudaur was half a mile behind at the finish, and paddled home leisurely. Hundreds of sporting men from Boston and New York were in attendance. Referee Ormonde had decided yesterday afternoon that, inasmuch as the people had come from such a great distance, he would start the men at 9 o'clock this morning, in order to give everybody a chance to reach home. The accommodations for witnessing the race were very good for those who had no desire to follow the contestants, but the three small steamers, which were crowded to their utmost capacity, had scarcely 500 persons. A more orderly gathering was never seen at a boat race. Teemer and Gaudaur were both astir early this morning for a walk along the banks of the river. James Keenan, the backer of the McKeesport lad, offered to increase the stakes to $2,500 a side, but St. John, the backer of the St. Louis oarsman, refused to do it. Teemer and Gaudaur have met thirteen times before. The race for the first mile was all that the spectators could wish, but the McKeesport lad soon showed his superiority, and drew away steadily from Gaudaur. Gaudaur tugged manfully at his oars, and, with his great strength skilfully brought into play, spurted bravely, but to no purpose. Teemer came home like a race horse, leaving his rival away in the rear. Teemer was as "fresh as a daisy" when he crossed the winning line, and the shouts of the thousands on shore welcomed his victory. The judges were, at the start, Al. Hamm for Teemer, and George Lee for Gaudaur; at the turning stoke, Wallace Ross for Teemer, and Peter Conley for Gaudaur. John Kennedy, the well known oarsman, was starter

DISQUIETUDE IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES

Over the Probable Resignation of President Grevy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Herald's London special says:—"Some disquietude is felt in official circles in contemplation of the probable resignation of President Grevy and the Rouvier ministry. True, it may be assumed that the conventions just agreed upon between the English and French Governments are binding on both, whatever changes in ministry take place; but it is feared that they might not stand the shock of a return to power of M. Clemenceau and General Boulanger. The failure of the recent negotiations from any cause would be a heavy blow to the English Ministry; but as the French public appear well satisfied with the conventions, there seems no good reason to apprehend such a result."

LONDON, Oct. 28.—M. Wilson's decision to fight down the accusations against him, rather than succumb to popular clamor, is the result of President Grevy's importunities. M. Grevy has implicit faith in the in the honor and honesty of his son-in-law, and shrinks from the possibility of the dismemberment of his family. He has, therefore, urged M. Wilson to resist the attempts of his enemies to encompass his downfall, confident in the belief that he will emerge from the ordeal unscathed.

An escaped convict.

CONCORD, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The warder of the State prison has received information that Dick Payne, the defaulting paymaster's clerk at the Portsmouth navy yard, who escaped from prison two weeks ago, left Montreal for the west this morning.

The Gospel Hall.

Mr. Douglas Russell will conduct another meeting to-night (Saturday) in the Gospel Hall. Meetings to-morrow at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

REFORMING HOUSE OF LORDS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Earl Kimberley, speaking at Louth, said he hoped Lord Rosebery would devise a scheme to reform and purify the House of Lords. He would gladly support him in such an undertaking.

THE CZAR TO MEET THE KAISER.

LONDON, Oct 28.—The Telegraph's Berlin correspondent says he has learned on indisputable authority that the Czar will return from Copenhagen to St. Petersburg via Berlin, where he will have a private interview with Emperor William. The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent also asserts that the Czar will return via Berlin and have an interview with the Emperor.

NOT DYNAMITERS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Earl Spencer, speaking at Bedford to-day, said there was no doubt that there were men in both England and Ireland who were ready to commit dynamite outrages in order to effect their purpose, but nothing was more mischievous than to attempt to confuse the Irish in one body by mixing up the party of Parnell with the dynamiters. [Cheers.] He was happy to think such efforts had failed. The Parnellites had no greater enemies than O'Donovan Rossa and his crew. [Hear, Hear.] If the Liberal policy of conciliation prevailed it would end these abominable crimes, but if coercion prevailed for any length of time he saw the greatest danger from secret societies reviving and extremists with their dynamite coming to the front. The present Liberal policy was not founded on despair—unless it were despair of the old and worn out methods. It was a policy bright with hope in the future and with confidence in the result of reliance on the Irish people in throwing upon them the responsibility of governing their own country. [Cheers.]

I. N. B. RESOLUTIONS.

London Oct. 28—The Time to-day gives great prominence to the resolutions passed at a recent meeting of the Irish National Brotherhood, refusing to accept as a compromise Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme, which was accepted by Sir George Trevelyan, and points to this as a proof that Mr. Gladstone's plan will never have the approval of Ireland, the Parnellite leaders being under the control of the Clan-na-Gael.

SIR WILFRED BLUNT'S SENTENCE.

Denounced by Mr. Shaw Lefevre—What Irish Journals Say.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The sentence of two months' imprisoument on Sir Wilfred Blunt is regarded as most severe. The chances are that the action of the police will be found illegal on appeal.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Mr. Shaw Lefevre speaking at Burnley last evening, said the sentence of Sir Wilfred Blunt was a crime. There was no more reason at Woodford than there was at Burnley why Lord Clanricarde's conduct should not be called in question. If corecion was necessary, it was for compelling landlords like Lord Clanricarde to do their duty.

Irish journals point to the fact that the result of the case is identical with that of Mr. O'Brien, and claim that Sir Wilfred Blunt's appeal from the judgment of the Court dulls the edge of the Government's weapon and paralyzes its efforts to construe the Crimes Act to suit it own purposes.

THE DYNAMITE CAMPAIGN.

Serious Views Taken of the Facts Brought out at the Cohen Inquest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Tribune's London despatch says: "The police take a very serious view of the facts brought out in the Cohen inquest. By no means all the facts were brought out, only enough to put the public to a certain extent on its guard. The chief of the detective force believes dynamite outrages are imminent, and precautions are now taken on a great scale. Public buildings are watched with no less care than during the last dynamite campaign. Assassinations, they say, were to accompany the explosions. Mr. Balfour now hated by the Irish as every Chief Secretary but Mr. Morley was hated, was to have been the first victim. It was supposed that the attempt would be made when he speaks next week at Birmingham."

Will Resume Payment.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The directors of the London Bank have decided to resume payment to depositors and other creditors during the first week in November. The payment in London will be conducted by the London Bank itself. The Ingersoll, Watford and Brantford depositors will be paid by the Traders' Bank of Toronto. The payment of creditors at the other branches of the bank, including Petrolia depositors, will be conducted by the bank of Toronto. In the case of unforseen difficulties arising the payment of the depositors will be delayed, but not more than two weeks, and this is not considered likely.

The Fishery Commissioners.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Messrs. Putnam and Angell, the American fisheries negotiators, are in consultation with Secretary Bayard. The British representatives are expected in Washington early in November. The diplomatic reception room at the State Department has been set apart for the sessions of the conference.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

Judge O'Connor Recovering.

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 28.—Judge O'Connor has been suffering for some time from a severe cold and cough, complicated by dyspepsia and insomnia. The travelling and work on circuit have prevented his getting needful rest and treatment, but he is now much better and is rapidly gaining in strength.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1887.

CALUMNIATING CANADA.

In its efforts to further the commercial followed by the political annexation of Canada to the United States and the separation of this Dominion from the British Empire, the Toronto Mail returns to the charge by further mistatements and quibbles to make out its false assertion that by the former reciprocity agreement and by the offer now on our Statute books, Canada discriminated against the United Kingdom in favor of the United States.

In answer to our plain statement that it forged a version to suit its purpose of our Statute offering reciprocity in raw materials and natural products to the United States, it has to admit that it was wrong, which it knew while guilty of the falsification, for it gave the number of the very clause, Section 9, which it thus falsified. To let itself down easy under this exposure, it resorts to the quibble, that under certain conditions by section 3 fish is to be admitted free from the United States and Newfoundland and that by section 11 wine is to be admitted at a reduced duty from France and Spain, without either privilege being extended to the United Kingdom. Well, if these can be said to be logical flaws (for they have no practical effect) in our legislation, there is an easy remedy by placing wine and fish on the free list when the British Isles take to making wine and British fishermen to supplying Canada with fish. Was there ever a more paltry quibble than this by which the Mail tries to bolster up its false charges that Canada wages commercial war against the United Kingdom in alliance with foreigners?

Besides this the Mail reiterates its other calumny that Canada discriminated against the United Kingdom by the former reciprocity agreement with the United States. Again it has resort to the falsification of our statutes. The very same volume that contains the Act to give force to the treaty, contains also another Act by which the bulk of the articles affected are placed on the free list for all the world. We did not then make a friendly tariff for the United States and a hostile tariff for the United Kingdom, and the Mail's assertion in this instance also is a wilful calumny upon Canada.

Having learned by its quibble as to wine and fish that the Mail can crawl through a very small knot-hole, or even a worm hole, we will anticipate its explanation that there really was an enormous discrimination against our Mother Country. Dried fruits were admitted free from the United States and were charged a duty of a penny a pound from the United Kingdom. Unmanufactured tobacco was admitted free from the United States and was subject to a duty of two pence a pound from the United Kingdom. As Great Britain and Ireland did not dry fruits or grow tobacco the enormity of Canada's sin is obvious. Perhaps as the two lists are not quite identical, an enemy of Canada with a microscopic eye and a mind of the requisite dimensions might find some other blot of the same calibre. We leave the congenial task to the Toronto Mail.

The fact which is of importance remains, that Canada did not and does not adopt a policy of commercial alliance with foreigners and commercial hostility to our mother country. Those who say we did so are calumniators. Those who advocate such a policy are traitors to their country for the benefit of aliens.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP.

In Bradstreet's estimate of the wheat crop of the world it is remarked that Canada will require for its own consumption nearly all this year's produce. One of the pessimists who are only happy when speaking evil of their country, observes that this implies a very great falling off in the producing power of the country. It implies nothing of the kind. In Canada we have hitherto produced on the average little more wheat than was sufficient for our own consumption. It is true that we have exported wheat but this was about counterbalanced by the import of United States flour into the Maritime Provinces. This was due before the adoption of the National Policy to the want of protection, and since then to the unfortunate flaw in that policy by which it was the millers of the United States, not of Canada, who were protected.

This year the wheat crop of Canada has been below the average, but this is compensated by the magnificent surplus of more than 7,000,000 bushels in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. As settlement in the Northwest extends, it is evident that, with average crops in old Canada, the Dominion will have a large and growing surplus for export. It follows that our farmers should do their utmost to enlarge the home market, and to preserve the best market for our surplus, the crowded countries of the United Kingdom and of the continent of Europe.

On the Mount of Olives.

The tower which is being erected by the Russians on the highest point of Mount Olives is already several storeys high, and but one more is to be added. It is to be so high that both the Mediterranean and the Dead seas may be seen from its top. A number of bells will be placed in the tower. In digging the foundation seven Christian graves were found together, with an inscription in Greek, in which the words "Stephanus" could be deciphered.

THE WAR CLOUD BUSTED!

Victory has Perched on the Banner of ## PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT CHEAPSIDE.

And SHEPPARD, by common consent, will get $1,000 for being the Cheapest Clothier in Peterborough, having knocked the Wonderful Cheap Man completely out. "Business is business; dirt is dirt, and when it comes to throwing dirt, then count" the only original teddy out, and he will hand over that $1,000 like a little man, for the following reasons:—

SHEPPARD sells a full size Man's suit for $2.95, and better goods than a suit to fit a child about nine years old sold by the Wonderful Cheap Man on Saturday for $3.00; but marked $3.50. This is how it was.—A lady purchased a child's suit on Saturday last, Sept. 17th, 1887, at the store of the Wonderful Cheap Man. It was marked thusly:—Lot 5375, Breast 27, Waist 26½, Age 9, Price $3.50. It was pure shoddy being held together by cotton threads, and Sheppard is free to say that that was the dearest suit sold in the Town of Peterborough for the last two years. Full particulars are given because of the $1,000 involved, and, further, that this decides who is selling the Cheapest Clothing in Peterborough. SHEPPARD would have sold that lady a suit, pure wool, for that money, and worth two of the one she got.

$1,000 to Go to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

I had first decided to give the agencies a chance of jumping up my rating that $1,000, but after considering the matter and finding that never in any case have I been asked for an endorser to my paper, and that no relative or any other persons have ever endorsed my paper to the extent of one cent, I have come to the conclusion my credit is as good as yours, and will ask you to hand over the $1,000 to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

Now, Sir, there is a good story told, the truth of which can be vouched for, but for the honor of at least making an effort to keep up your self-styled name—The Terror of High Priced Clothiers—do not allow the same to be said of you in the case above. A man purchased a suit for $15.00 at the store of one of the largest advertisers in that section of country. It was guaranteed pure wool; but after examining it carefully at home, he came to the conclusion that he had been dealing with some one sharper than himself. Finding a make of wool, differing some from anything he had ever seen, it dawned upon him that he had heard of wool of that kind, so the suit was returned. The merchant bet $25.00 that it was all wool, and the bet was accepted, the decision being left to a neighboring merchant. He found that the $15.00 suit was wool faced and shoddy back, pure unadulterated shoddy; but what of the $25.00 bet? was it paid? Not much—muchly—as it were.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It smoothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, Relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

SOME STARTLING FIGURES.

FEW MEN OF THE NEW STATES NATIVES OF THE EAST.

Lines of Migration in the United States. Facts Obtained from a Railroad Man. The Breeding Ground of American Men. The South.

It is a historical fact that all great migratory movements of peoples or of races have been, with few exceptions, westward, along the degree of latitude on which they were born. In our country the men of northern birth have almost always emigrated to the northwest. Those of southern birth have followed trails which led to the southwest.

A few weeks ago I was talking with two comrades in the dirty office of an ill kept hotel at Prescott, in Washington territory. One of my comrades was a bright, snappy railroad official; the other was a farmer, who cultivated 3,000 acres of highly productive wheat land. I had been traveling through the marvelous wheat growing region known as the Ralouse district, where the established rules which control agricultural operations in the Mississippi valley are ignored, and where the most productive land lies on the top of hills, and I told my comrades what I had seen. I dwelt strongly on the fact that I had met but few men who were from New England or from the northeastern states in the region. When I asked the settlers with whom I talked where they came from they answered from Missouri, from Iowa, from Arkansas, from Indiana, from Tennessee, from Illinois, from Kansas, from North Carolina, and at long intervals one would reply that he had been raised in one of the New England states. The fact that New England was scantily represented in the new states which are being created in the west impressed me strongly, and it troubled me strangely

I said, as I looked inquiringly at my comrades, "I do not understand why there are so few New England men in this region." The railroad official thrust his hand into the breast pocket of his coat and drew forth an envelope, which he handed to me, saying in explanation:

"Last December our company placed an advertisement in the hands of an advertising agency to publish in all their newspapers. This envelope," he tapped it with his index finger as he spoke, "contains the record of the answers we received during the first four months of the year, and from what state they were sent. Read the record, and you will then understand why you do not meet New England men in the west."

I thrust the envelope into the breast pocket of my coat. That night after we had separated I read the list, and it sharply indicated that the railroad official had spoken truthfully. But the list also indicated that the southern people who live in the old slave states had ceased to emigrate. But I knew that the southern people were emigrating westward in enormous numbers, and this knowledge made me doubt the correctness of the deductions the railroad official had drawn from his list of letters of inquiry received. So I laid it away until I could have access to that portion of the tenth census which relates to the nativity of the population of the different states. The volume lies open before me as I write.

I group the New England states and the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware for convenience of illustration and as typical of the northeast. This group contained 11,576,090 native born white inhabitants in 1880. Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and Iowa having in 1880 a population of 12,772,831 native born whites, I group as states settled in part, and almost wholly in some cases, by New Englanders, and use the group as typical of western states, to illustrate my meaning.

To the figures: The total number of letters of inquiry that were received at the railroad office in answer to the advertisement, which was published in many hundred newspapers, was 4,402. Of this number 161 were sent from New England, 17 from New Jersey and Delaware, while New York and Pennsylvania sent 493, four-fifths of which were from the western portions of those states. The total number of letters sent from the first group of states was 671. During the same time 2,364 letters were received from people residing in the western group of states. It is a significant fact that more letters of inquiry were received from any one state which I have placed in the second group than were received from all New England. And it is also significant, and indicative of the strength of the migratory instinct of the western people that more letters of inquiry were received from the far western states, in proportion to their population, than from any other portion of the Union. For instance, 409 letters were received from Iowa, a comparatively new state, and which contained 1,353,046 white people in 1880, and 163 were received from Indiana, an older state, which had a white population of 1,794,764 in 1880. Illinois, which had 2,448,172 native white population in 1880, sent 390 letters, while Ohio, having 2,723,582 native white population, sent 254 letters. Kansas, one of the youngest states, and having a native white population of 842,211, sent 306 letters, and Missouri sent 375 letters, or 214 more than New England.

In the region included in the second group of states food is plentiful and cheap. The people are not overcivilized. Large families are raised. It is today the greatest breeding ground of American men. The migratory instinct is strong in the people. They are venturesome and courageous and willing to endure hardship. These people are western bred, and are western in thought and feeling in every fiber of their bodies. If the migratory instinct has become weak in the Puritan stock which remained in New England, the nativity of the population of the new states which lie beyond the Missouri river should show it. How is it? In 1880 Kansas, alleged to be the beloved child of slavery hating New England, contained 22,395 people of New England birth. Up to 1880 Illinois had sent 106,992 of her children to Kansas. Missouri sent 60,228. Ohio sent 93,396. Indiana furnished 77,069 emigrants to Kansas. Kentucky forwarded 32,978 of her blue grass bred children to the Prairie state, or 9,583 more than New England. How is it in Colorado? New England supplied 11,156 inhabitants, a large proportion of them consumptives, to that arid land. Missouri sent 12,434 tough, hardy citizens to the highlands of Colorado. In Oregon, in 1880, there were 4,809 people from New England and 10,754 from Missouri. The same story is told by the emigration statistics of all the western States. Today Missouri ideas and methods of thought are more powerful beyond the Missouri river than those of New England.

The Southern people have not ceased to emigrate, but in their case the natural law which compels men to follow westward the degree of latitude on which they were born has been obeyed. The nativity of the population of Texas proves that the southern people have emigrated as freely as those of the middle Mississippi valley.—Frank Wilkeson in New York Times.

Dangers of Foul Air.

If the condensed breath collected on the cool window panes of a room where a number of persons has been assembled be burned, a smell as of singed hair will show the presence of organic matter, and if the condensed breath be allowed to remain on the windows for a few days, it will be found on examination by the microscope that it is alive with animalculæ. It is the inhalation of air containing such putrescent matter which causes half of the sick headaches, which might be avoided by a circulation of fresh air.—American Analyst.

Wolves Among Cattle.

Three prospectors in Texas came upon a herd of 300 cattle the other day just as eight big gray wolves cut out a cow and calf and pitched upon them. The cow bellowed, and at once with a rush the herd gathered and drove away the wolves. The latter soon discovered another cow and calf, and made a rush for them, and, in spite of the frantic efforts of the mother, got the calf down; but again the herd came to the rescue, and this time chased the wolves until they gave up the contest and disappeared.—New York Sun.

The Eclipse in Siberia.

Regarding the eclipse of the sun on Aug. 19 last, a correspondent writes to the Koelnische Zeitung from Tomsk, Siberia: "Handbills explaining the nature of the phenomenon had been widely circulated, but when the darkness set in the country people expected no less then the destruction of the world and the last judgment, and a great deal of lamentation and howling was heard. The weather was not very favorable, heavy clouds covering the sky and rain falling till 10 10 a.m. Then it ceased, a light wind arose, and the dusk of evening seemed to begin. After another five minutes a bright, white circle, about two inches wide, could be seen in the place of the sun, but disappeared again immediately behind clouds. It reappeared and disappeared again several times, visibly decreasing in width during the next ten minutes, and the darkness became deeper. At 10 35 the birds commenced fluttering. Three minutes later complete darkness ensued, which lasted 122 seconds. The animals in the street stood still. Lights appeared in the houses. East of the sun two stars were visible. The corona was splendid, the eastern side brighter than the western, the latter showing a great variety of colors. Another observer asserts having seen a bright ball of fire in the place of the two stars. At 10.40 it became brighter again, and at 11.45 the sun was quite clear and bright. At the time of the complete darkness a remarkable stillness lay upon the face of all nature."

Unknown races.

The possibility of visiting unknown races of men seems to be not even yet an impossibility. J. B. Vincent, the sole survivor of the crew of the whaling bark of Napoleon, who was recently brought home from Cape Navarin by the revenue steamer Bear, tells a remarkable story of three visits to the Tchuktchi of northeastern Russia, tall, well-built fellows who live in a valley, surrounded by snow-topped hills, 165 miles from the coast. He fell in with some of them when they came down to the coast with their reindeer to lay in a supply of fish for the winter Vincent spent four months with them, and had a good time. The greater part of two years was passed by the shipwrecked mariner alternating between the deermen in the valley and the yellow men over the mountains on the coast, by both of whom he was well treated, but by this time he is doubtless safely back at his Martha's Vineyard home.—Buffalo Courier.

Church Parade.

The 57th Battalion will have church parade to St. Andrew's Church to-morrow morning at 10.30 o'clock. It is hoped there will be a full turn out of all ranks.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather there was a large a tendance at the market this morning. A large quantity of dressed pork and butter was bought up by shippers.

Evangelistic.

Evangelistic meetings will be held in the Mark Street Methodist Church each evening during next week. There will be a song service from 7.30 to 8 o'clock. The public meetings will commence at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Now Open.

Hallowe'en.

The above festival will be celebrated this year by a concert given in Bradburn's Opera House by Mr. Findlay McGregor and his talented company. Mr. McGregor has met with great success wherever he has gone, and the "Highland laddies" will mingle with the "merry men of England" in social intercourse and entertainment.

Want the C. P. R.

The Lakefield Chronicle says:—"The C. P. R. authorities are about to extend their track as far as the Nassau Mills. Could they not be prevailed on to take in Lakefield? The distance would be only six miles longer, and they would tap a village with over 1,300 inhabitants, which acts as a distributing centre for a fairly settled county over thirty miles back of us. Nothing would be lost by opening negotations on the subject."

A Mischievous Act.

The Lakefield Chronicle says:—"Several of our village maidens have beaus who reside at a distance, and it frequently happens that Sunday is the day fixed on by the loving swain for these agreeable visits. Sunday last two young men happened this way from Peterborough, and put up at one of the hotels. In the evening when about to return home the horse and buggy was brought to the door of the hotel and left there for a short time, when some mischievous individual led the horse away by a circuitous route into the back yard of a neighbor. The boys on missing their horse and vehicle came to the conclusion that the beast had got tired waiting and had made for the town. Another rig was secured and old "Tom" made his best gait towards the Nassau Mills, where the trio concluded that the horse had not come that way, and accordingly made their way back to Lakefield. Search and enquiry was made during the night, but to no avail, and it was not until daylight dawned that the missing equippage was found within fifteen yards of the hotel yard. The boys will no doubt take better care of their steeds when next they pay the village a visit, and not lay themselves open again to the practical joker."

FINISHED.

The Chancery Sittings Comes to an End.

The Autumn Chancery Sittings closed at half past one o'clock to-day, all the cases having been disposed of. The following is a resume of the cases disposed of yesterday and to-day:—

MERRIAM VS. MCCRAE—An action for the reformation of a deed. The defendant claimed he had sold 46 acres of land in the township of Percy to the plaintiff at the north-east corner of the lot. The conveyancer described it as the north-east quarter of the lot. There was an overplus of six acres. The defendant claimed that his deed covered the whole of the north-east quarter, less two acres, which he was to re-convey. The plaintiff contended that the deed should have conveyed only 46 acres, and his action was brought to make the reformation of the deed. Judgment was reserved. E. B. Stone for plaintiff; G. T. Blackstock for the defendant.

MCMURTRY VS. MCMURTRY.—This case was brought by Wm. McMmurtry, Wm. T. McMurtry and S. F. L. McMurtry, of Midland, against Margaret A. McMurtry, Elizabeth Tamblyn, Addie Rowel, J. C. McMurtry, F. A. McMurtry and B. S. McMurtry, to obtain a declaration by the court as to the rights of plaintiffs and defendants under the will of the late Mary Ann McMurtry. The deceased held a beneficiary certificate in a society called the Royal Templars of Temperance, in which the insurance money was made payable to the plaintiffs equally. Mrs. McMurtry by her will attempted to alter the disposition of the money by making it payable to the plaintiffs only. The Royal Templars of Temperance claimed that the attempt to change the disposition was nugatory, as it did not conform with their by-laws, requiring, in case of a change in the disposition of the money, that the certificate be also changed. This was not done, and the society paid the money into court to await decision in this action. The plaintiffs claimed that the will, not the certificate, governed. The defendants contended that the alteration attempted to be made by the will is inoperative. The case was argued, and decision was reserved.

D. W. Dumble and C. J. Leonard for the plaintiff; E. B. Stone for adult defendants; E. H. D. Hall for infant defendants.

PETERBOROUGH REAL ESTATE CO. VS. WATT.—This was an action to enforce the payment of a mortgage, due by a Mrs. Jane Watt, the defendant. Judgment was given for plaintiffs.

L. M. Hayes for plaintiff, J. M. Crunkshank for defendant.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A Meeting of the Directors Held in the Council Chamber.

A meeting of the Directors of the Agricultural Society was held on Friday afternoon in the Council Chamber.

There were present: Messrs. Wm. Rutherford, in the chair, Fair, Davidson, Collins, Fitzgerald and Vance.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Vance made the statement that Mr. J. W. Lowes owned, on August 29th, the horse shown by Mr. Wilson, and to which Mr. Pettit protested against. This makes Mr. Wilson's claim to the prize money void, as he, according to rules and regulations, should have owned the horse two months previous to exhibiting it.

It was decided to reconsider the question as to the diploma award for waggons. It was decided that no diploma be awarded.

Mr. Hugh Davidson was awarded the special prize for carriage horses under 15½ hands high, on account of Mr. Cox's team being disqualified; also Mr. Pettitt was awarded the prize previously awarded to Mr. Wilson, on account of Mr. Wilson's team being disqualified.

The Brewery Cup was withheld from Mr. Westington on account of his refusing to compete on the second heat in the trotting race.

The President, Mr. Fair and Mr. Davidson were appointed a committee to arrange for the payment of the prize list.

Mr. C. McGill, the Treasurer, read a rough report on the finances of the Society. It was not possible yet, he said, to give an accurate statement, as the money due had not yet been collected. The exhibition this year, he thought, would about pay expenses.

Mr. Collins was paid at the rate of $2 per day for work done on the grounds.

MEETING OF CREDITORS.

The George W. Hall Estate to be Disposed of.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. Geo. W. Hall was held in the office of C. W. Sawers on Friday afternoon. There were present; Wm. Kenlock, Montreal, J. R. Stratton, H. A. Mulhern, W. F. Johnston, T. M. D. Croly, G. W. Hatton, representing Turner, Rose & Co., and other creditors, Chas. Porter, Jas. Stevenson, and A. Adams, representing Maxwell Hall, Longford, John Carnegie and J. D. Baptie.

Mr. Carnegie occupied the chair.

The chairman then read a statement of the affairs of the estate.

A motion to set aside a chattel Mortgage held by Robt. Rowe was lost.

Messrs Mulhern and Porter were appointed inspectors to act in conjunction with Mr. Carnegie, assignee.

The assignee and inspectors were instructed to dispose of the estate to the best advantage for the creditors.

The assignee was instructed to pay off the wages claims at once.

FAREWELL SUPPERS.

Resolutions of Regret and Good Wishes —Complimentary Notices.

Of Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who has removed from Lindsay to Peterborough and who will become business manager of the REVIEW on Tuesday, the Lindsay Post says:—"The Post loses this week the services of a valued and esteemed member of its staff. Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who for the past six years has been reporter and manager, goes back to his first love, the Peterborough REVIEW, where he was trained in the mysteries of the art preservative under our worthy friend, Mr. R. Romaine. Mr. Dobbin is an industrious and efficient newspaper man, well up in all departments of the work, and he will no doubt succeed in his present venture. Many friends in Lindsay join us in regretting his departure and in wishing him all success in the REVIEW."

On Tuesday evening last, the Post says, the Masonic fraternity of Lindsay entertained Mr. F. H. Dobbin at a complimentary banquet. Bro. McConnell fully sustained his reputation on the occasion, and after the "cloth" had been removed and the loyal and patriotic toasts usual on such occasions had been duly honored, "the guest of the evening" received due and marked attention. The toast having been drank with all the honors, Mr. Dobbin acknowledged the uniform kindness evinced towards him by his Masonic brethren since his connection with the order, and expressed his regret that the opporunity to enter into what promised to be a congenial and fairly remunerative business enterprise necessitated his departure from the town. All the brethren bore testimony to the high estimation in which Bro. Dobbin is held, and especially to the efficient manner in which he discharged his duties as secretary of Faithful Brethren lodge. Toast, speech and song filled up one of the most enjoyable of evenings, and was brought to a termination at "high twelve" in the usual manner.

The members of the Lindsay Canoe Club on Thursday evening of last week entertained their secretary, Mr. Dobbin, at a complimentary supper. "Our Guest" was enthusiastically honored, the chairman and others dwelling on Mr. Dobbin's services to the club and his many good and genial qualities as a citizen and a comrade. Much regret was expressed by all at his departure, and the heartiest good wishes expressed for his success in his new field as one of the proprietors of the REVIEW.

At a meeting of the choir of the Methodist Church a resolution was adopted expressing regret on account of the departure of Mr. Dobbin, who had been a member of the choir, and the best wishes of the members towards Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin.

The Lindsay Warder editorially notices Mr. Dobbin's departure to take a position on "one of the leading journals of Ontario," and expresses its respect for him, he having "shown himself not only a skilled man of business, but, what is far better, a gentleman." It closes its article by saying:—"It may surprise some to learn that, though in the past employed on a Grit journal, yet Mr. Dobbin is Liberal-Conservative, and will now have ample scope for his ability."

At a meeting of the Lindsay Town Council, after a neat speech by Councillor Ray, who moved the resolution, and by Councillor Smyth, who seconded the same, "the warm thanks of the Council were tendered to Mr. F. H. Dobbin for the impartial and satisfactory manner in which he had—during the last four years—reported proceedings of the Council for the Post newspaper, and the Council expressed its regret that Mr. Dobbin is withdrawing from Lindsay, and that the town loses a good citizen." The resolution was carried by a standing vote.

MILITARY MARCH OUT.

THE 57TH BATTALION ATTEND SERVICE AT ST. ANDREW'S.

A Sermon by the Pastor, the Rev. Alex. Bell—Learning Christ and What it Implies.

The 57th Battalion of volunteers marched to St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning and attended Divine service in a body. The Battalion left the drill shed shortly before eleven o'clock and proceeded by way of George and Brock streets to the church, headed by the Battalion band. The following officers were present:—Col. J. Z. Rogers, in command, Major Bell, Lieut. Mason, of A Company, Capt. Langford and Lieut. Lee, of B Company, Lieut. Peck, of C Company, Lieut. Hill, of D Company, Capt. Burke, of E Company, and Capt. Brennan, of F Company. In the church the battalion occupied the centre row of seats. The services were of the usual character, reading, singing and prayer. Mr. D. D. Gallelly sang an excellent sacred solo in a spirited manner while the collection was being taken up.

The Rev. ALEX BELL pastor of St. Andrew's, took for his text Ephesians iv., 20 21:—"But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard Him, and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus." As professing Christians, he said, they should never forget that Christianity was not a subject for speculative enquiry—it was not merely intended for the purpose of pleasing or exercising the mind. It taught great practical lessons, intended to reach their hearts and to operate on them so as to bring them back to the state of communion with God which they had lost. The ways provided in God's Word to bring them back were mysterious, but they were appointed of God and were the best ways. They were easily attained and could be freely used. The methods adopted by God were the only means of reconciliation promised and by which eternal life could be secured. Paul repeatedly emphasized this and set forth the wonders of redeeming love. The practical application of learning Christ was personal santification. That meant a complete deliverance from sin and a growth in the likeness of Christ. If that was not the result it did not matter what knowledge they might have—all was nothing and would avail nothing. There was a marked difference between those who had learned Christ and those who had not; a difference in the heart. Learning Christ made all the difference between those who were His followers and those who were subjects of the Evil One. It was important, therefore, to know what it meant. The first thing than came to them in learning Christ was the identification of the Christ who came with the deliverer promised of old by God. In the promised deliverer God had given hope to the world, and it was in the very heart of the faith. If Christ was not the one promised their faith in Him was vain. If they could be assured that he was the promised of God, with all the confidence of their souls they could lean on Him and follow Him. If they had found the deliverer, in Him only was their salvation, and let them be warned not to reject Him. The Samaritans recognized Christ, Peter acknowledged Him and Paul and Appolos showed the Jews out of the books of their own prophets that this was the Christ of God. They proved from the Word of God that He only fitted into prophecy. He was all powerful, all wise and all sufficient for the purpose. Having found Christ they should hear Him. The record of His life showed that it was a practical life. If He taught them they would learn a practical life—not merely something to discuss and feast on, but something to live by. They might know the history of Christ's life and yet not learn Him. How Christ would touch their hearts they did not understand. He (the preacher) did not know how his spirit moved his arm or his lips, but he knew that it did move them. So they did not know how Christ would touch their understanding and enlighten it, but they knew that if they forsook sin and came to Christ the results would be apparent. The Father, Son and Holy Ghost were spoken of as teaching, and that was the source of Divine knowledge by which they—not heard of Christ—but learned Christ, put Him on and lived Him. To live Christ meant that their lives were so put under Christ's spirit that He was made to appear in them, and those who saw and knew them were reminded of Him. They should live as Christians openly, as Jesus lived, suffered and died for them. Peter had a direct revelation from the Father of who Christ was. His was a case of God unlocking the dark places of the heart and enlightening it, and that light revealed Christ. Christ appeared to the disciples after His resurrection, and it was recorded that He enlightened their understandings. Learning Christ was not the gathering of so much information, but it was receiving Him in the heart and having His presence in their lives. As Christ was intensely practical, so they should could carry out His teachings in their lives. The 23rd verse said, "Be renewed in the spirit of your mind." Sanctification took hold of the very seat of life. Man's powers remained the same, but the spirit of life that controuled the powers was renewed and changed. They were "transformed by the renewing of" their "minds." It was a growth further and further away from what they should leave, the old man, and nearer and nearer to what they should attain to, the perfection of man. They so often heard persons say that they were "no worse than others," but that was merely conformity to the world, and the standard they were to follow was the good and perfect will of God as beheld in Christ Jesus. The Spirit only could renew the heart, and if any man had not the Spirit of Christ he was none of His. Learning Christ was a personal relation, a putting off of the old man and putting on the new. It was a personal action, and no one could do it for his neighbor. The "old man" was the old sinful nature that led men to do wrong, and the "new man" was a renewed nature with all the lovely graces worked in them by God's Spirit. Their individuality remained, but when the mind was renewed they cast away sin and put on Christ—they adopted and practised that which was good, and pure, and Christlike. They (addressing the volunteers) were not always in the position of soldiers, for they were sometimes in the garb of civilians, but when they put on the soldier's uniform they took a different position and were under another authority. So the putting off of that which would curse them and the putting on of that which would adorn the soul was a real change. He urged them to be true men and faithful followers of Christ. They should always remember that Christians professed to follow Christ, the true leader, who would bring them into perfect light and happiness.

After the service the battalion returned by Rubidge, Hunter, and George streets to the drill shed.

A LITTLE CONFAB.

Gay Times in Quebec—What the Delegates Were Doing.

The Hon. Oliver Mowat passed through town on his way from Quebec to Toronto on Saturday night. He was joined here by Mr. George Tate Blackstock and Mr Justice Robertson, who had just got through with court business here. They all took parlor car passage.

The Hon. Oliver looks quite cocky and good natured as he exercised himself by walking up and down the car while the passengers got on.

"Good, evening, sir," said Mr. Blackstock, which salutation brought the Premier to a stand still. "You've brought us up some of your Quebec cold weather."

"Yes; we had it quite cold down there." (Perhaps it was warm inside the closed doors during Conference sessions.)

"I see," remarked the Judge, who had taken a seat, "that you had quite a jolly time down there."

"Yes, indeed," nodded the Premier. "There was nothing but balls and parties and dinners. I had a job to get them to do anything at all."

The Honorable Oliver and Mr. Blackstock both took seats when the train started and Mr. Justice Robertson opened what looked suspiciously like a novel and commenced to read.

John Torrance Dies of Wounds Received in a Melee.

TORONTO, Oct 30.—John Torrance, who was stapped on Friday night in the melee on Adelaide street west, is dead. He expired between nine and ten o'clock on Saturday night at the General Hospital from the effects of the wound he had received. His end was a terrible one. It required two medical students to hold him to the bed in the struggles which his last agonies caused, and they could not restrain the awful flow of curses and imprecations which flowed from his lips. Torrance was twenty-one years of.

A FIEND'S WORK.

A Ferryman Charged With Murdering Hundreds of Workmen.

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—It has just been discovered that a ferryman on the Lower Danube, who has been in the habit of conveying across the river workmen returning from Roumania who took this route to avoid producing certificates that they had paid taxes in Roumania, or money in default thereof, has taken them to a small island, where he murdered and robbed them of their savings. A judicial enquiry into the case reveals the astounding fact that hundreds of workmen have been despatched by the the fiend and their bodies buried or thrown into the the reeds along the river banks.

AN ALARMIST PAPER.

Sir Charles Dilke Recommends Spending Five Millions on the Militia.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Sir Charles Dilke, who will return to London next Wednesday, sends an advance proof of his article on the British army. He writes under the signature of the "Author of Greater Britain." The paper is of a most seriously alarmist character, recommends the spending of five million pounds for military purposes; declares that England's position in India relative to Russia grows weaker every year; maintains that England had not one efficient corps; mercilessly criticizes Mr. Stanhope for the reduction of the horse artillery; says the British fleet, considering the work it has to do, is weaker than that of France; suggests that the taking of London in case of invasion would be certain and would cripple England's power, and says the expenditure of five millions on it fortifications would be a splendid insurance. He calls the people who trust to the national good fortune to save the country from invasion, the luck and pluck school. Among diplomatic secrets Sir Charles Dilke declares that after the rejection in Egypt, the Germans pressed England to take a more active part in Eastern matters. Lord Salisbury refused, and fell back to the policy of non-intervention. Sir Charles Dilke's conclusion is that Great Britian had no system of military defence whatever, and is daily getting weaker as compared with other European powers; that we are exposed to the loss of coaling stations, the destruction of the navy, and consequently, of commerce, and the bombardment of the commercial ports and arsenals, and that we have no power to mobilize. Sir Charles Dilke will have to prove the propositions. He admits that unless he proves them he will be open to grave charges. The general military opinion, so far as it can be frankly expressed, is on his side.

GONE WITH ALL HANDS.

A propellor Lost on Lake Michigan and all Hands Missing.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—The steamship Superior arriving here last night brought the first news of the total wreck of a large passenger propellor off Monitowee, Wis. That the wreck is that of the propellor Vernon of the Northern Michigan line is proved almost beyond doubt. She was due here yesterday, and from the description of fragments seen by the crew of the Superior her owners consider her indentity fully established. She had on board a crew of twenty-two men and several passengers, the exact number not being known and it is supposed that all hands perished. Capt. Moran of the Superior saw three or four rafts with men clinging to them, and also a small boat containing a woman and three men. Although he made an effort to rescue them the high sea prevented the rendering of any assistance, the Superior being herself disabled and requiring the crew's best efforts. It was about ten o'clock in the morning when the first signs of the wreck in the shape of floating cargo and furniture was seen. About an hour later the rafts were sighted. On some the occupants were almost gone, while others signalled the Superior.

P. J. Klein, of Klein & Buele, who chartered the Vernon to replace the Champlain burned early in the season, received the first information from a reporter. After hearing the account as reported by Captain Moran, he felt sure the vessel was the Vernon. He did not know what passengers were on board, and of the crew could give only the following names:—Captain George Thorpe, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., master; Captain Collins, who formerly sailed the schooner Golden West, first mate; Capt. Higgins, who sailed the barge Leland last year, second mate; F. W. Burke, oldest son of one of the owners of the vessel, clerk; Charles Marcau, first engineer; M. Hall, second engineer; Martin Bean and a brother, steward and porter, respectively. The Vernon was owned by A. Booth, of Chicago, valued at $75,000 and insured for $37,000. She was a year old, and ran between Chicago and Mackinaw and picked up freight at the ports where she touched, carrying it at the risk of the owners.

Capt. Williams, of the schooner Joseph Page, arrived last night at five o'clock and reported having seen wreckage about six miles east of Two Rivers Point, evidently of a passenger vessel. One of the crew saw a body, and a piece of the pilot house with a man on it was next seen. The sea was running so high that it was impossible for the Page to get near enough to the man to pick him up.

The Red River Valley Road.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29.—Representatives of the city council, the citizens and the sinking fund trustees of the city conferred with Mr. Holt and the Government until after midnight last night, discussing the proposition that Winnipeg supply $300,000 for building the Red River Valley Railway. The result of their deliberations is as yet a secret. The contract with Holt is conditional on the city supplying the money.

Supposed Murder.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 29.—Charles H. Yeo, of Union road, Prince Edward Island, is missing. He was last seen in Charlottetown on the 3rd of January and had a large amount of money on his person. It is believed that he has been murdered. His parents offer $500 reward for information that will lead to the discovery of his body. He is six feet high and thirty-six years of age.

AN INDEPENDENT POLAND.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The scheme for the formation of an independent kingdom of Poland, foreshadowed in the Kreuz Zeitung recently, has excited a lively discussion among the independent Polish press of Galicia. The scheme generally is considered chimerical, but several Polish organs in Galicia having relations with the Austrian Government treat the subject guardedly as within the bounds of political chances.

THE WORLD'S BEST ROADS.

Magnificent Highways Found in British India—A Marvelous Road.

It might seem a good deal like presumption on my part to assert that I am in a position to pronounce upon the comparative merits of the world's roadways better than any man living; but no reader who has ever ridden a bicycle would doubt the assertion. Having made a trail around the land portion of the earth's surface with a bicycle, I can now take an ordinary map of the world and trace out from beginning to end of that great circle, where the road is good, where it is bad or indifferent, and where it is execrable.

The best roads in the world, many readers will be surprised to hear, are in British India. After riding the bicycle 1,400 miles through the Punjab, Oude and Bengal, I am fairly at a loss to find words to express sufficiently my admiration of the enterprise that has belted India with such magnificent highways as I found there. The finest road in India is known as the Grand Trunk road; it extends for 1,600 miles, an unbroken highway of marvelous perfection, from Peshawur, on the Afghan frontier, to Calcutta. It is metaled for much of its length with a substance peculiar to the country known as kunkah. Kunkah is obtained almost anywhere throughout the Punjab—underlying the surface soil. It is a sort of loose nodular deposit of calcareous concrete which may be readily converted into lime by burning in a kiln. When rolled and wetted it cements together and forms a road surface smooth and compact as an asphaltum pavement, and of excellent wearing quality.

A valuable and peculiar property of kunkah is that the beds are constantly replenished by natural processes born of some favorable condition of the soil. After exhausting a bed of kunkah the land is leveled and allowed to remain untouched. After a few years the same land again yields a supply of kunkah. In passing down the road one sees big gangs of natives repairing the surface with kunkah dug out of the beds immediately by the roadside. At certain seasons of the year the road overseers of the districts collect big gangs of men and women and proceed to repair such portions of the road as need attention. The worn portions are picked out to the bottom of the metaling, and refilled with new kunkah as neatly as though it were a section of concrete pavement in a city sidewalk. A portion of the men carry the kunkah on their heads in wooden trays from the nearby pit to the road, the women carry jars of water from roadside well, pool or river. The kunkah is spread, the water thrown over it and another gang of men tamp it down with iron tampers. In renewing whole sections of road these tampers are sometimes ranged three and four deep and stretch clear across the road, the order of procedure being one short step forward at every tamp. In this manner the gangs pass up and down the new made stretch several times, leaving it at last solid enough to run a steam engine over. In some districts bullocks and heavy iron rollers imported from England are used, and sometimes the rollers without the bullocks, big teams of men taking the place of the animals.—Thomas Stevens' Letter.

FAREWELL.

THE undersigned, having sold to Messrs. F. H. DOBBIN and S. R. ARMSTRONG his interest in the Peterborough REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co.'y (Limited), the business of the Company, in all its departments, will henceforth be conducted by them, and, although retaining for a time the nominal position of President of the Company, the limited responsibility which the undersigned has had for some years past for what has appeared in these columns and for the business management of the Company's affairs, ceases on this issue.

In severing his connection with the REVIEW and its large circle of readers and patrons, the undersigned desires to return them his most sincere thanks for the many kindnesses which he has received at their hands, and especially for their having been so wondrous kind to his many faults both of commission and omission, and to solicit for the new management that kindly and active support, without which it will be impossible for them, or anyone else, to render the REVIEW an efficient exponent of the views and interests which it represents, and, at the same time, yield them a modest pecuniary return for the at all times arduous, trying, and too often thankless, duties devolving upon them as conductors of a public journal.

JOHN CARNEGIE.

October 27th, 1887.

THE FORGERS AGAIN.

The renegade Canadians who are working for the disintegration of the Dominion and of the British Empire, certainly show a regard for the fitness of things by choosing appropriate methods for their vile work. They do not stop short even of criminal acts in their efforts to delude the people of Canada. We have shown how the Toronto Mail deliberately forged a section in an act of parliament, for the purpose of bolstering up its false charge that Canada and especially Canadian conservatives had adopted a tariff discriminating against the United Kingdom in favour of the United States, arguing therefrom that we should continue to wage commercial war against the mother country.

Forgery seems a favourite weapon of these enemies of Canada, for the Toronto Globe and London Advertiser are guilty of the same crime in their efforts to imitate Jefferson Davis in his attempts to upset the constitution and wreck the country by fostering sectional ideas. Both Globe and Advertiser are denouncing the British North America Act, the written constitution of our Dominion, and are pretending that it should have no authority, because, as they falsely assert, the resolutions of the Quebec Conference of 1864 on which it was based, were disregarded at Westminster, the policy being modified in the act to the disadvantage of the Province. They both pretend to quote one of these resolutions as follows:—

"24. The Local Legislature of each province may from time to time alter the electoral districts for the purpose of representation in the House of Commons, and distribute the representatives to which the province may be entitled in any manner such Legislature may think fit."

It is hardly creditable but it is a fact that this is a deliberate forgery, as gross as the Mail's forgery of its pretended section 9 of the Customs Duties Act. It is not a mere trivial slip in transcribing or type setting, for it is a vital alteration of the most important words, utterly changing the meaning of the resolution, with the object of making this falsification the foundation for their dishonest and unpatriotic attack upon the constitution.

That our readers may see plainly for themselves the disgraceful nature of this fraud, we give in parallel columns the true and forged resolutions, as follows:—

| THE RESOLUTION. | THE FORGERY. |
|---|---|
| 24. The Local Legislature of each province may, from time to time, alter the electoral districts for the purpose of representation in SUCH LOCAL LEGISLATURE, and distribute the representatives to which the province is entitled IN SUCH LOCAL LEGISLATURE, in any manner such Legislature may see fit. | 24. The Local Legislature of each province may, from time to time, alter the electoral districts for the purpose of representation in THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, and distribute the representatives to which the province may be entitled in any manner such Legislature may think fit. |

It will be observed that the forgery vitiates the very essential point of the resolution. The falsified version aids the disintegrationists in their campaign. The true version is in exact accord with the B. N. A. Act, showing that the representatives of the provinces at Quebec were favorable to the policy of our constitution, local management of local affairs and central control of the general interests of the Dominion, and that the representatives of Canada at Westminster loyally carried out these views.

Are not the unpatriotic cause, its advocates and their criminal methods well suited one to the other?

A fine constitution may be ruined by simple neglect. Many bodily ills result from habitual constipation. There is no medicine equal to Ayer's Pills for restoring the system to natural and healthy action.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

GOUGH,

The Wonderful Cheap Man and Wonder of the 19th Century, George St., Peterborough, and Queen Street, Toronto.

THE Quebec conspirators have now separated, their closing compliments to each other having been an exception to the rule of secrecy the Toronto Globe giving a report of nearly two columns and the Mail of three columns. There is little to call for attention except the remarks of Mr. Fielding, the Premier of Nova Scotia, who spoke much in the same strain as we may imagine from one of the leaders of a Southern State when conspiring just before the rebellion. He declared that he reserved and maintained the right of Nova Scotia to secede if it thought fit. None of the conspirators are reported as having repudiated his treasonable utterances.

THE bank return for September shows clearly the reason for the raise in the rate of discount, and that it was no arbitrary act on the part of our financial institutions. The discounts amount this September to $10,500,000 more than the same month last year, and to $16,000,000 more than September 1885. The advance followed as a matter of course.

WE observe that some of our contemporaries are quoting the Pall Mall Gazette as an exponent of public opinion in England. The Pall Mall Gazette is not an English journal; it is a Russian journal published in London. When this is remembered a better estimate may be formed of the value of its expressed opinions.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

HOW TO WARM HOUSES.

DIRECT RADIATION VERSUS STOVES, FURNACES AND PIPES.

The Artificial Climate in Our Houses. Destructive Effect Upon Health—Radiation from Open Fires—Hot Iron Surfaces—The Only Remedy.

We make an artificial climate in our houses. We live indoors in an atmosphere heated by stoves, furnaces or steam pipes, to 70 or 80 degs.; and we pass from our parlor or hall into the open air. At a step, literally in a breath, the temperature of the air has, for us, dropped 50 to 70 degs. We may put on an extra coat or shawl, and shield the outside of the body and chest, but we cannot shield delicate linings and membranes of the air passages, the bronchial tubes and lung cells. Naked, they receive the full force of the change—the last breath at 70 degs., the next at freezing or zero—and all unprepared. We have been sitting, perhaps for hours, in a tropical atmosphere; nay, worse, in an atmosphere deprived by hot iron furnaces of its ozone and natural refreshing and bracing qualities. Our lungs are all relaxed, debilitated, unstrung; and in this condition the cold air strikes them perhaps 60 degs. below what they are graduated to and prepared for. Is it strange that pneumonia and bronchitis are at hand?

If we were in the West Indies, or even in Florida, and wish to come north in winter, we try to make the change gradual. But in our houses we keep up a tropical climate, or worse, for the air is not fresh, and we step into an air as much colder as 40 degs. of latitude will make it. It is in effect going from Cuba to Iceland—or at least to New York—at a step, and we make the journey perhaps a dozen times a day. And often, while we are still shut up in our domiciliary Cuban climate, Iceland comes down upon us from an open window to replace air that has had its natural refreshing qualities quite cooked out of it by hot stoves, furnaces or steam pipes. And all these sudden changes and shocks of cold come upon us while the whole system has its vitality and powers of resistance gauged down to the low necessities of a tropical climate.

The effect upon health is destructive. Pneumonia has increased nearly threefold in New York, in proportion to population, within the last fifty years. Bronchitis has increased even more rapidly, and now causes 1,500 deaths in that city every year, being an increase of nearly fivefold to the population in fifty years. What is the cause? We have a sufficient and very obvious cause in the fact that in our methods of heating our houses we have been "progressing backward." Fifty years ago there were few furnaces or close stoves, and no steam pipes for warming; houses were warmed by open fires. The difference is radical and of great importance.

It may be briefly explained thus: Radiant heat from the sun or from an open fire passes through the air (so far as it is pure air) without warming it—that is to say, without being obstructed or retained by it (just as light does), and only warms the pavement, floors, walls or other opaque body on which it falls. Hence on a sunny day the pavement will be 100 degs., while the air above it is only 50 degs. The air that touches the iron bars or surface of the fire in an open grate goes to feed the fire, and then is drawn up the chimney. Only pure, radiant heat is thrown into the room, not hot air, and it does not heat the air at all directly, but warms our bodies, walls, furniture, etc., and the air is heated from them. When stove, furnace, steam pipes and hot water pipes are used the air is heated directly and in turn warms the objects with which it comes in contact, the process being exactly the reverse of the other.

By radiation from open fires the air is the coolest thing in the room; by the air heating method it is the hottest. By open fires the lungs get less heat than any other part of us, and so are braced and strengthened; by the hot air process they get more heat than any other part, because the hottest air rises uppermost about the head, and so is inhaled, making the lungs tender and sensitive to cold on our going out.

We want to warm our bodies, not the air. Cool air is denser, contains more oxygen and warms the blood more than hot air, besides refreshing and strengthening the lungs and bracing them against injury on going out. We want air with the normal amount of ozone. We get it all destroyed by the hot iron surfaces.

The only remedy for all these mischievous conditions and effects is entirely to abandon the plan of applying the heat to the air—of making the air the carrier of the heat. Heat wants no carrier any more than light. Put your fire in proper position; take away the iron and brick casings that inclose it and obstruct its natural movements, and, quicker than you can think, the heat will be flashed all over your room; darting out in straight lines in every direction from the surface of the fire—down, up and horisontally; and this without expense for pipes and hot air ducts. If one grate is not enough put another on the opposite side of the room. Coals are cheaper than coffins.

An almost perfect arrangement for warming a room would be an open fire, and the entire surface of the walls and ceiling formed of a reflecting material. The least possible fire would warm us, because the heat would be kept alive, active, radiant; being reflected constantly from side to side, and up to ceiling and back as quick as lightning flashes; and so, impinging on the body on all sides, would give it a lively, glowing warmth, while the air might be at almost any lower temperature. It would be like having a fire on every side of the room.—Popular Science Monthly.

CONCEIT.

The shallow brook
That o'er its pebbles, brawling, runs away,
And turns with every break of land or stone,
Vexing the air with plaint of heavy burden,
While but froth and straws it carries,
Knows not the deep, still lake so near,
That, silent, covers its unnumbered dead,
While on its broad breast, to and fro,
The thousand ships of commerce go.
So our lives.
The narrow mind, loud voiced o'er pretty things,
Knows not the silent souls anear—
Dreams not of depths or heights beyond its own,
Or burdens borne in patient stillness.

PROFESSIONAL PALLBEARING.

A Gloomy Trade, but Very Easy and Eminently Respectable.

He was a gloomy looking sort of person and his face wore an expression of woe that made one think he had it stamped there as a sort of trade mark. He was clad in garments of the somberest hue, and from the wide weed on his high hat to the dead polish on his broad soled shoes he looked for all the world like a man in whose family there was a death at least once a year. When he came into the street car a sort of hush fell upon the passengers out of respect for his placarded sorrow. By and by the gloomy man was asked if he had met with a bereavement lately.

"No, indeed," he replied, "there has not been a death in my family for years."

"Why, then," asked his neighbor, with more curiosity than politeness, "do you dress in such deep mourning?"

"Oh, that's on account of my business."

"You are an undertaker, then?"

"No, I am a pall bearer," and noting the look of surprise in his interlocutor's face he went on: "Some years ago there was a strike in my trade. I am a carpenter, and during one of my idle days I passed a house where there was a funeral. Stopping to watch it I was approached by the undertaker, who asked me if I was going to the funeral. I said no, that I knew no one there. He then asked me if I had any objection to being a pall bearer. I said I had none, provided I was paid for it, and we finally struck a bargain. I made as much that afternoon as I would had I worked all day at my trade, and since then I have adopted pall bearing as a means of livelihood. I dress in black, as you see, and each morning look over the death notices. I have found that my services are very seldom required where the funeral is that of a young man or woman, or where the deceased has belonged to any secret societies, and that my most profitable customers are those who have outlived most of their companions. If the dead person happens to be an unmarried lady past the meridian of life I am nearly always certain of the job. I find that at funerals the proportion of female attendants outnumbers the male about four to one, and that most of the latter are close relatives. As it is generally the rule to select the pall bearers from among those not connected with the family you can see that my services are very frequently in demand. I generally seek out the undertaker and make my bargain with him, and I average about two funerals a day. It is a nice, easy sort of life and eminently respectable. You will have to excuse me now, as I have a funeral in this street and must get off here."—Philadelphia News.

Tricks for the Old Time Clown.

Here's a book I found with some of the ancient wheezes in it:

"After the first equestrian turn the clown may say, 'Now I'll have a turn myself,' and then roll over like a coach wheel. Fall upon the ground, pick up sawdust, let it trickle down your face and say, 'My nose bleeds.' Pick up a piece of straw for fear of falling over it, then balance it on your chin. When the ringmaster says 'I never follow a fool,' let him go first, and then say, 'Then I do.' Tell the groom when he takes the horse away to rub it down with cabbage puddings. A good speech to learn to address to the ringmaster: 'If you please, sir, he says that you said that I said that they said that nobody said nothing to nobody.'"

They sound childish, don't they? But not one of them striped things ever failed to make people laugh. There are lots more of the same kind, but I won't read them.—Circus Man in New York Star.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council is called for this evening.

School Board.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held to-morrow evening.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. Gumpricht is in town. Orders may be left at Mr. W. Menzies' or Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's stores. dtf

Town Drain.

Engineer English pumped out the water lying in the town drain this forenoon. He used the fire engine.

Photographs.

Mr. G. B. Sproule shows in the window of Mercer & Co.'s tailoring store two large sized photographs of the English hunting party. One view represents them in camp and alongside the spoils of the chase. The other view has them in canoes paddling to shore.

This Evening.

The concert under the auspices of the Sons of England will be held this evening in Bradburn's Opera House. The principal persons will take part are the celebrated Scottis vocalists, Mr. Finlay McGreggor, Miss Lillie Nolan, soprano; Mrs. Christie, Contralto. Mr. McGreggor will sing several character songs. All Scotchmen and Englishmen as well as Irishmen and Canadians should go and hear Findlay McGreggor.

Come One, Come All!

On Tuesday, Nov. 1st, a grand banquet will will be held under the auspices of the Saved Army. Tea will be served from 6 to 8, p. m., in the old Music Hall, and the concert will be held in the Opera House. Chair taken at 8 o'clock. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Solos by the most prominent singers of the town. Admission to both 25 cents, to concert, 10 cents. All are welcome. d104

A Trotter.

Messrs. Joseph and Wm. McArthur, says the Fenelon Falls Gazette, have purchased from Mr. Noble Ingram, for the sum of $400 the trotting horse Billy B., which Mr. Ingram bought a short time ago from Mr. Wilson of Manvers. Billy is a fine looking animal, six years old, bay with black points, and has made such fast time at several local races that his new owners believe they have a good bargain.

Presentation.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says:—"When we wrote the paragraph in last week's issue respecting Rev. Father McEvay's farewell visit, we were not aware that a number of his last parishoners had presented him, on Tuesday evening, with a purse of money and an address, which was read by Mr. J. Twomey, jr. The pleasing ceremony took place at the priest's residence on Fidler's hill, and we need scarcely add that the kindly and effectionate sentiments expressed in the address were warmly reciprocrated by Father McEvay in his brief but appropriate reply."

'Tis a Beautiful Banner.

The Dominion Oddfellow says:—"The beautiful banner for Canton Peterborough, manufactured by Bro. W. C. Morrison, of Toronto, was shipped by C. P. R. last Wednesday morning, 26th October. Accountant McCrae and Colour-Sergeant W. A. Ryan took it to the depot and saw it safely on the train. It is a beautiful piece of work, and there is not a flaw to be found in the work The chevaliers of Peterborough ought to feel proud when they receive such a beautiful present from the ladies of their town, who on two occasions have done a good deal of work for the I. O. O. F." The banner has arrived here all right, but not a member of the Canton will see it till it is formerly presented on the evening of November 8th at the Canton's concert.

THE LATE DR. NELLES.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE IN THE CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

The Rev. I. Tovell Delivers an Eloquent Eulogy on the Late Chancellor of Victoria University.

A large congregation assembled in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church on Sabbath evening to join in a religious service in memory of the late Rev. Dr. Nelles. After the opening exercises of singing, prayer and Scripture reading, a short sermon was delivered by Rev. I. Tovell on "The Christian's Rest." The choir sang a beautiful anthem appropriate for the occasion, and Mr. Davis also rendered, with much feeling, that well-known hymn "Nearer Home To-day." After the sermon and another hymn Mr. Tovell proceeded to deliver an address. He spoke as follows:—

Dear friends,—I want to address a few words to you touching the deep sorrow that has overtaken the Methodist Church of this land through the death of the distinguished Chancellor of Victoria University. I know, in doing so, I am speaking to those who feel deeply affected in consequence of his departure, for his usefulness has been so well-known, so varied and so great. It is our melancholy pleasure, therefore, to add this humble tribute to the beautiful tribute already paid in Peterborough to the memory of the late Dr. Nelles, one who so often visited our churches here and lifted up the cross as the sinner's refuge and hope.

It was while we were all busy with our work, not thinking of an approaching trial, that Dr. Nelles fell asleep. The public scarcely knew of his affliction before the news went everywhere that he was numbered with the dead. We were not expecting it. Yet, such is life. All men are mortal.

"Thou knowest 'tis common: all that live must die, Passing through nature to eternity."

It was on the 64th anniversary of his birthday that

"Heaven opened wide
Her ever during gates, harmonious sound
On golden hinges turning."

Sixteen of those years—his boyhood life—were spent in the neighborhood of Mount Pleasant. The next three years were given to study in the Lewiston Academy, and in the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary of the United States, thence to Victoria College, and thence back to the United States to complete his graduating course in the Wesleyan University in the 23rd year of his age. A varied student's life: part spent under the Stars and Stripes and part under the British flag. Awhile under the influence of John G. Saxe, the humorist and poet, and for a season under the vigorous and sagacious Dr. Ryerson. This variety of circumstance and of teaching staff must have had much to do in the development of his mind into a versatility, sagacity, brilliance, breadth and power for which he was so famous among his brethren. At least the foundation of such qualities were then laid. Soon the ministry was opened to him and Port Hope, Toronto and London respectively shared in the fervor, thoughtfulness and eloquence of one not long destined to remain in the pastorate.

Victoria College, like a vessel with timbers slender and sails not strong, had just drifted out from shore into an unknown sea. There was need of a man of tack, courage and skill to take the helm and guide. In 1850 the choice fell on Samuel Sobieski Nelles, and a wise choice it was. For 37 years he held to his post, surrounded by loyal helpers, and achieving results that have made his name immortal. His was a busy life and full of anxieties. I can imagine him repeating these lines early in his career—

"I hear the muffled tramp of years
Come stealing up the slope of time,
They bear a train of smiles and tears
Of burning hopes and dreams sublime."

It was in the midst of smiles and tears that "God's finger touched him and he slept."—Smiles like rainbows flashing from a misty sky, and tears

"Sweet tears! the awful language eloquent
Of indefinite affection, far too big
For words."

The Methodist Church will be slow to forget Dr. Nelles. He is enbalmed in her memory. As a teacher he will be esteemed for his work's sake and for his character. Was he not loyal to every essential feature of Methodism, his deep sympathy with many other denominations notwithstanding? When did we ever fear he would some day drift from the old landmarks, even though we knew he was progressive. Although a reader of many books, and a studen of many theories, still no anxiety was felt by his peers that he would ever depart from the faith once delivered to the saints. Hobbies in theology he never rode, and hence the absence of any danger of a runaway from the commandment which is "exceedingly broad." He was no intellectual fossil of unalterable size and shape, and destitute of life; but full of life, thirsting for knowledge, panting after the fountains of thought, and hopeful of continuous expansion. At the same time how fixed was his purpose, and how firm his faith, in relation to things divine.

His ability as a preacher of the Gospel grew with his growth, and strengthened with his strength. Fifteen years ago while listening to a baccalaureate sermon my heart was thrilled with a holy passion as he unfolded with wondrous power and beauty the meaning of these words, "Whosoever shall save his life shall lose it." It was in my judgement the ablest sermon I ever had heard. The audience was held almost breathless as he poured forth

"Thoughts that breathe"
In words that burn."

His eloquent peroration lingers in my memory and seems to me now to have been prophetic of his own triumph. "Quit you like men. Be strong When God calls you hence, see to it that you go up thither not with unused weapons, and uniform unworn, not with polished breastplate and flag furled, but rather go up with battered sword and dinted plate, and riddled flag, and scarred brow, proofs abundant these that you have fought the good fight." Surely He has himself thus appeared covered with scars such as "good soldiers" bear, and God has said "Well done!"

He was a truth seeker and ready to receive it from any source. He found books in the running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything. "He was" as Prof. Reynar said in that chaste, and unique obituary which he gave in Cobourg, "he was a man of many books; but he was at the same time like Wesley—a man of one book." On his death bed he said to his wife "I have studied much and read many books, but there is no book like the Bible, and no name like Jesus."

Dr. Neiles did a great work and noble. In labors abundant he spent his best years and energies in promoting higher education. The building up of a Christian university under the auspices of the Methodist Church was the dream of his life. To this end every available force was used. Addresses, lectures and letters, sermons and sacrifices, tears and time, wit and work, were all made to contribute to the realization of that dream. To the task he brought a ripened scholarship, a wise administrative ability, a cautious judgment, a gentlemanly manner, a large catholic spirit, and a well-tried faith. The result has been wonderful. It is not all seen in piles of brick and college halls, in chairs endowed and multiplied faculties. But to know the work we must move out among the alumni and other students; we must mingle with the missionaries of Japan, with ministers, barristers, judges, statesmen and presidents of colleges in this land if we would grasp the significance of the work done. It is marvellous. What thoughts and hopes and inspirations and high enthusiasms have been given to young men! What vigour to mental life, what polish to speech, what grace to character have been imparted to these then young, but destined in years after to fill the most responsible places in church and state. All over this land at this very hour the work of this Christian scholar, together with his co-workers, is being felt for good. And, although dead, yet he speaketh.

Dr. Nelles will be greatly missed. Thoughtful as was his countenance, and his brow was careworn, yet wherever he went he carried sunshine. We shall miss him in our churches and conferences. Students will look in vain for his coming to the lecture room. And all will feel we have lost a brother from our ranks. Great losses have been suffered these last years. Dr. Ryerson is at rest, Dr. Rice is gone, and now Dr. Nelles. Still we must do more than weep. They would not have us linger too long at their graves. The times are full of promise. The harvest waits for the reapers. Duty bids us go and preach. If we catch their fallen mantles it will be evidenced by fidelity to God and to the highest interests of man. We are in the midst of great responsibilities; our college interests are passing through a crisis, we cannot do greater honor to our departed and distinguished friend than seek for wisdom to complete the work of his hands, that our church may go forth "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

This address was followed by fervent prayer for the bereft family, and for all those interests most dear in life to the late Dr. Nelles. The theme words as a closing hymn were sung by the whole congregation:—

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past,
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

Personal.

The Campbellford Herald says:—"Mr. S. R. Armstrong, of the Peterborough REVIEW, son of Mr. W. W. Armstrong, of Campbellford, with Mr. Dobbin, of the Lindsay Post, have just purchased an interest in the REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co., and they assume the management of the establishment on Tuesday next, 1st of November. Mr. Armstrong has been connected with the office for about seven years, and his services have been highly appreciated. We congratulate him on his accession to the management of a paper as good as any in the Dominion."

From the Belleville Intelligencer:—"It is understood that Mr. Dobbin, of the Lindsay Post, and Mr. S. R. Armstrong, of the Peterborough REVIEW, have purchased an interest in the REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co., and assume the management of that establishment on the first of November. Mr. Armstrong was at one time an employee of the Intelligencer office, but for the past seven or eight years has been on the REVIEW. He is industrious and steady and has succeeded well. The Intelligencer extends congratulations upon that success. The REVIEW always has been a reliable, respectable sheet, and the new management has our best wishes for the future."

The Rev. P. Clifton Parker, the newly chosen pastor of the Baptist Church, will arrive in town this week and will preach in the Church, Murrray street, on Sunday.

Sheriff Hall, Miss F. Dixon and Miss Tucker, represented St. Paul's Church Sunday School, and Miss Mary Allen, represented the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School, have returned to town, having attended the Sunday School Workers Convention held in London.

The Rev. J. Goforth preached a missionary sermon in St. Paul's Church on Sunday morning. By means of charts he made some surprising comparisons as to the amounts which were spent in missions, amusements, whiskey, tobacco, etc. The Rev. Mr. Goforth will proceed to China as a missionary soon.

A Suggestive Scene.

There was a very suggestive scene on Hunter street this forenoon. A bear's pelt arranged so that bruin looked as natural as life, stood in the window of Mr. W. J. Devlin's store standing erect, one paw was extended in the act of trying to seize a tempting looking set of harness and pair of collars. His bearship evidently appreciated good workmanship, and thought the articles would be useful in the rural district from which he came. Before he succeeded Mr. Wm. Loch "brought him down" with a $10 bill, else Mr. Bruin might have turned farmer for the sake of having a reaper drawn with such harness.

New House.

The house in which the priest of St. Peter's Church has lived for a long time, and which was used by the late Bishop Jamot as a palace, is to be torn down. The occupants of it have moved to the house occupied until lately by Mr. John Hall. Considerable improvements and alterations have been made in it.

The Midland Shops.

The Port Hope Times says:—"The boiler that drives the engine at the Midland shops will be taken out on Monday and sent to Lindsay. During the short time before the machine is taken out a disused boiler will furnish steam. Ten days will probably see the men away."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Pulpit Occupied by the Rev. Dr. Newman, of Toronto.

Rev. Dr. Newman, of McMaster Hall, Toronto, preached at the Baptist Church on Sunday, occupying the pulpit at both morning and evening services. The morning service was well attended. Rev. Dr. Newman delivered an able and impressive sermon.

In the evening the rev. gentleman took for his text Matt. xi., 28., "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." In his opening sentences Rev. Dr. Newman briefly sketched the circumstances surrounding the life of Christ at the time when these memorable words were delivered, and went on to say that the central idea of the teachings of our Saviour was to come and be saved. This invitation was no ordinary invitation. It came from the Christ. It was freely given. It was for mankind to say how it should be received. That invitation had been sounding down the ages for the last three thousand years, as enunciated by the inspired prophets of old. We have them now under the new dispensation, as falling from the lips of the son of God. It was a clear and comprehensive invitation, an offer of a full and overflowing bounty. It mattered not the distance that separated the sinner from Christ. His great goodness dwarfed the greatest distances, bridged the moral gulf that held apart the unrepentant and made a full and free atonement for us all.

The words of the text were of wide significance. They had a personal application. They were addressed to the world at large. Their acceptance cut down all bulwarks, and levelled all distinctions of tenet and doctrine. It was a full atonement; a sufficient answer to all enquiry. The simplicity of the announcement was such that men, learned and skilled, had walked past the gate. It was simply taking God at His Word—resting entirely on His promises. It was a marvellous thing that everyone was not saved when the offer was so freely and fully made.

POLICE COURT.

D. & D.

MONDAY, Oct. 31.—Mr. James Stevenson occupied the curule chair this morning. Two boys were brought before him; John Stevenson and Joseph Graham, one aged 10 and the other 12, both being charged with being drunk and disorderly. Acting Chief Adams said that he got them on Aylmer on Saturday night. They were helplessly drunk.

The justice lectured the boys, telling them that they would be served right if they were sent to the Reformatory for a term.

The lads simpered and shed tears.

The justice discharged them with a warning to mend their ways.

DISORDERLY.

F. Farley, charged with being disorderly, was remanded.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1887.

Civic Chat.

The local members of "the finest," are to be equipped in winter garments. The Police Supervision Committee have been instructed to procure new overcoats and pants (trousers is a better word) for the force.

The voters list for the town for 1887 in print, have been issued.

The council have ascertained that inserting a suitable advertisement of the town and facilities for manufacturing in The Iron Age, Journal of Commerce, Canadian Lumberman and the "Memorial Volume" will cost $125. The proposition has been left in the hands of the Committee who will no doubt endorse the idea as a good business speculation.

"It would seem" remarked, Mayor Stevenson as he endorsed the decision of the chair on the back of an application for remission of dog tax, "that only about 300 dogs are owned in town. It is likely that the dog census taken would show that the figures are about one half-short of the facts." It is a poor family that can't afford its dog.

A communication to which no name was signed, was read at the council meeting on Monday evening. It is a little out of the ordinary run of letters the clerk is called upon to read, as the person does not "pray" for what he wants and does not sign himself "your humble petitioner." The communication is as follows:—

DEAR SIR,—I have asked repeatedly for a way to be made for me to get in to my place with wood, etc., across the street ditch, and also a crossing from the steps at the front of my place to the sidewalk on the other side of the street, and no move has been made to do anything to it. The street and bridge men have been close by here to do two jobs since with only once asking, and never offered to do this, which is badly needed. I have to get my wood in soon and if it is not in good shape by next week I will be obliged to fill the ditch with stones and earth to enable me to get in. I have carried in two loads of wood already from the street and I will do no more of this kind of thing. Please attend to it at once, as I mean what I say. North half of lot 1, north of Perry and east of George streets.

The Mayor remarked that evidently this man meant all he said.

Presentation.

On Monday evening a number of Mrs. Bertram's friends assembled at the residence of Mrs. Alexander Smith. Where an informal reception was held. During the evening the following address was read by Miss Edwards:

Dear Mrs. Bertram.

Before your departure from amongst them, your many friends in Peterborough desire to express their very sincere hope that your removal to another home may be attended with God's blessing and that such a measure of health and happiness may be accorded you, as in His Divine wisdom He may see best for you and yours. They moreover feel a deep albiet selfish regret at losing one whose active benevolence Christian sympathy and ready co-operation in all good works, made him a valuable member of society and endeared him to a large circle of friends and acquaintances in all classes of the community. As a tangible proof of the reality of these sentiments your friends offer, and your acceptance of the accompaning Davenport, asking you to give it a place in your new home as they feel they will have in your memory. That good may be with you, and abide with you, and give you ever increasing strength for and love in His service and at the last gather us all into His heavenly Kingdom, the home from which there shall be no removal, is the heartfelt prayer of your many loving and true friends in Peterborough.

October 31st, 1887.

A pleasant hour or two was spent and the company separated.

Finance Committee.

A meeting of the Finance Committee in connection with the Town Council was held this forenoon to consider what aid could be given to the establishing of a saw and file works here. After an hour's discussion an offer was made to the gentlemen interested. The town would agree to erect suitable buildings, and to charge the nominal rental of $100 a year. The occupants would have to keep the building in repair. This was satisfactory to the visitors. It is probable that the works will be established here.

STEWART'S REMAINS.

The Mystery that Enveloped their Disappearance Dispelled.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The mystery which has so long enveloped the disappearance of A. T. Stewart's remains has at last been dispelled by Superintendent George W. Walling, who tells the inside history of their recovery in his forthcoming book, "The Recollections of a Chief of Police." The circumstances of the robbery of the remains from St. Mark's churchyard are well known. So many and conflicting have been the reports that the public have been in doubt as to what had become of them. The authentic story of their recovery is now told. Ex-Postmaster Jones gives the first clue, notifying Superintendent Walling that an ex-soldier, who had served under him, knew something of the remains and would give information if encouraged. Judge Hilton was told of this offer, but declared he would never give a cent for Mr. Stewart's bones unless they came accompanied by the thieves in irons. General Jones then showed letters from the thieves, accompanied by the coffin-plate, which was identified by the engraver, and other evidence was sent by the robbers which showed that they had the body. Judge Hilton remained unalterable, but Mrs. Stewart wishing to recover the remains, the thieves opened correspondence with her directly. In January, 1882, General Jones brought to Police Headquarters the silver knobs and handles of the coffin, and showed letters purporting to have been written in Canada by Harry G. Romaine, proposing that General Jones act as attorney for the return of the body upon payment of $250,000. On the 5th February, at the request of Judge Hilton, General Jones wrote to Romaine, agreeing to act as counsel. A reply came from Boston that the body would be restored for $200,000 to General Jones or Judge Hilton within twenty-five miles of Montreal, nobody else to be present and all parties to maintain an unbroken silence in the transaction. Judge Hilton refused the terms, and declined to negotiate clandestinely. Romaine was informed of this and directed Gen. Jones to break off all communication with Judge Hilton and open negotiations with Mrs. Stewart. No notice was taken of this request, but in March Judge Hilton offered $25,000 for the body. Gen Jones informed Romaine of this, and he respectfully but firmly declined the offer. The robbers becoming discouraged, now offered to sell the body for $100,000. Mrs. Stewart was willing, and ordered her representatives to pay the amount. They delayed matters until the figure was reduced to $30,000, which was accepted.

The conditions of delivery were severe. The messenger with the money was to leave New York city at 10 p. m., in a one horse waggon, alone, and drive into West Chester county, along a lonely road, which was indicated in a map sent by the thieves. Some time before morning if the man was acting in good faith and was not accompanied or followed by detectives, he would be met and given further directions. A young relative of Mrs. Stewart undertook the hazardous errand. Two or three times during the night he was certain that he was closely watched, but it was three o'clock when a masked horseman rode up, gave the signal agreed on, and turned the buggy up a lonely lane. The strange visitor here left him, directing him to drive on. At the end of another mile, he became aware that another waggon was blocking the way. He paused, and a man promptly appeared and brought forward a bag to his buggy, saying,

"Here it is. Where is the money?"

"Where is the proof of identity?" asked the messenger, as the bag containing the mortal remains of A. T. Stewart was lifted into the buggy.

"Here," said the other, holding up an irregular bit of velvet, and at the same time opening a bull's eye lantern with a click. The piece was compared with a bit of paper of the same shape which the New Yorker had brought with him to this lonely spot.

"Come, hurry up," was the command. The messenger obeyed by producing the money, and the robbers retired a few feet and counted it by the light of the lantern. Then they moved off with their vehicles, and the messenger of Mrs. Stewart drove back the way he had come. Next night a freight car went out to Garden City containing nothing but a trunk, and on it sat a man who had spent the previous night in the loneliest part of West Chester county. An empty coffin had already been deposited in the cathedral, and at the dead of night two men transferred the bones to it from the trunk. They then placed the coffin in an inaccessible vault beneath the dome. If any one should ever again touch, unforbidden, the vault which holds the bones of the merchant millionaire, the touch would release a hidden spring which would shake the chimes in the tower and send an instant alarm throughout the village.

MR. O'BRIEN TO GO TO GAOL.

The Sentence Imposed by the Mitchellstown Court Confirmed

DUBLIN, Oct. 31.—The appeal of Wm. O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, against the sentence of three months' imprisonment on him by the Mitchellstown Court has been refused and the sentence of the Lower Court confirmed. The charge of which Mr. O'Brien was convicted was of using seditious language under the Crimes Act at a National League meeting at Mitchellstown.

Mr. O'Brien arrived at Cork this morning and was given and enthusiastic reception. He started for Middleton where the hearing on his appeal was to be heard, in the company of Messrs. Dillon and Harrington. A most exciting scene ensued in the Court room at Middleton when the decision confirming the sentence of the Mitchellstown Court was announced. The room was immediately in an uproar and the people clustered about Mr. O'Brien to prevent the law officers from arresting him. Mr. Harrington contended that the police had no right to arrest Mr. O'Brien. A terrible struggle took place in the court room and in the passage leading to the street, between Mr. O'Brien and his friends on one side and the police on the other. Ladies screaming and fainted, and the confusion was general. The police finally succeeded in arresting Mr. O'Brien. The people remained in the street outside the court clamoring for the rescue of Mr. O'Brien, and vengeance upon the police.

A QUEBEC ROMANCE.

A Man and His Son and Daughter Charged with Abduction.

Hull had a sensation of first-class character on Saturday. On the early morning train from Montreal there arrived the bailiff of Montebello with three prisoners. George Whissel, his son Samuel and daughter Delia, were arraigned before Recorder Champagne, charged with having abducted and concealed a young girl 17 years of age, named Herminie Groulx, of Lachine. The facts of the case appear to be as follows:—Samuel Whissel was employed as a man of all work in the residence of Mr. Fred. Lafleur, an employee in the Bank of Montreal, who resides at Lachine, and who is an uncle of the girl Herminie Groulx. The latter is an orphan. Delia Whissel also served in Lafleur's house as waiting maid. During his stay at Lafleur's house Whissel paid attentions to Miss Groulx, and at length an elopement was agreed upon. Young Whissel, accompanied by his sister, left Lafleur's house a day or two ago, and were joined by Miss Groulx. They proceeded to the residence of Whissel's father in Montebello, where the marriage of Miss Groulx and Samuel Whissel was to take place. Meantime the uncle of the girl, Mr. Lafleur, discovered his niece's whereabouts and telegraphed to the bailiff at Montebello to stop the marriage, arrest the three Whissels and proceed with them to Hull. This the bailiff did, just as the marriage ceremony was about to come off last evening. Miss Groulx be sent back to Lachine. The prisoners pleaded not guilty. Three witnesses testified that the girl Miss Groulx was only on a visit to Geo. Whissel's house in Montebello, but on the evidence of the bailiff the prisoners were committed for trial at the next assizes in Aylmer. Quite a scene took place in the court room when the bailiff insisted on taking the prisoners off to gaol at Aylmer. They refused to go, and asked to get bail. Recorder Champagne decided that he had not judiadiction to grant bail. Judge Wurtele was then seen and allowed bail to be taken in $1,000 each, upon which the prisoners were allowed to go. The young girl concerned is well educated and said to be rich, and her parents moved in good society in Montreal, and the case was brought to Hull through the influence of the girl's friends with the object of keeping the matter quiet.

A New Fireman's Helmet.

The men of the fire brigade of Berlin are being supplied with a new helmet, enabling them to work in dense smoke which would suffocate any man not protected by such a helmet. It was invented and constructed by Fire Director Stude. A pump presses fresh air into the helmet through a tube entering at the back of the head, and the current is so strong that it issues in front with sufficient force to render the entrance of smoke impossible. There are openings for the ears and mouth, enabling the men to hear orders and make replies. This useful headgear has been in use at Bremen for a long time.—Chicago News.

Dangerous Lemon Squeezers.

The Popular Science News gives warning against the so called galvanized iron lemon squeezers. The iron is coated with zinc, and the "citric acid of the lemon will readily dissolve the zinc, forming unwholesome and poisonous salts. Lemon squeezers should be made either of plain iron or wood, or, better, like some we have observed, where the surfaces brought in contact with the fruit are porcelain. Zinc is a metal which is readily attacked by the weakest acids, and no article of food or drink should ever be allowed to come in contact with it."—Boston Journal of Health.

Diagonal Streets for Towns.

If towns were laid out with the streets in the diagonal directions, northeast and southwest, northwest and southeast, the sun shining into all the rooms some time during every day in the year, the effect would be cheering and salutary.—Boston Budget.

Bold Robbery.

BUFFALO, Oct. 31.—While Gen. Rogers, Secretary of the Park Commission, was paying a park hand this morning, a man rushed into the room, grabbed a satchel containing about $3200 in bank notes, which it was intended should be paid the park employees, and disappeared. No trace of the thief up to this time.

Deadly Coal Gas.

HAMILTON, Oct. 31.—Five women in the family of Wm. Atkinson, 70 Canada street, narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation from coal gas this morning. Three of them were unconscious for hours, and were rescued only by the strenuous efforts of neighbors.

THE FRENCH AMMBASSADOR.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Times, commenting on the appointment of the Earl of Lytton to succeed Lord Lyons as British Ambassador to France, says that it would more readily acquiesce in his choice by the Government if it could forget his faults and failings as Viceroy of India. The paper states that though it does not view his appointment with the alarm which is expressed in some quarters, it would remind him that a more fierce light of public opinion will beat upon him in Paris than in Calcutta.

The Condemned Anarchists.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The failure of the United States Supreme Court to render a decision to-day in the Anarchists' cases and the announcement of the Chief Justice that the court would not be ready to make public such decision until Wednesday or Thursday are thought to indicate nothing more than that the court's judgment will be set forth in a more or less elaborate opinion, and that the Justice to whom the preparation of that opinion has been assigned is not yet ready with it. It is the universal belief of lawyers who practice at the Supreme Court bar that the petition for a writ of error will be denied, but it is belief is based only upon their own views of constitutional law, and the impression made upon their minds by the argument. The Justices of the court will not allow any intimation to escape them as to their views until the opinion has been formally announced.

An Awful Fall.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—At the closing performance of Paine's "Last Days of Pompeii," Antonio Infantes proposed to make a balloon ascension. The baloon, a hot air affair, had attained a height of 500 feet when there was a collapse. The descent was very rapid, and as the man came down before the audience he was thrown upon an iron rod from which rockets were being fired. Death ensued immediately.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1887.

FAREWELL.

THE undersigned, having sold to Messrs. F. H. DOBBIN and S. R. ARMSTRONG his interest in the Peterborough REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co.'y (Limited), the business of the Company, in all its departments, will henceforth be conducted by them, and, although retaining for a time the nominal position of President of the Company, the limited responsibility which the undersigned has had for some years past for what has appeared in these columns and for the business management of the Company's affairs, ceased yesterday.

In severing his connection with the REVIEW and its large circle of readers and patrons, the undersigned desires to return them his most sincere thanks for the many kindnesses which he has received at their hands, and especially for their having been so wondrous kind to his many faults both of commission and omission, and to solicit for the new management that kindly and active support, without which it will be impossible for them, or anyone else, to render the REVIEW an efficient exponent of the views and interests which it represents, and, at the same time, yield them a modest pecuniary return for the at all times arduous, trying, and too often thankless, duties devolving upon them as conductors of a public journal.

JOHN CARNEGIE.

October 27th, 1887.

THE REVIEW.

REFERRING to the announcement made in another place in this issue, by Mr. J. Carnegie, late Managing Director of the REVIEW Printing and Publishing Company (Limited), it will be seen that his connection with the establishment ceased on October 31st, and the REVIEW newspaper and business of the office passed to-day into the hands of the new management, who have purchased the interest formerly held by Mr. Carnegie and assume full control of and responsibility for the newspaper and business. It is customary on such an occasion to publish a salutatory article. In this case a paragraph or two will be sufficient.

The REVIEW newspaper has for years taken a prominent position among the leading newspapers of the Province. It will be the care of the new management that the paper shall not lack all that zealous attention can do and push accomplish to make it worthy of the large and important town and county in which it is published. Improvements, called for by the continued growth and prosperity of the town, will be made from time to time, some of which will be placed before the public at an early day.

While matters of general interest will receive full attention, special care will be used that local affairs shall receive at all times the closest possible consideration. The special province of a local paper is to record the happenings of the locality and district, and to this end every effort will be made.

The REVIEW has in the past indentified itself with the interests of the Conservative party. It has taken a stand in support of that party, fully believing that the interests of our country demanded that wise and careful treatment that only a progressive and thoroughly patriotic party could give. While the REVIEW will not hesitate to state its views irrespective of party considerations, it will continue to support, with a due regard to the right of opinion of others, the Conservative party, so long as it upholds views and puts into practice principles that do and will promote the well-being of the country.

The new managment are not unknown to the people of the town and country. In taking up the responsible duties of conducting a public journal, and the large business connected therewith, they do so with a diffidence that the kind indulgence of a generous public will understand and no doubt readily excuse.

The change involved in assuming the management is an important one, and it is trusted that future relations with the patrons and customers of the office will be friendly and satisfactory. All departments of the business will be carried on and extended, and prompt and careful attention will at all times be given to the requirements of customers.

One word more, of explanation, that may assist in adjusting the business to its new relations. The business management will be in the hands of Mr. Dobbin, as Managing Director of the Company, while the editorial department will be in charge of Mr. Armstrong.

THE WAR CLOUD BUSTED!

Victory has Perched on the Banner of PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT CHEAPSIDE.

And SHEPPARD, by common consent, will get $1,000 for being the Cheapest Clothier in Peterborough, having knocked the Wonderful Cheap Man completely out. "Business is business; dirt is dirt, and when it comes to throwing dirt, then count" the only original teddy out, and he will hand over that $1,000 like a little man, for the following reasons:—

SHEPPARD sells a full size Man's suit for $2.95, and better goods than a suit to fit a child about nine years old sold by the Wonderful Cheap Man on Saturday for $3.00; but marked $3.50. This is how it was.—A lady purchased a child's suit on Saturday last, Sept. 17th, 1887, at the store of the Wonderful Cheap Man. It was marked thusly:—Lot 5375, Breast 27, Waist 26½, Age 9, Price $3.50. It was pure shoddy, being held together by cotton threads, and Sheppard is free to say that that was the dearest suit sold in the Town of Peterborough for the last two years. Full particulars are given because of the $1,000 involved, and, further, that this decides who is selling the Cheapest Clothing in Peterborough. SHEPPARD would have sold that lady a suit, pure wool, for that money, and worth two of the one she got.

$1,000 to Go to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

I had first decided to give the agencies a chance of jumping up my rating that $1,000, but after considering the matter and finding that never in any case have I been asked for an endorser to my paper, and that no relative or any other persons have ever endorsed my paper to the extent of one cent, I have come to the conclusion my credit is as good as yours, and will ask you to hand over the $1,000 to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

Now, Sir, there is a good story told, the truth of which can be vouched for, but for the honor of at least making an effort to keep up your self-styled name—The Terror of High Priced Clothiers—do not allow the same to be said of you in the case above. A man purchased a suit for $15.00 at the store of one of the largest advertisers in that section of country. It was guaranteed pure wool; but after examining it carefully at home, he came to the conclusion that he had been dealing with some one sharper than himself. Finding a make of wool, differing some from anything he had ever seen, it dawned upon him that he had heard of wool of that kind, so the suit was returned. The merchant bet $25.00 that it was all wool, and the bet was accepted, the decision being left to a neighboring merchant. He found that the $15.00 suit was wool faced and shoddy back, pure unadulterated shoddy; but what of the $25.00 bet? was it paid? Not much—muchly—as it were.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY.—The November number of Harper has for its frontispiece a beautiful engraving after Church's picture "A Fairy Tale." Edwards Roberts in "A Santa Barbara Holiday" gives a fascinating description of life in Southern California. "Chantilly; the Chateau and the Collections" the princely gift of the Duc d'Aumale to the Institute of France, an will described by Theodore Child, who graphically reviews the historical associations of the palace. W. S. Brown discourses on "The Winter Climate Resorts of three continents," giving useful hints to invalids in a pleasing manner. W. E. Curtis in "The other end of the Hemisphere," continues his interesting description of South American countries, his theme this time, being the Argentine Republic and Uruguay, countries which are destined to be formidable competitors with our ranches, and to become important nations. Mrs. Davis continues her lively sketches "Here and there in the South," describing the Acadian settlements in Louisiana. The Rev. C. F Thwing contributes a suggestive paper on "The Young Criminal," and his proper treatment. The serial novels "Narka" by Miss O'Meara and "April Hope" by Howells are both concluded to the regret of the reader. Several short stories and poetry of high merit with the editorial miscellan ous complete this excellent number, the illustrations of which are exceptionally good even according the standard of Harper.

ST. NICHOLAS.—In the current number of St. Nicholas Miss Brooks adds to her gallery of "Historic Girls" the portrait of Pocahontas, who really never was Mrs. Smith. J. R. Conyell gives a very interesting account of "Elephants at Work," showing the wonderful sagacity of these gigantic animals. A striking episode in the life of the first Emperor Napoleon is well told by D. Ker. A charming story by Miss Alcutt is one of the features of the number. We will not particularize the long list of tales, verses, sketches, "jingles," and other attractions for children of all ages, including some with gray hair. Suffice it to say that both engravings and letterpress will be welcomed with avidity by the young folks, when the elders have had their share of amusement from "the children's favorite."

A fine constitution may be ruined by simple neglect. Many bodily ills result from habitual constipation. There is no medicine equal to Ayer's Pills for restoring the system to natural and healthy action.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

RAILWAYS IN EUROPE.

AN EXPERT ON THEIR INFERIORITY TO THOSE OF AMERICA.

A Chat with Chauncey M. Depew—A System of Barbarism That Smacks of the Middle Ages—Young America in Germany.

"One thing is quite certain," said Mr. Chauncey M. Depew to a correspondent; "that no railway company in the United States could run trains on the European plan and retain its charter. The whole system over there seems to me to be a system of barbarism that smacks of the Middle Ages, and I will tell you why I think so. In the first place, no one is safe in the small compartments. You are left there alone with several utter strangers; perhaps only two or three and often but one. And this one may be a thief, a lunatic or even a murderer, with the others as his confederates. Under such conditions, then, you are shut up in a miserable box for an hour or more, while the train, thundering on, drowns any cries that you could make in case of an attack. The signal bell is out of reach, and if you are unarmed or doze for a moment you are quite at the mercy of any villain who may be traveling with you. Fortunately, the evil consequences of this system are not so great in Europe as they certainly would be in the United States, for there the criminal classes seem to be less daring than with us. But even as it is robberies, murders and assaults are so frequent on continental railways as to convince any fair minded person that men travel in Europe at the risk of their lives and women at the risk of their honor.

"Then compare the two systems as regards conveniences offered to the public. I pass over untouched what travelers in America have long since learned to consider as railway necessities, but which are absolutely unknown in Europe. I refer to adequate arrangements for eating, sleeping, lighting, heating, amusement, etc.

LACK OF CONVENIENCES.

"But I must emphasize one glaring deficiency, which is so utterly inexcusable that in the United States it would simply cause a riot. I mean the fact that continental trains are without even the most primitive toilet conveniences. The annoyance and suffering occasioned thereby is incalculable. Think of the feeble women and elderly men, of the invalids and children, who are forced to put up with such monstrous neglect. To be sure the companies pretend to furnish these accommodations at the stations, but as the runs are very long, the stops short, and the weather often inclement, many persons are unable to leave the train and take advantage of even these wretched accommodations.

"Here is an illustration of the abuses of this system. I mention a case which has come under my own personal observation. An American lady left her seat to enter one of these cabinets, and she was actually locked in and kept there until the train had moved off, simply because, having left her purse in the cars, she was unable to pay the few sous that were demanded.

"Another serious discomfort on European railways is caused by the incessant jolting, due very largely to the small size and faulty construction of the cars. If you happen to ride in the forward carriage of one of their express trains, you are thrown up and down and from side to side with a violence which would only be equaled in the United States on one of the old corduroy roads over a western prairie, where the rails had been laid simply on the ground without grading.

YOUNG AMERICA IN GERMANY.

"I will illustrate the autocratic character of European government railway management by two incidents which I know to be authentic. A party of American students, traveling through Germany, reached the station just as their train was starting. An official called out to them not to attempt getting on, but as the cars were moving slowly they paid no attention to his caution and stepped aboard. The result was that at the next stop they were met by a guard of soldiers and all marched off under arrest. At first the young Americans treated the whole affair as a huge joke and inquired with mock seriousness when the trial would come off. But they changed their tone on being informed that, having deliberately violated an ordinance of the German empire, they had been already tried, convicted and sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment. In fact, before they realized the gravity of their situation, they were behind iron bars in the city jail, and it required the influence of the American legation at Berlin, together with the most humiliating apologies on their own parts, to effect their release.

"A friend of mine was the hero of the other incident, which happened at the Frankfort depot. He was about to enter a compartment, where several seats were vacant, when he distinctly saw one of the gentlemen inside slip a gold piece into the hand of the guard, who immediately declared that the compartment was 'reserved' and that no one else could ride in it. My friend was so angry that he at once accused the fellow of having received a bribe, and on the charge being denied he added, with American directness, that the guard was 'a liar and a thief.' The train moved off, my friend being forced to find another seat. At the first station he was arrested for having insulted a government official, and finally, after a great deal of trouble, followed a lawyer's advice, made a full apology, paid all the costs and a heavy fine and left the country in disgust. Just imagine—if you can—such a thing happening in the United States."—Philadelphia Times Interview.

The Vanderbilt Bowling Alley.

The assertion of an architect recently that he had built a magnificent bowling alley in the attic of Cornelius Vanderbilt's magnificent house on Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue has caused the passers by to raise their eyes to the vast and impressive roof of that structure. They try to hear the tenpins fall, despite the fact that the architect says that he has deadened the walls so that nothing can be heard, and they picture to themselves the master and mistress of a $100,000,000 merrily bowling their time away up among the clouds. This particular Vanderbilt mansion is more of a mystery than any of the others, although all of the exteriors are gloomy and pretentious enough to excite interest.—New York Sun.

A MOST INTERESTING STUDY.

A Physician Talks About the Philosophy of Walkers and Walking.

"There is no better way to tell the habits, characteristics and occupations of people than by the way they walk," said a homœopathic physician of Brooklyn. "It is a most interesting study. Let us walk along Myrtle avenue, the most cosmopolitan thoroughfare in Brooklyn, and I'll try and point out a few different types for you. There comes a society butterfly—a pretty miss with mincing step. She looks best in a poem, for you will observe that the upper part of her body bends over at an angle of nearly forty-five degrees, and that her high heels tilt her forward till she feels she is going to fall flat on her face. The instinct of self preservation makes her unconsciously stretch out her open hands so as to save herself when she falls. I should say it was very laborious work for her to bobble along and keep her bustle bobbing up and down and from right to left with such clocklike regularity.

"Here comes an office clerk. He has been at the desk nearly all his life, for there is nothing human left about his figure. His right shoulder is three inches higher than his left, his back is bent and his elbows stand out. From leaning continually over a low desk with his legs crossed his pelvis has been thrown out of place and the right toe turns in so that he walks with a hoppity jump.

"That hard featured man across the street has been a convict. He has the regular lockstep, and his right arm is unconsciously stretched out in search of something to lean on as he bends forward. It wouldn't surprise me if he sometimes rested it on some one in front of him.

"The man just ahead of us, although respectably dressed, was no doubt a tramp the greater part of his life. Notice how he shuffles along, scraping his feet on the sidewalk instead of lifting them up. He learned that habit from walking long distances in shoes without any fastening.

"The fat woman over there can hardly be said to walk. She propels herself along by moving first one side and then the other. A woman came to me the other day who was so fat that she couldn't put her two heels together to save her life. She offered me $100 to thin her down. I told her if I could do that my fortune would be made.

"Few people walk correctly because they never have been taught. It is impossible to stand erect when the backs of the hands are turned outward and the thumbs lie next the person. Soldiers are drilled to stand with the little fingers touching the stripes down their trousers. If you walk with the elbows close to the side, and you can see the palms of your hands as you swing them back and forth, the shoulders can't help being thrown back."

The doctor himself was almost as round shouldered as the reporter.—New York Evening Sun.

It is understood that the Czar will return to Moscow via Germany, and will have an interview with Emperor William, but the meeting will be short of all political significance by the intentional absence of M. de Giers and Prince Bismarck.

Owing to the committee representing the citizens of Winnipeg considering the contract stipulations for the completion of the Red River Valley Railway not sufficiently binding, they refused to sanction the raising by the city of the $300,000, and the contract has therefore fallen through for the present.

Don't use any more nauseous purgatives such as Pills, Salts, &c., when you can get in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that moves the Bowels gently, cleansing all impurities from the system and rendering the Blood pure and cool. Sold by all Druggists.

The further hearing of the East Northumberland Local election petition was commenced at Osgoode Hall on Saturday. Mr. Dwight, of the Great North-Western Telegraph Company, was fined $100, and Mr. Macklem, telegraph clerk at Colborne, was reprimanded for contempt of court in destroying telegrams connected with the election.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Drill.

The 57th Battalion will drill in P.A.A.A. grounds this evening.

Canton No. 10.

The Peterborough Canton No. 10 will drill in the Peterborough Lodge rooms, George street this evening.

Hallowe'en.

To-day is All Saints' Day. Last night was an unusually quiet one. The pranks and tricks commonly accompanying Hallowe'en were almost forgotten.

Block Paving.

The first cedar block pavement in Peterborough was put down on George street on Monday, near the Canadian Pacific Railway station. It was done by the Railway Company.

Pepper.

At the Salvation Army meeting in the barracks held on Monday evening some one threw a handful of pepper on the hot stove. There was so much sneezing and coughing immediately after that the people had to go back to the rear room to finish out the programme.

Typhoid Fever.

Mr. W. Aldwell, a young man from town, was taken ill a short time ago with typhoid fever. His brother Thomas came to see him and was also prostrated with the disease. They are both at the Nicholls Hospital and are at present in a condition favorable to recovery.

A Mistake.

An advertisement by Mrs. Downing for employment washing for families was inserted in the REVIEW some days ago. A party called at this office (who was not the advertiser) and got the address of a party requiring work done of that kind. Should anything be wrong Mrs. Downing is not accountable. 1d105

Vital Statistics.

The number of births, marriages and deaths which have occurred in Peterborough during the month of October, as taken from the record kept by the Divisional Registrar, are as follows:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Births | 16 |
| Marriages | 12 |
| Deaths | 8 |

Steam Power.

A boiler and engine have been placed in position at Howden's meat market, an addition which will save a good deal of labor. The power is needed chiefly to drive the sausage machine. The boiler is built in brick in the rear of the meat market, and the engine is in the cellar. The sausage machine has a capacity of making 25 pounds every two minutes.

League of the Cross.

A meeting of the temperance society in connection with St. Peter's Cathedral congregation, the League of the Cross, was held on Monday evening for the purpose of electing officers. This business was done as follows:—

PRESIDENT—J. O'Meara.
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—E. D. Gough.
2ND VICE-PRESIDENT—P. Begley.
REC.-SECRETARY—P. J. Irwin.
FIN.-SECRETARY—D. O'Brien.
TREASURER—J. D. McIlmoyle.

It was decided that the society should adopt as its pledge one demanding total abstinence, not partial abstinence, from intoxicating liquor. It was also decided to apply for affiliation with the Arch-Confraternity at Guelph. The subject of uniting with the Total Abstinence Union of the Province was laid over for discussion at the next meeting.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE VILLAGE AND TOWN TO MEET.

The Waterworks and the Town Give and Take—Industrial Interests—Woollen and Saw Works.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening.

There were present His Worship the Mayor and Councillors Kendry, Moore, Cahill, McNeil, McNaughton, Davidson and Stenson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read:—

From W. Henderson notifying the Council of the location of hydrants.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From the Canadian Exhibitor stating that he was about to go on the road with the memorial edition and asking the Council if there were any mistakes to rectify in the towns advertisement.—Received.

From Edg. Pearse stating that he had not received a reply to his last communication in reference to Scott Act fines.—Clerk to reply.

From P. Taylor offering the town a clock.—Received.

From Wm. Metcalfe, Wm. Jackson, John Hackett and seventeen others and Jas. R. Donald, asking for street improvements.—Street Inspector with power to act.

From John Callaghan asking for remission of dog tax.—Granted when the customery declaration is made.

From Wm. Lech, informing the Council of an improper grade on Rubidge street which did damage to his property.—Street Inspector with power to act.

From Wm. Breckenridge asking for a gas lamp.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Jas. Wilson asking for assistance on account of being blind.—Received.

From T. Bradburn asking for a billiard license with proportionate refund.—Granted.

From Margaret Bird asking for remission of taxes.—Granted.

From Wm. Course asking to be sent to the Toronto Hospital.—Charity Committee with power to act.

From the Secretary of the Barnardo Home asking for the usual reduction of taxes.—Granted.

From R. H. Adams applying for winter clothing for the police.—Supervision Committee with power to procure the clothing.

The accounts were all referred to the Finance Committee except those of Messrs. Stratton, Doherty, Comstock, Rogers, Adams, and the Canadian Rubber Co., and the Times Printing Co., which were ordered to be paid when found correct.

AID.

Mr. Wilson addressed the Council for aid on account of his being unable to work on account of losing his eyesight. He came from North Middlesex, he said, two months ago. He was on his way to Ottawa, but had not enough means to take him there. It would take $37.00 to take himself and family there.

The matter was referred to the Charity Committee with power to act.

FINANCE.

Councillor DAVIDSON read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Salisbury Bros. | $ 5 60 |
| J. P. Hurley | 7 90 |
| J. R. Stratton | 68 20 |
| Geo. Stethem | 17 75 |
| R. H. Green | 6 00 |
| J. Braden | 2 00 |
| The Nicholls Hospital | 336 38 |
| Gas Co., Police Court | 30 25 |
| Gas Co., Clerk's Office | 18 90 |
| Gas Co., Fire Hall | 104 80 |
| Porter Bros. | 13 91 |
| Gas Co., coal | 322 05 |

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. S. DAVIDSON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

SAW-WORKS.

A gentleman addressed the Council, enquiring what the Council could do to aid him and his partner in establishing a saw and file works here. They would employ men who would get from $2.50 to $4.00 per day, and would give work to about fifteen men to begin with. They would require a building 34x50, two storeys. They had been led to believe that the Council intended erecting buildings to let out at a nominal rent, in which case he thought he could establish his works here. The advantages of Peterborough as a distributing point was a strong inducement for them to come here. Either water or steam power would do them.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

ADVERTISING.

Councillor MOORE, Chairman of the Advertising Committee, reported as to the cost of advertising the town in the Iron Age, the Canada Lumberman and the Journal of Commerce for a specified time.

ON HIS OWN HOOK.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor STENSON,—That R. S. Davidson be allowed to construct a tile drain from his residence on Dalhousie street to the creek, cost of same to be borne by himself.—Carried.

BY LAW.

A by law to authorize the Water Company to mortgage their works was read.

Under the original by-law it was arranged that the town, among other things, should have the liberty of purchasing the property of the Water Company at the expiration of ten years from the passage of the by-law in 1882, and at the end of each subsequent ten years. The Water Company now desire to prosecute their work in such a manner as will necessitate the outlay of $50,000, and in endeavoring to float their debentures were met with the objection that as the town could exercise the right of purchase in five years from date, 1892, that it limited them to the issue of five years' debentures, which were not negotiable because of the short period. The Water Company asked, by the present by-law, that the Town permit the Company to issue debentures over a period of 20 years, at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent., and that if the town desired to acquire the works they could do so subject to these debentures, deducting the amount of the debentures and accrued interest from the purchase money which the town would have to pay. For this privilege the Water Company agreed to furnish all hydrants over sixty at $40 per annum, instead of $50, as now paid.

The by-law was read three times and passed.

INDUSTRIAL.

A by-law was introduced to give the woollen mill which Mr. Geo. Hilliard proposes establishing the same privileges as enjoyed by similar factories. The by-law bound Mr. Hilliard to employ not less than 30 persons the year round, to make the mill a one set mill in 1888, a two set mill in 1889 and a three set mill in 1890. The by-law exempted the mill from taxation for a term of ten years, with the proviso that, should Mr. Hilliard not comply with the terms set forth, his property would be liable to taxation.

The by-law was read twice and stood over for further consideration.

PETERBOROUGH'S STATUS.

The MAYOR said that this Council should take into consideration the union of Peterborough and Ashburnham. The combining of the populations would make them appear in a better light, as a large place. The union appeared to be favored by the people of Ashburnham, those who formerly opposed it now being in favour of it.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON believed that being a city would be of no advantage. He would sooner have a first class town than a poor city. Besides the change would increase their expenses

Councillor MOORE—No.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON said that the Police Magistrate would have to receive a larger salary, and they would have to keep more policemen.

Councillor MOORE—Oh, no.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON said he hoped he would never see Peterborough a city.

The MAYOR said that if there was a desire on the part of Ashburnham for union, and he understood there was, they should meet the villages.

Councillor MCNAUGHTON then brought up the inadequate market accommodation. He considered it disgraceful, as there was such a large business done at this market.

The MAYOR again reverted to the question of union. He said that making any application to the Government they would have more weight as a city, and it would give them a better standing where they were not known. People who came here knew that this was a large and prosperous town—a city, in fact—but people at a distance only knew it as a town. It was awkward at times to have to go into a long explanation about Ashburnham being close to the town and practically part of it, and so on.

Councillor CAHILL said that across the lines importance was attached to the name city. At a distance, to those who did not know the places, Midland City would seem to be a better place than Peterborough town. He was chairman of a committee appointed some time ago on this question, and he would call them together.

HYDRANT INSPECTION.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be appointed to inspect the hydrants during the year.—Carried.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor STENSON.—That the Fire, Water and Light Committee ask for tenders to supply the hook and ladder waggon and hose waggon with runners.—Carried.

SIDEWALKS.

Councillor KENERY moved, seconded by Councillor MOORE.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to repair the sidewalk on the old Midland railway bridge.—Carried.

THE UNION.

Councillor MCNEIL moved, seconded by Councillor CAHILL,—That the Committee previously appointed to consider the advisability of asking Ashburnham to unite with Peterborough so as to make it a city, take steps at once with a view to arrange for a meeting with representatives of Ashburnham.—Carried.

The Council adjourned to the call of the Mayor.

POLICE COURT.

D & D.

TUESDAY, Nov. 1.—Jas. Farley, who was arrested by P. C. McGinty and placed in the cells, was before the Magistrate this morning on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

He was fined $5 or one month in gaol and, on not paying the fine, was committed.

Canoeing Notes.

Given a well equipped canoe, a fair wind, a bright, cheery day and open water, canoeing is a recreation and sport that satisfies. So think the members of the Northern Division of the A. C. A., and they are already at work making arrangements for the meet of 1888. Couchiching Lake, near Orillia, has been selected as a convenient locality for the meet, and on Wednesday of this week Messrs. H. C. Rogers, J. Z. Rogers, H. A. Morrow, G. W. Hatton, of the Regatta and Camp Committee, of Peterborough, Mr. A. D. Macgachen, Captain, and Mr. S. Britton, Purser of the N. D., of Lindsay, go up to Orillia to look the situation over, and if they decide in a general way that the proposed camp site is suitable, to block out the courses with a view of having them laid off on the ice during the coming winter. Although not appearing on the first draft of the Regatta Committee sent out, Mr. Hatton's name has been added, and he will prove a valuable assistant in arranging matters of detail.

HALLOWE'EN.

A Successful Concert in Bradburn's Opera House.

The concert under the auspices of Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, and patronage of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society, held in the Opera House on Monday evening, was largely attended. The concert opened with an excellent overture on the piano by Prof. Doucet, who also opened the second part with a piano solo.

Mr. Findlay McGregor made his first appearance in "Here Stands a Post," a song introducing the flags of England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, the United States and Canada. The songs were well received, the "Maple Leaf" being warmly applauded. Mr. McGregor was the life of the entertainment. He is a good singer, with a clear, strong voice, which is aided by his ability as an actor. His vocal imitations were good, especially the imitation of the harp. When he sang "Hame Cam' Oor Guidman at E'en," his good singing, capital acting and amusing facial expression captivated the audience, who compelled him to return. His make up as an Italian organ grinder was good, and when he manipulated the hand organ in such a way that the familiar strains of the bagpipes were heard the applause was long and loud. "My Johnny was a Piper," a song, was received with marked favor.

Mr. D. D. Galletly sang that beautiful song "Afton Water." He was warmly received, and his well known ability as a singer was, as is always the case, appreciated. In response to an encore he sang "The Laird o' Cockpen." In the second part his solo was again loudly applauded.

Mrs. Bowman, a vocalist well known to Peterborough audiences, took the place of Miss Lillie Nolan, who was prevented by illness from being present. She sang in a creditable manner two very nice songs.

Mrs. Christie sung "Colleen Avarra," "Six feet of Earth" and other songs in a rich contralto voice that made a very favorable impression.

The domestic vocal sketch, in which solos and duets by Mr. McGregor and Mrs. Bowman were introduced, was a pleasing feature, the duet "The Crooked Bawbee" being especially well received, and the response to an encore, "Johnnie and Jennie," being warmly applauded. A duet by Mr Galletly and Mrs. Bowman was a marked success, Mr. Galletly being in fine voice, and Mrs. Bowman singing sweetly and well.

Mr. McGregor then sang three Jacobite songs in character, "Callum O'Glen," "Draw the Sword, Scotland," a martial piece that was given with spirit, and "Allister, McAllister." He was giving an imitation of the bagpipes in "Allister McAllister" when Mr. Donald McDonald appeared on the platform with pipes and was received with cheers. Mr. McGregor danced the Highland fling to Mr McDonald's music, and retired amid a storm of applause.

The concert, which was very successful in every way, closed with "Auld Lang Syne."

ROPE AND REVOLVER.

GEORGE MILLS DOSES HIMSELF WITH POISON.

Fires Two Revolver Shots into His Body and Finishes the Dire Work With a Rope.

Geo. Mills, a man of about sixty years of age, who lived on Brown street, Ashburnham, put an end to his life this morning.

On Tuesday evening, and for some time before it, he was under the influence of liquor. He went home and a domestic broil took place. Mrs. Mills laid an information against him and a warrant was issued for his arrest. At about eight o'clock Constable Craig went to the house to execute the warrant, but on his being about to force an entrance was cautioned by a neighbor to be careful, as Mills had a revolver and had been heard saying that Craig would never arrest him. On consultation with Mrs. Mills the constable concluded that it was best to wait till morning. During the early part of the night Mills vomited a great deal, the cause of which was found out—he had taken two doses of rat poison.

Constable Craig went to the house this morning at about seven o'clock to arrest his man. When looking around the house a boy told him he thought Mr. Mills was in the stable. A noise had been heard in there. The constable went to the stable, opened the door, and there beheld a ghastly sight. Mills was suspended, with a rope around his neck, from a plank which stretched across the upper part of the stable. The height of the plank was insufficient to allow him to hang at full length, and he had bent his knees to allow the rope to do its deadly work. The man was determined to end his life, as at any time before he was strangled he might have risen to his feet and saved his life.

Constable Craig loosened the nooze and conveyed the body into the house. Dr. Brennan was called on to make the examination, which exposed in a still more emphatic degree, the man's full intention to commit suicide. A small blue spot over the heart marked the place where a bullet had entered, and another behind the right ear was also found. In the vest pocket a 22 calibre "Sterling" revolver was found three of the chambers of which were emptied.

Geo. Mills has a history. Twenty years ago, to terrify his wife, he came home with his throat painted red and threw himself on the floor, pretending that his throat had been cut. Twelve years ago he made an attempt to destroy himself by bleeding himself to death. He was detected in the act and sent to jail. His first wife left him and is now living in Rochester. Some years ago he married his second wife who now lives in Ashburnham. A large family of children are living with her.

When sober the man was quiet and decent, though somewhat impulsive. Formerly he owned a carriage factory; but of late years he has been working at blacksmithing. Seventy-five dollars was found in his pocket by Constable Craig and handed over to Mrs. Mills. He willed $500 away on Tuesday afternoon, and was then, apparently, sober.

A STORY OF THE PAST.

A Time When Silver Was Carried Away in Bags.

The Campbellford Herald says:—"A visitor who was here a week ago, informed us he was told by a man who lived in Seymour about forty years ago, that silver was found somewhere near the river, in this vicinity, at that time. An old Indian who took up his abode in the woods, was the discoverer; and it was said that he used to carry off small quantities in a bag. He never revealed the spot to any white man." This sounds very much like a story of Belmont. Instead of near the river in the vicinity of Campbellford, locate the silver mine in the vicinity of lot one in the first concession of Belmont, and instead of an Indian read a white man, and you have the Belmont version.

The facts in regard to the Belmont "silver cave" are substantially as follows:—A man who lived at the head of the Bay of Quinte paid periodical visits to the place mentioned. It was at a time when very few settlers had penetrated into the western part of Marmora or eastern Belmont. He lodged at the farm house of the late Alex. Boyd, who lived immediately across the boundary in Marmora, where his son still resides. The discoverer of the mine, when he stopped over night at Mr. Boyd's, would sleep on the floor in front of the fire place, declining a bed, and would use a bundle he carried for a pillow. He usually went into the woods about dusk. Mr. Boyd attempted to follow him, but without success, as he always eluded his pursuer among the trees. In the forest it was supposed a cave existed, and the visitor brought back with him a bag with heavy material in it, which was believed to be silver, although he jealously guarded the contents of the linen. When he sought repose on his return from the woods he would again choose the floor for a bed and the bag for a pillow. He died without telling anyone the location of the mysterious cave.

The legend of the cave with silver has attracted adventurous seekers after riches, who, with visions of pure chunks of the precious metal in their minds, have searched the ground in the vicinity, in Belmont and across the boundary in Seymour, for the entrance to the mine of wealth, but none has ever found it since. One of the last attempts was made with the aid of a "diamond reader," who, it was reported at the time, could see the cave, but when he approached the entrance his vision failed and he was unsuccessful. If anyone feels like again trying to discover "Bleecker's cave," it is not probable that anyone in that part of the country will object, so long as the crops are not interfered with.

The Stoves to Go.

A Montreal correspondent says that the Grand Trunk Railway Company has decided to test the new system of heating the cars direct from the locomotive, abolishing the stoves which have been so disastrous to wrecked trains. The "Martin" system will be shortly tried on the Cornwall branch and the "Sewall" system on the Ottawa section. The apparatus has been severely tested on the Maine Central Railway, and the results are stated to have been most satisfactory. Steam is taken from the locomotive and transmitted through pipes the whole length of the train. The arrangements are very simple and effectual. The coupling of the pipes is perfect, and the system has proved its adaptability at all degrees of temperature. The cars are thoroughly independent of one another. A single valve in the centre of each car regulates the degree of heat. The pipes are also arranged for the drainage of condensed steam to prevent freizing. It is the intention to ultimately adopt the system on all trains if the present experiment proves successful.

Found Dead.

This forenoon the people at the Little Windsor Hotel were shocked to find Miss Ellen Powers lying dead in her room. Not having come down to her breakfast one of the girls went to her room and there made the shocking discovery. Dr. Kincaid was sent for. The door was burst open and Miss Powers was found with her head hanging over the edge of her trunk. The body was quite cold and stiff, life having been extinct for several hours. It would appear that, having prepared for going to bed, Miss Powers had gone to her trunk for something, and while bending over had fallen in a fainting fit, her throat coming in contact with the edge of the trunk and before recovering had been strangled. The deceased was a sister-in-law of Mrs. M. Giroux.

Saved Army.

A banquet under the auspices of the Saved Army was held in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served in the hall adjoining the Opera House, and at eight o'clock an adjournment was made. Ex-Gen. Lindsay occupied the chair. A musical and literary entertainment was given in which Mr. Stevens, Miss Owens, Miss Leach, Miss McKay, Mrs. McFadden, Miss Pry, Mrs. Grum, Miss McGerggor, Miss. Belleghem, the Misses Courtney and Master Willie Stubbs took part. During the evening prizes were presented to the children. The tableaux were particularly fine. A handsome sum was realized.

LORD HARTINGTON AT TRURO.

The Unionists Engaged in an Uphill Fight, but Still Possessing Great Influence.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Lord Hartington, speaking at Truro yesterday, admitted that the Unionists were engaged in an uphill fight, but, he said, "the present meeting does not look like political extinction, and the Gladstonians will know that the Unionists still hold great influence." He questioned Sir William Vernon Harcourt's wisdom in comparing Mr. Gladstone to Prince Bismarck and Count Cavour, whose title to admiration and veneration was that they consolidated peoples of the same blood and language into great states, while Mr. Gladstone was trying to do exactly the opposite. It was impossible, in his opinion, to deal with the question of local government until the idea of a distinct Irish nationality has been completely removed.

ONE SOLITARY SURVIVOR.

Rescue of One of the Ill-fated Vernon's Crew.

STURGEON BAY, Wis., Nov. 1.—Up to the arrival of the schooner Pomeroy from Chicago, which passed through the bay to-day, it was supposed that not a single survivor was left of the forty or fifty people on board the propeller Vernon, which went down off Sheboygan early last Saturday morning. It is now known, however, that at least one man lives to tell the tale of that terrible night on Lake Michigan. The Pomeroy has on board the only survivor of that awful disaster. The name of the man who has been rescued from death after he had given up all hope of ever again getting his foot on dry land is Alfred Stone, of Chicago, one of the Vernon's crew. He had been in the water sixty hours, exposed to a bitter, piercing wind and without a bite to eat when the Pomeroy discovered him on a raft last night, about eight miles from Sheboygan. He was so cold as to be almost helpless, and so week from hunger that he could scarcely move.

THE CASE OF MR. O'BRIEN.

To Spend His Term in Cork Gaol, But Not to Perform Hard Labor.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The foregone conclusion of Mr. O'Brien's failure to sustain his appeal from the sentence of the Mitchellstown court having arrived, he will be imprisoned in the Cork gaol during the term of his sentence, but will not be compelled to perform hard labor. The scene in the court room after the announcement of the decision rejecting the appeal was most unfortunate, but the police were in a measure excusable for their action, in spite of the fact that the formality of signing the warrant for the re-arrest of Mr. O'Brien had not yet been observed. The confirmation of criminal sentence, however, justified the police in restraining him, and it was undoubtedly fortunate that they prevented him from reaching the street. The indignation of the crowd was wrought up to a point verging upon fury, and had the convicted editor succeeded in obtaining his liberty long enough to have placed himself in their midst, the resistance of the mob to his arrest would have precipitated a riot that no force the Government had within call could have quelled. The absolute certainty that this would have occurred is recognized by everybody, and many are inclined to praise the police for their summary action.

DEADLY GASOLINE.

An Explosion that Results in the Death of Eight Persons.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 1.—A terrific gasoline explosion occurred about half-past two o'clock this morning in the grocery store of Michael Newman, of South 14th street. The grocery and two adjoining two-story brick buildings were almost demolished, and twelve persons, including Newman's wife and five children and two families living in an adjoining house, were buried in the ruins. Only one person rescued from the debris will live. The Newman family are all dead. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The corrected list of the dead and wounded by the explosion is eight dead and three wounded seriously. Six others who lived in the building reported missing, have been found either uninjured or slightly bruised. The general belief is that escaping gas filled the cellar and that Mr. Newman kept a quantity of kerosene oil and gasoline near where the explosion took place. The tremendous force of the explosion is the cause of the greatest doubt regarding this explanation.

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANKS.

One of the principles of the Knights of Labor is that, in connection with the post office, the government shall organize safe deposits and facilities for deposits of the savings of the people. This has a place in their platform, which was constructed specially with a view to the laws of the United States. In Canada such savings banks have been established, but the system is frequently attacked. The Globe attacks the Dominion Government for providing additional facilities for deposits in these banks, and fears that the Government "will scarcely refrain" from continuing to receive deposits. The amounts that can be placed in these banks are limited, and thus they do not become a place for investment for capitalists, and are restricted to the object for which they were intended, a convenient bank in which working-people can place their savings with confidence. If the Knights of Labor, and those who think with them, wish to retain one of the few things which they contend for and have, they will need to take care that it is not taken away. These savings banks have been found convenient—have been helpful in aiding habits of industry and economy—and it would be unwise from a national point of view to abolish them; and while it is wise to maintain them, the facilities for making deposits should be at least so arranged that the people will not be prevented from making use of them.

THE PEACE OF NATIONS.

A memorial was presented to President Cleveland on Monday asking his co-operation in securing a treaty between Great Britain and the United States by which all disputes between the two nations shall be settled by arbitration. A large number of names were signed to the memorial in England, many of them being names of eminent men. There is no doubt that the idea of the memorial is a correct one. It is, to say the least, very desirable that war should cease, and if a treaty, such as that proposed, should be entered into by Great Britain and the United States it might be the beginning of a system of international arbitration, or of international courts, by which the fear of war would be greatly lessened, if not entirely removed.

The reply of the President to the deputation was too diplomatic to be very encouraging. He stated, however, that he, and he believed the people of the United States, would gladly hail the advent of peaceful methods in the settlement of national disputes, "so far," he continued, "as this is consistent with the defence and protection of our country's territory and the maintenance of our national honor." If the presentation of the memorial has no immediate practical effect, it at least will call renewed attention to the desirability of devising peaceful methods of settling disputes between nations, and the result of the Fisheries Commissioners will show how much in earnest the people of that country are in their desire to amicably settle international questions.

Mr. Mercier is congratulated by a friendly paper on the "great success which has attended the Conference of Provincial Ministers." And yet the Provincial subsidies remain the same, the Red River Valley railway is not built, Nova Scotia is still a part of the Dominion, Confederation remains intact, the veto power still remains with the Dominion Government, and Sir John Macdonald has not resigned the Premiership. The great success has not made any startling changes.

PORT HOPE.

Five Horses Killed.—On Saturday night about seven o'clock the Rev. Alex. McNaughton, living just east of Port Hope, went to his pasture field, lying alongside the Grand Trunk Railway track, to drive five horses to the stable, to get to which the track had to be crossed. He opened the gates and drove the animals out through one, expecting them to cross over and enter the other. This they did not do, but turned and ran along the rails. Just then the express going west rolled in sight, running at a high rate of speed. The engine tossed the horses clear off the track and left their torn carcasses on either side of the track. One of them was in foal, and all were valuable animals. Three of them belonged to the Rev. Alexander McNaughton, one to Mr. James McNaughton, and one to Mr. R. Clemence.—Times.

Does Turnbull sell the Best and Cheapest Boy's and Youth's Suits and Overcoats? Yes Yes!! Yes!!! from a chorus of voices.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LECTURE.—On Thursday evening, the 27th of Oct., the Rev. Dr. McTavish, of Lindsay, delivered a sound, practical, and most interesting lecture, on Sabbath School Work, in the Presbyterian Church here. A collection in aid of the Mount Pleasant Sabbath School, which amounted to $10.25, was taken up at the close of the lecture.

WELLS DRY.—Owing to the long continued drought, a number of the wells in this locality are dry.

RESIGNED.—Mr. W. Hickson, who has taught our school successfully for nearly eight years, having been engaged in Bobcaygeon, as Head Master there, has resigned his position here.

PARTRIDGE HUNTING.—Our local sports may be seen wending their way home in the evenings looking pretty tired, but generally they have well filled bags.

FALL PLOUGHING.—The amount of fall ploughing done in this vicinity is small, compared with other falls, which is owing to the dry season.

HAVELOCK.

GOOD TEMPLARS.—A lodge of I.O.G.T. was organized by Mr. Ed. Starr, Ottawa, G.C.T., on Saturday, Oct. 29th, at Havelock. There were 25 present who assumed the obligation of the order. The following is the list of officers:—

| Miss Esther Young | F Sec |
| Miss Addie Allen | Treas |
| Miss Welthy Johnson | I G |
| Miss Ida Hast | D M |
| Miss Ida Wild | Ass Sec |
| Miss N Primrose | R C |
| Miss Effie Turner | L S |

Friday night was chosen as the time of meeting at 7 o'clock each night. Mr. Bonnett, of Peterborough, aided the meeting with a selection of vocal and instrumental music. A vote of thanks was given him at the close.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

The following is the cure for chilblains published by order of the Wirtemburg Government:—Mutton tallow and lard, of each ½ lb.; melt in an iron vessel, and add hydrated oxide of iron, 2 oz., stirring continually with an iron spoon until the mass is of a uniform black colour; then let it cool, and add Venice turpentine, 2 oz., and Armenian bole, 1 oz.; oil of bergamot, 1 dr.

Apple preserve is made thus:—Peel and core two dozen apples, and place them in a jar with three pounds of powdered loaf sugar and a quarter of a pound of ground ginger distributed in layers. Let them remain two whole days, and during half that time let a quarter of a pound of bruised ginger infuse in a pint of boiling water; strain and boil the liquor with the apples for about an hour; skim and take off the fire when quite clear.

To make an apple hedgehog pare and core about thirty large apples, boil them to a smooth jam, sweetened to taste, and flavored with essence of almonds. Now pare and core about twenty more, and stew them whole until tender. Lift them carefully from the stewpan and fill the hollow of the centre of each with raspberry or strawberry jam, and arrange them on a dish in the form of a hedgehog. Cover with the apple jam, and smooth it over. Spread sugar icing, and stick blanched and split almonds all over it. Place the dish in a good oven to brown the almonds.

The following is a good recipe for herb beer:—For six dozen bottles boil two and a half ounces ginger, hop bean, and 25 cayenne pods in sufficient water for two hours. Take out the ginger, cut it up very fine, and put it back again. Take the liquor off the fire, and add two and a half ounces tartaric acid, three cups of barm, three pounds of sugar, and three pounds of treacle, stirring well till everything is thoroughly mixed. When it has become nearly cold add the whites of three eggs well whisked, and let the whole stand for 24 hours. Then add a pennyworth of essence of cinnamon, and bottle off.

A capital way to cure hams is to sprinkle one of about 16 or 18 pounds for one day with common salt, the following day rub half a pound of common salt, two ounces of saltpetre, 1 ounce of black pepper pounded, half a pound of bay salt. Mix all these ingredients well together. At the end of four days add one pound of coarse sugar, one ounce of juniper berries one pint of stale strong beer. The juniper berries are to be pounded and boiled in the beer and sugar, and not put over the ham till the beer is cold. The ham should be turned and rubbed every day for a month, then put into cold water for 24 hours before sending it up the chimney to be dried.

FARM AND GARDEN.

It is estimated that the corn crop of the South this year will exceed that of last year by 50,000,000 bushels.

The cultivation of bamboo for fencing material has been begun in California. It is said that an acre will produce pickets enough each year to make six miles of fence.

The American Cultivator predicts that the time is not far off when many disappointed farmers in the West will turn to New England and take up farms, where the land can be worked to a certain profit by resolute and enterprising men.

The average shrinkage of steer going from Texas to Chicago is 100 pounds. This State furnishes on average 40,000,000 pounds, or, putting the average weight of a steer at 850 pounds, 47,058 head.

For keeping small quantities of seeds, paper bags are preferable to all others as they are better protection against moisture and insects. Always mark each package with the name of the seed contained in it, and the year in which it grew. Cold does not injure the vitality of seeds, but moisture is detrimental to all kinds.

For a horse that is weak in the knees, rub the limbs briskly with a woollen cloth, then bathe with salt and water, wipe dry, and apply a mixture of one pint of alcohol and one drachm of tincture of Spanish fly, rubbing in a tablespoonful twice a day with the hand. Let the horse run in a loose stall deeply littered with sawdust or on an earth floor.

Inventor Edison's Method of Fun.

A reporter casually met Mr. Edison this week, and he happened to be in more than his usually jolly mood—and by the way he is apparently in the ruddiest health and best of spirits. To the inquiry if he had anything new Mr. Edison replied:

"Yes, I have made a fresh discovery of no little importance—a great advance in electric art—tested its practicability and realized success; but I will not name it now. Heretofore when I have invented or discovered something and published its details the scientific papers have soon after teemed with announcements of anticipations, prior experiments, hints about piracy and stolen thunder, etc. According to these I have never produced a prototype, nothing but poor, miserable little antitypes. Now, this time I'm going to have some fun with the boys. My new discovery is fully recorded, but I will not publish it for six months! You may give this formal notice, so that the bibliophiles and prior inventors may have the first chance, with lots of time to get the laugh on me. As the oil men say, I'm down to the 'oil sand,' but propose to plug the well and hold it as a 'mystery' for six months. If, meantime, no claimant appears with a full description of the 'mystery' I'll draw the plug, and I think I'll be entitled to nail my sign on that property."—Electrical Review.

Building Sites and Choosing Houses.

In selecting a house, or a site for a new one, remember that where the sun will shine on the house for some hours a day, one element of good is secured, especially if the sunshine enters at the windows of the living rooms or rooms most used during the daytime. After this aspect has been found to be suitable, and that a plentiful supply of sun and air is insured, attention should be given to the general position and construction of the house.

If the ground is at all porous, a layer of concrete not less than six inches thick, and composed of cement or lime and broken bricks or gravel, should be spread over the whole of the ground covered by the building. This will prevent the passage of ground air up through the floors. Air will travel through the ground for some distance, and, as it invariably becomes contaminated by taking up carbonic acid gas in its passage, is not suitable for inhaling. The house acts as a sucker on the ground; and if, unfortunately, the site is one on "made" ground,—that is, composed of all the refuse of a town—the ground air becomes the medium of disease. No houses should be built without a well ventilated air space between the earth and the ground floor, especially if the layer of concrete on the surface be omitted.—Chambers' Journal.

Printing Silver Certificates.

There is said to be a good deal of criticism among the bankers of Washington of the method now in vogue in the bureau of engraving and printing for printing the reverse side of the silver certificates. When Mr. Graves was installed in office as chief of the bureau there were seven machines for printing from plates in operation. Now there are eighteen, and three more are soon to be added. It is asserted that no machine has yet been invented which will take the place of the human hand in distributing the ink over an engraved plate, and that with the present machines it is impossible to get good results with any other color than green. For this reason only the green side of the silver certificates is printed with the machines. The ink, too, is said to be inferior to that which is used when hand printing is done. The silver certificates printed on the machine are much less durable than those printed by hand, and the ink will easily rub off when the bills are in the least moist. Mr. Brooks, chief of the secret service division of the treasury, said recently that the United States is falling to a rear place in the quality of the notes which it issues. He is opposed to the printing machines as a substitute for hand labor, and says that counterfeiting will increase in this country in direct proportion with the increase in the use of these machines.—New York Sun.

One rascal talkin' 'bout 'nuther one is like a deef man thumpin' a watermilion.—J. A. Macon.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver a misery. Indigestion a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

A fatal wound.

Kingston, Nov. 1. The remains of the late James Nirkle arrived to-day from New York. On Friday he and two companions were shooting and in getting out of a boat a gun was accidentally discharged, wounding Nickle in the leg. He refused to have it amputated and died from loss of blood next day.

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea, in one remedy, for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature of many curatives being such that the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient—what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtainable in a sound unadulterated state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use, the frailest systems are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own restoratives. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquillizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep—imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses throughout the veins, strengthing the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demand increased substance—result, improved appetite Northrop & Lyman of Toronto, have given to the public their superior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and gaged by the opinions of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market. All druggists sell it.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Dumble read the following report:—

The Committee on Appointments beg to report that since the last regular meeting of this Board, Mr. Rowan, master in modern languages, became ill and was taken to the hospital at Toronto, where he now is. There being little hope of Mr. Rowan being able to resume his duties, this committee was convened, and by its directions advertisements were inserted in the Mail and Globe for a classical master, the inspectors having recommended that a classical specialist should be employed. To the advertisement a large number of applicants responded, many of them apparently well qualified. From among them, after careful investigation, your committee selected, and now recommend for your acceptance, Mr. F. C. Colbeck, B. A., a gentleman who appears to have every required qualification for the position. Mr. Colbeck is a graduate of Victoria College. He held first place in classics in every year of his course and secured the silver medal, only missing the gold medal by means of his absence before his examination through sickness.

He is recommended by Principal Mills, of the Agricultural College, whose pupil he was at Brantford; by the late Dr. Nelles, Prof. Wilson, Prof. Bell, by Mr. Wetherel, Principal of the Training Institute, Strathroy, and by the Principal of the High School, Bridgetown, where he is now teaching. He is certified to as being accurate in scholarship, as having all the requisite qualities of a successful teacher, as having good address, refined manners and grand common sense, and as a good disciplinarian.

Mr. Colbeck asks $850 a year, with an increase to $900 at midsummer if he be required.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

SUPERVISION COMMITTEE.

Mr. STRATTON reported verbally, stating that further additions had been made to the library.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The Public School Inspector's report was read. He recommended the discontinuance of the "J" pen in some of the rooms. He also complained of boys disturbing the West Ward School by congregating about the school house and shouting.

SCRIPTURE READINGS.

A deputation from the Ministerial Association, composed of the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, the Rev. F. H. Wallace, and the Rev. Alex. Bell, waited on the Board.

The Rev. Mr. Beck, on motion, addressed the Board. He wished, he said, to present to the Board a memorial which had been determined upon by the Ministerial Association on September 30th. If the Board would permit him he would read the memorial.

MEMORIAL.

At a meeting of the clergymen of the town, convened for the purpose of considering the subject of the following resolution, after due deliberation it was unanimously resolved that,—Believing it to be of the utmost importance to keep the children during their years of education as much as possible under religious influence, and understanding that the Department in Toronto has left it with the Board to put the Bible into the hands of the children,—We respectfully ask the Board to so order:

1. That in addition to present arrangements as regards the evening, the schools shall be opened in the morning by reading the Bible and prayer.

2. That the Bible be put into the hands of the children, so that teachers and children may read it together.

And we recommend that the selections for the morning reading shall be taken from a list of the "Daily Home Readings of the International Sabbath School Series," and that the regulations of the Department in regard to the memorizing of the Ten Commandments and other portions of Scripture be strictly carried out.

Signed,
J. W. R. BECK,
Chairman.
F. H. WALLACE,
Secretary.

Peterborough, 30th Sept., 1887.

The Rev. Mr. BECK said he had one or two remarks to make on presenting this memorial. He thought they would agree with him that there was a strong feeling growing up amongst all religious bodies that there should be some religious education provided for the children in the schools. Some people thought that they were really debarred from that great privilege which another portion of the community enjoys—that was the Romanists. It seemed to him that the Protestant community is denied that privilege, and, therefore, some of them felt, and he did himself, and had long felt, that they had a strong grievance. His hearers would feel the force of this, that it was a general feeling pervading all religious bodies without exception. A movement had been started two or three years ago, he thought, in the Synod, and he was the seconder of the resolution which brought the committee to consider it into being. This committee was composed of members of different religious Protestant bodies, who strongly felt that an injustice was being done to the children in the school by giving them all kinds of instruction to the neglect of religious training. This feeling was manifested by all the representatives, and the committee were unanimous in bringing this matter before the Ontario Government. So far as he understood the changes made delegated the power, in a large measure, to trustees of schools, to arrange for the religious instruction of the children. Therefore they came this evening to ask the Board to do all in their power to carry out the law. They did not think that the law was carried out to its fullest legitimate meaning—as far as it might be carried out. They came to ask the Board to see that the children are provided with as much religious teaching as the law would at present allow. He then recommended the adoption of the memorial. Though the International series were not used in the Church of England Sunday School, yet he readily yeilded to the adoption of these so as to come with that either member of the committee, to a common standing ground.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace did not feel that it was necessary to say much in addition to what the Rev. Mr. Beck had already said. He would simply say that, on the committe as well as on this Board, there was difference of opinion. But as far as the memorial went the association were absolutely one. They did not desire to interfere with any existing arrangement or to reflect upon the scripture selections, nor did they come to try to interfere with the regulations made by the Ontario Government. All they asked was, that in addition to the present religious instructions, they would have the schools opened in the morning with prayer and scripture reading from the Bible, and also that the International series of Bible selections be adopted. They contended that the Bible should be in the hands of the scholars so as to familiarize them with that one book, the Bible, which they all revered. They did not wish at all to reflect on the usefulness of the present excellent scripture selections. He for one, liked the book.

Mr. RUTHERFORD.—Which Bible do you want in the schools, Mr. Wallace, the old version or the new?

Mr. DUMBLE.—The Douay Bible or the other?

Mr. STEVENSON you had better let that pass now.

The Rev. Mr. WALLACE.—The authorized version.

The Rev. Mr. BELL spoke briefly. He spoke of the importance of giving the children moral and religious education. These International lessons had been adopted as what the Associated concluded was the best thing they could all recommend. It would be much better and accomplish more than reading the scriptures at random.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Mr. RUTHERFORD.—That whereas this Board has heard the representatives of the delegates from the Ministerial Association of Peterborough in reference to the religious instruction of the pupils in the High and Public Schools, and, whereas, Scripture readings have been prepared at the suggestion of the representatives of the different religious denominations empowered to deal with the subject which selections have been approved of by such representatives and adopted by the Department of Education and unanimously approved of by the Ontario Legislature, subject to department regulations making optional the use of the readings or of the Bible and, whereas, the departmental regulations leave it optional to use either the Scripture readings or the Bible, be it therefore resolved that this Board accede to the request of the Ministerial Association as far as regards the introduction of the Bible into the schools, leaving it optional, however, for the teacher to make his own selection from the Bible, or to use the authorized Scripture readings, as he or she deems best. But inasmuch as the International Sabbath School lessons, from which it is requested that the daily lessons be selected, are prepared under denominational auspices, chiefly by American ministers, and presumably by one man, and approved of afterwards, and would therefore be open to objections similar to those urged against the Scripture readings, and, inasmuch as the international series is not approved of by the authorities of the Church of England who use a series of Sunday School lessons prepared under their own directions, the adoption by this Board of the international series of selections, would not meet with the approval of a large body of Protestant supporters of the High and Public Schools. Therefore be it resolved that this Board does not deem it wise or expedient to direct the use of any selections from the Bible, other than those the teacher's judgment may suggest or those found in the Scripture readings. Be it also resolved that the teacher be instructed to carry out the regulations of the Department in regard to memorizing the Ten Commandments.

Mr. STRATTON said that he had no objection whatever to the Bible being placed in the schools. He objected to the lessons, however. He presumed Mr. Beck was here as Mr. J. W. R. Beck, not the Rev. J. W. R. Beck. He had been speaking with a number of the congregation of St. John's Church, and they were opposed to the introduction of these lessons, as they were not willing to have their children taught from them.

Mr. DUMBLE objected to the introduction of the new series as necessitating two series instead of one. He eulogised the Scripture selections (Ross Bible) as being better for the purpose than the Bible, as the teacher was always sure of not running into an unsuitable passage. And besides their Roman Catholic friends might object to the Bible while they could not object to the selections, as the Roman Catholic authorities had approved of them.

They obviated the unpleasantness often occurring in random reading of the Scriptures. He would move in amendment that the matter be referred to the Committee on Supervision.

Dr. BURNHAM moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. WRIGHTON—That the memorial be granted.

The Rev. Mr. BECK in explanation of what had been said in reference to objection to the selections by the Church of England, stated that they would be glad to have the Church series in, but, on account of no agreement being probable on this point the international series had been taken They were very thankful to get these series used in the schools.

The amendment moved by Dr. Burnham, granting the respect of the delegation, was carried.

An argument ensued between Messrs. Wrighton and Dumble as to whether the public schools were sectarian.

MR. RUTHERFORD thought it would be unwise to adopt the memorial. It would be folly to go contrary to the Ontario Government. It would be like getting out of the frying pan into the fire, as these new Scriptures were objected to by still another part of the country.

MR. DENNE stated that a Bible was wanted in the schools for reference a few days ago and that on hunting over the building not one could be found, He wanted to see the Bible in the schools.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Mr. MCWILLIAMS.—That, inasmuch as a regulation of the Department has been in force for several years permitting weekly instruction by the clergy of each religious persuasion to the children of their flocks, therefore this Board, in deference to such regulation and in deference to the desire of the ministers of the town to promote the spiritual welfare of pupils of the High and Public Schools, this Board resolves that the school buildings shall, after school hours in the evenings, be placed at the disposal of the ministers of the different denominations for the purpose of giving religious instruction to the pupils of their denominations in the following manner or in such other manner as may be agreed upon between its several ministers, that is to say:—Monday evenings, the Presbyterian ministers: Tuesday evenings, the Roman Catholic Clergy; Wednesday evenings, the Baptist ministers; Thursday evenings, the Methodist ministers; Friday evenings, the Anglican Clergy.

Mr. C. DUMBLE favored to this as otherwise the clerical gentlemen might clash. The gentleman from that hill might meet with the gentlemen from this hill, and perhaps there might be unpleasantness.

Dr. BURNHAM.—What about the valley? The motion was lost.

ALCOHOL.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Dr. BURNHAM.—That the teachers in the schools from the second book up, under the jurisdiction of this Board be instructed to arrange to their scheme of classes for the teaching of the principles of the book authorized by the Department of Education for use in the schools entitled "Lessons on alcohol and its action on the body."—

TRUSTEES.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Mr. MCWILLIAMS—That Messrs. Errett, Dumble, Rutherford, and Dr. Burnham, represent this Board at the Provincial Convention of Trustees to be held in Toronto.—Carried.

BIBLE.

Mr. STRATTON moved, seconded by Mr. WRIGHTON—That a Bible be purchased for the school library, cost not to exceed $3.—Carried.

REWARD.

A reward of $10 was offered for the detection of the person or persons who broke glass in the South Ward School a short time ago.

MILITARY.

The question of training the boys in military movements was referred to the Property Committee.

THE MEDAL.

In reference to Mr. Haultain's communication, it was decided that, as the bestowal of the medal was left in Dr. Tassie's hands, the Board had no power to interfere.

The Board then adjourned.

THE PEACE MEMORIAL.

The London Press on President Cleveland's Reply to the Deputation.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Daily News, commenting on the arbitration memorial, says President Cleveland's reply to the British delegation, without absolutely committing his Government to the establishment of a permanent tribunal, shows every disposition to entertain the scheme.

The Telegraph says: "President Cleveland's reply to the delegation was thoroughly sympathic. Though his speech was guarded, his words imply more than if they were used, as they might be, by the most aggressive of princes or statesmen."

The Chronicle says: "President Cleveland's reply justifies the belief that the American people reciprocate the friendly sentiments of the British nation, expressed by Sir Lyon Playfair. When a large section of the British Parliament, acting in conjunction with the Trades Union Congress, are found in perfect accord with the President of the United States on this question, it must be admitted that the cause they uphold is in a fair way of advancement."

The Standard says: "The reply of President Cleveland is laconic, and perhaps a trifle oracular, but we gather from the caution exhibited that he does not see his way to the immediate maturing of such a treaty. The deputation itself can scarcely have failed to discern that the President's language contained a covert rebuke to their too sanguine hopes."

LORD HARTINGTON

Sees No Reason Why Parliament Should be Short-Lived.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Lord Hartington, speaking at Plymouth yesterday, said the present game of the Opposition was to bring about a dissolution of Parliament; and part of their policy was to create the impression that a general election would soon take place, and would result in the defeat of the Unionists. He did not see any reason why Parliament should be short-lived. On the contrary, it was so constituted that it ought to live its full term. It contained no elements which threatened a speedy dissolution. Any difficulties which had hitherto been in the way of a cordial co-operation between the Liberal Unionists and the Conservatives were disappearing. Such difficulties would be less during the coming session than they had been during the previous one. The alliance had been cemented by the conduct of the Opposition in and out of Parliament. There was now no reason why common action against the common foe of the Unionists and the country should not continue with beneficial results during the life time of Parliament (Cheers.)

ARRIVAL OF THE PARTHIA.

The Canadian Pacific Steamship Company's Vessel Arrived at Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 2.—The steamship Parthia, Capt. Arnold, arrived last night, fourteen days from Yokohama. She encountered a hurricane on the 27th, and fog after. She brings 66 passengers, including W. E. Goschen, brother of the Chancellor of the Exchequer; T. Llot, of the Chinese Customs, and Rev. Dr. Holland, Naturalist, of the U. S. Eclipse Excedition, Japan; four passengers for New York, and for San Francisco, six for Cincinnati, two for Toledo Ohio, one for Montreal, one for Victoria six for Vancouver, eleven for England, one for Paris, France. Her cargo includes 43,969 pkgs tea and merchandise, of which 1,934 is for San Francisco, 2428 for Portland, Oregon, 1347 for Seattle, 278 for Port Townsend and the balance for Canadian and Eastland points, including 19,262 for New York.

LANDLORDISM DENOUNCED.

Mr. Blake, the ex-Leader of the Reform Party, Speaks in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Nov. 2.—Mr. Blake, an ex-Minister of the Canadian Cabinet, in a speech at Glen Sharrold, the scene of the evictions from the estate of the Rev. John Delmege, a rich landlord of County Limerick, said the evictions enforced by Mr. Delmege were shameful in every detail. It was a burning shame and humiliation, he said, to find a man living in luxury while his tenants were in a state of misery, such as should invoke God's curse on its author and abettor. He earnestly advised his hearers to combine against the landlords, declaring that they had everything to justify them in that course in the sight of God and man.

A VERDICT OF WILFUL MURDER

Against Barney McKenna, the Slayer of John Torrance.

The Toronto World of this morning says:—It was 1.14 this morning when Coroner Duncan and his jury got through hearing evidence in the fatal stapping affray at Barney McKenna's, Adelaide-street restaurant, last Friday night. On that occasion John Torrance, during a free fight, was stabbed in the right buttock by McKenna, from the effects of which he died in the Hospital Saturday evening. The wound was 3½ inches deep, and death resulted from hemorrhage, shock and acute inflammation the peritoneum. County Crown Attorney Badgerow was present and assisted in the enquiry A number of persons who were either engaged in the fight or were witnesses of it gave evidence. Torrance's ante-mortem statment, already published, was read to the jury.

The evidence taken was rather of a contradictory character, but it tended to show that McKenna did the stabbing. The police have not yet been able to lay their hands on him, although John O'Halloran of 23 Melinda street, one of the witnesses, swore that he saw McKenna the day after the stabbing and talked to him about the affair. McKenna said he was sorry for what had happened, but that he (McKenna) was a very hot tempered fellow. McKenna said nothing about the stabbing.

At 2 40 this morning the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against McKenna.

The Red River Railway.

WINNIPEG, Nov 2.—The boundary railway question is still the all absorbing topic of the day. It is said that further negotiations are proceeding with the hope of having the work performed this winter. An interview is said to have been held between the Government, Mr. Holt, and certain citizens, which resulted in Mr. Holt expressing his perfect willingness to enter into a supplementary contract, making the limitation as to the time for completing the work perfectly satisfactory to the citizens. The personnel of his company would also be demonstrated to the satisfaction of all, and with it the independence of the road. It is quite possible that a solution of the difficulty can yet be arrived at. Mr. Norquay is expected to arrive from St. Paul to-day.

The St. Louis Disaster.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—The following is a full and accurate list of the killed and wounded by the explosion: Killed—Michael Newman, Mrs. Annie Newman and three children, John, Edward and Nellie, aged respectively 16, 13 and 11 years; Charles N. Devere and his wife and Mrs. Agnes Beasley. Wounded—Mamie Newman, will die; Nellie Newman, seriously injured, will recover; Mrs. Bella Wilson and Miss Bryant, slightly.

Floods at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. S., Nov. 2.—The northeast wind has driven in a very heavy tide, and much damage has been done along the beach. Many bath houses have been washed away. The meadows overflowed and some portions of the city are inundated. The street cars cannot reach the inlet, where much damage was also done. Many boats are adrift on the meadows.

Gen. Middleton's Retirement.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Under the Imperial regulations Sir Frederick Middleton will retire from active service the day after to-morrow, and there is considerable doubt whether he can still retain command of the Canadian militia. It is understood that no action in the matter has been taken by the Government.

Must Pay the Penalty.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—It is understood that His Excellency will not exercise executive clemency in the case of Ah Chow, a Chinaman, under sentence of death in British Columbia for murdering another Chinaman. He will be hanged on Nov. 18.

The Shooting at Kamloops.

KAMLOOPS, B. C., Nov. 2.—In the case of the Indian half-breed who was shot and killed, while resisting arrest, the jury returned the following verdict: "That the said Alexander McLean (Potsa) came to his death by being shot by the Indian constables in the discharge of their duty."

Four Whites Murdered.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Tigerville to day states that striking negroes this morning shot and killed four white laborers on Mr. Laccasaque's plantation. Troops have been telegraphed for.

Doomed to Die.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The Supreme Court has denied the writ of error in the Anarchist cases. The decision was against all the prisoners.

Winnipeg's Assessment.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—Winnipeg's total assessment for 1887 is $19,392,410. The total taxes for the year are, $359,381.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

CHANGED HANDS.—We understand that on Nov. 1st, Mr. P. P. Cope gives up possession of the foundry and adjoining shops, having sold out some time ago. The gentlemen taking charge come well recommended, having been for some years foremen of a large manufacturing establishment in the west. We extend our best wishes to the new firm.

IMPROVEMENT.—A most decided improvement has been made in the interior of the Presbyterian Church by changing the walls from a dark lead to a rich green color. Mr. John Chandler had charge of the work.

SCHOOL BOARD.—A meeting of the School Board was held on the 24th Oct. for the purpose of engaging teachers for the next term. As far as can be learned all of the present staff have been re-engaged.

GRAIN MOVEMENTS.—A large amount of grain is being delivered at the elevator, an almost constant stream of loads moving in from noon till night.

SASH AND DOOR FACTORY.—Mr. H. C. Harrison, proprietor of the saw-mill, starts this week to purchase machinery and material for a sash and door factory. He intends going into manufacturing quite extensively.

TEMPERANCE ENTERTAINMENT.—A most enjoyable evening was spent by those who attended the opening of the Templars' new hall, Metcalf's block, on Oct 31st. There was a large audience and plenty to eat (furnished by the ladies of the lodge) and an exceptionally good programme. The readings were remarkably well rendered, and the little match makers song sent the house into convulsions. Dr. Ford occupied the chair, and, in his opening address, appealed eloquently to parents to give temperance workers and organizations their sympathy and support. He also outlined the platform and policy of this society, which, if carried out, will make it very interesting about the time of our municipal elections. Door receipts, $3 40.

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT TO SEE.—A run for the Reeveship. Hugh Spence to be elected for the next council and Spring street made passible. The fire brigade to turn out for practice next Christmas.

HALLOWE'EN.—The youths of the village created considerable noise on Monday night in removing all manner of packing cases, carts, old conveyances, &c., into the streets, but this is of little account. The great question of moment is, who stole the quarter of venison (and that a fallow doe) from the residence of our sporting Mr. D. C. Clarke? This is really too bad. Our Reeve ought to offer a reward, as in the melon case.

BELMONT.

LARCENY.—A farmer from the township of Belmont came to town on Tuesday and had a warrant issued for the arrest of a man lately in his employ, whom he alleges stole $65 from his house a few days previous to his leaving. The man could not be found but it was ascertained that he had, on coming to Norwood, purchased a gun in one of our hardware shops and had left it at the residence of an Asphodel farmer. The "man from Belmont" at once proceeded to the Asphodel farmer's residence and appropriated the gun. The Asphodel man is indignant and threatens to take legal proceedings to recover the gun. The case will altogether likely be ventilated in the courts.—Norwood Register.

WHOLESALE POISONING.

A Supper Results in the Death of Six Persons.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Nov. 2.—A special from Delhi, La., says on Friday evening last Geo. C. King, who resides in Franklin Parish, gave a dance and supper. After the supper was nearly over all the guests were taken violently sick. A doctor was sent for, who pronounced the sickness caused by poison of some kind, and was unable to render much relief. Louis King, Jr., Ben King, Walter Bell, Lee Ford, John O'Brien, Jr., and Miss Minnie Brown, all white, and Jake Hill colored, have since died, and Hill's wife and six children, A. A. Ford and six children, white, Mrs. Louis King and children, Frosie Walker and a child, one of the Dunham boys, Bruce Spires and Hillyard Butler, wife and children, are dangerously sick, but were alive at last accounts. No motive can be assigned for this dastardly deed. The cook is not supposed to be guilty, as she is dangerously ill and her husband and one or two of her children are dead.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

THE CZAR'S RETURN HOME.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The German envoy at Copenhagen has been instructed to intimate that the German court will not consider it an act of discourtesy if the Czar, out of regard for the health of his family, returns home through Germany without coming to Berlin, and that, on the other hand, if he should visit the Emperor William, he would be given the heartiest reception.

JOHN DILLON AT LIMERICK.

LIMERICK, Nov 2.—At a banquet last evening, Mr. John Dillon, replying to the toast of "Ireland, a nation," said that if Mr. Chamberlain's assertion that the people of the South of Ireland were incapable of governing themselves was carried to its logical conclusion, Mr. Chamberlain's plan for local government would be useless.

IN GAOL AT TULLAMORE.

CORK, Nov 2.—Wm O'Brien and Mr. Mandeville, who are under sentence for using seditious language at a meeting at Mitchellstown, were quietly removed form the gaol here at five o'clock this morning and taken away in a special train. It is supposed they are to be placed in prison in Dublin. The news of their removal was not known to the people of Cork until 10 o'clock. It caused termendous excitement. Mr. O'Brien has been lodged in the gaol at Tullamore, fifty miles form Dublin.

GREVY'S DECISION.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Standard's correspondent at Paris assert, that President Grevy has fully decided to retire to private life when the Wilson affair blows over.

CHOLERA AT BOMBAY.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Vessels from Bombay are subject to twenty-four hours quarantine at Suez, owing to reports that cholera is increasing at Bombay.

TREATIES WILL BE RESPECTED.

ROME, Nov. 2.—Signor Crispi has authorized the Italian Ambassador at Constantinople to inform the Porte that Italy has no designs upon Tripoli, and that the existing treaties will be adhered to.

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED.

DUBLIN, Nov. 2.—Several legal commissioners will soon be appointed to administer the new Land Act. A large number of tenants have already made application to be permitted to avail themselves of the provisions of the act.

THE GALATEA TO RETURN.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The yacht Galatea, which arrived at Queenstown on Saturday from New York, will proceed to Southampton. Lieu. Henn says he will take his boat to America again in the spring and take part in next season's regattas.

THE ANARCHIST PLOT.

VIENNA, Nov. 2.—Two more men have been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the Anarchist plot discovered yesterday.

JENNY LIND DEAD.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Jennny Lind is dead.

MICHAEL DAVITT AT DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, Nov. 2.—The inaugural dinner of the Dublin National Club was given last evening. Mr. Michael Davitt, who responded to Mr. Chamberlain's statement that Ireland's desire for nationality was merely a sentiment, said that if there was on earth a people devoid of sentiment, the punishment he would inflict upon them would be to make Mr. Chamberlain their ruler.

COURTEOUS TO EACH OTHER.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—Unwonted precautions were taken by the French authorities on Saturday to protect the German officials who were surveying the scene of the recent frontier shooting incident. The utmost courtesy was shown on both sides.

HONORED BOULANGER.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—All Saints' Day was observed in the usual manner. The avenues leading to the cemeteries were crowded all day. Sympathizers with General Boulanger took advantage of the occasion to make demonstrations in his honor, but no disturbance occurred.

A Gallan Deed.

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., Nov. 2.—The life-saving crew of the Middle Island did noble work in rescuing the crew of the brig Nellie Mason during the storm at Presquet Isle. They dragged their boat a mile through the woods opposite the wreck. She swamped several times as they attempted to launch her and the men were thrown into the water and were almost dead with cold, but like heroes they succeeded in reaching the vessel and rescued the crew, who were clinging to the icy wreck. Seas completely buried her, and if they had not been soon rescued they would have perished, as she was soon coated with ice to the mast heads and was full of water. A part of the deck loaded was washed off. The tug Leviathan is working at her and will save her.

A DEMAND FOR GORE.

THE Globe wants Mr. Chamberlain's head. It demands this official decapitation, emphatically insisting that he must be recalled. Anyone who did not know the paper might fear that the consequences would be serious if his commission was not brought to it on a charger; but a Canadian, recalling the time when the Globe as emphatically demanded the extinction (literally) of another person and then as strongly denounced those who thought as it spoke, will not be inclined to credit the Reform organ with all the ferocity it assumes. If Mr. Chamberlain was recalled, who knows but that the Globe would the next day attack the Salisbury Government for not allowing a Liberal to go on with the work with which he had been entrusted? The record of the Globe is such that it must not be surprised of its expressed opinions have little weight.

The crime that has called forth the denunciations flung at Mr. Chamberlain is not one that calls for summary punishment. With his opinions on Irish questions we have nothing to do. It was his reference to Commercial Union that aroused the ire of those who attack him here. On that question he intimated that Canada could not expect to repel John Bull with one arm while with the other it lovingly embraced Uncle Sam, and still enjoy the advantages of John's parental care. And no doubt Mr. Chamberlain was right. It might not have been in keeping with the traditions of diplomacy for him to have expressed his opinion at the time he did, yet believing as he did, and having the weight of British and Canadian opinion, aye and of United States opinion with him, was he committing so grave a blunder in speaking out?

Mr. Chamberlain's opinion is that if Canada wants Commercial Union she can have it. He was sincere, no doubt, in saying that. Yet it was a safe thing to say. Canada does not want a bargain with the United States such as is outlined by those advocating Commercial Union. Canadians are not desirous of severing their connection with the British Empire, neither are they willing to hand the arranging of their tariff rates, customs laws and internal revenue taxes over to a foriegn people. It is enough to pay taxes imposed by ourselves and collected according to our expressed wishes, but it would be intolerable to be compelled to pay taxes levied at the wil of a foreign country and then have to receive back from it what was needed to defray our governmental expenses.

Mr. Chamberlain is a shrewd man of business and one versed in public duties. He will be assisted by others able and conversant with the fisheries question, and if believing that Commercial Union means separation from Britain is his only crime let the steamer which bears him to America proceed on her voyage. Let us hope that a satisfactory settlement of the dispute will be arrived at, despite the efforts of a section of the Canadian press to embarrass the Commission.

CHOLERA.

FOR a couple of years the people of this continent have been dreading the appearance of cholera. When that disease was carrying off hundreds in different European countries, it was felt that the ocean might not be a sufficient barrier to prevent it finding its way to America. When a short time ago it did actually cross the Atlantic and vessels arrived at New York with the disease on board, the people were assured that the quarantine regulations were such that it could not reach the mainland. Everyone hoped that was true. And now a commission, appointed by the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, who visited New York, report that "our protection against an epidemic at the present time must rest mainly on the circumstance of the near approach of a season in which cholera does not usually spread." They found, so they report, that complete isolation was not secured, and that those sent to the stations had opportunities of communicating with the mainland. If the quarantine accommodation and regulations were as inadequate as is feared, the danger may not be passed when the warm weather returns. In view of this, and of the proximity of Canada to New York, it will not be unwise for Canadian cities and towns to take what precautionary measures they can to prevent the disease from taking a hold among their inhabitants. Carefulness in sanitary matters, and a plan of action ready to be put into operation, would not find them unprepared if unfortunately the disease should appear in the country, though it will still be hoped that, with any defects that existed in the precautionary measures at the ports remedied, this continent will be spared a visitation of this terrible disease.

REFERRING to the change in the management of the REVIEW the Globe says:—"In connection with this event Mr. John Carnegie issues a farewell address and announces that now his connection with the paper has ceased. This is all right. But it is singular that for some years past Mr Carnegie's organ should have circulated the fiction that Mr. Carnegie had no voice in its control." The Globe is not as observant as it might be or it would have seen that the REVIEW excluded fiction from its editorial and news columns and confines it to good serial stories by well known authors. The REVIEW did not say that Mr. Carnegie had no more voice its control, though it did say, in correcting a former piece of Globe editorial fiction, that he was not the editor of the paper, which was true.

Victory has Perched on the Banner of PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT CHEAPSIDE.

And SHEPPARD, by common consent, will get $1,000 for being the Cheapest Clothier in Peterborough, having knocked the Wonderful Cheap Man completely out. "Business is business; dirt is dirt, and when it comes to throwing dirt, then count" the only original teddy out, and he will hand over that $1,000 like a little man, for the following reasons:—

SHEPPARD sells a full size Man's suit for $2.95, and better goods than a suit to fit a child about nine years old sold by the Wonderful Cheap Man on Saturday for $3.00; but marked $3.50. This is how it was:—A lady purchased a child's suit on Saturday last, Sept. 17th, 1887, at the store of the Wonderful Cheap Man. It was marked thusly:—Lot 5375, Breast 27, Waist 26½, Age 9, Price $3.50. It was pure shoddy, being held together by cotton threads, and Sheppard is free to say that that was the dearest suit sold in the Town of Peterborough for the last two years. Full particulars are given because of the $1,000 involved, and, further, that this decides who is selling the Cheapest Clothing in Peterborough. SHEPPARD would have sold that lady a suit, pure wool, for that money, and worth two of the one she got.

$1,000 to Go to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

I had first decided to give the agencies a chance of jumping up my rating that $1,000, but after considering the matter and finding that never in any case have I been asked for an endorser to my paper, and that no relative or any other persons have ever endorsed my paper to the extent of one cent, I have come to the conclusion my credit is as good as yours, and will ask you to hand over the $1,000 to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

Now, Sir, there is a good story told, the truth of which can be vouched for, but for the honor of at least making an effort to keep up your self-styled name—The Terror of High Priced Clothiers—do not allow the same to be said of you in the case above. A man purchased a suit for $15.00 at the store of one of the largest advertisers in that section of country. It was guaranteed pure wool; but after examining it carefully at home, he came to the conclusion that he had been dealing with some one sharper than himself. Finding a make of wool, differing some from anything he had ever seen, it dawned upon him that he had heard of wool of that kind, so the suit was returned. The merchant bet $25.00 that it was all wool, and the bet was accepted, the decision being left to a neighboring merchant. He found that the $15.00 suit was wool faced and shoddy back, pure unadulterated shoddy; but what of the $25.00 bet? was it paid? Not much—muchly—as it were.

THE Extreme Left of the Paris Chamber of Deputies ask that the Chicago Anarchists be not executed because they advocate "the abolition of political deaths." That is where the Deputies differ from some Canadians who are courting political death by advocating Commercial Union. However, if the Chicago Anarchists committed murder, or planned murder and assisted those who carried out the plans, their crime can scarcely be called a political one.

THE Toronto Mail might have easily made a suitable change in its name when it changed its politics. Substituting a W for the M would have been appropriate.

People formerly had; trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them." Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

CONFESSING CHRIST.

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY REV. GEO. P. HAYS, D. D., LL. D.

Lesson VI of the International Series (Fourth Quarter), for Sunday, Nov. 6, 1887—Text of the Lesson, Matt. x, 32-42—Golden Text, Matt. x, 32.

The last lesson was the call of the apostles to apostleship. In this lesson we have a statement of the results which should follow from the faithful discharge of their duties, and especially of the principles upon which Jesus Christ, as final judge, would estimate the treatment of them as his ambassadors on the part of the world.

Confession.—It will be seen by the marginal reading in the revised version that the expression in the Greek is "confess in me and I will confess in him." This intimates that the Christian here is so to make his confession to Christ that it shall not be an external cloak put on as something separate from himself, but as part of his internal and spiritual life.

Continuing habit.—This form of phraseology shows that the confession, both on his part and on ours, is not a temporary relationship, but is a permanent, abiding and growing habit of our spiritual life.

This principle here applied by Christ to the final judgment is simply the ordinary rule of good society. We may feel wounded by a temporary defection of one of our friends; but we estimate them not on the basis of an occasional fault, but on their permanent behavior and characteristics. Nothing can be more irrational for those who thus act in their intercourse with their fellow man than to expect Christ to deal otherwise with them.

Peace or war.—Verses 34, 35 and 36 are in strange contrast with our notions of the coming of the prince of peace. But Christ came to send peace to his friends and among his friends, and not to make peace with his enemies. Very often the argument is urged against an aggressive warfare in behalf of morality in the community that it will stir up strife, as if peace should be bought at the price of unbridled evil. Why should good people yield their principles for the sake of peace any more than bad people?

Extreme cases.—In this country it is not often that families are so divided that their controversies reach the climax described in verse 35; and yet filial duty and parental authority have not unfrequently been used to induce Christians to do wrong. It is an extreme case, but not an impossible one, that young Christians should be pushed to choose between their own households and their duty to God.

Personal feeling.—We are apt to assume that all suffering lies on the side of doing right, and that the surrender of conscience is a sure road to relief from trouble. Verse 37 raises this question of personal preference and affection. There is a wonderful depth of meaning in that phrase "worthy of me." It is twice used in this one verse, and covers the whole question of imitating Christ. For the love of a lost race he gave up the glories of heaven for the path of duty midst suffering on earth.

The cross.—Verse 38 seems perfectly clear to us as the word "the cross" comes with all the associations that have gathered round it for the past eighteen centuries. Crucifixion, however, was not a common form of punishment among the Jews. When, therefore, this sentence was uttered before the crucifixion, its meaning must have been very obscure to these disciples. This is an admirable illustration of what is meant in John xii, 16. The words "his cross" indicate that each one has his own peculiar burden to bear.

Profit and loss.—Verse 39 is a question of the supreme motive, and puts life as the representative of ease in contrast with duty and the approval of conscience. If everything is to be sacrificed for ease the probability is ease will not be attained. Egotism and selfishness generally defeat themselves.

Business principles in religion.—Money paid to the collector of a bank is counted as if paid to the bank. In verse 40 this principle, universal among men, is adopted by the Saviour When ministers preach the Gospel, and Sabbath school teachers teach God's truth, and good people invite men to the Saviour, they do not speak in their own name. Christ will take every response to his invitation delivered through the lips of his people as if that response had been made to a message delivered by himself. Verse 41 is simply this principle set forth as regards thousands who hear the message, as well as with reference to the messenger.

Small matters.—Verse 42 has this principle brought down to daily concerns. Many little children in the mission schools out of their poverty will give their teachers a token of affection, which to the teacher may have small value in itself, but will be very precious to that teacher for the appreciation it indicates. In the country where this verse was spoken water is not very plentiful, and cold water is a still scarcer article. The gift, therefore, of "cold water" would indicate a thoughtful intention and some effort on the part of the giver. When now this thought and effort are the result of an intention to recognize Christ in the person of the disciple, why should Christ fail to reward those who expressly, for his sake, have done this little act of kindness?

This last calls for five things on the part of God's people: confession of their love, conflict with evil, comparison of results between right and wrong, sacrifice of present ease to duty, and acceptance of the government of the Saviour. It calls for four things from Christ towards his people: acknowledgment of those who are faithful to the command of duty, testing them by trial, rewarding them for faithfulness, and recognition of them in the day of judgment. These are correlative the one to the other. Our confession will be acknowledged by Christ. In the conflict with evil, we are simply obeying his command; in our comparison of results between present comfort and everlasting life, we are tested in his sight; when we sacrifice self and ease for for his sake, he comes with his reward; when we accept his control, he recognizes our service.

HINTS FOR PRIMARY CLASSES.

BY ALICE W. KNOX.

1. What does confessing Christ mean?
2. What results follow confessing Christ?

To confess Christ before men is to acknowledge Christ as our Saviour; to show a Christ like character; to be like Christ; to do what is right at all times and places. It is to do to others what we would like to have them do to us. This sometimes leads to trouble and discord, as it did with Christ himself; but those who are not willing to bear the cross cannot hope to wear the crown.

When criminals were to be crucified, under the old Roman government, they were compelled to carry their own crosses to the place of execution. Jesus Christ bore his cross in that way, and he calls the trials of life crosses. Some have one kind and some another. People are apt to think their own trials or crosses the hardest, and often wish they could exchange with others; but each one must bear his own.

It is often a cross to confess Christ because those who do not love or even believe in him ridicule and persecute true Christians. Many persons have died cruel deaths rather than deny Christ. In Rome there are miles of passages underground where Christians used to flee from persecution. They are dark, narrow and exceedingly uncomfortable; but thousands of people have lived and died there. Occasionally a room was made large enough for a number to assemble for divine worship, and there some godly minister would preach to the poor captives. At times rough soldiers would be sent by the cruel rulers to murder the good people hiding in those dismal, crooked halls, and they would find them by following the sound of their voices when they were singing at these meetings. Now, travelers visit these catacombs and see row after row of narrow shelves covered with bones or ashes, where the Christians were once laid after death. As these passages were hewn out of the solid rock, no graves could be dug, and thus the dead were placed on the shelves beside the living in the aisles. The martyrs who died thus lost their lives for Christ's sake, but they have found eternal life with him in heaven.

These are some of the results of confessing Christ: persecution on earth, but everlasting life and joy in heaven. When once there the trials and crosses of this life will seem very small compared with the great rewards of the life to come.

The Central Truth says, "Confessing Christ brings trials and rewards." Jesus foretold this, and Christians have found it true. Sometimes family friends are unkind to those who confess Christ. This is a hard trial, a heavy cross; but it would be far worse to have Jesus say at the last day, I know you not. To those who confess him on earth he will then say, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

It might be disagreeable, or even painful, to the son of a king to be ill-treated in a country where enemies to his father lived. But suppose he should be so weak and frightened that he should deny his father and say, "I am not his son; I do not know him." He would not deserve to be received into his father's house on his return. Just so Jesus says those will not be received into heaven, our Father's house, who deny him on earth. As the little hymn says,

Never be afraid to speak for Jesus.
—Sunday School World.

Schools for Pickpockets.

Notwithstanding the assurance of the police that there are no schools for pickpockets in the city, there are unquestionably several Fagins in town. A short time ago there was an Egyptian who kept a candy stand on Broadway, who had no fewer than thirteen boys under his direction engaged in pocket picking. He was finally captured by the police and in his stand was found fully $100 worth of silk pocket handkerchiefs which his pupils had stolen. There are now, according to the estimate of a well known police official not less than 1,500 pickpockets in this city in active practice.—"DeF. P." in New York Commercial Advertiser.

British Interests In Alaskan Waters.

Admiral Hencage and Lieut. Tronne, R. N., left for Victoria, B. C. The Admiral goes to hoist his flag on board the Swiftsure, the new flagship of the Pacific Squadron. In an interview he said one of his first official acts would be to visit Alaskan waters and to protect British interests there, which sadly needed looking after. He would not, he said, allow a British vessel to be molested outside of the three mile limit, no matter who attempted it. He understands that the recent seizures in Alaska waters will form part of the fisheries inquiry. He will make a special report to the British Postoffice Department on the Canadian Pacific Railway as an Imperial route to the east. The Admiral was until last month in command of the Channel Squadron.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain

Two Ways of Seeing Things

First Anarchist—Look at that rich man now; too lazy to drive his own horses.

Second Anarchist—Yes, he has to have a private coachman to hold the reins while he lays back in the cushions.

At Another Corner.—First Business man—I declare if there is'nt old Scrooge doing his own driving.

Second Business Man—Yes, he's so infernal mean and stingy that he discharged his coachman, a poor man with a large family, because he thought him an unnecessary expense. Omaha World.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet slee by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It smoothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, Relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teetning or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Band.

A meeting of the Fire Brigade Band will be held this evening.

Raised the Siding.

The siding at the Rathbun Company's coal, lumber and shingle agency, Bethune street, has been raised nearly a foot higher than it formerly was, to level it up with the main line.

New Instruments.

Mr. John Butcher received from New York on Wednesday a flute and piccolo for orchestral use, at a cost for the two of $50. They are of Berteling's make and have given satisfaction. They were made to order.

Canton!

Canton Peterborough, No. 10, emerged from the shade of private drill and held a public march out in uniform on Wednesday evening. They left the Charlotte Street Rink and marched down Aylmer street as far as Wolfe street and then returned to the rink. They made a very respectable turnout. Another march out will be held this evening.

Patent Oven.

The Peterborough Stove works is manufacturing a patent ventilated oven which is winning a good reputation. A man who bought one while attending the Toronto exhibition writes from King Creek that "it is the finest" he has seen, and that "standing on the table before him is a 10 inch loaf of bread thoroughly cooked through with a beautiful brown on the top. It is lovely to look at." Large sales of these ovens are being made by the company's agents.

Saw Works.

The gentlemen who are here endeavoring to establish a saw and file works have met with encouragement in their canvass for stock. Several capitalists who are largely interested in property have agreed to take stock provided other property owners will do the same. If each of these prominent men would take just enough to encourage the industry there would be no difficulty in getting a start made. The town is ready to put up the building when sufficient stock is subscribed.

Walking Bean.

Two curious specimens of vegetation are shown in Mr. John McClelland's jewellery store. They are walking beans, sent from California to Mr. Harry Cluxton, of this town. They resemble the kernel of a filbert with a piece shaved off the side. They are now in a show case on a piece of white paper. If the case is jarred the pair keep still for quite a while. Then a premonitory shivering is seen, and soon they go hopping along as happy as bed-bugs. Lovers of the curious find amusement in watching the motions of the two.

Matrimony.

On Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at "Glen Morrison," the residence of Mr. John Carnegie, the marriage bonds were entered upon by Mr. Geo. F. Orde, of the Exchange National Bank, Chicago, formerly of this town and Miss Charlotte Carnegie, second daughter of Mr. John Carnegie. Mr. Jas. Morris was the groomsman, and the bride was assisted during the ceremony by Miss Snyder, Miss Orde and Nellie Carnegie. Owing to the hackman who was engaged to bring the Rev. Alex. Bell, of St. Andrews, who was to have officiated, not having called for the reverend gentleman, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's, who was present as a guest. The Rev. Mr. Bell arrived just as the ceremony was ended. A wedding breakfast was partaken of by the bridal party and assembled guests. The evening train over the Canadian Pacific railway took Mr. and Mrs. Orde on their way to their new home in Chicago. The REVIEW extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Orde on their entry upon married life.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Geo. Mills, who committed suicide in Ashburnham on Tuesday night, took place to-day. He was buried in the Little Lake Cemetery. Five vehicles followed the coffin to the Cemetery.

Flags Fluttering.

The display of four flags on the new hotel building erected by the Chamberlen Estate for Mr. Ted Cavanagh, announces that the last brick has been laid on the building. It is a large and imposing structure. Mr. Arthur Rutherford was the contractor.

Purloined the Surloin.

At Dr. Fife's residence, Geo ge street, last night a nice piec of juicy beef was put out in the back kitchen so as to keep it fresh. This morning when it was sought for, lo! both beef and the side dish upon which it was placed, were gone. The side dish was found smashed a short distance away.

The Affirmative.

The St. Peter's Congregation Debating Society at their next meeting are going to talk on the following: "Resolved,—That the printing press has done more for the world than the steam engine." Mr. A. Hoolihan will, with assistants, hold up the end of the press, while Mr. O Brien, with associates, will dilate on what good the steam engine has done.

Twenty-Four O'Clock.

An Ottawa despatch says that Mr. Sandford Fleming, who is a relation of Sheriff Hall and was the originator of the twenty-four hour system, has received a letter from the Japanese Minister in London, Eng., stating that his system will be adopted throughout the Japanese Empire on January 1st, 1888. He is also informed that it is giving satisfactory results in Sweden, and expresses the belief that is is only a matter of a few years before the system will be universally adopted.

Extension.

The electric lamp which was ordered by the Council some time ago to be placed on the corner of Edidburgh and Bethune streets, has been put up. The line has been extended along George street and thence up Edinburgh street. Poles have been put up on the corner of George and Edinburgh streets and on the corner of George and London streets, suitable for placing lamps on. The new lamp to be placed on the hill will be of great service to the neighborhood, as, being placed in a good position it will throw light on both sides of the hill for blocks away.

Enlarging.

The Protestant Home has been greatly improved during the last three weeks. Formerly only half of the upstairs was fitted up suitable for use, but now the whole building is conviently divided off and comfortably furnished. There are altogether seventeen rooms, including the wards and bathroom, the latter being an innovation New dormer windows have been put in the upstair rooms, making them look bright and cheery. The upstairs is divided into two sections, the men's department and the women's department. A new staircase has been put in to lead to the women's department. The Home, though unpretentions in appearance, is exceedingly comfortable, and the inmates receive the care and attention from the thoughtful matron which their condition requires. The cost of the improvements will be about $200, which will be paid by the Town Council.

GRAPES by the ton. Last shipment just received. Good winter grapes. Try them At LONG BROS.

Debating Society.

A regular meeting of the Debating Society in connection with St. Peter's Cathedral Congregation was held on Wednesday evening. The subject under discussion was "Resolved that Napolean I is a more famous man than Wellington." Mr. M. Hackett led the affirmative, and was supported by Messrs. J. J. Sheehy, Dr. Brennan, A. Hoolihan, J. Phelan and R. Henry. Mr. J. Doherty led the negative, and was backed up by Messrs. Joseph Hurley, Dr. Collins, J. Carveth and A. Weatherhead. The leader of the negative says that two of his best men, whom he had intended to meet the arguments of the last two speakers on the affirmative side, did not attend and that he was handicapped. Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle occupied the chair. After summing up and viewing the arguments he decided in favour of the affirmative.

Personal.

Miss Wrighton, of Peterborough, will take part in a concert at Port Hope tomorrow evening.

Rev. N. R. Willoughby, M. A., of Port Perry, formerly of Peterborough, has accepted the invitation of the Norfolk Street Methodist church at Guelph to become their pastor for the next term, subject to the action of the Transfer and Stationing Committees of the church.

The Norwood Register says:—"We are please to learn that Miss L. E. Ford, daughter of our highly esteemed townsman, S. P. Ford, M. D., who was taken ill with the typhoid fever some weeks ago while visiting friends in Aurora, has sufficiently recovered to permit of her removal to her home."

Mr. R. W. Muncaster, who has been ill with malarial fever, has recovered good health and is again attending to his business duties.

Mr. Finch Millar, bandmaster, has been laid up with rheumatism. He is all right again.

TURNBULL's direct importations of Mantle Cloths please everybody. The styles are new and prices are very low.

CANOE AND COUCHICHING.

The Committee of the Northern Division Visit the Proposed Camp Site.

On Thursday morning the members of the Executive Committee, Northern Division, of the A. C. A., who had been up to Orillia looking over the land—or rather water—returned well pleased. They report very favorably, and should that report be be adopted at the general meeting of the division to be held at Peterborough early in December, the question of the camp site for 1888 may be considered settled. Messrs. J. Z. Rogers, Dr. Douglas and G. W. Hatton, with Messrs. A. D. McGachen, J. G. Edwards and R. H. Hopkins, of Lindsay, reached Orillia on Wednesday morning. The party were met at the station by Mayor S. S. Robinson and Messrs. Harmon, Delaney and other members of the Orillia Canoe Club. The visitors were tendered the freedom of the town and dined at the Central Hotel. After dinner Mr. Kinnon, captain and owner of the steamer Ella Alice, placed his boat at the disposal of the party, and, accompanied by many leading men of Orillia, including Mr. Murray of the Times, Messrs. Delaney, Moody, McDonald and T. H. Robinson (an old Peterborough boy), a trip was made over the waters of Lake Couchiching. "The Point," at one time a favorite summer resort, and the locality of a large hotel, was visited and though a lovely spot was deemed a little too public for the camp. The committee were informed that the place would be placed at their disposal if on further consideration it might be found suitable. Horse Island, six miles from Orillia, two and one-half miles from Longford Mills, was next visited. It is about 40 acres of woodland, with capital beach and good landings. A beautiful sheltered bay affords a capital site for the ladies' camp. At the island is a new wharf. At either side of the island are stretches of water that will afford what is so much desired—a sheltered course for paddling races. The sailing course would lay between the island and Couchiching Point. Chief Island, near at hand, is the burial place of the Rama Indians, who live on the main shore opposite, and the island is a place of some historical interest. After looking the situation over the Committee were taken across the Lake to Longford Mills, where they were met by Mr. W. Thompson, one of the proprietors, and Mr. M. Hall, the efficient superintendent for the company. A team of bays and light waggon were placed at the disposal of the visitors and a drive enjoyed over the extensive property of the company, and were afterwards entertained as the guests of Mr. Thompson, reluctantly returning to Orillia to catch the evening train south. On the whole the committee are well satisfied with the proposed site, Mr. Kinnan promises to do everything for the convenience of the meet, and to procure some facilities in the way of a floating wharf, and shelter for canoes. The situation affords opportunity for pleasant trips to various points, including one by canoe to Wabaushene and down the Severn rapids, returning to Longford by rail. Canoeists arriving at Orillia will find the depot and wharf conveniently close together, while by the Northern railway supplies can be unloaded within two miles of the camp. On the trip home many matters were talked over and Skipper Edwards (Lindsay) of the "Polly Ann" announced his decision to dispose of the craft and come out at next camp with a new canoe and rig, carrying at the peak—like Van Trump of old—a broom.

POLICE COURT.

WAGES.

THURSDAY, No. 3.—Chas. Wynn was charged by W. Boyce with not having paid $30.20 due to him. The defendant pleaded not guilty and disputed the claim. The case was enlarged.

Bannocks and Heather.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Society will be held in the Collector's Office, Simcoe street, on Thursday evening, Nov 10th. The Society invite all Scotchmen and descendants of Scotchmen to be present. Routine business will be transacted, and the celebration of St. Andrew's nicht determined on. It is expected that the "Land o' Cakes" will be well represented, and that greetings of the heartiest possible character interchanged. Scotchmen the world over observe the time-honored anniversary, and Peterborough will not be behind in its celebration.

Restored to Good Health.

The Rev. Father Conway, parish priest of Peterborough, who was so seriously hurt a few weeks ago, surprised his friends not a little when he came back home on Wednesday fully restored to good health. He was only two weeks in Toronto and while there received good treatment. But, while he listened to advice, he reserved his right to determine what remedies were to be applied. Father Conway's vigorous constitution stood him in good stead. With men of less vital force the accident would very likely have had fatal results.

Masonic.

R. W. Bro. B. Shortly, District Deputy Grand Master, in connection with the Masonic order, accompanied by W. Bro. W. Brundrett, W. Bro. H. Rush, W. Bro. D. Belleghem, W. Bro. J. McWilliams, W. Bro. Jas. Alexander, and the District Secretary, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, will pay an official visit to Omemee Lodge this evening. They left by the evening train over the Grand Trunk.

LADIES! you will find TURNBULL's the right house to buy yarns of all shades at Right Prices.

Local Brevities.

—Shake, brothers, shake with caree. It is rumoured that stove coal has advanced in price 30 cents per ton. And a hard winter coming on.

—There is a building boom on at Havelock. The Rathbun Company shipped, yesterday, several car loads of building materials to that point to be worked up this fall into houses.

—Quoth the Warder:—"If Lindsay merchants cannot see past the ends of their noses, then their case is hopeless." Considering that the temperature up there occasionally drops to 30 degress below, we should say the outlook is sufficiently depressing.

—This is a serious matter and should be looked into. Facts of importance surround the case. It calls for serious contemplation in view of the disastrous possibilities. It has been learned that a local furniture man has secretly carried on the pernicious practice of presenting young and newly married couples with a turned wooden rolling pin and potato masher. Is not this practice, it may well be asked, an insidious one? Shall a grasping, avaracious table turner continue deliberately placing in the hands of femenine women so trenchant a weapon as a rolling pin? Never! Never! (Cries of "Hear, hear," and "You man in front sit down." Motion to stain the furniture man a bright mahogany and roll him in one of his own mattresses carried unanimously.)

—Belleville Intelligencer:—"The Peterborough Council leave no stone unturned in their efforts to induce manufacturers to settle in that growing town."

—A date that is already well in mind is Thursday, 17th November, Thanksgiving Day. As the turkey raisers are being largely drawn on, this constituency will have to fall back on "Wiman's broilers" for the thank day feast.

—The authorities are not quite agreed as to whether this is Indian summer weather. "Not got the proper flavour, my boy," says one; "Lacks that hazy sort of look about the distance that we're used to," ventures another. "Seems to me its too cold," quoth a third. In view of these differences of opinion decision is reserved until the Millbrook Messenger is heard from.

—The most effective preparation for erasing ink, wine and fruit stains is that manufactured by J. Lahue, Montreal. It is well adapted for office use, and is used in the departmental offices extensively. We have tested it and find it very satisfactory.

—An agent for a Toronto printing house was in town to-day soliciting work from merchants and manufacturers. He met with poor success. Peterborough merchants and business men are alive to their own interest and know that all general trade that is kept in town benefits the community in general. The practice of buying goods out of town, instead of turning over the cash to our own business men, is one that should be discouraged on all hands.

—Time, 10.30 a.m. Excited dry goods man appears at door of store. He asks assistance. The crowd gathers. Two planks of the sidewalk are ripped up. 'Nother plank ripped up and next one broken. Crowd thickens. Crowd almost reaches the dimensions of a mob. Dry goods man, amidst profound silence, rakes over the ground under walk and finds quarter. Mac. appears with hammer and repairs damages. Balance to credit, 25 cents. Expenditure, 1¼ hours valuable time.

School Board Scraps.

—The proposition to have the boys in the Collegiate Institute instructed in military drill is worthy of close consideration by committee to which the matter was referred.

—Seargt.-Major Rundell's terms for giving lessons are very moderate.

—The advisability of giving the girls lessons in calisthenics might also, with propriety, be disussed.

—The boiler Inspector sent in a report stating that the boiler was all right, only that it was a little dirty. Janitor Tighe says that the fellow never said a word to him about dirt.

—Mr. Dumble, who is considered a connoisseur on educational matters, says that the school system here at present is conducive to the training of the mind at the expense of bodily good health. He recommends gymnastics and calisthenics.

—Mr. Stevenson is to send the policemen after the boys who disturb the peace of the masters at the West Ward School.

Death of a Lakefield Citizen.

Mr. Thomas Mason, proprietor of the American House, Lakefield, died on Monday and was buried on Wednesday. Mr. Mason has been ill for some months, and for some time previous to his death was confined to his bed with consumption. The funeral was largely attended.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons.

The seats for the dramatic performance to be given by given by Mrs. Scott-Siddons on the evening of November 22nd are being taken up rapidly. There are a number of good seats left yet, which those who intend going may avail themselves of.

THE CARLTON CLUB EXPLOSION.

Not Dynamite this Time—The Explosion Caused by Gas.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The World's London special says:—"There was a great panic in Pall Mall yesterday afternoon, occasioned by a loud explosion, which took place at the Carlton Club. The latter is the head-quarters of the Conservative party, and considerable damage was done to the fine building, the whole of the first floor being blown out. As the Socialists had been parading up and down Pall Mall almost the whole day it was immediately taken for granted that the dynamiters had been at work. The news spread swiftly throughout London and the provinces, and the sensation created was immense. The streets around the scene of the explosion were filled with excited crowds, who were prevented from approaching the building by a large body of police. Subsequent investigation of the premises, however, revealed the fact that the explosion was merely caused by gas, the four gas men who were engaged at the time in repairing the pipes in the basement being severely injured."

THE RED RIVER RAILWAY

The People of Regina Disapprove of Winnipeg's Action.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—At a largely attended meeting of the citizens of Regina the following resolution was unanimously adopted and a copy forwarded to Sir John Macdonald at Ottawa:—

That this meeting strongly disapproves of the action of the people of Winnipeg in endeavoring to secure the completion of the Red River Valley Railway in defiance of constituted authority. Such action is having, and will continue to have, an injurious effect upon the prosperity and development of the territories, the consequent depreciation of the stocks and securities of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and other railway companies interested in the development of the territories, and has prevented such companies from raising moneys for the construction of branch lines therein, thus retarding immigration and the opening up of the country.

D. W. BALE,
President Board of Trade

FIRE IN CHICAGO.

The Chicago Club Destroyed—Narrow Escapes of the Palmer House.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Early this morning fire was discovered in the Chicago Club, in Monroe street, directly opposite the ladies entrance to the Palmer House. A wild panic followed at the Palmer House. It is thought every one was taken out of the club building safely. The fire started on the fifth floor in the kitchen, from a defective flue, it is supposed. Fifty streams of water were poured into the building. A torrent of water soaked through floor after floor until the furniture and everything else about the building was completely ruined. The smoke entered the Clifton House adjoining, and scores of guests sprang out of bed and rushed in terror to the street. The Chicago Club was erected fifteen years ago at a cost of $131,000. The fixtures and furniture cost $25,000 and are a total loss, but fully insured. The damage to the building will be heavy. There were many valuable paintings in the room, which no doubt are utterly ruined.

THE SOUTHERN STRIKE.

Over Ten Thousand Colored Laborers Now Out—Trouble Feared.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—Over 10,000 colored laborers are now on strike in the sugar districts. The white men working on the plantations said that the demands of the negroes were unjust and refused to join them. As the negroes are in a large majority everywhere through the district and as they are determined neither to work themselves at present prices nor allow others to work, further trouble is looked for. The planters are determined to introduce new labor and force the strikers to leave their places, and for this purpose a large number of warrants have been taken out. Several companies of the State militia, aggregating probably six hundred men, are under arms at the principal points throughout the district, and will go to the assistance of the Sheriff's officers if they are resisted when serving the warrants. The evictions will begin to-day.

THEY ASK CLEMENCY.

The Anarchists Petition the Governor—Preparations for the Execution.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The condemned Anarchists failed in their efforts to invoke the law, which they profess to despise, in their favor. Their only hope now is the clemency of the executive. Three of them, Lingg, Engel and Fischer, sent letters to Gov. Oglesby renouncing his clemency, and demanding liberty or death. In their letters they reiterate the cause which led them to assume an attitude of hostility towards society, amongst which are the poverty of the masses and the corruption of state and municipal officials.

The one topic of conversation and all absorbing thought of the Anarchists and their friends yesterday was what the morrow would bring forth. As Nov. 11 approaches their conversations are each day carried on in lower tones and with a growing suspicion that some one may be eavesdropping. It is quite likely that Sheriff Maston will permit the families of the condemned men to have private interviews with them.

On Nov. 11, if the execution of the Anarchists takes place, all traffic within one block of the Criminal Court building will be rigidly prohibited, except on Clarke street. Cordons of police, assisted by the militia, will form solid columns along the intersecting streets, and to all except actual residents in this locality passage through the lines will be impossible during that day.

Already many requests for passes to witness the execution have been requested of Sheriff Matson, but in all cases they have been refused.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—August Spies, Samuel Fielden and Nicholas Schwab signed a petition this afternoon humbly begging the Governor to commute their sentences. The signatures of Fielden and Schwab were secured this morning by Captain Black and L. D. Oliver, who visited the prisoners at the jail and had a private conference with them. All sorts of entreaties were adopted to get Spies to sign the petition, but he resolutely refused to do so, as did also Engel, Fisher and Parsons. At 3.30 p.m. the same petitions were brought to the jail and Spies weakened. The others, however, still refused to sign.

DEATH OF JUSTICE O'CONNOR.

His Lordship Dies Suddenly of Hemorrhage at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Nov. 3.—The Hon. John O'Connor, Judge of the High Court of Justice, died here at about one o'clock to-day. His Lordship presided at the Court here on Monday and Tuesday, but on Tuesday night he became ill with hemorrhage of the stomach. Judge Benson took his place on the bench, and although Justice O'Connor was attended by a local physician and two Toronto doctors, he continued to sink until he expired. Mrs. O'Connor was with him when he died.

The deceased Judge was descended from two distinct families of the O'Connors of Kerry, Ireland, his father and mother both being O'Connors, though not related within known degrees of kindred. They emigrated to America and settled in Boston, Mass. Judge O'Connor was born at Boston in January, 1824. He came to Essex with his parents in 1828 and was educated there. He married, in April, 1849, Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. Richard Barrett, late of Killarney, Ireland. He was called to the bar of Upper Canada in 1854, and was a member of the Michigan bar. He was appointed a Queen Counsel in 1873. He has been Reeve of the town of Windsor, Warden of Essex County for three years, and for twelve years fulfilled the duties of Chairman of the Windsor Board of Education. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Essex in the Legislative Assembly in 1861, but was elected and sat for a short period in 1863. He was returned for the Commons for Essex at the general elections of 1867 and 1872, and for Russell in 1878. He first entered the Dominion Cabinet as President of the Council on July 2nd, 1872, and filled the offices of Minister of Inland Revenue and Postmaster General, resigning with the Sir John Macdonald Government on Nov. 5th, 1873. On the defeat of the Mackenzie Administraton he again became President of the Council, and subsequently Postmaster General and Secretary of State. He resigned in May, 1882, and was appointed a Commissioner to consolidate the Statutes of Canada, and was raised to the bench as a Judge of the High Court of Justice, Ontario, on Sept. 11th, 1884.

THE CROW INDIAN TROUBLE.

Sitting Bull with Six Thousand Sioux in League with the Crows.

BISMARCK, Dak., Nov. 3.—It is reported that the 200 Crow Indians who escaped from the soldiers near Custer are now on the war-path, and that the soldiers in Montana are preparing as best they can for a defence. Sitting Bull is now at Standing Rock with over 6,000 Sioux, and he is said to be sure to be in league with the Crows. People west of the Missouri are anxious that Fort Lincoln, five miles south of here, be given more troops. At present there are only five companies at the post, and as this would be the post from which the first check could be put upon the outbreak from Standing Rock, it is essential that a good force of troops be stationed here. A strong effort will be made to have additional troops sent at once, notwithstanding the report that Fort Lincoln will be abandoned. Western settlers complain against the policy of the Government in centralizing the soldiers at Eastern dress parade posts, while a few scattering companies are left around the Indian agencies to protect the people against thousands of Indians, who never forget an imagined wrong and are always ready for blood.

CROW AGENCY, Mont., Nov. 3—Indian scouts report that two white men were killed on Rosebud Creek yesterday.

The people's best friend is Perry Davis' Pain-Killer, because it is ever ready to alleviate suffering.

PRESERVE THE GROUNDS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I wish to draw the attention of the managers of the Court House Park to the damage already done the grounds by the scholars of the Public School and others, who, in crossing the park, make a pathway along the margin of the walks, breaking down the edges, killing the grass, and trampling over the beds which had been carefully dressed up for fall.

The damage done last year to these grounds by a similar easy going style of management must have cost in the neighborhood of $75 or $100 of the public money to repair.

That experience ought to have been sufficient for the gentlemen who have it under their care, not one of whom would have allowed the same condition of things to continue on their own grounds for one hour.

I would suggest as a remedy the placing of wire fencing at the various approaches to the park for the fall and winter, the posting of notices at these various points, forbidding the crossing of the grounds, and an official intimation to the heads of the public and grammar schools, urging them to assist in the preservation of this beautiful spot by enforcing or emphasizing the wishes of the park authorities, and lastly, by extending the beat of the police to and around the square at certain hours of the day, with instructions to take charge of offenders.

It appears to me that the outlay of $10 or $12 in the manner indicated, together with something like reasonable precautions, would prevent its destruction by the young Goths and Vandals who daily gratify their tastes by trampling over it.

Yours truly,
G R. OWLER.

Peterborough, Nov. 3, 1887.

Danger in Flour Dust.

Be careful in handling naked lights around bolting chests. Not long ago a correspondent entered a mill and found the miller searching for his hair, eyebrows and beard. He was inspecting a bolting chest, using an unprotected light to illuminate the interior. No sooner was the light thrust into the chest than the miller was startled by a flash and shock. When he picked himself up his head was as bald as a celluloid billiard ball and his flowing beard was floating around the mill in gaseous form, sensible only to the nose. Fortunately the fire did not spread and the accident was not reported.—Milling World.

At a Dress Rehearsal.

Prompter (to leader of supers at dress rehearsal of the stirring Roman drama "Right Against Might")—Now are you all right with the cue?

Leader—I am so, sir. Whin the man in the sheet (toga?) hollers to the gurrul——

Prompter—The girl!

Leader—"Katy Field," we get ready, and whin he sings out "Rum and Crackers"——

Prompter (frantic)—"Catiff yield," "Rome and Gracchus," stupid!

Leader—Jesso, sir—we are to go for the chap in the brass wistcoat.

An Artful Shopper.

A woman entered a dry goods store and approached one of the clerks. "Please do these up," she said, handing him two old newspapers.

He looked surprised, and she explained: "I ain't out on a reg'lar shopping tower, and ain't a-goin' to buy anything; but there's that Mrs. Simpson, that has half of our pew at church, just loaded down with bundles. She'll never know the difference."

As the clerk was tying up the newspapers she said in a low voice:

"Make it look as much like a silk dress pattern as you can, mister; it'll worry her more."—Detroit Free Press.

Farmer and Lawyer.

A New Jersey farmer makes it a practice to thrash his lawyer every time he loses a case for him, and the way that attorney gets up and melts court and jury with his plea calls in a crowd from all over the country.—Detroit Free Press.

Batterymen for British Columbia.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 3.—Orders were received here last night for the contingent of of "A" Battery to compose "C" Battery, Victoria, B.C., to leave on Saturday. About fifty gunners and officers leave. Some take their families along. At Renfrew the batterymen will join the detachment from Quebec and proceed westward.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—An explosion of fire damp occurred this morning in a lead mine at Matlock, County of Derby. Twenty-five men were in the pit at the time. Five dead bodies have been recovered.

STRIKE OF MINERS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 3.—Sixteen hundred miners have struck work in the Boring district. A renewal of the rioting is feared.

ALLEGED SECRET CIRCULAR.

DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—United Ireland asserts that a secret circular was issued by the police authorities to the forces at Mitchelltown before the meeting on the 9th of Sept., at which the police fired on the people, urging the vigorous suppression of all Nationalist meetings and instructing the police not to give way to or compromise with the League.

SALISBURY'S OPINION.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Lord Salisbury, acknowledging the receipt of a resolution of sympathy from the electors of Toxteth, says that he is glad to receive resolutions deprecating the deplorable efforts of Mr. Gladstone and his friends in support of organizations for lawlessness and crime.

RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Home Rule Union of London has adopted a resolution expressing sympathy with Wilfred Blunt and Wm. O'Brien, and has resolved to continue the agitation in Ireland with the aid of English speakers.

UNDER THE CRIMES ACT.

DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—Thirty persons have been summoned under the Crimes Act in Ballyhaunis to answer charges in connection with evictions. A majority of those summoned are young girls. Messrs. Pyne and Gilhooly, Nationalist members of Parliament, have also been summoned, the former for inciting resistance to the bailiffs at an eviction at Scrahan and the latter for advocating a boycott at a League meeting at Sohul.

GERMANY AND TURKEY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3.—The Porte has displayed some uneasiness concerning the recent interview between Prime Bismarck, in consequence of the view attributed to Italy in regard to Tripoli, and Prince Bismarck, in order to quiet this apprehension, assured the Sultan that Germany will never share either morally or materially of Turkey.

HUGHES-HALLETT HISSED.

LONDON, Nov 3.—Col. Hughes-Hallett was present this evening at the Licensed Victuallers' dinner at Chatham. This was the first time he had appeared in public since the publication of charges concerning his relations with Miss Selwyn. A number of persons in the gallery showed their disapproval of his presence by hissing. The offenders were ejected after an exciting struggle.

O'BRIEN IN PRISON.

DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—The cell in Tullamore gaol which Mr. O'Brien has been placed in is eight feet long and six feet wide. He slept last night on a plank bed. He has given warning to the governor of the gaol that he will refuse to do menial offices, wear the prison garb or associate with criminals. The governor will await official notification before enforcing the decision that Mr. O'Brien should be treated as any ordinary prisoner. Mr. O'Brien is in cheerful spirits. He still wears civilian's clothes.

SULLIVAN'S NEW OPERA.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Sir Arthur Sullivan is at work on a new opera entitled "Mary Stuart."

MRS. GLADSTONE'S NARROW ESCAPE.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The storm of Tuesday did considerable damage at Hawarden and in the surrounding district. Mrs. Gladstone had a narrow escape from being struck by a tree that fell across the road immediately after she had driven past in her carriage.

DONGOLA TO BE REOCCUPIED.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Fakeel of Dongola, who is now in Cairo, has offered to reoccupy Dongola with the help of friendly tribes if the Egyptian Government will provide the arms and a subsidy of £40,000. The offer has been accepted.

MR. BALFOUR THREATENED.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—It is reported that Mr. Balfour has received letters threatening assassination unless Mr. O'Brien is immediately released and unless the constables responsible for the Mitchellstown murders are punished.

Supposed Loss of a Schooner.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 3.—There seems to be not the slightest hope that the English schooner Belle of Devon, Capt. Hoskins, will ever be heard from. She was chartered by John Stirling and left Sydney with a load of coal for this port on the 22nd of August, and not a trace of her has been seen since. It is more than probable that she foundered in the gale on the 26th of the same month.

INTER-IMPERIAL TRADE.

In English politics Fair Trade means a change in the fiscal policy of the nation with a view to protection of home industries. It is similar in purpose to the National Policy movement in Canada which resulted in the adoption of protection. It is not long since the people began to speak of Fair Trade, but the idea is spreading and taking hold. They see the manufacturers of other countries, some of them assisted by their governments, sending goods into England, while English workmen are idle. The discontent is not confined to the centres of population, for the agricultural community is far from prosperous. The great grain producing acres of America, India and other countries pour their products into the English markets, and, while England does not and will not raise enough to supply itself, the quantities imported keep down the prices. A Peterborough gentleman who not long ago returned from England—and not a protectionist—said that he found a feeling existed, in the town and among agriculturists in the places he visited, in favor of protection, and he was informed that it was gathering force. It is not among the improbabilities that even England will be compelled to drop its adherence to strictly free trade principles.

A cable despatch says that on November 2nd a large conference of fair traders was held in London. The imposition of a duty on all foreign manufactures was advocated and upon that question there seems to have been a unanimity of opinion, though there was a difference of view regarding the proposal to tax wheat. This is where one of the difficulties of the Fair Traders will arise. The workmen of the towns will be willing to receive the benefits of protection, but some will object to a tax upon wheat; while it may be that among the agriculturists an exactly opposite opinion will find expression, especially when the free traders begin to try to set the one class against the other for political purposes. The efforts of the fair traders should be directed towards demonstrating to the people that their interests are interwoven and that the welfare of the country depends upon the prosperity of all.

But, say some Canadian newspapers, if England adopts protection, will it not injure Canada? In answer, th ir attention is directed to the following extract from the same account of the London meeting:—

"Wm. Farrer Ecroyd, a prominent leader in the movement and a late member of Parliament, wrote urging that no attempt should be made to control or bias the colonies in regard to their general policy as to the taxation of imports, but that they should simply ask for deferential treatment for the Mother Country and the dependencies at their hands. This view was generally shared by the conference."

That extract deserves to be thought over. The idea cannot receive too much consideration from Canadians and Englishmen. It embodies the principle of inter-Imperial trade. Each colony, and the Mother Country, would under this system retain control of its own tariff, yet each part of the Empire would give preference to—would discriminate in favor of—the other parts of the Empire. To put it more plainly, if this system was adopted Canadian wheat would have an advantage in the English markets over the United States and Russian wheat, and English manufactures would have an advantage in Canadian markets over those of any foreign country, while at the same time Canada would be perfectly free to protect her industries just as she is now. The policy of inter-Imperial trade would greatly benefit Canada, it would materially benefit every section of the British dominions, and it would tend to solidify the Empire. It is gratifying to know that the idea is being brought before the people of the Mother Country and that those who favor fair trade have united with it a movement in favor of inter-Imperial trade.

"SHALL we vainly struggle to perpetuate the delusion that Canada is on the other side of 3,000 miles of water?" asks the Globe. No one should ask it to do so. The Globe has been engaged and is still wrestling in so many vain struggles, that it should let this delusion, if it exists, die a natural and unlamented death.

UNITED STATES papers comment on the fact that Mr. Blaine, at a banquet in Paris, was constrained to drink the health of President Cleveland, which was proposed by the Chairman. Why not? Differences of opinion on political matters should not obliterate all humanity or fellow feeling.

SINCE the meeting of members of the Provincial Governments at Quebec the request that the Fisheries Commissioners should make public what they do has not been renewed.

Hundreds of persons who have used Ayer's Hair Vigor attest its value, as a stimulant and tonic, for preventing and curing baldness, cleansing the scalp, and restoring the youthful color to faded and gray hair.

Governor Swineford's statement in his annual report on the territory of Alaska that Mr. Ogilvie, one of the members of the Yukon expedition, claims that Shitando River, or Forty Mile creek, is in British territory is authoritatively declared totally incorrect, Mr. Ogilvie not having reached Shitando River when last heard from.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

In Old Kentucky Days.

In general the laws were perhaps the mildest. Some it is vital to the subject in hand not to pass over. If slaves were inhumanly treated by their owner or not supplied with proper food and clothing, they could be taken from him and sold to a better master. This law was not inoperative. I have in mind the instance of a family who lost their negroes in this way, were socially disgraced, and left their neighborhood. If the owner of a slave had bought him on condition of not selling him out of the county, or into the southern states, or so as to separate him from his family, he could be sued for violation of contract. This law shows the opposition of the better class of Kentucky masters to the slave trade, and their peculiar regard for the family ties of their negroes.

In the earliest Kentucky newspapers will be found advertisements of the sales of negroes on condition that they would be bought and kept within the county or the state. It was within chancery jurisdiction to prevent the separation of families. The case may be mentioned of a master who was tried by his church for unnecessarily separating a husband from his wife. Sometimes slaves who had been liberated and had gone to Canada voluntarily returned into service under their former masters. Lest these should be overreached they were to be taken aside and examined by the court to see that they understood the consequences of their own action and were free from improper contraint. On the other hand, if a slave had a right to his freedom he could file a bill in chancery and enforce his master's assent thereto.—James Lane Allen in The Century.

Inventor Edison's Method of Fun.

A reporter casually met Mr. Edison this week, and he happened to be in more than his usually jolly mood—and by the way he is apparently in the ruddiest health and best of spirits. To the inquiry if he had anything new Mr. Edison replied:

"Yes, I have made a fresh discovery of no little importance—a great advance in electric art—tested its practicability and realized success, but I will not name it now. Heretofore when I have invented or discovered something and published its details the scientific papers have soon after teemed with announcements of anticipations, prior experiments, hints about piracy and stolen thunder, etc. According to these I have never produced a prototype, nothing but poor, miserable little antitypes. Now, this time I'm going to have some fun with the boys. My new discovery is fully recorded, but I will not publish it for six months! You may give this formal notice, so that the bibliophiles and prior inventors may have the first chance, with lots of time to get the laugh on me. As the oil men say, I'm down to the 'oil sand,' but propose to plug the well and hold it as a 'mystery' for six months. If, meantime, no claimant appears with a full description of the 'mystery' I'll draw the plug, and I think, I'll be entitled to nail my sign on that property."—Electrical Review.

Tricks for the Old Time Clown.

Here's a book I found with some of the ancient wheezes in it:

"After the first equestrian turn the clown may say, 'Now I'll have a turn myself,' and then roll over like a coach wheel. Fall upon the ground, pick up sawdust, let it trickle down your face and say, 'My nose bleeds.' Pick up a piece of straw for fear of falling over it, then balance it on your chin. When the ringmaster says 'I never follow a fool,' let him go first, and then say, 'Then I do.' Tell the groom when he takes the horse away to rub it down with cabbage puddings. A good speech to learn to address to the ringmaster: 'If you please, sir, he says that you said that I said that they said that nobody said nothing to nobody.'"

They sound childish, don't they? But not one of them striped things ever failed to make people laugh. There are lots more of the same kind, but I won't read them.—Circus Man in New York Star.

A Lawyer Applies for a Pension.

An Indiana soldier, who has an application for a pension pending, in an affidavit relates the circumstances under which the injury was incurred as follows: "That while in line of duty in front of Petersburg, Va., while on skirmish line, by the gross carelessness and immoral conduct of the enemy and without fault on his part, he then and there, in the year 1865, by the gross and willful carelessness of the Confederate troops, was shot and wounded through the right forearm by said Confederate troops to his perpetual damage."—Washington Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Practice Makes Perfect.

Cowardice of Carnivorous Animals.

The prevalent idea entertained by those not familiar with the real nature of our large carnivorous quadrupeds, believing their instinctive ferocity impels them to assault every person they meet, is not sustained by practical experience. Those animals appear much more formidable in the distance than when approached in their native wilds.

But few eastern sportsmen would, it is believed, voluntarily attack a bear, wolf or panther, yet I have seen and killed many of those animals, and not one of them ever turned upon me. And in further corroboration of this, my guide, "Little Bat," who has during his lifetime killed over eighty grizzlies, assured me that all he ever met with invariably ran from him.

So confident was he of his ability to cope with these much dreaded monsters that he did not hesitate to hunt them when alone and on foot, and only two years ago he encountered four grizzlies eating a dead elk upon Casper mountains, when he crawled to within short rifle range and shot every one of them without moving from his tracks; and upon another occasion, while we were hunting in the valley of the Big Horn, he went out alone during a moonlight night and shot two grizzlies from behind a tree.

Panthers and wolves are most arrant cowards, and the traditional story of Gen. Putnam having performed an extraordinary feat of courage, by entering a cave and shooting a wolf, is supremely laughable when contrasted with the fact that my wife, upon one occasion, in the night time at a frontier post, when a large black wolf had purloined one of her turkeys and was dragging it off, hurried out with a stick and made him drop the bird and run away.—Brig. Gen. Randolph B. Marcy in Outing.

Headway Volapuk Is Making.

Volapuk, the new universal language, is making steady headway. The Volapukists held their grand international congress a few days ago at Munich, and most of the countries of Europe sent representatives. The good repute of America for enlightened curiosity was saved by one gentlemen from Cincinnati. Pasteur Schleyer, the inventor of the language, took the chair in the name of the associations of France. He explained that Volapuk was not meant to suppress other tongues, but only to supply a new one for the common purposes of all mankind, and in particular for the promotion of universal brotherhood.

The inventor hopes to induce the German government to admit Volapuk to the list of languages transmissable by telegraph within the empire. In Denmark it has been officially recommended to telegraph clerks as a subject of study. The best augury for its spread in France lies in the fact that Berlin takes no interest in it, inasmuch as that city was not represented at the congress. Englishmen ought to look upon Volapuk with a kindly eye, as most of its borrowings from the Germanic languages are taken from their own tongue. The characteristically English phrase, "How much money have you?" must, we regret to say, be rendered in Volapuk by "Moni limodik labols."—London News.

A Provident Daughter.

In a good old western Massachusetts town lives a doctor who has buried four wives. When number four was a bride of a few days she went with her oldest stepdaughter into the attic to find an ironing board. Seeing a board that she thought would answer her purpose nicely, she was about to take it, when the daughter exclaimed:

"Oh, don't take that, for that is what father uses to lay out his wives on!"—Boston Transcript.

CURLING AND SKATING RINK CO.—The annual meeting of the Keene C. and S. R Co., was held on Monday evening last, when the old directors were re-elected.

LECTURES—Prof. Kent gave two very interesting and instructive lectures on Monday and Tuesday evenings. He showed a very deep knowledge of his favorite study, Electricity. He was ably assisted by Miss Iva Kent, who rendered a number of recitations in a very fine style.

HALLOW-E'EN.—Hallow-E'en was celebrated in this locality by dancing, etc. The small boys indulged in a few pranks.

SPORT.—The duck shooting has been a failure this year.

BUSINESS.—Butter and pork are arriving in large quantities.

The Cattle Trade.

The Montreal Gazette's Liverpool correspondent writes on Oct. 22nd as follows:—Writing with the fuller knowledge of our live stock markets that a personal attendance gives, I am satisfied that the lowest point has not yet been touched. My cable on Monday, quoting 10c. for best Canadians, was as near the fact as could be, seeing that the stock got on the market about mid-day, when most of the buyers had been filled up, and those who remained did so in the hope of picking up a thief's bargain. As it was, probably, one or two small transactions might come under that category, but on the whole, where 10c. was made, it was every farthing the cattle were worth. Our exporters used to have some pride in shipping good stock, but nowadays they are satisfied to send on anything with skin and hair about it. Men will do a lot for money, and my honest opinion is that these mean cattle are making money. If they are not, why do they ship them and pay freight at the rate of 40s. to 50s. a head? Over and over again the cables you have received pointed out the fact that the markets were glutted with half-meated cattle.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver a misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

The Maple Leaf.

Mr. Cassius W. Beale is in possession of a maple leaf, sent to him by his uncle from Vancouver, B.C. It does credit to Canada's emblem. It is eighte-n inches in length and fifteen inches broad.

Coal.

The freight rates on coal have advanced 30 cents per ton; and yet the Peterborough philanthropists are selling it at the same rates as formerly. It is quite probable that a raise of 50 cents per ton will be made.

Partridges.

Messrs. Wm. Langford and J. D. Craig went out towards Warsaw to shoot partridges on Thursday. They came back with the statement that the Warsaw stage would bring in the load—they were unable to carry home the spoils. This, of course, is given without an attempt to prevaricate.

The Canton Concert.

Mr. J. B. King, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I. O. O. F., and Mrs. King, have accepted an invitation to be present at the grand entertainment which will be given in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, under the auspices of Canton Peterborough, No. 10, P. M. During their stay in Peterborough Mr. and Mrs. King will be the guests of His Worship Mayor Stevenson.

Art.

Mr. H. LeBrun has received the prize drawn by him in the art drawing under the auspices of the Royal Association of Scotland for the Advancement of Art. It is an oil painting by Mr. Alex. G. Sinclair, entitled "Scant Pasturage." It depicts a flock of sheep in search of food. Beside "Scant Pasturage" is the prize drawn from the Art Union, a very handsome harbour scene. The former is valued at $100 and the latter at $200.

Runaway.

A team of farm horses which were left standing at the market without being tied, started off with the waggon and rattled away up Water street. At Hunter street they turned and went off toward Ashburnham. Results, knocking down tree boxes and doing other damage. They smashed a big chunk of coal into fragments which was outside of Mr. Stevenson's office as a sign. Mr. Stevenson is of the opinion that a man who leaves his team standing without being tied should be brought up before he court and punished.

The Way They Do It.

The Toledo men who were here yesterday report that their city supplies manufacturers all the gas they want for motive power lighting and heating, for nothing. For nothing, just think of that! But there is a secret in it. It does not cost the city one cent for their being so magnanimous. A natural gas well was found not long ago a short distance from the city. The municipal authorities met and decided to lay pipes and light the place with natural gas, instead of paying the gas company to make it. The saving they effect by lighting the city on their own account is so great that it pays for all expenses in laying pipe, etc., and they can afford to give away what they don't want.

PROFITS BY HIS LABOR.

MR. W. F. COCHRANE SELLS OUT HIS RIGHT

Of Manufacturing His New Roller Mill in the United States to an American Company for $200,000.

On Wednesday and Thursday a delegation appointed by the Toledo, Ohio, Business Men's Association, were at Messrs. Meldrum, Davidson & Co's Mill to inspect the new roller process mill at present in operation there. The delegation consisted of Messrs. J. A. Stitzel, L N. Quale, Milton Churchill, R. B. Mitchell, Sam T. Fisk and Jas. M. Brown. Their business here is explained by the following clipping from the Toledo Commercial of Oct. 26th:—

"Last night was held the most important meeting ever held by the Toledo Business Men's Association. In response to the postal circular sent out calling attention to the object of the meeting about one hundred substantial Toledo business men assembled at the room of the Real Estate Exchange in the Boody House. The real object of the meeting was to listen to a business proposition from Mr Wm. F. Cochrane in regard to the stocking and establishment of a company to control patents and manufacture under them for the entire United States.

"Mr. Cochrane then in a straightforward, business-like manner laid before the committee his proposition. He has patented a rolling mill process which is claimed to eclipse anything of the kind now in use. He came to Toledo at the request of a friend to show what he had, and it is a tremendous enterprise. He has just stocked a company in Canada to control his patents and manufacture under them for that country and England. What he want to do here is to stock a company for $400,000 to control the manufacture under the pateats in the United States, the factory to be located in Toledo. His patents cover the manufacture of his rolling mill process, under which he agrees to prove that he can drive mills 25 per cent. cheaper than under any other process in use, to make a higher percentage of middlings and sell the mills at about one-half of the price of others. He now has a mill in operation in Peterborough, Canada, and submitted proofs of experts from the United States, to writing, that his mill does all he claims for it and more. He is making there 92 and 93 per cent. of clear, bright flour from Manitoba spring wheat. He can build one of these mills, with seven double sets of rolls and driving machinery, ready for operation, at a cost not to exceed $1,100 and sell for $2 300 or more. Other mills are now selling at about $1,500. He wants a company with a capital stock of $400,000, half of the stock to be given to him, and he in return to turn his patents for the United States over to the company.

"Mr. Fuller, of Hamilton, Ont., was introduced by Mr. J. M. Brown as one of the leading, reliable attorneys of Canada. He is President of the Canadian Milling Company, that controls the patents in Canada. He substantiated all of Mr. Cochrane's statements and said that his syndicate had only made a contract with Mr Cochrane after a thorough investigation by experts of the the mill in operation. He had been furnished proof that the mill was the best in existence, fully protected by patents and could revolutionize the milling business.

"The matter in all its details was thoroughly discussed and the two gentlemen answered all questions put. They stated that there were from 15,000 to 20,000 mills in operation in the United States which would be compelled to use this mill or be driven out by those who did. The capital was to be used only as needed, and the machinery and buildings would cost about $55,000 to start with. They asked that a committee be appointed to visit the mill in operation at Peterborough and report to the association."

The committee made a thorough examination of the mill, and were fully satisfied with it. Mr. Fisk, one of the prominent Toledo citizens, stated that then and there he would subscribe one-fifth of the capital, and give seven acres of land in the city of Toledo for a site for the new factory. It was agreed to give Mr. Cochrane $200,000 paid up capital stock in the new factory. A practical miller, one of the delegation, wanted to see a practical test. He did not think the mill was grinding at a higher rate than 120 barrels. A two-hour test was made, and it was found that the mill was turning out the flour at a higher rate than 200 barrels per day.

THE NEW MILL.

The new roller process invented by Mr. W. F. Cochrane, is certainly a valuable acquisition to the flouring industry, possessing, as it does, many advantages over the present roller process. The first advantage it has is that it can be driven with a third less power, and can do almost twice as much work with the same number of rolls. In a 120 barrel mill it takes only one 6¾ in. belt to drive it, whereas the present system requires 14 6¾ inch belts, with a l attendant pulleys, shafts, tightners, bridging and gears. What it required fifty-six pulleys to do, three now does the work. Three feet of shafting in this mill does the work of fifty-eight feet in other mills. The second advantage is, that while it saves a large amount in motive power, it increases the capacity of the mill to nearly twice its former capacity, even with using the old rolls. The third advantage is its cheapness of construction. It can be built for one-half the cost other roller process mills can be built for. The fourth advantage is, that the belt tension, not being on alternate rolls, as in the old system, but on one pulley only, the rolls are kept in tram with perfect uniformity. This gives an evener granulation, a higher proportion of middlings, more patent flour and greater profit to the miller. There is one more advantage. In other roller mills the feed rolls and the speed rolls are not uniform. Thus, if a belt slips and the speed rolls slacken in speed, the feed roll still continues pouring down the usual quantity. The consequence is that the speed roll is over burdened, the succeeding rolls are also given to much work, and a large part of the flour goes to enrich the bran bin. In this mill the slightest variation, so much as one revolution, occurring in the speed roll, is transmitted to the feed roll instantly.

THE INVENTOR.

Mr. W. F. Cochrane is a Scotchman, his birthplace being Haden, near Galashiels, in the land of the heather. His natural aptitude to invent was increased by attendance at the Edinburgh technical school. He crossed the Atlantic twenty-five years ago and went to Washington, D. C. Since that time he has been prolific in invention giving to the people dozens of labor saving machines. He is a patent expert and has managed some important cases. About three years ago he acted in behalf of the Canadian Agricultural Implement Manufacturers in their defence against the Chicago Syndicate which sought to prevent them from manufacturing self binders. The case was won by the Canadians. He practises patent law in the United States, being a member of the firm of Church, Church & Co., Washington. Five years ago he commenced to develop the invention which has brought him in such large returns. Mr. Meldrum being a personal friend of the inventor the mill was tested here, the inventor knowing that it would get a good trial. Mr. Cochrane has sold the right of manufacture in the United States for $200,000, but reserves the right to manufacture in Canada, Great Britain, France, Germany and Russia, in which places he is taking out patents.

Local Brevities.

—The work on the hall of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F., will be finished this week or next.

—The Uxbridge Guardian says:—"Mr. James Low, of Peterborough, and Mr. Alex Low, Stouffville, were in town Wednesday, attending the wedding of their brother William, to Miss McGuire. The happy pair were serenaded by the band, on their departure for Toronto in the evening."

—Belleville Intelligencer:—"The Peterborough Board of Education has bounced the Ross Bible. The authorized version of the scriptures will be used in the public schools of that town, the teacher making the selections. This is in accord with a wish expressed by a deputation from the Ministerial Association." The authorized selections will still be used in the schools in the evening. The Bible will be used at the opening of the school, the children having the Book in their hands, and the selections will be the home readings of the International Sunday School series.

—A new door is being put into the residence of Dr. Fife, to replace the one damaged by the fire set by incendiaries a few nights ago.

—The Peterborough Business College never had so many pupils attending it as it now has. The Principal thinks he will soon have to provide extra accommodation.

—Mr. Valancey Fuller was here yesterday, but he didn't talk any Commercial Union. The people here don't take any interest in such visionary stuff. Mr. Fuller is largely interested in the Cochrane new process mill and was here on business connected with it.

—G. R. Owler in another column complains of children and others walking on the grass in the Court House Park. At noon to-day he could have seen more than one scholar going to school showing contempt for the walks by taking to the grass at the side of the paths.

—The probabilities are that the largest number of staff officers ever assembled together in Canada will be present at the Canton concert on Tuesday next. So far no refusals have been received to the invitations sent out.

—"Can you," asks the Toronto News, "write poetry?" Dears News, in reply to yours of the 3rd, we can write poetry, but, my boy, if we know what's good for us—and we think we do—we won't.

—Here is an opportunity. A beautiful Texas pony, now at Connor's livery stable, George Street, is for sale. Go and see it if you wish to buy. 1d.

Official Visit.

Right Worthy Bro. B. Shortly, D. D. G M., paid an official visit to Lorne Lodge No. 375 on Thursday evening. He was accompanied by his Secretary, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, and W. Bro. H. Rush, W. Bro Wm. Brundrette, W. Bro. Geo. McWilliams. W. Bro. D. Belleghem, W. Bro. Jas. Alexander, and W. Bro. Wm. Thompson. There was a large attendance of the brethren present at the meeting of the Lodge. The inspection was duly performed and the visitors were handsomely entertained in the anti-room after the ceremony was over. The District Deputy Grand Master says that he is highly satisfied with the condition of Lorne Lodge. It is in a good financial state, its officers are efficient, the membership is large and the hall is comfortable. There is good reason to believe, he says, that Lorne Lodge will continue to flourish. The visiting brethern returned from Omemee at 3 o'clock this morning.

Do not fail to hear Jerold Arlington Cook in his celebrated lecture, Masters of the Situation, to-night in George St. Church.

Personal.

Mr. A. Wilson, of the firm of Wilson & Morrison, was taken ill at Belleville on Friday, and has returned home. He is now confined to his bed.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, Inspector of Weights and Measures, returned from Ottawa this morning and proceeded to Belleville by way of Port Hope.

Mr. D. L. Canan, Passenger Agent for the Rock Island and Pacific railway, was in town on Thursday.

Mr. J. M. Bastedo, Travelling Agent for the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fee railway was here on Thursay.

The Rev. Father Quirk, of Hastings, is in town to-day.

The Rev. Father O'Brien, who was appointed to take Father McEvay's place in Fenelon Falls, has been in town during the last few days. He will return to Fenelon Falls this evening.

The Rev. J. B Chapsham, of Grandy, P. Q., is registered at the Grand Central Hotel

Windy.

The wind blew in gusts this afternoon so strong that Mr. E. C. Hill, the bill poster, was compelled to quit work.

A Bad Boy.

Acting Chief Adams is away from town to-day. He took a refractory boy to Toronto, where he will be taken care of in one of the institutions for correcting turbulent spirits.

Lectures to Young Men.

Arrangements are being completed by the committee of the local Y. M. C. A. to have Mr. S. H. Blake, Q. C., and Mr. S. Coldecott, President of the Toronto Y. M. C. A., deliver two lectures to young men. The date arranged for is November 20th. Fuller announcements will be made.

GRAPES by the ton. Last shipment just received. Good winter grapes. Try them At LONG BROS.

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind that the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d108eod

EDITOR O'BRIEN is in prison, Chamberlain is coming to America, and KIDD is selling the best boot in town. Try it!

Reports.

Miss Mary Allen gave a report of the business done at the recent meeting of Sunday School workers held in London, Ontario, a short time ago, at a meeting of the teachers of the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School, on Thursday evening. Miss Tucker reported to the St. Paul's Church Sunday School teachers on Wednesday evening.

Real Estate.

The following properties were put up for sale by Mr. C. E. Starr, at the Grand Central Hotel on Thursday afternoon:—A terrace on the corner of George and London street, a house on Union street, and a blacksmith shop and house on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets. Owing to insufficient bidding the properties were all withdrawn.

A great treat is in store for those who love the bright and intellectual in the lecture to night by Jerold Arlington Cook, of New Orleans, at George Street Church.

PETERBOROUGH should be a city, now that KIDD is selling boots at and BELOW city prices.

Building a Dam.

Mr. Eakins came to town from the north to-day for apparatus to be used in building a dam which is being constructed by the Dickson Company ten miles north of Minden. The dam will be twenty feet high and forty feet across, though not regular in shape. It is in a beaver marsh, and the men working at it do not wish for more rain till it is completed, as they are now bothered with water.

LADIES! you will find TURNBULL'S the right house to buy yarns of all shades at Right Prices.

Typhoid Fever.

A wrong impression may have been conveyed by an item in the REVIEW a day or two ago in regard to a case of typhoid fever at the Nicholls Hospital. Mr. Willie Aldwell is under treatment for typhoid fever, and his brother, who had left Chatham on sick leave, being ill with malarial fever learning that his brother was in the hospital here, came on to be nursed in the same institution, but he has not typhoid fever Miss Dalby, the Superintendent of the hospital, says that typhoid fever is not infectious.

YARNS a specialty at TURNBULL'S. All kinds now in stock at Right Prices.

Resignation of Judge Clark.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—It is learned that the application for superannuation of Judge Clark, of Cobourg, has been received by the Government. There is little doubt but that the request will be granted. Judge Clark retires from the bench to accept the solicitorship of the Canadian Pacific railway at a salary, it is stated, of fifteen thousand a year. Those acquainted with Judge Clark will recognize the fitness of the appointment, he having an extended experience in railway matters. He was a member of the Canadian Pacific Railway Commission in 1880, and of the International Claims Commission of 1883.

Building Sites and Choosing Houses.

In selecting a house, or a site for a new one, remember that where the sun will shine on the house for some hours a day, one element of good is secured, especially if the sunshine enters at the windows of the living rooms or rooms most used during the daytime. After this aspect has been found to be suitable, and that a plentiful supply of sun and air is insured, attention should be given to the general position and construction of the house.

If the ground is at all porous, a layer of concrete not less than six inches thick, and composed of cement or lime and broken bricks or gravel, should be spread over the whole of the ground covered by the building. This will prevent the passage of ground air up through the floors. Air will travel through the ground for some distance, and, as it invariably becomes contaminated by taking up carbonic acid gas in its passage, is not suitable for inhaling. The house acts as a sucker on the ground; and if, unfortunately, the site is one on "made" ground—that is, composed of all the refuse of a town—the ground air becomes the medium of disease. No houses should be built without a well ventilated air space between the earth and the ground floor, especially if the layer of concrete on the surface be omitted.—Chambers' Journal.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1887.

THIS YEAR'S ADVANCE.

Contractors, Architects and Builders Busy.

ABOUT $260,000 IN BUILDINGS.

PROGRESS MADE IN ALL PARTS OF THE TOWN.

More Work for the Assessors—A Creditable Class of Buildings Erected—Factories, Houses, Terraces Built and Hotels Built and Improved.

THE REVIEW has completed the record of the building done this year in Peterborough and it will be gratifying to all to find that the town has made such fair progress.

It was thought at the close of last season by the contractors that this would be a year of rest after the town had taken such a big stride forward in one year. The small amount of building done during the spring and early summer seemed to confirm their opinions. But as the weeks went by the necessities of the time threw a fair amount of work into the hands of all interested in the business, and the amount of building done has footed up handsomely. Last year there was a good deal of money spent church architecture and in public buildings which has not been spent this year. If this amount is left out last year's account, the accounts of last season and this season will about balance, with a slight inclination in favour of last season.

According to the figures collected by the REVIEW there has been about $175,000 invested in building here since the opening of the season. There is a month to elapse before the close of the season and which will, no doubt, be put to good use by the builders. It will not be out of the way to set down the value of this year's operations at $200,000.

The class of dwellings built are commodious. A few handsome terraces have been erected, but the bulk of investment has been in isolated two storey brick houses of quiet though comfortable appearance. A few really handsome residences have been erected.

The industrial interests have not been forgotten. A large addition has been made to the Lock Manufacturing Company's works, a new building has been provided for Law's Bridge and Iron works; a new furniture factory has been erected for the Lindsay-Seldon Co. by the Dickson Co., and Mr. Peter Hamilton's foundry has been largely added to.

The following is a list of the buildings erected this year, with a statement of the approximate cost, together with the names and addresses of the principal contractors:

A NEW EXPLOSIVE.

Interesting Experiments With Emmensite in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—A dozen gentlemen interested in explosive assembled at the home of Dr. Stephen Emmens, corner of Prospect Avenue and one Hundred and Sixty fifth street yesterday, to see some experimens in which Dr. Emmens was assisted County George De Kappelle and by his son Newton Emmens. Dr. Emmens' new explosive is composed of two cheap and easily obtained materials. One is an extract from coal and the other a mineral substance. The mixture may be pounded in a mortar, and neither ingredient separately shows any trace of an explosive nature. Another valuable quality and which is peculiar to Emmensite, as the mixture is called, is that it may be melted and fused into any shape as a solid block or may be granulated in various sizes; consequently, it may be used as either a high or low explosive. According to Dr. Emmens' compilations, it can exert a pressure of 283 tons to the square inch. The next highest pressure is exerted by pure nitro-glycerine, 264 tons. The speed of explosion is greater than that of any other practical explosive except fulminate of mercury. When used in a compact form its highest possibilities of speed are obtained, and it is suitable as a blasting agent. When manufactured in the form of powder the rapidity of explosion is lessened in proportion to the coarseness of the grains, and it may then be employed in fire arms. Yesterday a 32 calibre Smith & Wesson was fired from a distance of sixty feet at an iron plate one-sixteenth of an inch thick with four grains of Emmensite. The ball nearly pierced the plate, while with ten grains of powder the ball made only an indentation. After several interesting experiments the party went into the yard of Dr. Emmens' house. A leaden hemisphere was placed on a rack. Upon this were placed successively 1-ounce cartridges of gun powder explosive, gelatine, dynamite and Emmensite. While the other explosives bent the lead it was shattered by the Emmensite. An iron plate six inches square was then suspended from the branch of a tree. A 1-ounce dynamite cartridge placed on the plate simply bent it, a cartridge of explosive gelatine almost broke it, while the same amount of Emmensite made a hole through the plate as large as a man's fist.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

ANOTHER M. P. IN TROUBLE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—Mr. Cox, M.P., failed to appear to-day at the Ennis Court in answer to a summons for attending proclaimed meetings, and a warrant for his arrest was issued.

M. ROUVIER'S SUCCESS.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The newspapers claim that the passage of the Rentes Conversion bill by the Chamber of Deputies is a victory for the Government. They attribute the Government's success to the support received from the Right, a majority of whom changed front and voted for the bill. Paul de Cassagnac publishes in his paper a statement in explanation of the Right's action, in which he says that that party wished to give the ministry its last lesson on abnegation and loyalty. He says the party will abstain from further disinterestedness. The Journal des Debats asserts that the rupture between the Radicals and the Government is of the acutest nature.

DISPERSED BY THE POLICE.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The police this morning dispersed a meeting of unemployed workingmen which had gathered in Trafalgar square and were listening to an address by a man named Webb. The action of the police was in consequence of complains of shopkeepers in the vicinity, who had complained that their business was being injured by the gatherings of the unemployed, many of their customers being afraid to visit the shops while the demonstrations were in progress. Webb was arrested. The mob made no resistance.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Standard referring to the speech made by Minister Phelps last night at Nottingham, in which he deprecated the fact that there was so much public speaking in England, says he put it in such a nice, alluring form that the average man might be excused for mistaking it for a virtue not to be able to speechify. It, however, Mr. Phelps wants to trace the guilt home, he will find that the track leads to the doors of the great orators of the western continent.

THE CONDEMNED ANARCHISTS.

Three Petitions Asking the Governor of Illinois to Save Them.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Three petitions are being circulated among prominent citizens asking the Governor to save the Anarchists. The first of these includes the names of the seven condemned men, and was signed yesterday by Judge Tuley, Judge Booth, Alderman Manierre, Judas Rosenthal and many others. The second petition does not contain the names of Engel, Fischer and Lingg. It is understood that the first signature obtained to this petition was that of A. S. Bradley. The last petition has only the names of Fielden and Schwab, who are singled out as most likely to be saved, even though the others are not.

THE VERNON DISASTER.

Said to have been Lost Through the Drunkenness of the Captain.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Edgar A. Hall, brother of the second engineer of the Vernon, stated yesterday that the last time his brother was in Chicago he told him that Captain Thorp, master of the Vernon, had an attack of delirium tremens while on top of the pilot house. He also says that it ought to have been well know to the other officers of the line that Captain Thorp was a hard drinker and that he had often left port while drunk. Mr. Hall gave the name of a prominent wholesale merchant who recently made a trip on the Vernon, who had told him that Captain Thorp was drunk during the entire time he remained on the boat. The brother of Mrs. M. E. Vanamburgh last night said that his sister arrived in Chicago on the Vernon, September 3, accompanied by Miss Addie Mickley, of Waterloo, N. Y. The steamer was three days longer than usual making the trip from Cheboygan, and both ladies told him that the captain was drunk all the time. Stone, the only survivor of the disaster, said:—"The captain was drunk most of the time, and he was very drunk when he left Cheboygan last week. If the captain had been sober I don't believe the vessel would have been lost, for any sober man would have turned back when he saw how badly she acted in the big sea."

PLAIN SPEAKING.

SAVERAL prominent leaders in the Commercial Union movement have done some plain speaking recently which throws light on their ideas regarding the continued connection of Canada with the Empire. Mr. Goldwin Smith, writing in the London Times, says that Annexation "is a bugbear that is fast losing its terrors," and again expresses his opinion that in the course of nature it will come. Holding such views, professions of loyalty and of affection for England, such as Mr. Smith used in his speech at Toronto on Thursday evening, cannot mislead anyone desirous of knowing the truth. Mr. Smith, by some process of reasoning known only to himself, reconciles his Annexationist opinions with loyalty to the Empire; but matter of fact people, not endowed with the subtleties of mind possessed by Mr. Smith, will fail to see how the two can harmonize. No doubt he sincerely believes what he says, but knowing his views, those who do not desire political union with the United States would be very unwise indeed to follow his lead.

Dr. Platt, M.P. for Prince Edward, the gentleman who gave notice of a Commercial Union motion at the last session of Parliament, was also outspoken at Toronto. "If it meant annexation," he said, referring to Commercial Union, "they were prepared to accept that, or anything else that was for the true interest of the country." It is well to bear in mind these sentiments of the leaders of the movement, for, when it is fully recognized that Annexation would be the result of adopting the policy they advocate, the good common sense of the people will not require much argument to show them that it should be rejected.

Mr. Wiman, the foremost leader of the movement, in an interview published in the Boston Herald, among other things said:—

"The situation is getting decidedly interesting, and if our public men but play their cards adroitly, not only will England lose a good customer and perhaps a great colony, but our people will obtain a clear advantage."

Precisely. The advantage would be all on the side of the United States, while England and Canada would be the losers. United States public men may be adroit card players, but their trick is already spoiled, for the ace hid in the sleeve is seen.

BY the death of Justice O'Connor another of the self-made men who have risen to positions of trust and prominence in Canada has been removed. Dent, in the "Canadian Portrait Gallery," records that when twenty years of age the late Judge, while felling trees on his father's farm, was fastened in the snow by a tree falling on his leg. Death seemed inevitable, but the young man took his axe, severed the limb and crawled home. He then applied himself to study, and by his natural abilities and such courageous qualities of mind as were shown in the incident mentioned, he made his way upward.

THE industry of burning telegrams to prevent their production in the court seems to have struck a wave of depression, as it were.—London Advertiser.

Very good. And now perhaps the much esteeming Advertiser would like to aid in depressing the idea that the Ontario Government has a right to make the people pay for telegrams, which their representatives in the Legislative are not allowed to see when their production is asked in the proper committee.

---

ANOTHER Reform seat has been lost through the purchasing of votes being exposed. Mr. A. Campbell, M. P. for Kent, has been unseated for bribery by agents, and the court will sit again to enquire further into the personal charges. Two dollars seems to have been the value put on votes by Mr. Campbell's agents. Two of the men who handled the money have been summoned to answer to the charge of corrupt practices.

---

A CONTEMPORARY thinks that, owing to the large crops in the Northwest, the "C. P. R.'s monopoly will be worth something this year." It might not be out of place to enquire how much grain would have been raised in the Northwest, or how much it would be worth if it was grown, if the Canadian Pacific had not been built?

FLOCKING SOUTH.—The hunters, who have been pursuing and bringing down the deer in the north, are streaming home. These nights cool down their excitement considerably, as nothing kills excitement quicker than a chill. The hunters all seem to have had good luck.

PERSONAL.—We are sorry to learn that Mr. A. J. Styles is leaving this section, where he has made many friends.

ENGAGED.—The Trustees of School Section No. 7 seem to know what is good for the scholars attending this school. They have engaged Mr. E. Elliott for the coming year.

A Chicago Murder.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Early this morning, near Albany avenue, a lonely part of the west side, police officer Keegan was found lying dead on his back, with a wound on his forehead, evidently made by some blunt instrument. The officer had been murdered while on his beat. When found he still clasped his revolver in his hand, but it had not been discharged. There is no clue to the murderer.

THE WAR CLOUD BUSTED!

Victory has Perched on the Banner of PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT CHEAPSIDE.

And SHEPPARD, by common consent, will get $1,000 for being the Cheapest Clothier in Peterborough, having knocked the Wonderful Cheap Man completely out. "Business is business; dirt is dirt, and when it comes to throwing dirt, then count" the only original teddy out, and he will hand over that $1,000 like a little man, for the following reasons:—

SHEPPARD sells a full size Man's suit for $2.95, and better goods than a suit to fit a child about nine years old sold by the Wonderful Cheap Man on Saturday for $3.00; but marked $3.50. This is how it was.—A lady purchased a child's suit on Saturday last, Sept. 17th, 1887, at the store of the Wonderful Cheap Man. It was marked thusly:—Lot 5375, Breast 27, Waist 26½, Age 9, Price $3.50. It was pure shoddy, being held together by cotton threads, and Sheppard is free to say that that was the dearest suit sold in the Town of Peterborough for the last two years. Full particulars are given because of the $1,000 involved, and, further, that this decides who is selling the Cheapest Clothing in Peterborough. SHEPPARD would have sold that lady a suit, pure wool, for that money, and worth two of the one she got.

$1,000 to Go to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

I had first decided to give the agencies a chance of jumping up my rating that $1,000, but after considering the matter and finding that never in any case have I been asked for an endorser to my paper, and that no relative or any other persons have ever endorsed my paper to the extent of one cent, I have come to the conclusion my credit is as good as yours, and will ask you to hand over the $1,000 to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

Now, Sir, there is a good story told, the truth of which can be vouched for, but for the honor of at least making an effort to keep up your self-styled name—The Terror of High Priced Clothiers—do not allow the same to be said of you in the case above. A man purchased a suit for $15.00 at the store of one of the largest advertisers in that section of country. It was guaranteed pure wool; but after examining it carefully at home, he came to the conclusion that he had been dealing with some one sharper than himself. Finding a make of wool, differing some from anything he had ever seen, it dawned upon him that he had heard of wool of that kind, so the suit was returned. The merchant bet $25.00 that it was all wool, and the bet was accepted, the decision being left to a neighboring merchant. He found that the $15.00 suit was wool faced and shoddy back, pure unadulterated shoddy; but what of the $25.00 bet? was it paid? Not much—muchly—as it were.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. ## "Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

OMEMEE.

STOLEN.—On the night of the Omemee Salvation Army jubilee some person took a robe out of Mr. S. Stinson's buggy which was standing in Christ Church shed.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday last Mr. Thos Stevenson had a narrow escape from instant death. He was standing in a waggon in front of the mill when the horses started suddenly, throwing him out on his shoulders on the bridge, rendering him unconscious for some time. Mr. Stevenson has been very sore ever since the accident.

FIRE.—Early on Saturday morning last the house and barn on the Crawford property, just east of the village and occupied by Mr. George Seney, was totally destroyed by fire. Miss Seney was awakened by smoke and she aroused her father and mother and they made their escape from the burning house, but unfortunately saved little of the contents. The barn, which was about eighty yards from the house, was consumed together with all the contents, consisting of between ten a twelve tons of hay, a quantity of grain and machinery. The stable which was between the house and barn was saved by hard work. The fire was no doubt the hard work of an incendiary There was an insurance on the contents of the house of $600 and $500 on the contents of the barn.

BEAR HUNT.—On Tuesday last our town was thrown into a state of excitement by the report that a real live bear had been seen and was still in the vicinity of Mr. F. Fee's woods south east of the village. Every rifle, musket, gun and weapon of defence in Omemee was hunted up and got in shape for war. All our sports and hunters had blood in their eyes and were bound to capture that 'bar,' but they didn't all the same.—Herald.

PORT HOPE.

SIX MONTHS.—The sailor who was arrested on Wednesday for stealing a valise from the St. Lawrence Hall, and whose name is Joseph McCoy, not McGuire, was before P. M. Holland on Thursday. He pleaded as extenuation that he was too drunk to know what he was doing. The chief explained that there was strange method in his drunkenness, when he wished to express the valise to Ogdensburg, where his vessel was bound for. The magistrate sent him to the Central Prison for six months.

DEATH OF MRS. O'MEARA.—The congregation of St. John's were sadly notified by the tolling of their church bell on Thursday morning of the death of Mrs. O'Meara, the wife of their pastor and their constant friend during the twenty years of her life in Port Hope. Some weeks ago she underwent an operation, and her vitality, weakened by the passage of her sixty-four years, was unable to respond to the unnatural draft on it. Since last Thursday death has been very near, and her friends waited sorrowfully for the last message. Deceased requires no eulogy at our hands. Her consistent, humble Christian life has endeared her to three generations of St. John,s congregation.—Times.

DR. D. SCHAUB, Muncie, Ind., says: "I have used it in cases of bilious disease, and the results were all that could be desired. It is valuable."

A Reasonable Explanation.

A gentleman entered a phrenologist's office in Boston and asked to have his head examined. After a moments inspection the professor started back exclaiming: "Good heavens! you have the most unaccountable combination of attributes I ever discovered in a human being. Were your parents eccentric?"

"No, sir," replied the all-round character? meekly, "but my wife is. You needn't pay any attention to the larger bumps, sir."—Burlington Free Press.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver s misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

Consumption Cured.

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, and having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Considerable uneasiness is manifested by the Dominion quarintine officials over the recent escape of cholera patients from the New York quarintine station, the spread of the contagion to Canada being considered inevitable should an outbreak of cholera occur in the United States next spring.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sloe by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It smoothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, Relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teetning or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Y. W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the "Y" will be held on Monday evening, Nov. 7th, in the W. C. T. U. Hall at 7.30. A full attendance of members is particularly requested.

Sent Adrift.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—Mr. J M. Irwin and Co.s logs which were boomed behind Crowleys Island, were broken ad rift by the wind storm on Sunday morning. It was a mighty powerful wind, and unrooted the cabooses that were on the raft. Some of the logs got scattered, but were recovered and secured."

Patriarchs Militant.

The members of Canton Peterborough, P.M., marched up George street last evening and went through some of the exercises of their drill. They did in good style, showing that they have given careful attention to the work and have made excellent progress in mastering the drill. On returning to the drill shed a meeting was held where final arrangements for Tuesday's concert were made.

American Fishermen.

Mr. F.J.Moore,Ontario Fishery Overseer, says the Lakefield Chronicle, has received several complaints of late against visitors from the other side, who it is claimed have been catching Canadian fish without taking a permit. Mr. Moore a short time agocame across a large praty in the very act,who we understand, pleaded ignorance of the law, paid over their V's, and were allowed to fish to their heart's content.

Court Peterborough.

At the regular meeting of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. O. F., on Friday evening, the reports of officers were received. The membership of the Court is steadily increasing, and has reached the high total of 160, the largest membership in any Court of the Order in Canada. The auditors' report showed the finances to be in a most satisfactory condition, the investments being steadily agumented. The Court now has a surplus of $1,350 to its credit. The officers for the present term will be installed at the next meeting.

PETERBOROUGH should be a city, now that KIDD is selling boots at and BELOW city prices.

A Canadian Victim.

Among the lost on the propellor Vernon, which foundered in Lake Michigan on Saturday, was Mr. Edward B. Borland of Milwaukee, but formerly of Omemee, Ont., and a gentlemen well known in the Port Hope and Peterborough districts. Mr. Borland a few years ago kept a drug store in Belleville, whence he went to Milwaukee to travel for a drug establishment in that city. He was an energetic business man, an experienced commercial traveler, and had many friends in Canada who will deplore his death. He leaves a wife and six children who are at present in Milwaukee.

Leg Amputated.

Mr. H. B. Newbold's friends here will sincerely regret the painful misfortune which has befallen him. About two months ago he was compelled to quit work in the Trent Valley Navigation office on account of one of his legs giving him trouble. He put himself under treatment, but the ailment showed no signs of leaving him. He was advised to go to Montreal and seek medical aid, which he did. When the swelling had subsided it was discovered that the bone was decaying and that amputation was absolutely necessary to the saving of his life. The leg was amputated close to the body. Mr. Newbold is doing well, and from word received to-day will recover.

W. C. T. U.

A regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held at their rooms at 4 o'clock on Monday.

The New Pastor.

The Rev. P. C. Parker, of Simcoe, the new pastor of the Baptist Church congregation, arrived here on Friday evening. He will preach at both services in the church tomorrow.

A. C. A.

Mayor Robinson and Mr. Wm. Thomson will probably go to Peterborough, the Orillia Packet says, to attend the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Canoe Association, to furnish any information that may be desired as to Lake Couchiching as a place for their next meet.

The Sewer.

Inspector Pope discovered yesterday that the George street sewer was broken in just above Simcoe street. He set the men to uncover it and to-day the brake was repaired. The hydrant at the corner of Hunter and George streets was opened into the hose, lines of which were put in the sewer. A thorough flushing was g

Bishop Dowling at Lindsay.

The Post says:—"Bishop Dowling, of Peterborough, was in town for a few days last week, and on Friday evening a reception was held in the vestry of St. Mary's Church after the evening devotions, when a large number of the parishioners were introduced to His Lordship, after which an hour was pleasantly spent in discussing in a social way affairs affecting the parish. In the course of his remarks the Bishop gave some interesting details regarding his recent visit to the northern part of his diocese. Some idea of the extent of these parishes may be gained from the fact that the car-fare between two contiguous parishes for the Bishop and Secretary amounted to $55, and involved thirty-two hours' travel. On Sunday, before High Mass, His Lordship preached an eloquent sermon on the Gospel of the day; and at vespers discoursed upon and explained the Catholic devotion of the rosary to a large congregation. During his visit Bishop Dowling received a collection amounting to $1,200 towards the debt upon the parochial or Bishop's house in Peterborough."

Masters of the Situation.

On Friday evening Mr. J. Arlington Cooke delivered a lecture in the lecture room of the George Street Methodist Church,under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Association of the church. The Rev. F. H. Wallace, the pastor and Honorary President of the Association, occupied the chair and introduced the lecturer. Mr. Cooke's subject was "Masters of the Situation." He was suffering from a severe cold and spoke with difficulty. He dwelt on some of the qualities a man needed to become a master of the situation, among them being perseverance, good morals and sobriety. Illustrations, drawn from history and personal observation, were given showing how men had become masters of the situation by exercising these qualities and how others had failed through lacking or not exercising them. He closed by an appeal to prohibitionists to to take such steps as would make them masters of the situation. The audience, which was not a large one, had not an opportunity of judging of Mr. Cooke's eloquence, on account of the physical disadvantages under which he labored, but occasifinal flashes of eloquence that broke through the hoarseness were warmly applauded. At the close Mr. Wallace expressed the hope that Mr. Cooke would return to Peterborough during the winter and tendered him the thanks of the audience. The lecturer thanked the pastor for his kind works and said he hoped to address a Peterborough audience again before long.

Churches.

The following is a list of services in the several churches to-morrow:—

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.—At St. Peter's Cathedral, Roman Catholic, there will be three masses celebrated, the first at 7 a. m. the second at 8 a. m., and the third at 10.30 a. m. Vespers at 7 p. m.

ST. LUKE'S.—Morning prayer and sermon and Litany at 11 a.m.; Evening Prayer and Sermon at 7. p. m. All are invited to be present.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.—The regular services will be conducted as follows:—Holy Communion at 8.30 a.m.; Morning Prayer, Litany and sermon at 11 a.m.; Evening Prayer and sermon at 7 p.m.

ST. PAUL'S.—The usual services will be held. The Rev. E. F. Torrance will preach the sermons. In the evening he will continue his sbries on the Pilgrim's Progress. The subject will be "The Interpreter's House."

BAPTIST CHURCH, Murray Street.—The Rev. P. C. Parker, will preach both morning and evening.

METHODIST CHURCH, Charlotte Street.—The Rev. I. Tovell will connduct the services in the morning and the Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., in the evening.

METHODIST CHURCH, George street.—Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., will preach in the morning on the Gospel of St. John, and the Rev, I. Tovell in the evening.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—The usual services will be conducted.

METHODIST CHURCH, Mark street (Ashburnham).—The usual services will be conducted.

Personal.

Mr. T. Rowan, recently modern language master in the Collegiate Institute, now under treatment in Toronto, is getting well again. The fever with which he was attacked is leaving him, but his heart is affected.

THE SEPARATE SCHOOL.

Extracts From the Report of the Inspector—Highly Satisfactory.

The report of Mr. J. T. White, School Inspector, on his visit to the Peterborough Separate School has been received by the Trustees, having been forwarded by the Education Department. The staff of the school includes Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle, the Principal, and Miss T. C. Leonard, Miss Annie Lynch and Miss K. A. Connell. The number of pulpits enrolled was 209 and the number present on the day of inspection 136. Thirteen pupils were sent to the High School during the year. In the report as to proficiency the work "excellent" frequently appears, and where it is not used "good" takes its place.

The Inspector reports that he found the school building excellent in all respects; four class rooms of good size; school grounds some acres in extent, shaded with trees, and excellent in all respects; satisfactory ventilation; blackboards large and suitably placed; a good supply of maps, globes and charts, and a good library of books and magazines in a large well furnished room.

Of the organization and discipline the report says:—"A well graded school; the discipline has reached a high state of perfection."

Under the head of remarks the Inspector adds:—"I am pleased to be able to report that this school continues to maintain its reputation for doing excellent work. The government of the school is quite faultless. Strict order is maintained, but without any appearance of harshness. The Principal, Mr. McIlmoyle, is a competent teacher of long experience and is well aided by an able staff of assistants.

"This school is entitled to rank high among the Separate Schools of the Province. The large number of its pupils yearly passing the entrance examination gives unmistakable evidence of the character of the work done."

The Event of the Season.

The concert under the auspices of Canton Peterborough on Tuesday evening is an assured success. The programme presents an unusually attractive list of talent and variety. The Routes to the Sault.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—The Canadian Pacific Railway is now practically finished from Algoma Mills to Sault Ste. Marie. The men at work on the contract returned to the east a few days ago, and Mr. Read, the contractor, returned to his home at Lachine yesterday. The Grand Trunk short line to Sault Ste. Marie is now being explored by Mr. J. C. Bailey, C. E., who is at present surveying the different routes. The most feasible route will probably be decided upon before the end of the year.

HEADQUARTERS for Domestic Patterns at TURNBULL'S. Call for the monthly fashion sheet given free.

I. O. O. F. Notes.

Mount Hebron Encampment has admitted and conferred degrees on ten new members since July 1st, and has four candidates for next night.

Peterborough Lodge has initiated sixteen new members since the same date, and has three candidates for next night. It expects to be at least twenty-five members stronger at the end of the year than it was on July 1st.

"The success of the Canton is already assured," Capt. McNeil writes in the Oddfellow. No doubt of it.

The Oddfellow has an account of the first official visit of Mr. J. R. Stratton, D.D.G.M., to Otonabee Lodge, accompanied by the Grand Warden, Dr. Bell. He received a cordial welcome. Just previous to his entry a resolution was passed approving of his appointment. The Noble Grand of Otonabee Lodge, Mr. Mowry, welcomed the District Deputy in a few choice words. Mr. Stratton replied, and Dr. Bell added some clear ,sound advice.

Local Brevities.

—Wiman's broilers sold on the market this morning for 20 cent a pair.

—Collector Cumming's manifesto that if all taxes are not paid before Dec. 1st, interest will be added, is bringing in the cash.

—This afternoon the wires to complete the circuit are being strung on the electric light poles along George street north.

—Bobcaygeon Independent:—"There has been a considerable demand for potatoes, at 50c a bushel. Several hundred bushels have been taken to Peterborough."

—Saturday, Nov. 5, 1887. Anniversary of the gunpowder plot, the landing of the Prince of Orange in England, and the battle of Inkerman.

—A horse was found dead on the side of the road near the Nicholls Hospital this morning. The police have not found out who owned the animal or how it came by its death.

—Lindsay Post "Mr. Ed. Brown, of Peterborough, who has the reputation of being a shrewd judge of horseflesh, was in town on Thursday and made a mysterious journey into the country with one of our local sports. Will he prove a Canadian Tremon?"

—While flushing out the main sewer this morning through a pipe opposite the Giant T, the workmen were surprised to see a miniature earthquake take place, the road bed being blown up over the sewer. Some digging is being done to know the reason why.

—The disappearance of a young girl named Barry from beyond thekey or knowledge of her friends for several days last week, the Lindsay Post says, caused some apprehension and was the subject of a fly-sheet giving her description; but she has, we understand, been heard from, having been visiting with friends at Peterborough.

—The walking beam at present exhibited at McClelland's jewellery store is a puzzle to amateur naturalists here. They all fail to discover where the motive power comes from. It is apparently nothing more than a little vegetable, but the way it goes skipping around has gained it the dignity of being classed among the masculine. "Watch him, now!" exclaims the wonderers as he goes off on the hop.

—It will be of some interest to local readers to learn of the death, on Oct. 11th, of the Rev. W. B. Affleck. In his young days he was a collier, and then met with an accident which caused him to suffer from lameness all his life. He was at one time agent of the United Kingdom Alliance. Thirteen years ago he came to America, and during the famous Dunkin Act campaign delivered addresses at Peterborough and throughout the district.

A Trainman Killed.

CARELTON PLACE, Nov. 4.—Between 1 and 2 this morning a fireman named Jas. Bean, on a freight train coming from Ottawa, was killed about a mile and a half east of here. He was going to examine one of the boxes on the tender, and it is thought he missed his footing and fell, striking his head and shoulders against the timbers of the small bridge over Lavelee's Creek. His remains were brought to the junction, and an inquest by Coroner Burns of Almonte will be held.

Plymouth's New Pastor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—It is virtually settled that the Rev. Charles A. Berry, of England, is to be called to Plymouth Church as its pastor. The advisory committee of the church having charge of the subject of a successor to Mr. Beecher met last evening and unanimously voted to recommend the selection of Mr. Berry. While this does not bind the church there is little doubt but that the choice of the committee will be ratified.

HOSTILITIES IN ZULULAND.

BUBBAR, Nov. 4.—It is reported that hostilities with Dinizulu, the son of Cetewayo, have been begun, and that a skirmish has taken place, in which three British soldiers were killed.

BOMBS IN THE CELL.

One of the Anarchists Has Them—Flocking to Chicago from Various Cities.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—An afternoon paper says that during the last few days there has been a great deal of mysterious whisperings and stealthy movements in Anarchist circles in the city. The proprietors of a number of large rolling mills have observed it and were uneasy for fear another strike was imminent. It has been discovered that on Thursday there were certain employees in almost all the rolling mills, men of well known desperate courage and all Anarchists, who applied for ten days' leave of absence. When the already suspicious proprietors persisted in learning why they wanted a leave of absence, it leaked out that the Anarchists of Cincinatti, St. Louis, Louisville and all of the other large cities in the country had been requested to send a number of chosen men to Chicago to be there next Thursday. Over fifty left Cincinnati Friday evening. They were joined by about the same number from Louisville. What few men there are who know anything of the movement are very much agitated, and declare that there will be a murderous effort made to prevent the hanging of the seven Anarchists in Chicago next Friday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The cells of the seven condemned Anarchists in the gaol were searched to-day and six loaded bombs were found hidden away in a wooden box in Lingg's apartment, concealed under a pile of newspapers in a corner. Then Sheriff Matson arrived at the gaol and ordered that the dangerous weapons be replaced in the box and sent to a chemist for analysis, although there was no doubt as to the result of the examination. The search was continued in the cells of Engel, Fischer, Parsons, Spies, Schwab and Fielden, being searched in the order named, but no contraband articles of any kind were found. It was decided, however, that it was best to change the cells, and accordingly four apartments on the lower tier were cleaned out.

MR. O'BRIEN DEFIANT.

Suffering From Weak Action of the Heart—To be Considered by the Cabinet.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—Mr. O'Brien looks pale and worn, but his spirit is not subdued. He reiterates his defiance of Dublin Castle yesterday, and declared that if prison clothes whre put on him he would tear them off and continue to do so as long as he had strength. The Tory doctor who visits the prison has declared Mr. O'Brien to be suffering from weak action of the heart, and that one night on a plank in a dark cell without bedclothing or heat may be sufficient to kill him.

The question of the treatement of Mr. O'Brien will come before the Cabinet on Thursday. The probability is that the ordinary prison discipline will be partially relaxed. Mr. O'Brien will not wear prison clothes, will not associate with ordinary felons, nor do menial offices. His health is bad, but he will resist the attempts to put indignities upon him to the death. The chances are he will be met half way.

Circulating False Reports.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The World's Berlin special says the police have offered a reward of $250 for the arrest of the person who circulated the false story of the Emperor's death. The Chamber of Commerce has offered a similar reward. The report was communicated by means of Pneumatic post telegrams, addressed to various firms on 'Change and sign "Cohn." Cohn in Berlin is about as vague as Jones in London. Energetic steps have been taken to track Cohn.

Jubilee Gift to the Pope.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5.—Bishop Walsh, who with Dean Wagner and Father Brennan, left for Rome the other day, took with him a handsomely engrossed and fitly worded address of loyalty to His Holiness the Pope and a Jubilee gift of over $6,000.

Twenty-Five Horses Cremated.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Edward Riley's livery stable, on 48th street, was burned this morning. Twenty five horses were cremated. Loss, $25,000.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times claims to know that the Triple Alliance was secretly concluded last spring, but the details were finally settled in the recent interview between Signor Crispi and Prince Bismarck. The treaty provides for combined military and naval action by Germany, Austria and Italy against any attempt to disturb the balance of power in Europe. It also stipulates that territorial modifications shall be compulsory before the allied powers will consent to sign a treaty of peace. The treaty further provides for combined action for the conclusion of peace. No one of the three will be allowed to desist from war or to treat separately without the consent of the others. The alliance also covers the Mediterranean.

M. BALFOUR CRITISED.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Daily News says that the absurdity of Mr. Balfour's suppositon that he can suppress Ireland is only equalled by the absurdity of the suppositon that the Liberals of Great Britain will remain silent on the question. If Mr. Balfour continues his present course, the News says, his ministry will fall amid general laughter or public execration.

NEW REPEATING RIFLE.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Government has resolved to introduce, for use in the army, a new smaller bore repeating rifle, probably of eight millimetres. The repeaters now in use will be transferred to the reserves and Landwehr. The change is made necessary because the French war department has adopted a small bore rifle.

THE NEW BRITISH MINISTER.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—M. Flourens, the minister of foreign affairs, has sent to Lord Salisbury a note saying that while the Government greatly regret the retirement of Lord Lyons as British ambassador to France it cannot but approve the appointment of such a distinguished diplomatist as the Earl of Lytton.

THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAMME.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Mr. Goschen in a speech at Bath last evening, said the Government only suppressed incitements to crime. The only reason he could see for the opposition's charge against the Unionists of suppressing political opinion was that they effaced the only landmarks of morality and issued new charts showing what was right and what was wrong. With reference to the coming session, he said the Government intended to introduce an Irish land bill and a large English local government measure. They intended to deal with those questions as speedily as possible. They would also deal with parliamentary procedure and financial reform.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

A POINTER.—Quite a number of Norwood people have expressed a desire to go up to hear Mrs. Scott-Siddons. If the committee were to send some tickets down here they could no doubt be easily disposed of.

A CAPITAL MATCH.—An exciting football match was played in the park here on Saturday afternoon between the Cobourg University team and Norwood High School Club. During the first half time Norwood didn't get quite waked up, and Cobourg got in three goals. They got well together in the last half, however, scoring one goal and shutting Cobourg out from any more games. Three minutes before the time was up one of the Cobourgs in a scrimmage got a bad kick over the left eye. He got the Dr. to dress it in time to catch the 5.12 train, when the visitors left for home. They are a good lot of fellows, and are not wanting in lung power, which fact was shown by their lusty singing of college songs on leaving.

THE T. V. C. COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Now that Judge Clark has accepted the position of solicitor of the C. P. R. and thus become the employee of interest an which is antagonistic to the development of water routes generally as well as of the Trent Valley Canal in particular, is it not about time that Mr. Stevenson and those whom he represents should urge upon the Dominion Government the propriety of substituting somebody else for Judge Clarke as the T. V. C. commission recently appointed—or if this cannot now be done, the appointment of an additional commissioner who is known to be favorable at least to the development of our waterways.

Yours, etc.,

THE CONFERENCE AT QUEBEC.

THERE is much speculation as to what subjects were discussed and the conclusions arrived at by the members of the Provincial Governments who were in consultation at Quebec. One journal, friendly to the members of the conference, says that their resolution regarding Commercial Union will soon be made public. This is surely a mistake. The Provincial Premiers and their colleagues may have been presumptious, but they would scarcely take upon themselves the duty of regulating the customs tariff of the Dominion, or even of advising Parliament in regard to it. They have nothing to do with the tariff or Commercial treaties, and if they did discuss this subject their action would not be well received by those who are supposed to lead the Dominion Opposition.

Another Reform paper has heard that they decided to demand for the Provinces the excise duties collected in each Province. Such a resolution may have been passed, but it is not probable. That alone would not be sufficient to satisfy some of the Provinces, in which the excise duties do not amount to as much as the subsidies they now receive from the Dominion. Besides, the confusion that would be caused, and the interest that would be endangered, by allowing the Provinces to regulate the excise rates while the Dominion controlled the customs tariff, would make such a sheme impracticable.

Other guesses have been made regarding the deliberations of the meeting, but they may be as wide of the mark. It does seem certain, however, that the questions of finances and Provincial subsidies were discussed, and also that the veto power possessed by the Dominion Executive was under consideration. What conclusions were come to the public do not know, but, in view of the fact that their recommendations will probably become questions to be decided upon by the people, any resolutions adopted regarding such important matters should be made public. Upon any decision given by the people as to the veto may rest the question whether this Dominion is to remain one united country or is to be a number of separate and sovereign states, acting independently and without regard to the will of the nation as a whole.

It can scarcely be doubted, when such well known partisans met together to consider public questions, that party interests were not lost sight of; but while the welfare of their party may have been their first care, it is possible that suggestions may have been made that it would be well to adopt. It would not be wise, however, to lightly interfere with the existing constitution of the country, and until there are weighty reasons for making a change the constitution under which the Dominion has made such progress should remain intact. Altering the constitution would be a serious matter, as it would establish a precedent that might lead to endless trouble, and while the suggestions of the recent conference should receive fair consideration, they should not be hastily endorsed, especially if to adopt them constitutional changes would be necessary.

IT is said that speeches can be reported by Edison's phonograph, which receives and will repeat words, and that the printer can set type from it by allowing five or ten words to be sounded at a time. But will the machine condense the speech? Or can it dress up a good but badly worded speech? Until it can do these things the reporters will keep a firm hold of their pencils.

LINDSAY.

ALMOST SUFFOCATED.—While engaged in cleaning out the purifier of the gas works Mr. S. Jackson of Victoria was nearly suffocated, but upon being removed into the fresh air he recovered in a short time.

FOR THE NORTH.—On Friday last Mr. Norman Hanhart, manager for M.M. Boyd & Co., Bobcaygeon, reached Lindsay with a gang of about seventy men from the lower provinces, and at once engaged a special train and was whirled northwards to the seat of the firm's lumbering operations in the township of Snowden. It is now probable that the firm will have about six hundred men engaged during the season.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Mr. Geo. Thomas, of this town, had a narrow escape Wednesday afternoon from a horrible death. He was engaged repairing a well 44 feet deep for Mr. Harlan Curtis, Hogan's island. The well sides were part stone work and part curb word. Mr. Thomas was in a bucket a long way down taking out the crib work, when a side piece, being partly decayed, gave way sooner than expected and the whole arrangement went down with a rush. The timbers bruised Mr. Thomas' back, sides and arms badly, and it is a wonder he was not killed. He was hauled out and received prompt attention. He is now compelled to take it easy for a few days.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. David Sharpe, carpenter, who lives in the east ward, met with a bad accident on Tuesday. He was working at Mr. Sylvester's new house, and was on the first storey drawing up scantling, which were being handed him by a young man named A. Henley, when the scantling he was standing upon broke, and he was thrown to the ground. He was at once conveyed to his home and Dr. McAlpine summoned, when it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the thigh and some other bruises. Mr. Sharp is progressing favorably, but it will be some time before he will be able to resume work. Mr. Henley also received a severe blow on the side of the head from the falling scantling.—Post.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

How Absinthe is Taken.

The French absinthe drinker takes a goblet full of cold water—not necessarily iced, though preferably so—and adds to it, drop by drop, just enough of the liquor to give it a very light green tinge. Wherever the light strikes the mixture the most lovely opaline hues are seen, and there is no sight so lovely to the eye of the confirmed absinthe drinker. A sip of the fluid leaves in the mouth the most delightful after taste, much like anisette, only wanting in the flat taste, which would come from diluting that liqueur. There is, too, an added flavor, unlike anything else in the world. So prepared, absinthe makes a refreshing and exhilarating drink, most grateful to the palate, but woe be unto him who yields too continuously to what seems a harmless indulgence. Enjoyed too often the peculiar taste of absinthe becomes a necessity, and long continued indulgence in the minute doses has a constitutional effect on the nervous system, if possible, more horrible and certainly more incurable than that of whisky. Paralysis and palsy are among the results of the habit, and it often induces insanity.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent housholds keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reëstablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

A STEERAGE TRIP.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCE OF A PASSENGER WHO TRIED IT.

What the Steerage Is Like—A Bit of Rough Weather—An Aggregation of Odors—A Bed on Deck—How Meals Were Served.

The berths in the steerage are not reserved; they are free, and the custom of leaving the baggage in them, denoting that they are taken, is not regarded. The usurper coolly throws out the first occupant, bedding, tins and baggage, not caring if they are injured or not, then falls asleep and does not awaken until its first possessor finds another place. Some one quietly appropriated mine and had thrown my tins in an adjoining bunk. All were found except that indispensable article, my bright iron spoon, which was either lost or taken to complete some one else's outfit. The stewards are good fellows and will give extra accomodations for a dollar or two. They will wash the tins for the small sum of $1, and will place in your berth free of charge.

One of the difficulties of a steerage passenger is to dress and undress. The usual way is to hang the pants on the end of the berth, jump into them and quickly grasp hold of the planks to keep from being thrown against the sides of the boat when it makes a lurch. Another way is to kneel, but many a head was bumped against the iron beams when the person arose to fix his suspenders. Nearly all, however, went to bed without undressing.

The women have separate apartments in the same part of the boat, and all become acquainted in a short time. They were carrying on busy conversations, and the different languages poured out in a torrent, which never ceased except when the boat gave a lurch, and then only for a moment. Dirty faced children, with their cries and screams added to the melody of sounds. I quarreled with myself for going steerage, but it was too late. With a sigh of regret I went on deck. The water was calm and beautiful; a pleasant breeze was blowing and the ride was enjoyable.

Toward night the water became rougher and the boat began to rock. Many began to experience a dizzy and unpleasant feeling, which constantly grew worse. In a short time the gentle laughter and sweet songs had suddenly changed. I looked around. There was scarcely a woman on deck, and the men had well nigh deserted it. Lemons and oranges were in demand. The bar was profitably patronized. The countenances which a few hours before were bright and happy were now pale and troubled. I paced the deck, as did many others, in the bracing air, with the hope of driving away the miserable feeling. It was in vain. I had to give up. All had stopped walking and had taken their positions at the railing and were gazing earnestly at the water. They may have been looking at the phosphorescent light, but I doubt it. We were made worse by the combined odors of carbolic acid, chlorate of lime (which was thrown around profusely), new paint, tar and grease, and other things known to those who travel on ships. These smells made me deathly sick, made me hate the boat, everybody and everything on it.

It is the sailors' duty to sweep the decks, but they ought to have extra pay, and it should be collected from the steerage passengers. The men were immoderate smokers, and the scent of bad tobacco was another disagreeable odor mixed with those that were already rendering my stomach weak. A Polish Jew carried the largest and filthiest pipe, and many times during the day and night this big bowl of intolerable scents could be seen hanging from his mouth. The sick persons slept on deck all night, dreading to go in the steerage on account of the horrible smell which pervaded it. The sailors worked the whole night managing the sails and washing the decks, and often the sleepers were aroused by the scrubbers' hose. The bare deck was the principal bed; mine was a coil of rope, and, notwithstanding the noise, I fell into a refreshing sleep.

The seasick people would come to the tables and try to eat, but as soon as any greasy food was taken the party sought the railing of the boat or the gutters in the steerage. Finally they took to their berths, and when the stewards came at meal times to give each his portion, they, like some Rip Van Winkle, with shaggy beard and unkempt hair, poked their heads from their berths and shoved their plates and basins at the steward to be filled up. There they sat and ate. If the food had the wrong effect, they stretched their heads over the berth and looked at the door. Some ate and washed in the same basin, for it was too much trouble to carry a whole dinner set. The steward every morning swept out the steerage, though the agents of the steamship lines say they are washed out, and sprinkled the floor with sawdust, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, etc.

In three days the steerage passengers were all well, and when the dining bell rung every one rushed to the tables. The steward dealt out from large buckets each man's share, and to the credit of the steerage they behaved very well, though table etiquette seemed out of place. It is different coming to America—the class of people is so unlike. Sometimes four or five are in straight jackets at once. The food was in good condition and well cooked, and every one got plenty. We were given for breakfast coffee, tea, bread, oatmeal and butter; for dinner, vegetable soup, boiled beef, potatoes, rice and stewed apples. Sometimes this would be changed, and on Sunday cherry pudding would be given for dessert; for supper the same as for breakfast. Who cannot live on this for seven days? Many a steerage passenger fares better on the boat than he does in his own home. Formerly the steerage passenger was given his day's allowance, but he had to cook it; and this is probably the reason why many bring canned food with them, thinking they have to do their own cooking. Now, by getting on the good side of the cooks and paying them $5, they may get almost cabin fare.

After eating all go on deck to wash their tins. The rest of the day would be spent in lounging around, sleeping on deck, playing cards and telling yarns. At night those who had any music in them would sing a few songs. They would be accompanied by a broken winded accordion or by a melancholy flute. The most respectable would join in the songs and sports of the sailors and cabin boys; and many an evening was pleasantly spent in this way. Some of them, rather than be idle, would help to do the work, and when the sails were put out many as could pulled on the ropes.

The steerage passengers get over sea sickness sooner than the cabin passengers, who have so much richer food. Some of the cabin passengers were sick the entire trip, but would come on deck the day before landing, perhaps afraid of being quarantined.

To cross the ocean for health, it is, in my opinion, a mistake for a young man to go cabin. Because the cabin is so finely furnished that when he gets sea sick he will go to his berth, and, having some one to wait on him, he will very likely stay there during the whole voyage; whereas, the steerage being not so comfortable, and the odors not so pleasant, he will be forced on deck, the place where he ought to be.—"A. L. S." in Kansas City Journal.

A DESPAIR STRUCK CHILD.

A Little Boy's First Taste of Life's Bitterness—Rude Awakening.

Everywhere the gloomy truth of Schopenhauer's summary of life is felt and seen, but it remained for a Detroit small boy aged 3 years to work out the last analysis of the mockery and the misery of this existence.

His fond mamma was gone down town. The small boy sat on one of the steps to his palatial avenue home in impatient waiting for that fond mamma's return. The moments sped and she came not. To the untutored soul of that small boy seconds expanded into ages—nay, æons of time. The intervals between horse cars (on one of which he looked for mother was to come) fulfilled the child's conception of unlimited duration—by which phrase the old arithmeticians defined eternity. Car after car passed motherless, involving half a score at least of eternities, but at last, at last, oh, joy unspeakable! the eager, peering eyes caught sight of the figure for which their owner had stayed so long in agony. Ecstasy chased away the settled, dumb despair that brooded over the soul of the waiting small boy. His every dream of earthly bliss was now to have immediate realization. With one wild whoop and three mad leaps he was at the curbstone. Laughter and shouts of delight were his welcome to the comer.

What is this she holds in her hand?

Ah, joy again! It is the coveted ball—the ball for which that tender soul had yearned unspeakably and which is now almost within his grasp. Here indeed is the one earthly glimpse of heaven which, so the legend tells us, favored mortals sometimes catch. He seizes it with feverish hand. The mother's face glows and grows beautiful in sympathy with her darling's happiest dream come true. He was at the track side. He is on the sidewalk, ball in hand. With one all concerted effort he dashes it to the ground and—bursts into tears!

"Oh, mamma," moans the despair struck child, "it don't bounce!"

The small boy's idol was broken. He had tasted life's bitterness, had seen the murder of his rosiest hope. His ball, on which he had set incomputable value, and on whose agile performance he had counted with never a black intruding doubt—his ball, which to his overwrought imagination was the one thing that made life worth living, refused to bounce.—Detroit Free Press.

Overpressure in the Schools.

Passing to the main question, overpressure in the schools is a fact to the same degree that overpressure in other departments of American life is a fact. Here I see no reason to throw aside or modify the conclusion that I came to three or four years ago, of which this is the substance: Our inherited Saxon push, our national environment, our boundless opportunities, and our free institutions, in respect to courage, audacity, enterprise, and many forms of achievement, make us a people by ourselves. It would be hard to name a field of life in which our energy, impatience and nervousness do not show themselves. It is notorious that the average American does more work, whether physical or mental, than any other average man in the world; hence it is that America is the gauge for measuring the most energetic communities of the old world, as when Lancashire, England, is called "America and water."

The words in which Mr. Herbert Spencer spoke of the injury done by our high pressure life, at the dinner given him in New York four or five years ago, will not soon be forgotten. History has charged a good deal to the American spirit, and credited it with much more. Its worst effects, unfortunately, are seen in the higher fields of effort—science, literature, education and art—where time is an all important factor. The tension of the public schools is too high in the sense that the tension of our business and social life is too high; in other words, the schools partake of the national genius. Dr. Stanley Hall, some years ago, said he had seen a file of one hundred and fifty small German boys just as they marched out of the school house at noon a quarter of a mile away; also that he had observed that the little girls at the Victoria school, Berlin, did not run a step at recess, or do anything that an equal number of ladies might not do. But such things as these, it hardly need be said, cannot be found in the typical American school.—B. A. Hinsdale in Science.

Journalism Is for the Young.

The prominent figures here at the heads of the great metropolitan journals are, almost without exception, men in their prime. Bennett is very little, if any, more than 40. Pulitzer hasn't a gray hair in his head. Whitelaw Reid is in about the same luster with both of these. Dana is old, but Amos Cummings, who edits The Evening Sun and is really the moving spirit there, is still a young man. George Jones is not yet past his prime. John Cockerill is still young, and Eggleston, who edits The Commercial Advertiser, is grizzled about the temples, but still on the right side of the hill, and his staff are all very young men. The editor of the new Evening World, which sprang into such instant popularity, is a young fellow who was scribbling at the reporter's desk three years ago and is not yet 30. The same may be said of the magazines. The clever new Scribner has an entire staff of young men. The Century has not an old man connected with it, and Alden is the only elderly person who is in power on Harper's. Journalism is for the young and not for the old. The genius of the profession requires it.—New York Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

Piano Tuning.

S. R. Huffman is in town. Orders left at Mr. McClelland's jewellery store will be attended to. 3d11

Appointment.

The Lieut-Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint Mr. E. E. Henderson issuer of Marriage Licenses for Peterborough, in the room and stead of Mr. J. Walton resigned.

Evangelistic.

The Rev. Alex. Marshall, who was here a short time ago, will deliver an address in the Gospel Hall, over China Hall, this evening. There should be a large attendance.

Organ Recital.

Mr. J. S. Parker, of St. Paul's Church, is making preparations for giving an organ recital, announcements of which will be made soon. He proposes, after Christmas, to give a series of grand historical recitals.

A Young Iconoclast.

John Fligg, a nine year old boy, was before the court this morning charged with breaking windows in a house belonging to Mr. W. H. Wrighton. The case was enlarged till to-morrow morning, when other boys will be brought in.

Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army had a big time at the barracks on Friday night. The popular Capt. Pople, together with Capt. Blackburn, of Lindsay, and the "Nightingale," Capt. Grant, of Woodville, were present. Capt. Woodgate and his corps went to the station, welcomed the visitors and escorted them to the barracks, where addresses were given.

Doing Damage.

Not long ago several lights of glass were broken in the South Ward School and the Board of Education offered a reward for the capture of the offenders. The property was further injured on Saturday or Sunday night by two holes being made in the wall, one of them being nearly a foot square. Such wanton destruction deserves severe punishment.

Farm House Burned.

On Sunday afternoon the farm house of Mr. Bart. Welsh, on lot 6, con. 12, North Monaghan, was destroyed by fire. The fire is supposed to have started among some loose chips and wood in the yard, and to have communicated to the house. It was well under way when discovered. Mr. Welsh had gone to chase some boys out of his orchard at some distance from the house, and was returning when he noticed the fire. The furniture was all saved but a small portion in upper rooms. There was no insurance on the house or furniture.

Division Court.

From a report just received the following information is given in regard to the Division Court, Peterborough:—The number of cases entered, exclusive of transcript of judgments and judgment summonses, in 1886 was 788, and the amount of claims entered $29,434.79. The number of transcripts of judgments received from other courts was 45 and the amount of the claims $2,561.35. The most of the cases involved small amounts of money as the number of cases in which more than $100 was involved was only 47 out of the total 833 cases. The jury was called upon to act only 4 times during the year and only $32 was paid to jurors. The number of Division Court cases tried all over the Province was 57,803, and the amount of claims $2,008,538.50. The number of cases brought before the Court in Peterborough is small in comparison with the size of the place.

THE CHURCHES.

The Rev. P. Clifton Parker Installed—Sermon on the Gospel of St. John.

The Rev. P. Clifton Parker, the pastor elect of the Baptist Church congregation, took upon himself the duties of the pastorate on Sunday. He conducted the service and the Rev. Geo. Richardson, of Toronto, preached the sermons.

At the conclusion of the evening service the pastor addressed the congregation. He explained that owing to the trouble attendant on moving here he had wanted his brother who was with them to day to take part of the duties. They had all profited by the able discourses. He hoped that their relation as pastor during the time to come would be pleasant. He asked the co-operation of the people in the work of the church; not that kind of co-operation which meant coming and sitting in cushioned pews, but that united endeavor to engage in active Christian work. He urged all present to attend regularly at the services of the church, and also to speak to members who were not regular in their attendance and strive to get them to come.

The Rev. Mr. Parker comes here from Simcoe, the capital of Norfolk County, where he has been for the past four years. Previous to his coming there he was pastor of a church in Rochdale, Lancashire, England, this being his first change.

Not only thoroughly instructive, but unusually interesting was the excellent address given by Rev. F. W. Wallace at the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday morning. Taking up the Gospel by St. John, Rev. Mr. Wallace referred to its authenticity, its character, and the circumstances under which it was written, and to its distinct character from the book of Revlations. In brief, the opinion expressed by Rev. Mr. Wallace was that the Gospel was written to correct the heresies of the time and, while not a full account of the life and work of our Saviour, held a place distinct from that occupied by the three preceding books of the New Testament.

With the object in view of facilitating the work of the Society, a meeting of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church will be held shortly, and it is proposed to divide the town into districts, each district to be taken charge of by a committee of ladies. Previous to the meeting all ladies who are willing to assist may consult with Mrs. F. H. Wallace, Mrs. Dixon or Mrs. Brown, who, for the Society, are arranging matters of detail in connection with the work.

At a meeting to be held during the week arrangements will be made by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church for a Christmas tree which it is proposed to have during December next.

A reception will be given to the Rev. P. Clifton Parker by the congregation of the Baptist Church, Murray Street, on the evening of Thanksgiving Day.

EDUCATIONAL.

The State of the Convent School and Lake Street Schools.

The following extracts, referring to the Convent and Lake Street Schools, are taken from the Inspector's last report:—

THE CONVENT—SENIOR DEPARTMENT.

Pupils registered, 121. Present, 103. Pupils sent to the High School during the year, 9.

A graded school of three compartments; the state of order and discipline is exceptionally good.

The proficiency of classes in the several subjects is described as "excellent" and "good."

He further adds: "This school deserves to rank very high for the excellence of its work under zealous and very competent teachers. In the senior classes the answering, especially in the English subjects, was most meritorious. The large number of pupils who passed the High School entrance examinations is very creditable."

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT.—Pupils registered, 99; present, 73; two departments; graded; discipline faultless. He adds: "A considerable improvement is noticeable in the work of the school since my visit last year. In the senior classes the writing and drawing are very creditable; music, too, shows evidence of having been well taught. The standing in other subjects is, in general, quite satisfactory."

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, Lake street.—Pupils registered, 124; present, 106. A graded school of two departments; discipline without fault. He also adds: "Very many of the pupils in this school are French, and their progress in English is at first necessarily slow. The general results are very satisfactory, however, especially in the senior divisions, where the answering would do credit to scholars in any school."

Mr. Telford's Poems.

Any subscribers to Mr. Wm. Telford's books of poems who have not received it or notice regarding it may obtain the book by calling at the Examiner office, where also any persons desiring to purchase it will be supplied. The readers of the REVIEW have frequently had the pleasure of reading productions from Mr. Telford's pen, and this volume contains one hundred and seventy of his choicest productions, together with a sketch of the life of the author. In addition to the local interest the volume has Mr. Telford being an old and esteemed resident of the county, the poems are of such a character that it is a desirable book to possess.

Disorderly.

Fred Baker and Willie Sharp were behaving themselves in an unruly manner on the street at about twelve o'clock on Saturday night. P. C. McGinty took them under his wing and brought them before the court this morning. The Magistrate dismissed them with a lecture.

Donations to a Grafton Church.

St. George's Church at Grafton has been greatly improved and a new memorial chancel was dedicated on Sunday of last week. The east end of the chancel, the Sentinel-Star says, contains a handsome memorial window, erected by Mrs. Vernon, of Peterborough, (a former parishioner) to the memory of her late husband, Charles Henry Vernon, Esq. This window, executed by the well known firm of Spence and Sons, of Montreal, is divided into three sections. The centre contains a panel representing the Saviour blessing little children, with sacred monograms above and below. The side sections have emblems of the sacraments of Baptism and the Holy Communion, represented by a Font with dove descending upon the water and a chalice with ears of wheat and clusters of grapes, in north and south sections respectively. The spaces formed by the spring of the arches are filled in with angel heads, silent witnesses of the worship offered to Almighty God in His Church on earth. The effect of the whole is very pleasing, and is much admired. The altar has been remodelled and the expense of enlarging it and providing an altar cloth has been generously met by Mrs. Dr. Halliday, of Peterborough, also a former parishioner. The beautiful work on the cloth itself is a labor of love by the same deft hands that two years ago did a like service for the new church at Centreton.

Scripture Readings.

The following letter, which was forwarded on Saturday to the principals of the High and Public schools, explains itself:—

DEAR SIR,—As Chairman of the School Supervision Committee, I beg to call your attention to the fact that, at the last meeting of the Board of Education, it was decided that each teacher in the High and Public schools shall open the school by reading from the Bible a selection, as indicated by the International Series of Sabbath School Lessons, and repeating the Lord's Prayer; and that previous to the closing of the schools, teachers be required to read a selection from the authorized Scripture Readings, and that at least once a week time be allowed for examination to see that all pupils thoroughly memorize the Ten Commandments.

Herewith is a copy of the memorial presented to and adopted by the Board, which you will please see is faithfully carried out.

Your attention is also called to the fact that in the Public schools, from the second book up, you are to arrange in your scheme of lessons for instruction on the subject of "The injurious effects of alcholic liquors," as taught in the text book prescribed for use in Public schools.

Yours very truly,
J. R. STRATTON,
Chairman S. S. Com.

Peterborough, Nov. 5, 1887.

Personal.

E. B. Blackwell, Quebec, is registered at the Oriental.

Mr. D. Belleghem has been appointed by the Ontario Government Inspector of Anatomy for the Town and County of Peterborough.

On last Sunday, Councillor Cahill, Mr. J. O'Meara, barrister, and Mr. Wm. Crough, Reeve of Ennismore, took dinner at Father Kelly's, Ennismore, with the Honorable Dr. Sullivan, Dominion Senator.

Mr. Wm. Lech has returned from Haliburton where he has been on business during the last few days.

Back Home.

Mr. R. B. Lundy and Mrs. Lundy returned home after having engaged in a two weeks cruise on the back lakes. They secured a goodly quantity of game, among which was some fine venison, the result of Mrs. Lundy's good aim. She shot three deer while away. Mr. Lundy says that partridge are scarce, on account, he says, of them being frozen out last winter.

Cars Broken Into.

On Sunday night three cars were broken into in the Grand Trund yard. About fifteen pounds of candles was taken from one of the cars which was billed for Fenelon Falls. No trace of the thieves has been found.

A New Firm at Norwood.

Messrs. Plant and McVittie have purchased the foundry of Mr. P. P. Cope at Norwood and took possession on Saturday. The members of the new firm are from Paris, Ont. They are practical and efficient workmen, Mr. Plant having been superintendent of David Maxwell machinery works and Mr. McVittie foreman moulder in the same establishment. Besides making ploughs and stoves and doing general jobbing, which was carried on by Mr. Cope, the new firm will add the manufacture of mowers. With an established business, in a prosperous village surrounded by a good country, no doubt Messrs. Plant & McVittie will succeed in their undertaking.

Local Brevities.

—Mr. Brisbin to-day received a car-load of potatoes from Algoma.

—There will be a large turn out of members at the meeting of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows this evening.

—Mr. John Metheral is contemplating an extension of his carriage shop and putting in power, probably a gas engine.

—Dust is blowing about the street freely to-day. It would seem as if the watering carts will have to be put into commission again.

—Mr. F. Schiverea, the evangelist, who was in Peterborough two years ago, is to conduct meetings at Sunderland and great preparations are being made for his coming.

—The Recorder wants Brockville to adopt Peterborough's plan of advertising the town. It also wants an effort made to take the saw and file works there. Brockville may do the advertising, but it is too late to secure the saw works.

—Cambellford Herald.—"Sixteen names were received for membership in the Royal Arcanum Council which is to be organized in Campbellford in a short time. Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, of Peterborough, is working up the institution."

—Complaints are made that a new sidewalk is badly needed on George street, between Brock street and Howden's butcher shop. The weather is fine, plank available, the S. and B. Inspector and assistants active. Then why should not this walk be put down?

—The horse found dead near the Nicholls Hospital on Saturday belonged to T. Fitzgerald's livery stable. It was taken ill just beyond the town boundary and died on the roadside before veterinary assistance could be summoned.

—On Sunday morning at about three o'clock Mr. T. Gladman was roused by the row kicked up at his door. A man the worse for liquor insisted that he should be allowed to enter and proceed to bed with his boots on. This view was not accepted by Mr. Gladman, and the bibulous stranger had to be thrown off the verandah before he could be convinced that his company would not be missed.

—Port Hope Times.—"The confectionery wagon of Joe Hewson, Peterborough, was standing outside the American hotel on Saturday morning, when smoke was seen issuing from a crack in the seat. The box was locked so that the fire had been burning some little time before Hewson found it. He pulled out a buffalo robe and a fur coat; the robe was not touched, but a large hole was burned in the breast of the coat. A match dropped down the crack was the cause."

The Missing Garment.

On Saturday night a young man named Bennett reported at the police station that he had lost an overcoat. During the night P. C.'s Pigeon and McGinty found a man named James Wilford in a hotel yard sleeping on a coat answering the description of Mr. Bennett's. Wilford was charged with vagrancy and remanded until Mr. Bennett examines the coat.

Fall of a Scaffold.

A scaffold upon which three men were standing, at Mr. Faint's woollen mill, gave way on Friday and threw them to the ground. A bundle of lath fell on Arthur Saunders foot and injured it to such an extent that he is unable to work. A peculiar fact connected with the accident is that the foreman, who was on the scaffold, an Arthur Saunders both drempt on the previous evening that they were falling from a scaffold. Who now says that dreams are to be interpreted contrary to what they seem.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7. 1887.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S ARRIVAL.

He Quietly Lands at New York—Some Opinions of the "Herald."

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Right Hon. Jos. Chamberlain, M. P. for Birmingham, and delegate to the Washington Fisheries Commission, arrived from Liverpool on the Etruria this morning.

Mr. Chamberlain landed at noon to-day at the Customs wharf, Battery point. He was received on landing by Mr. Hooker, Consul-General, and Mr. Wm. Smith, Deputy Minister of Marine, who accompanied him in a carriage with Mr. Edwards, Secretary of Legation at Washington, to the Brevoort House. He had a very rough passage, but was in good health and spirits. The landing was quiet, and there was no excitement. Mr. Chamberlain will remain about a week here, to see friends, and then go to Washington. He speaks hopefully of the commission, and thinks it will have good results.

The Herald says:—"Mr. Chamberlain is in many respects well equipped for the work in hand. He is a business man, with a business man's methods of handling practical subjects. With his politics we have nothing to do. His knowledge of the fisheries dispute, and his willingness and ability to assist in a solution of that question to the satisfaction of the two great powers, these are the only matters in which we are profoundly interested. His political opinions are nothing to us, for they are not a factor in the problem. The Globe is right in asserting that the present discouraging condition of affairs cannot long continue without endangering the friendly relations of England and America. We believe we have serious cause of complaint; and for that reason we are ready to place our case before commissioners and hear the case of England, simply demanding what we are ready to grant, namely, that open handed and square justice to which we have an undoubted right. If Mr. Chamberlain comes to this country ready to look these facts in the face and report accordingly to the home Government, it is all we expect or require. If not, the muddle will remain; but it is not necessary to cross the bog before we get to it, especially when it is possible that there is no bog, but a good macadamized road instead."

DISASTROUS RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Collision of Two Freight Trains on the C. P. R—Four Men Injured.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7.—Another disastrous accident has just occurred on the Canadian Pacific Railway near the Suminit, thirty-two miles east of Rat Portage. Two heavy freight trains pulled by engines 26 and 28 ran into each other on Saturday night, 3 miles east of the Summit, at the east end of the bridge, at the approach to which was a thirty feet embankment. Neither of the engineers saw the approaching train until they were within a very short distance of each other, and were unable to prevent a collision at full speed. Both the engins were completely demolished, and with eight cars, containing wheat and coal, were all dumped down the embankment in an indescribable mass. The engineers were severely wounded. Randall, of No. 29, was badly scalded by escaping steam over his face and below his knees, and his eyes injured. He was wedged in near the lever and required help to extricate himself. Engineer Jamieson had his left arm completely smashed, and two severe gashes in the head. Edwards, one of the fireman, had a cut in the head, which required sewing up. Anderson, a brakeman, had his back severely injured. Jamieson, Randall, Edwards and Anderson were taken to the Winnipeg hospital on the express.

A Schooner Missing.

HAMILTON, Nov. 7.—No tidings have been received by the owner, Mr. R. O. Mackay, of the whereabouts of his schooner Bessie Barwick. She was in tow of the Celtic, and as the letter met with a mishap to her crank pin the Barwick had to be placed on her own resources. The crew of the Celtic last saw the Barwick off Michipicoten, about 100 miles from Sault Ste Marie, on Friday, Oct. 28th. The Barwick has not arrived at the Sault, but Mr. Mackay is in hopes that she has got safely into one of the lesser ports, where in all probability she will have to winter, as ice has formed along the shores of Lake Superior. The gales have been frightful on the upper lakes, and it is no wonder that the owner of the Bessie Barwick is anxious about her and her crew. The Barwick loaded with wheat at Port Arthur for Kingston.

NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM CONTEMPORARY COLUMNS.

A Budget of News of the Midland District Carefully Gathered and Condensed.

Grain is moving freely at the Pontypool elevator.

Mr. Roe Buck, an old resident of Cobourg, died on Sunday.

Diphtheria has carried off several young people at Trent Bridge.

Orillia has organized a canoe club, with the Mayor as president.

The Beaverton Express is opposed to Orillia being made a county town.

Mr. Wm. Wilson, Pontypool, fell from a building recently and broke his leg.

The Midland elevator is full of grain, and several more cargoes are expected to arrive.

Typhoid fever of a mild type has affected people at Castleton. Two fatal cases are reported.

John Ball has purchased a mill at Baltimore for $1,000 that five or six years ago sold for $6,000.

A new sash and door factory at Campbellford, built by Mr. Jas Benor, is nearly ready for work.

The Midland and North Shore Lumber Company's mill at Parry Sound has been closed for the season.

There seems to be an abundant supply of marble at the Madoc quarry, but operations are hindered by water.

The largest shipment of leather ever made from Omemee, 4,600 pounds, was made last week by Geo. Lamb.

Miss Haig, of Seymour east, is suffering from bleeding from the mouth, teeth and nose, and the doctors are baffled.

Wm. Harding sustained serious injuries at Belleville, on Thursday, by a waterworks pipe rolling on him, injuring his back and hip.

The Midland Railway are removing the locomotive boiler in their car shop at Uxbridge, and replacing it with a new steel boiler.

Mr. John Swanick, of Victoria Corners, sold his team of Canadian draught colts to American buyers for the handsome sum of $750.00.

An extensive saw mill will be built at Marmora by T. P. Pearce. He is taking iron from Blairton for a track at the piling grounds.

D. Black, of Campbellford, stepped into the horse power of a threshing machine at work in Seymour and his foot was badly crushed.

While going home from Orillia on Thursday night Wm. Calverley, jr., collided with a man carrying a saw and was severely injured by the saw.

The Rev. M. Shaw, of the Campbellford Baptist Church, was presented with a coon skin coat, goat skin robe and Persian lamb cap by his congregation.

About five hundred tons of railway irons at Blairton have been sold to the Hamilton Rolling Mill company and are being shipped on the Canadian Pacific.

Jas. Forest's horses ran away while he was driving down a hill near Uxbridge. He was thrown out and his arm was dislocated and fractured.

The district inspector of weights and measures states that Colborne and its vicinity has been a harvest for illegal weighing machines.

In a row between Italians employed on a gravel train and citizens of Midland a resident of that village was badly cut on the head with a spade.

While a party from Midland were out shooting a dog jumped at a gun, causing it to go off, and the charge entered Frank Walden's knee, causing a bad wound.

D. J. Carscallen, who lived in Thurlow, near Belleville, was found dead in his bed on Thursday morning. He had been suffering from kidney disease.

Earnest Simpson, of Cataraqui, went into a loft while a thresher was at work, and, losing his footing, fell into the cylinder and had his leg so mangled that amputation was necessary.

James Luke, of Oshawa, woke up on Thursday night and found a burglar in his room with a dark lantern and a revolver levelled at him. Mr. Luke called and the burglar fled with Mr. Luke's overcoat.

A barn and stable belonging to Wm. Beal, Greenbank, Victoria county, were burned on Oct. 28th. Nine horses perished in the flames, and the hay, timothy seed and oat crops were destroyed.

Edward Burgess, while ploughing in a field on lot 12, con. 5, Laxton, Victoria county, unearthed the remains of three Indians. The skeletons, which were all perfect, were again interred.

Hugh Coulter, of Cavan, an old man, was feeding a calf the other day when the animal raised its head and pierced his eye with its horn. He will lose the sight of the eye.

On Thursday last James Thomson, youngest son of Mr. John Thomson, while playing in the yard of the Model School, Cobourg, fell from a building and broke his left arm.

On Monday, while Reuben May was driving a team of colts, they took fright near Baltimore and ran away, throwing him out and injuring his shoulder, while the vehicle was wrecked.

On Oct. 20th lightning struck a tree at Castleton and scattered the splinters over an acre of ground. The ground was ploughed up to the depth of two feet.

An explosion of sixty-five pounds of powder occurred at the Pinery Point quarry, near Penetanguishene, a few days ago. The roof of the building was blown off and Mr. and Mrs. Dou and Mr. Perrault were badly wounded.

On Saturday last, while Mr. John Austin was discharging his duties as bailiff near Powles' Corners, Victoria county, he was shot at by a young man, the ball passing close to his head. The young man was arrested and fined heavily for the offence.

The steamer Marie Louise caught fire while lying at Port Perry wharf on Friday evening last and, with a covered scow, was badly damaged before the flames were extinguised. She had been towing during the day and it is supposed that a spark escaped from the furnace.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Hatley, of Orillia, was exhibiting the beauties of the electric light to a lady in his shop, when a knife he held in his hand touched the lamp. He was knocked down, and electricians state that had he held anything of iron in his other hand, the result would have been fatal.

THOSE ANARCHIST BOMBS.

The Governor Thunderstruck—How the Men Would Cheat the Gallows.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 7.—Governor Oglesby was thunderstruck when he received the news of the finding of the bombs in Lingg's cell. He read and re-read the despatch and a cloud of gloom, vexation and anxiety swept over his face and the full import of the information dawned upon him. "I can say nothing," he said; "I must say nothing whatever in regard to this matter. There is nothing I can properly say, and any opinion I might express, would only be misunderstood." The bombs were placed in the hands of Capt. Schaack for examination, and that officer reported that they appeared to have been designed for use by some of the condemned men as agents of self-destruction. From his knowledge of the methods of making bombs for various purposes the Captain gave it as his opinion that the bombs found in Lingg's cell were intended to be used only as a means of cheating the gallows. It was doubtless the intention of Lingg, as well as of the other three, to put one end of the bomb in his mouth and light the fuse just as he would a cigar. The result of an explosion would, it was believed, prove fatal.

AN INTERVIEW

Mr. Chamberlain Reticent as to the Work of the Commission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Mr. Chamberlain did not think it proper for him to express any opinion in advance as to whether it would be wiser for the Fishery Commission to work back to the last treaty, the Treaty of Washington, or to take up the Treaty of 1818 and revise it. He did not know that the subject of Commercial Union commended itself to any considerable number of people outside of Canada. He did not think the matter had received any consideration in England. He observed that one or two Canadian papers attacked him very warmly, but he thought they were labouring under a misapprehension as to his position in the matter. Being asked if he thought the idea would be pleasing to the English people, he replied that he thought they would be scarcely willing to tolerate it, because the great advantage of the connection with the self governing colonies is the fact that trade follows the flag. If that advantage is taken away, it is very difficult to see why England should retain the obligation that is thrown upon her for their defence.

Mr. Chamberlain was asked if he considered himself as the representative of Great Britain rather than Canada. He answered that he was the representative of Great Britain. And not of the whole Empire?" "Well, I should not say that. All three commissioners are representatives of Great Britain, but, of course, Sir Charles Tupper has special competency to speak on behalf of Canada, on account of the local circumstances, with which he is well acquainted; but he holds his appointment just as truly from the Crown."

In regard to his future movements, he said that he hoped to be able to visit Canada. He expected to start for Washington in a few days. He said he should return to New York, and if matters went smoothly, spend some time travelling both in the United States and Canada for recreation and information. In regard to the date of the meeting, it had not been as yet fixed, but it would not be until after the arrival of Sir Charles Tupper, who was expected in a few days at the most. Mr. Chamberlain was shown a copy of the preamble of the resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of this city on Thursday last, and said that it contained a substantially accurate quotation of his speech, but that it is perhaps a little stronger than the original speech, a qualifying word having been omitted, but that it did not misrepresent him at all.

In reply to a question as to whether detectives accompanied him, Mr. Chamberlain laughed outright and said:—"No, that is entirely a fairy tale. If any detectives are on my track, I don't know anything about them."

Judges Appointed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—There was another lengthy Cabinet meeting this afternoon, at which it is understood the existing judicial vacancies were again under consideration. Only one Superior Court appointment was decided upon, Mr. Justice Armour being promoted to the Chief Justiceship of the Queen's Bench from November 14th, vice Sir Adam Wilson, resigned. Mr. T. M. Benson, junior County Court Judge of Northumberland and Durham, is appointed senior judge, vice Judge Clarke, resigned.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

MASS MEETING AT CLONMEL.

DUBLIN, Nov. 7.—A mass meeting at Clonmel yesterday was attended by several members of Parliament. A Government reporter was allowed to sit on the platform. The police inspector tried to drive his trap through the crowd, and a scene was narrowly averted.

MR. BALFOUR CONTRADICTED.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Mr. Labouchere writes a long refutation as an eye witness of many of Mr. Balfour's assertions, made in his Birmingham speech in defence of the Irish policy.

CALLS IT BOUNCE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 7.—Mr. Michael Davitt, addressing a meeting on Sunday at Carrick-on-Shannon, Ireland, denounced what he termed Mr. Balfour's "bounce" at Birmingham. He advised his hearers not to pay too much for their landlords' interests.

LORD WOLVERTON'S DEATH.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Lord Wolverton's sudden death is a severe blow to the Liberal party in general and Mr. Gladstone in particular. Lord Wolverton was something more than the chief purse of "The Home Rule party." Admiration for Mr. Gladstone was the ruling passion of his life, and made him, perhaps, the most fervent advocate of Home Rule among the Liberal leaders. His vast wealth was at the disposal of the cause, and his heart and soul were enlisted in the fight. Like most of Mr. Gladstone's whips he came to cherish a strong affection for his chief. His pet aversion was Mr. Chamberlain.

GREVY TO RESIGN.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—President Grevy, there is occasion to believe, is going to resign as soon as the scandal blows over. He has been very hard hit and deeply offended and angered, and his resignation is almost certain.

A MISSING NEW YORKER.

Straightening Out His Brother's Affairs—Fears of Suicide.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The strange disappearance last month of David Scott, of Vernon Bros. & Co., is still exciting interest. John G. Scott, of Toronto, a brother of the missing man arrived here on Friday for the purpose of straightening out his brother's affairs. On Saturday morning Mr. Scott called on Thomas Vernon, the senior member of the firm, and urged him to sign a statement exonerating him from all criminal action. Mr. Vernon later wrote a letter to the brother, in which he said as to the statement that he had charged David Scott with forgery, "This is false; I never charged him with this or any other criminal offence. With all his faults, and they were many, he had a warm and generous heart, which gave him a large circle of friends." Mr. Scott said his investigation confirmed him in the belief that his brother had committed suicide by jumping from the Suspension Bridge at Niagara Falls. Experts are examining the books of the firm, and he hopes that every stain will be removed from his brother's memory.

DISASTERS ON THE LAKES.

Two Hundred and Eighty-five Accidents During October.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The month of October shows an aggregate of 285 accidents and disasters on all the lakes, 117 more than in September this year and 115 more than in October last year. They occurred as follows: Lake Michigan, 97; Lake Huron, the straits and river, 80; Rivers, 18; Lake Superior, 15; Georgian Bay, 13; Lake St. Clair, 35; Lake Erie and Welland Canal, 15; Lake Ontario, 12. The causes were: heavy weather, 116; loss, $281,400; stranded, 55; loss, $108,000; ashore, 50; loss, $229,500; sprung a leak, 19; loss, $36,600; disabled, 24, loss, $36,400; collisions, 18; loss, $17,900; fire, 3; loss, $11,300. Loss on cargoes, $351,100; total loss for the month, $1,066,207, an increase over September of $825,309. Reckoning 49 lives lost with the steamer Vernon, 132 persons were drowned from vessels in October on the great lakes. If all these losses could be thoroughly investigated, there is every reason to believe that it would be found that the cause of more than one half of them was overloading. Never in the history of the lake marine has the dangerous practice of overloading vessels been carried to such an extreme as this season.

A Vessel Sunk.

RACINE, Wis., Nov. 7.—The schooner Commerce, of Chicago, struck Racine reef last night and came near going to the bottom. It is loaded with 3,900 bushels of oats for Sarnia, and was towed into port with six feet of water in her hold and sunk. The cargo is about one-third damaged.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1887.

THE SENATE.

AGAIN it is reported that Mr. John Macdonald, of Toronto, has been offered the seat in the Senate made vacant by the death of Senator McMaster. To Mr. Macdonald, personally, we have no objection to make. He is a man of extensive business knowledge and excellent character, and, though he holds political opinions with which we do not agree, he showed while in the House of Commons a manly and independent spirit that other politicians might emulate without loss to themselves. But why should the vacant seat be given to a resident of Toronto? That city is the most important centre in the Province, but it is not the whole of Ontario, and five representatives in the Senate, two Reformers and three Conservatives—one of them a member of the Cabinet—should be sufficient without retaining for that city Mr. McMaster's seat. The representation it has now is double what it is entitled to according to its population.

While Toronto is thus favoured a large section of the Province is unrepresented in the Senate. Between Toronto and Belleville there is not, we believe, a member of that House. The right of this section should receive consideration. Its population and interests are entitled to representation in the second as well as in the first House of Parliament.

As this county occupies an important position in the unrepresented district, its county town being the largest business centre, and steadily increasing in importance and population, it would only be right if the new Senator should be chosen from Peterborough. The Government should give the claims of Peterborough consideration before filling any vacancy.

THOSE who imagine that Canada would be more prosperous if it was commercially annexed to the United States should read the following from the Hamilton Spectator:—"Ontario is growing more rapidly in population and wealth than any one of the states on her borders except Michigan. In 1851 the population of this Province was 952,004; in 1881 it was 1,923,228. In thirty years its increase was 102 per cent. In the the thirty years from 1850 to 1880 the growth of population in New York was 64 per cent.; in Pennsylvania 86 per cent.; in Ohio 62 per cent. In the New England States the progress was much slower. No part of the Canadian Dominion has made so little progress as Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont." How, then, would Commercial Union benefit Ontario? Could the less progressive impart energy to the more prosperous?

MR. WIMAN has telegraphed to the Montreal Witness that the interview published in the Boston Herald contains sentiments which he does not entertain and did not express. The Herald is yet to be heard from. At any rate Mr. Wiman has published enough to show his designs, including the hint to the United States that Commercial Union would increase the business of their ports, while the business of the Canadian ports would correspondingly fall off.

DR. MONTAGUE, the Conservative candidate in Haldimand, was accused of canvassing for votes on a Sunday, which he denies. Mr. Laurier, the leader of the Reform party, who is to deliver addresses in the county, is not likely to repeat the accusation. He attended a political demonstration at Montreal on Sunday and delivered an address.

IN answer to the charge of having altered the text of a resolution of the Quebec Conference of 1864, the Globe enters the plea that it did not take it from an official record.

"PA's son is also provided for," the London Advertiser says. Of course; Mr Mowat's son is Sheriff of Toronto. But the York Shrievalty is still vacant.

A Dynamiter's Denial.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—"Gen." F.F. Millen, the alleged dynamiter, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Edam. He denounced the story that he was concerned in a plot with Cohen, Melville, Denneby and others as a lie and an invention of the British Government. His main objects in going to Europe, he said, were to interest the French Government in a shell which he had invented, and to arrange a plan of emigration with Gen. Guzman Blanc, of Venezuela.

Victory has Perched on the Banner of PETERBOROUGH'S GREAT CHEAPSIDE.

And SHEPPARD, by common consent, will get $1,000 for being the Cheapest Clothier in Peterborough, having knocked the Wonderful Cheap Man completely out. "Business is business; dirt is dirt, and when it comes to throwing dirt, then count" the only original teddy out, and he will hand over that $1,000 like a little man, for the following reasons:—

SHEPPARD sells a full size Man's suit for $2.95, and better goods than a suit to fit a child about nine years old sold by the Wonderful Cheap Man on Saturday for $3.00; but marked $3.50. This is how it was:—A lady purchased a child's suit on Saturday last, Sept. 17th, 1887, at the store of the Wonderful Cheap Man. It was marked thusly:—Lot 5375, Breast 27, Waist 26½, Age 9, Price $3.50. It was pure shoddy, being held together by cotton threads, and Sheppard is free to say that that was the dearest suit sold in the Town of Peterborough for the last two years. Full particulars are given because of the $1,000 involved, and, further, that this decides who is selling the Cheapest Clothing in Peterborough. SHEPPARD would have sold that lady a suit, pure wool, for that money, and worth two of the one she got.

$1,000 to Go to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

I had first decided to give the agencies a chance of jumping up my rating that $1,000, but after considering the matter and finding that never in any case have I been asked for an endorser to my paper, and that no relative or any other persons have ever endorsed my paper to the extent of one cent, I have come to the conclusion my credit is as good as yours, and will ask you to hand over the $1,000 to the Charitable Institutions of Peterborough.

Now, Sir, there is a good story told, the truth of which can be vouched for, but for the honor of at least making an effort to keep up your self-styled name—The Terror of High Priced Clothiers—do not allow the same to be said of you in the case above. A man purchased a suit for $15.00 at the store of one of the largest advertisers in that section of country. It was guaranteed pure wool; but after examining it carefully at home, he came to the conclusion that he had been dealing with some one sharper than himself. Finding a make of wool, differing some from anything he had ever seen, it dawned upon him that he had heard of wool of that kind, so the suit was returned. The merchant bet $25.00 that it was all wool, and the bet was accepted, the decision being left to a neighboring merchant. He found that the $15.00 suit was wool faced and shoddy back, pure unadulterated shoddy; but what of the $25.00 bet? was it paid? Not much—muchly—as it were.

"Did n't Know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste; and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reestablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

IN LONDON HOTELS.

NO GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN THE SYSTEM FOR YEARS.

A Place Where You Cannot Hurry Anybody—Experience of a Hungry Man. Habitual Carelessness of the Scullion. At the Seaside.

The hotel system in this country is very solemn. You cannot hurry anybody. If you drop your key at the hotel it may be an hour before you will recover it. It is like the diving bell operation. The more you enjoin these solemn personages the more they lose either their presence of mind or their method. As to the method, they have but little. In the first place, they do not rise till about or after 9 o'clock in the morning, although nature shines upon their island about 4 o'clock. Active minded Yankees, who feel the morning shine, rise and expect to get even with the country. They find that they cannot buy a pill or seidlitz powder or an oyster. The Briton rises as becomes him—about 9 o'clock or 10 o'clock—and is then somewhat unrested if a call is made upon his avarice.

I am stopping here in a hotel which is supposed to be the perfection of recent civilization. It is built of white bricks on the inside and stone exteriorly. There is more style and method about it than is required of a country house. You come in at the front door and observe a man covered over with gilded uniform. You advance toward two or three offices near the front door. If you strike the wrong office they march you to and fro. You are requested to register. About six of these minor offices are kept up toward the front. In the course of time you learn the regimen, but if you are blunt or dull you may be for a week kept sailing between office number one and office number seven. When you come down from your room you drop your key through a hole into a sort of a vat. If they neglect, as they often do, to fish your key out of the vat you may be ten or fifteen minutes recovering your way into your room.

AT THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

When you go to breakfast you are required to give your number, which has been previously confided to you on a little round ticket or check. You present yourself, and in about three minutes are required to sign a schedule as to your place of abode. They bring you a little piece of fish about two inches by three inches. When you have done with this they possibly bring you a second piece. I calculate during the present week that every meal which cost me from four shillings to seven shillings cost the house about one-half shilling at the very highest. The hotel system here has changed, as they suppose, for the better, and yet we would think in America that it had hardly changed at all. Let me give you an example of the contrast. Fifteen or twenty years ago the Langham hotel was supposed to be the finest in London; it was placed near the American minister's residence; it was built of brick, and was a very large and extensive building. They made it state and offensive and exclusive. If you go to the hotel you see a man in uniform parading before it; his business is to observe whether you are fit to come into the holy of holies. You pass through the portal, and there is perhaps a second sergeant at arms there to look out for your character. When you get within the hotel becomes very expensive, containing several kinds of bureaus containing railroad tickets, newspapers and what not.

You finally go up to a little office, which is perhaps supported by a boy. He assigns you to a room. Most of the chambermaids receive about £15 a year, or $75. They are obliged to enter into articles of contract to stay out their year. It need not be hinted at that a portion of them are oblivious of the seventh commandment. When you go down to the breakfast or dining room you find that almost every one there is a German. He knows about enough English to give you what you have to eat, and if you have a request to make pertaining to your room or your friend he shrugs his shoulders and insists upon feeding you. He is as a Sioux Indian in Great Britain. These Germans to the number of hundreds of thousands are overrunning England, and though the English dislike the juxtaposition they seem to be entirely incapable of changing their methods. The solemnity of the British hotel is equivalent to the solemnity of a church.

A CARELESS SCULLION.

This morning I went to the office and asked for my key. The scullion there said that it was not on its hook, and would look for it. He then began to fish for it among about fifty keys in a hole underneath the place we had dropped our keys. Having hunted all these keys through, he said it was not there. He had overlooked it in the multiplicity of keys. Had he attended to his business, every one of those keys would have been hung on its place the moment it was dropped. Then their system will never stand the pressure and criticism of modern civilization. You enter the huge dining room of the Hotel Metropole and find a series of pillars in the middle of the room. These pillars are all useless and unnecessary, and they separate people who eat from other people who eat. You are told that for a certain amount of money you shall have so many dishes. They bring you the first dish, and it is about one and a half to two ounces in weight. If you submit this is all you will get of the first dish. If you are an independent person you will demand a second portion of the dish. They yield without remonstrance. Then when you come for the second part of the breakfast you get a little piece about two or three inches. If you tell the man to take that back and bring you something reasonable to eat he will obey like a calf. If you submit you will get no more for breakfast.

At the Langham hotel you ring a bell for something in the way of refreshments; sometimes a man will come in and sometimes he will not. You wonder where the center of these houses is; who conducts them; who is responsible for them. As far as the chambermaids and labor element go they are very well attended to, but if you go to the main office you are kept in a state of apprehension, wondering whether you have a right to ask for anything or not. On my way to London I stopped at Brighton for almost a week. Every day I took my sea bath. Every night I slept under a sheet. In the course of three or four days I was afflicted with a strange kind of diarrhea. I had never felt anything of the kind before; there was a slight pain in the middle of my stomach, attended with cracking pains toward the side of my stomach. I went to the hotel proprietor and asked where the water came from which fed Brighton. He said, with great politeness, that it was the finest water in Great Britain. One morning the main waiter in the hotel remarked to me: "Sir, you had better go to London. The sea air seldom agrees with strangers. With many strangers it disagrees very much. You will never be any better so long as you stay here." So I went on to London, and in a few hours was completely restored to health.—London Letter.

REMARKS OF A PHYSICIAN.

A Cure for Chapped Lips and a Study of the Cause of Wrinkles.

"As soon as the cold winds begin to blow," remarked a physician, "I am overrun with patients suffering from chapped lips. The trouble generally manifests itself in one wide cut in the middle of the lip. I used to treat such things as a laughing matter and prescribe some simple emollient, such as glycerine, for instance. But I soon found that such treatment was only a temporary remedy, for after partially healing the cut would open at the slightest exertion of the lips. The mere act of biting anything hard, laughing or yawning would make the unfortunate howl with pain. If the patient was addicted to the use of tobacco the chances were that he would have a bad lip all through the winter. In my researches for a permanent cure I ran across an old tramp printer who had rubbed against the rough side of the world all his life, and for whom every season had been a cold day. He told me that if I investigated the matter I would find that the people addicted to chapped lips were in the habit of touching them with their tongues. A sure cure, said he, is to keep your tongue in your mouth. I have since followed his suggestion in my practice and never knew it to fail. The rough skin of the tongue scratches the lips, and when they have once become chapped the least contact is enough to keep the cut open.

"I have recently been making a study of wrinkles," continued the doctor. "It is customary to say that wrinkles come from worrying, but the truth is that most of them come from laughing. This is rather paradoxical, I must admit, but I have been only convinced after the most careful investigation. To know how to laugh is just as important as to know when to do it. If you laugh with the sides of your face the skin will work loose in time and wrinkles will form in exact accordance with what kind of a laugh you have. The man who always wears a smirk will have a series of semi-circular wrinkles covering his cheeks. When a gambler, who has been accustomed to suppressing his feelings, laughs, a deep line forms on each side of his nose and runs to the upper corner of his mouth. In time this line extends to the chin and assumes the shape of a half moon.

"A cadaverous person with a waxlike skin is very apt to have two broadly marked wrinkles, one running up from the jaw and the other under the eye. These meet at right angles at the cheekbone and look as though they formed a knot at the apex. The scholar's wrinkles form on his brow, while the scheming politician's come around his eyes, where they look for all the world like the spokes of a wheel. Some of the fat women who bet on horses have the most astonishing crop of wrinkles I ever saw outside of an elephant. One in particular was so strongly marked that whenever she smiled over a big win the wrinkles in each cheek would form themselves in the shape of a perfect pretzel.—New York Evening Sun.

Full Purses and Kind Hearts.

It is not in human nature to be just and humane when robbed of its due experience of life's fundamental conditions. Whatever narrows a man's experience narrows his sympathies, and whatever confers on him irresponsible power tempts him to abuse it. Now, riches do both these things. Whatever exceptional experience they may provide, they certainly withdraw their owners from much that must always enter into the life of the large majority of human kind. These must always anxiously labor and be content with moderate means. Between life conditioned in this way and life free from labor and anxiety there is fixed a gulf which sympathy could hardly cross, even if it would, for it is chained on the one side by pride and on the other by envy.

Sometimes, indeed, if a man has risen to riches by his own efforts, he may so far remember his life of poverty as to retain a certain sympathy for those whom he has left behind him in it; but this is rare, for three reasons: First. Men caring enough for riches to be willing to devote much time to the acquisition of them are usually of a somewhat low, material and unsympathetic nature. Second. In their ascent to riches, after the first few steps, they have to use other men as stepping stones, for no man, unless he have a monopoly talent, like Raphael, can rise to riches otherwise. Nearly all great fortunes are made up of profits caught in labor traps. Such using of other men solely as means leads to forgetfulness that they are ends, hardens the heart and destroys sympathy. Third. Men who have made their own fortunes—self made men, as they are wisely called—have usually a great deal of respect for their maker, and a proportionate contempt for those who, having less cunning than themselves, have remained in the ranks of poverty. Thus it frequently happens that self made men are among the least humane of aristocrats. And the case is even worse with their children and with all persons born to wealth. These lack altogether the experience that would enable them to sympathize with the ordinary, natural human life of labor and narrow means. Raised above it, they cannot comprehend it.—Professor Thomas Davidson in The Forum.

Avoid the harsh, irritating griping compound so often sold as purgative medicine, and correct the irregularities of the bowels by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are invaluable as a family medicine.

Things Asked of Actors.

John Drew was shown a letter in which the authorship of "The Taming of the Shrew" is attributed to Augustin Daly. Mr. Drew said he was not very much surprised.

"Why, the other day in New York," continued the comedian, "a real estate broker to whom I was introduced said:

"'If I could talk as well in my business as you do in yours, Mr. Drew, I would be a rich man. I can't understand how you manage to think of all those funny things just on the spur of the moment.'"

The ignorant questions actors are subjected to is not half as appalling as their lack of tact and their impertinence." A member of Mr. Joseph Jefferson's family once said she had often been asked if it did not pain her very much to see her father making an exhibition of himself for money. And this of the most graceful of comedians.—Philadelphia Press.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d108eod

Systematic Giving.

At a conference of clergy of the dioceses of Toronto and Niagara, presided over by the Lord Bishop of Niagara, the Rev. W. O. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's, was, among others, asked to hold himself in readiness to preach on behalf of the Society of the Treasury of God on the subject of "systematic giving," when requested to do so by the clergymen of other parishes.

Heiress to $18,000.

The eldest daughter of Mrs. Mills, the second wife of the late Geo. Mills, who committed suicide, has come into the possession of a handsome property. The day before Mills committed suicide Mrs. Mills and her daughter were in Toronto attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Walker, mother of Mrs. Mills' first husband. It was found that the deceased had left the whole of her property in North Toronto to her granddaughter. The value of the bequest is said to be about $18,000.

Telephone Extension.

The Whig says that Mr. A. T. Smith, Kingston, manager of the Bell telephone exchange (formerly of Peterborough), returned to Kingston on Saturday after an absence of three weeks. He was engaged in superintending the erection of a new line from Napanee to Tamworth. Whith his staff of men thirty miles of copper wire was strung in three days—considered most remarkable time among wire stringers. There are five offices on the line, viz., Newburg, Camden East, Yarker, Enterprise and and Tamworth. The line is built along the N. T. & Q. R. R. Mr. Smith also made extensive changes and improvements in the Napanee exchange.

A Hint for the Committee.

The Canadian Manufacturer says:—"The Town Council of Peterborough, Ont., have appointed a 'Manufacturer's Committee' whose duties are to investigate and report on the best means of securing the location of new industrial enterprises in that town. Anent this matter it is suggested that Peterborough is eminently well located for an iron rolling mill, which, according to the REVIEW, would not interfere with any local interest already in existence. The suggestion that the advantages of the town and the inducements that would be offered to influence the location of such an estsblishment there, by advertising the same in American and British trade papers, is good but does not go far enough. People who are looking about for openings for profitable investments in manufacturing enterprises usually scan the columns of the trade papers of the country towards which their attention is attracted, and if Peterborough intends to move in the direction indicated, Canadian trade papers should not be given the go by."

Saw Works.

It is understood that the stock in the Saw and File Manufacturing Company is all, or nearly all, taken up. Negotiations are going on this afternoon for the lease of the Lundy tannery, which has not been used for a number of years.

Window Breakers.

John Fligg, R. Thornton, and E. Johnston were each fined 50 cents for breaking windows in Mr. W. H. Wrightons house. Freddie Bradley was in with the boys but it appears that he threw no stones. He was not fined.

Runaway.

This forenoon while Mr. Vernon Halliday was out driving a runaway horse ran into his rig in the south part of the town, and Mr. Halliday's horse and buggy were overturned and rolled into the ditch at the roadside. Mr. Halliday was thrown out but was not injured further than a bruse on the leg.

The Chevaliers.

A squad of chevaliers belonging to Peterborough Canton, No. 10, marched up George street to the Peterborough Lodge, I.O.O.F., this afternoon in full uniform. It is reported that one of the chevaliers (who hadn't the uniform on before) had to seek the assistance of six strong men to help him into his gorgeous attire.

Imperial Federation League.

The Peterborough Branch of the Imperial Federation League will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, the 9th of Nov. The subject for discussion will be the military and naval defences of the Empire. Those who took an interest in the objects of the League, even although not members, are invited to attend. 2d111

League of the Cross.

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough branch of the League of the Cross on Monday evening the charter of affiliation with the Arch-Confraternity of the Sodality of the League of the Cross was received. Two new members were initiated. The members will take the pledge in a body from the hands of the Bishop at the next meeting.

Health Matters.

The Medical Health Officer and Acting-Chief Adams, one of the Sanitary Inspectors took a jaunt about town to see what condition of things existed. A number of slaughter houses and some bakeshops were visited and found to be in a fairly good condition. Dr. Clarke reports that, owing to there having been a few cases of typhoid fever in town, a large number of people have brought samples of well water to him to analyse. There are now no cases of diphtheria in town and but few cases of typhoid fever.

Fire.

At half past seven o'clock on Monday night the fire alarm summoned the brigade to Mrs. J. Dickson's, in Smith, just over the Smithtown hill. The barns had caught afire, it is supposed from a spark from the house chimney blown over by the wind, and were burning furiously. The hose waggon, hook and ladder waggon, engine and hose reel, were taken up, but the barns being so far away from the nearest hydrant it was useless to try to do anything. There was about ten tons of hay in the barn, which filled the air with showers of sparks as the building burned. The chickens in the sheds near by found the atmosphere getting too hot for them. They hopped off their roosts and scattered themselves all around the fields. A good many of them were captured by the boys and were borne off as plunder. Mrs Dickson, who first saw the fire, went out to the stable to save the horses. In getting the animals out her face was severely burned. The barns, sheds and stable were all destroyed. The loss is about $2,000, and the insurance $275.

Orange Entertainment.

On Monday night a fruit social was held in the Orange Hall, corner of George and Simcoe streets. Bro. J. T. Collins, Millbrook, Grand Master of Eastern Ontario, occupied the chair. In his address he spoke of the objects and benefits of the Orange Order, of what it had accomplished in the past and what it hoped to continue to do. He dwelt for some time on the marvellous growth of the Order in the cities of Canada and in the Province of Manitoba. He touched lightly on the beneficiary in connection with the Western Ontario Grand Lodge. A programme was entered upon. Mr. Geo. Schneider presided at the organ. Mr. Galletly sang three songs. Miss Brown gave an entertaining recitation. Owing to some of the members of the band having gone to see where the fire was the band did not take part in the pragramme. During the evening fruit of various kinds was passed around through the audience. The Rev. Dr. Smithett, of Omemee, Grand Chaplain, gave an address. He gave a resume of English history from the time of the Roman invasion, discussing the Gunpowder Plot and its effect in unifying the English people. He went on to describe England's gradually growing strength, how the nation put out colonization enterprises and the wonderful result of those enterprises. He mentioned the fact that the East India Company's Army at one time numbered 200,000 men, while at the same time the English regular army numbered only 100,000. He spoke of the great predominance of the Anglo Saxon race in the world and their having done so much to spread Christainity. He alluded to the rapid growth of Christianity and especially to the Protestant branch of it. The evenings entertainment was brought to a close in the usual loyal manner.

HILL'S INSURANCE AGENCY.

Extension of Business and Extension of Premises.

The Dunsford building on the corner of Hunter and Water streets has been remodelled and fitted up for Mr. W. H. Hill who will occupy it in a day or two.

The offices are elegantly furnished and conveniently situated. The furniture and fixtures are in cherry stain. The general office consists of an apartment for the Fire Insurance Department, which is in charge of Mr. D. D. Galletly. A counter runs from one side of the office to within four feet of the opposite wall, where it curves and forms a passage way to Mr. Hill's private office. In the office is a desk with a glass front. Going down the passage way there is another office for Mr. James Little, Inspector of agencies, and other men doing business for Mr. Hill. This office is also very neatly fitted up. Passing through a door at the end of the passage way brings the visitor to Mr. Hill's private office. It is beautifully papered and nicely carpeted.

Mr. R. J. Lee had charge of the papering and the carpets and oilcloth was furnished by the Golden Lion dry goods house. The office has fronts of plate glass and is situated directly opposite the new post-office.

Hill's Insurance Agency has done a large and constantly increasing business for the past five years. Square dealing and prompt attention to business has made it popular. Mr. Hill is now at the head of the agencies of the companies he represents in Central Ontario, which embraces the counties of Haliburton, Victoria, Peterborough, Northumberland, Durham and Hastings.

Women and The Franchise.

On Monday night at the Methodist School room under auspices of the Y.P.A., six eloquent young men undertook to discuss and settle the question as to whether the franchise should be extended to women. It is a brave thing to do to stand up before the eye of the world—so to speak—and contend that the line must be drawn somewhere and just outside the polls. The gentlemen who upheld the negative are entitled to credit as having the courage of their evictions. The programme was taken up at eight o'clock with Rev. F. H. Wallace in the chair. Messrs. R. H. Henderson and Geo. Sherin gave a vocal duet, "Song of the Norsman," Miss N. Sanders a recitation, "Death Doomed." The alarm of fire having called out several of the gentlemen on the debate and a part of the audience, Mr. W. A. Dixon gave a few specialties in ventriloquism to fill up the interval, and those who had gone out having returned the debate was commenced, it being understood that the decision would rest with the Chairman, the Rev. Mr. Wallace. For the affirmative were Messrs. S. R. Armstrong, W. H. Stevens and A. Clegg. Supporting the negative were Messrs. A. E. Scott, W. H. Hill and W. H. Wright, and the question before the meeting was: "Resolved, that the franchise should be extended to women." Mr. Armstrong, for the affirmative, opened the debate, and, in brief, contended that the rights of Government being for all, irrespective of sex, that women were entitled to a share in the framing of all laws. Mr. Scott took up the debate for the negative, and urged that woman's position in the social and domestic world was against the supposition that the franchise could be used effectually without interfering to a large extent with her domestic and more important duties. Mr. Stevens ran over points made by the previous speaker, and showed that women's vote in the aggregate would wield a great influence for good in the moral welfare of the country. Mr. Hill contended that women's physical and social attributes unfitted them for the exercise of the franchise with the freedom and breadth of view of men. Mr. Clegg reviewed previous arguments advanced against the resolution, and maintained that having an equal share in the responsibility of the welfare of the community, women were entitled to equal privileges. Mr. W. H. Wright maintained that the gentler sex could not exercise the privileges of citizenship without taking upon themselves the responsibilities, which would impose a burden they should not be called upon to bear. Mr. Armstrong in conclusion briefly went over the points advanced for the negative, after which the Chairman—protesting that he fully realized the large and serious responsibility involved—gave his decision in favor of the affirmative. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and benediction.

Journalistic.

The issue of the Canada Lumberman for November displays some new features specially worthy of commendation. In addition to making a very fine appearance typographically, several new departments have been added and the scope of the journal enlarged. A reference to its columns shows a large amount of matter of great interest to the lumber and timber trades, and while articles of a technical character claim attention, Aside from these features the advertising space of the paper is well filled with business and manufacturing announcements, which form a valuable field of reference. The journal on the whole is an exceedingly creditable publication, and reflects great credit on the ability and energy of the proprietor, who has established the business and publication office in the Opera House Block, Peterborough.

Oddfellows.

At a meeting of the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows held on Monday evening the organization of a lodge of Oddfellows at Norwood was discussed. It was decided that the Norwood charter members visit Peterborough a week from next Monday night, and that the innitiatory ceremonies be gone through then.

A Handsome House.

Mr. Meldrum, of the firm of Meldrum, Davidson & Co., is building a handsome house on McDonal street for himself. Mr. D. Gamble has the contract of building it. The new house will be 47x25 with a cut off of six feet for an octagon end. It will have a bay window and a square cut gable roof. Its cost will be about $2,500.

Personal.

The Burk's Falls Arrow says:—"Mr. E. B. Wilson, Peterborough, who has been on a tour to the Pacific coast, spent several days this week in Burk's Falls, and was a guest at the Clifton. He left for home on Wednesday."

The Bowmanville Statesman says:—"Mr. A. McClellan has been transferred to the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Bank, and Mr. A. E. Austin, of that town, succeeds him in the bank here."

The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw has been called upon to preach before the Sunday School Association in St. Phillip's Church, Toronto, on Thursday evening.

Mr. J. B. King, Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I.O.O.F., and Major Unit, of the militant branch of the order, are in town to-day. They will be at the Canton Concert this evening.

Mr. N. H. Ramer has accepted the position of superintending the work of a staff of artists engaged in a large photographic establishment in Guelph on oil and crayon work. Mr. Ramer's friends here regret hi departure, but rejoice at his good fortune. He will leave for Guelph to-morrow evening.

Local Brevities.

The Rev. Father Conway has gone to St. Catharines for a short holiday.

Councillor Craig, of Ashburnham, who has been ill, is recovering.

The Ashburnham Council was to have held a meeting on Monday night, but there being no quorum no business was done.

Mr. James O'Shea has removed his grocery from the corner of Hunter and Water streets to Dunsford's new block.

$152,000 was spent on building improvements in Belleville this season, as compared with over $200,000 in Peterborough. $100,000 was expended in Belleville on the construction of waterworks.

The Rev. I. Tovell, pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, has accepted a call from the First Methodist Church of St. Catharines, subject, as is usual in such matters, to the action of the Transfer Committee and the Stationing Committee of Niagara Conference. Mr. Tovell will not leave Peterborough till June next.

Died on His Way to a Fire.

WYOMING, Ont., Nov. 7.—About three o'clock on Sunday afternoon people returning from the Methodist church on the town line between Plympton and Enniskillen saw that the residence of Mr. John Dales was on fire. They succeeded in saving a large portion of the contents of the main building, the fire having evidently originated in the summer kitchen at the rear. The loss is considerable. No insurance on house or contents. A very sad accompaniment of the fire was the sudden death of the youngest son of a neighbor, Mr. Henry Dennis, who, while running to the fire, was seen to fall down, and when reached immediately expired, it is supposed, from rupture of the heart.

The people's best friend is Perry Davis' Pain-Killer, because it is ever ready to alleviate suffering.

NEW TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

Lord Salisbury Gives His Adhesion, with Reservations.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Lord Salisbury has gived in his adhesion to the new triple alliance, though not without important reservations. What these reservatians are remains a secret, so well kept that some of the best informed diplomatic circles in Europe can only guess at them. On the whole, Lord Salisbury is judged to have secured most of the advantages of the new combination, and at the same time to have guarded himself against the most serious of its risks. That, it is understood, is Prince Bismarck's views. However, the important fact is, and it seems to be distinctly shadowed forth in Count Kolnoky's speech, that England must henceforth be regarded as weighing in with the central powers in all diplomatic controversies of the future. Probably nothing like an offensive and defensive alliance has been concluded, but something short of this has been most certainly settled. The triple alliance is now a triple alliance, with an English annex.

DROWNED IN A SACK.

A Detroit Newspaper Charges a Saloon Keeper with Murdering a Girl.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—A girl 22 years of age, who said her name was Julia Dixon, came to this city a few months ago from London, Ont., and went to work as a domestic in a family on Hancock avenue. While there she received the attentions of an East side saloon keeper. Later she worked for families on Antoine street, and from the house of one of these she one day disappeared without warning. Her brother came here to look her up, but finding no trace of the girl went back home. A local paper yesterday published an article declaring that Miss Dickson was murdered and that her remains were sewed up in a sack and thrown into the Detroit River below Wyandotte. The article says the young woman was taken by a man supposed to be the saloonkeeper, to a house where a doctor performed a criminal operation on her. The girl sank rapidly, and it was decided to make away with the body. The preparations for this were perfected before the girl was dead and when the patient seemingly ceased to to breathe a coffee sack was brought in and the body hurriedly sewed up in it. There is reason to believe that the girl was thrown into the river while she was yet alive, but while she was unconscious. It is said the murderers will soon be arrested.

REPORTED RIOT.

A Mob Said to be Gathered in Chicago and the Police Powerless.

A telegraphic report comes from Chicago this afternoon that a large mob has gathered in the streets, and that a big riot is in progress, the police having no control over the mob. It further says that the Rush street bridge has been blown to pieces and that the Clarke street bridge has been partly destroyed.

ATROCITIES ON THE SEAS.

A Brutal Captain and his Mates Drove Men Mad and Murdered One.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—The whaling bark William Bayless arrived from the Arctic this afternoon. The bark left New Bedford early last spring on her way to the Pacific whaling grounds, under command of Captain Montrose. After leaving port the captain and his four mates began abusing the men. One sailor, on whom the mates were particularly severe, became frantic at the cruelties and was driven overboard near the Cape Verde Islands. Another of the men was shot and killed by one of the mates because of his refusal to work after being abused. After the arrival of the Bayless to-day all the men left her. A warrant will be issued for the arrest of the captain and mates, and the matter will be settled in the United States district court

THE REFRACTORY CROWS.

Official Reports of the Skirmish—The List of Casualities

The United States War Department has received the following despatch from Gen. Ruger, under date of Crow Agency, Montana, Nov, 5:—"Demanded the surrender of the refractory Crows to-day from the chiefs. They did not deliver them in the time fixed on, and attempted arrests and a smart skirmish followed. The principal offender, Sword-Bearer, was killed and three others of his following. Some parties escaped, but will probably come in. Nearly all who were originally at the agency are in and very submissive. One corporal was killed and ten privates wounded. The behaviour of the troops was excellent."

The Secretary of the interior afterwards received the following from Indian Inspector Armstrong at the Crow Agency in Montana:—"The refrac ory Indians are all delivered and in the guardhouse but one. He will be delivered to-night. The leader was killed in a skirmish yesterday. The balance of the Crows in camp are quiet and submissive. No more trouble need be feared. They will be peaceable and contented in future."

A FORGOTTEN CRIME.

Arrest of a Nova Scotian for a Murder Committed Four Years Ago.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 8.—Four years ago James Bowie, a French youth of 17 years, shot and instantly killed a farmer named Ronald MacDonald at Tracadie, Antigonish County. The murder was a deliberate and cold-blooded one, the result of a family dispute over a piece of land. Bowie's father stood by and prompted the son. The youth escaped to the United States and all trace of him was for the time lost. Recently information was received from East Cambridge, Mass., that the Chief of Police had his eye on a young man supposed to be James Bowie, and the case was taken in hand by the authorities here, with the result that the suspected party was arrested at East Cambridge this morning, Detective Power having gone from here to apprehend him. The accused gives the name of Pitts, and denies all knowledge of the crime with which he is charged. The necessary papers asking for his extradition will be forwarded from Nova Scotia. James Bowie's father is now serving a life sentence in Dorchester penitentiary for being implicated in McDonald's murder, having been present when the deed was committed, aiding and abetting his son. He was first sentenced to be hanged, but the sentence was commuted.

ELECTIONS IN THE STATES.

Democrats Carry New York—Republicans Keep Massachusetts and Ohio.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Chapin (Democrat) is elected Mayor of Brooklyn, and that city elects the entire Democratic city ticket, except sheriff. Brooklyn gives the head of the Democratic State ticket 8,006 plurality. George polled 11,818 votes in Brooklin. In this city Cookhead, of the Democratic ticket, has a plurality of 45,897 votes over Grant. George polled 35,420 votes. In New York and Brooklyn Cook's plurality falls 12,000 short of that given to Hill, who carried the State for Governor in 1885 by 11 000, but Grant's vote in the country is not up to expectations, and the general result is believed to be that Cook has carried the State by 10,000 to 15,000, though later returns may modify this estimate. The Republican vote shows that the George supporters have been drawn mainly from the Republicans, and that the Democrats, heretofore supporters of the apostle of anti-poverty, bolted him in the election. George's vote in the interior of the State is very thin.

Fellows was elected by 20,000 over Nicolls for District Attorney. Post's total vote was about 30,000.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8.—There was some trouble in this city owing to the attempt made by Negroes to steal a ballot box. The box is missing, but it is believed it has been safely cared for. It seems probable that the Democrats have gained sufficient in the Legislature to make that body Democratic on a joint ballot, thus assuring a Democratic successor to Mahone, who will fall of re-election.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The re-election of Ames (Rep.) as Governor is generally conceded by an increased plurality. His plurality last year was 9,468.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—Foraker (Rep.) is re-elected Governor by an increased majority. The City of Cleveland and Cuyahoga County show great Republican gains.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 8.—Meagre returns show a very light Democratic gain, but there will be no material change from last year.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADEDAHIA, Nov. 8.—The entire Republican State ticket is elected, but their principal municipal candidates are defeated in this city by small majorities. The Republican majority on the State ticket is about 20,000

MISSISSIPPI.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 8.—The election today in Mississippi for members of the Legislature and county officers was the quietest ever known. There will be but few other than straight out Democrats in the next Legislature.

The Kaiser Very Ill.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The Berlin correspondent of the World telegraphs as follows:—Although the Emperor is reported as better, he is still very sick. He has suffered much more than usual from nephritic colic. He exhibits a certain apprehension, a fear never shown before. His strength has disappeared during the last eight days in a most frightful fashion. He asks continually for the Crown Prince. An officer has been sent to the Crown Prince at San Remo. The latter was disposed, in spite of his state of health, to consent to go to Berlin, but the Crown Princess has opposed her husband's going, believing that such a journey will prove fatal. It is believed the Crown Prince will go to his father no matter what may be the result. There is great uneasiness in Berlin. The Emperor is now, everyone believes, near his death, and the sad state of the Crown Prince adds to the uneasiness of the situation. In case the Emperor is not well enough to meet the Czar when he passes through Germany, Prince William will meet and accompany him across German territory.

A Great Bridge.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The first truss of the Poughkeepsie bridge was finished and swung clear yesterday. It is 525 feet long between the centres of the towers, 82 feet deep and 35 wide, being the largest and heaviest steel truss in the world. It rests on steel towers 100 feet high, which stand on masonry piers whose foundations are 125 feet below and which rise 30 feet above high water, and its total height from the foundations is 337 feet. It carries a floor system on top for a double track railway, and is capable of supporting a rolling load of 3,000 pounds to the running foot on each track.

One of Many Failures.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 8.—John Friel, late a member of the socialistic colony of A. K. Omen, at Topolobampo, Mexico, on the Gulf of California, has arrived here. He walked across the country, a distance of five hundred miles. He reports the colonists suffering for food. It is about a year since the work of colonization began. Over four hundred persons went to Topolobampo, and about one hundred and fifty remain there, the rest having died or come back to the United States.

An Ex-Juror Warned.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8.—Mr. H. T. Sandford, the juror who sat in the Anarchist trail, and who, though threatened with death on the day of the hanging of the Chicago Anarchists nevertheless expressed a purpose to go to Chicago and witness the execution of the condemned, has received a letter from States Attorney Grinnell, of Chicago, advising him not to go as his life would certainly be in danger.

Surrender of Murderers.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—Inspector Saunders and ten men left Maple Creek to-day for the International boundary line, where they will on Thursday next meet a detachment of American troops under command of an officer who will hand over to Saunders, under the Extracition Treaty, Gaudy and Racette, the murderers of McLeish at Whitewood. The prisoners will be brought to Regina and informally arraigned before Judge Richardson, after which they will be sent to Whitewood for trial.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

FARM SOLD.—Mr. T. T. Baines completed a sale of farm property on Tuesday which shows that really good land in this vicinity commands a good price. The farm is located in South Monaghan and comprises 100 acres. The price paid was $9,000.—P.H. Times.

PORT HOPE.

A RUCTION.—P. C. Jarvis had a sixty mile drive on Monday serving Scott Act summonses. He served three in Millbrook and one in Mount Pleasant. At Millbrook, in the afternoon, he had a little ruction. A big, blustering fellow called Jack Stainthorpe was a few sheets in the wind—filled with beer and fury against the man who was serving summonses. He went up to Jarvis and asked him if he wanted his nose broken. The doughty constable said "No, he didn't think so." But Stainthorpe struck at him, missed his face and the blow fell on Jarvis' shoulder. Constable Richardson happened along, and, fighting like a madman, Stainthorpe was incarcerated in the cooler.—Times.

A NEW INDUSTRY.—Mr. Robt. Harrison, the owner of the saw mill by the pond, is extending his premises by the erection of a new building, 30x50, for the manufacture of sash, doors and chairs. When completed this will supply employment for a number of new hands, and will fill a long felt want, as at present all our sash, &c, has to come from Peterborough.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—In the Methodist Church on Monday evening Dr. Fairfield, of Battle Creek, Mich., delivered his instructive "Chalk Talk" entitled "The man that rum makes," and was attentively listened to by a fairly well filled house. The Dr. proves beyond a doubt and in a scientific manner, the evil effects of alcohol on the system and illustrates his points by crayon drawings after the style of Bengough.

NORWOOD AS A GRAIN MARKET.—Messrs. Roxburgh & Rork, of the Norwood elevator, are getting a reputation for giving good prices for grain. Farmers from long distances prefer to bring their grain here, rather than sell in other villages nearer home. Last week a farmer drove to Hastings with two loads of barley, and not finding the price to suit came through to Norwood and received more than eight dollars more than he was offered in the village of hotels. On Tuesday good barley brought from 70 to 73 cents and wheat 77cts. per bushel.

WEATHER NOTES.—The hot summer came to a close after three farewell days in October, from which a change of weather took place, and although the rain fall was light it fell at intervals during the month on 14 days to the depth of 1 56-100 in., the heaviest being on the 24th, when it fell 75-100ths of an inch from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Considerable snow fell during the month, which would in all amount to about 2 inches. The first of the year was on the 11th, but the severest on the 29th, after a rain storm, drifting some. The old Canadian proverb has again been fully verified, that there is never an October without snow. There has been considerable frost during the month, the coldest being on the morning of the 30th, the thermometer standing only 13 degrees above zero, making the total average of the month 43 23-31 deg. There was thunder on two occasions, but no auroral lights. The first wild geese going south was on the afternoon of the 10th. The ploughs were first stopped on the mooning of the 26th. Taking it altogether the month has inclined to frost and cold. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely: South 5 days, east 2 days, south-west 6, north 1, north-west 7, south-east 4, west 6.

SAD BEREAVEMENT.—On Sunday, October 23rd, John Twomey buried his oldest daughter in her 20th year, after a few days' illness, of diphtheria, and on the Saturday evening following two more of his sons, aged respectively 16 and 9 years, were laid in their graves. The bereaved family has the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in this their day of trial and trouble. The trustees of the adjoining schools wisely closed them, and every means is used to keep the disease from spreading.

THE T. V. C. COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Having read the letter of Conservative on the above subject in your issue of the 7th, I, for one, cannot allow it to pass without a protest against its assumption On what ground, may I ask, does the writer conclude that the C. P. R. would be particularly opposed to the construction of the T. V.C. when, apparently, it would be much to their advantage, as an auxilliary in connection with their line of steamers from Port Arthur to Georgian Bay in relieving their railway from the former point eastward and saving them the inevitable expense at no distant day of double-tracking the line on that expensive section, if the T. V.C. is not built? And the C.P.R. Company are not likely to overlook the advantage they would secure in controling the carrying trade of these articles of manufacture required in the Northwest, and which the completion of the T. V. C. will afford along its whole length the best facilities in the Dominion for the production of, to say nothing of the increased passenger traffic incidental thereto. But, even if your correspondent was correct in supposing the C. P. R. antagonistic to the building of the canal, in what way would that bias their solicitor in acting in a judicial capacity on the commission, unless the commission have been given power to decide whether the canal should be completed or not? But as the Government agreed to build the canal, and have kept faith by the expenditure of a large sum of money on the work, does any one believe for a moment that any Government would give a commission power to say the canal should not be completed, and thus condemn themselves for the expenditure already made, which could not be justified unless the canal is completed? But, as I am informed, the object of the Government is to build those sections first, that will confer the greatest benefit for a given expenditure, and opening the longest line of continuous navigation, and as there are three principal sections of it to be completed—each having their local and interested promoters as the next to be undertaken—each pressing their claims on the Government—the latter have, I think wisely, appointed an independent Commission to take evidence, and report thereon to the Government which section should next be built. I am sure all who had the pleasure of knowing Judge Clark were much pleased with his appointment on the Commission, and congratulate him, as I do, on his reported appointment as Solicitor to the C. P. R., and trust there will be nothing in the change that will prevent him on any ground continuing on the Commission. I do not think our worthy member, Mr. Stevenson, will make such a suggestion to the Government as your correspondent insinuates, for though I am sure no insult is intended to Judge Clark, it implies that he would adjudicate in a case in which he was representing one of the interested parties.

So important a matter as the T. V. C. will, I hope, be a sufficient apology for so long a letter on the subject.

Yours truly,
H. T. STRICKLAND.

THE CANAL COMMISSION.

It was not necessary for Mr. H. T. Strickland to apologize for the length of his letter on the Trent Valley Canal Commission, which appears in another column. The subject is one of such importance to the country, and especially to this section, that we are pleased to publish anything regarding it and calculated to emphasize the advantages it would confer, especially from one conversant with the subject.

Mr. Strickland and "Conservative" have the same end in view. Each desires to forward the interests of the scheme. The latter can speak for himself, but in the meantime it may not be out of place to point out one or two facts.

There is a suspicion in some minds that the Government is not thoroughly in earnest in pressing the construction of the canal—a suspicion that has been engendered and fostered for political purposes. It is true that the locks at Burleigh and Buckhorn have been built, and other work done; but it was expected that another section would be placed under contract. It is of some importance that the Commissioners should be men who were not connected with any hostile interests. The belief that the Canadian Pacific is not favourable to the construction of the canal rests on the well known hostility of railways generally to waterways; and though there is force in the argument that the Canadian Pacific would utilize this water route, it would be more satisfactory if none of the Commissioners was connected with a corporation which would even have an interest in delaying the work, for the canal cannot be too speedily built.

It is not probable that the Government has given the Commission power to decide whether the work shall be completed or not. The letter from the Department informing Mr. Stevenson that the Commission had been appointed briefly stated that they were to make an examination of the proposed route. Their report might have an influence upon the time in which the work would be completed, as well as upon the selection of the next section to be put under contract. It might be of such a character that the whole system would be finished rapidly, but the effect it could have of causing delay is an important consideration, and it would be more satisfactory to avoid anything that might cause suspicion or at all tend to weaken confidence in the Commission.

It is not probable that Mr. Stevenson's re-election to the office of Mayor will be opposed. He has given close attention to the business of the town and endeavoured very successfully to advance its interests. His experience in municipal affairs has been great, he having been a member of the Council for about twenty years, besides representing it in the County Council in former years and holding offices in the Board of Education and Town Trust Commission. His business knowledge has been useful, together with that of members of the Council, in negotiating with manufacturers and otherwise, and in view of the steps taken to attract other industries and the matters that may have to be considered during the coming year, Mr. Stevenson's services will be valuable.

If it is true, as the cable informs us, that England is in league with the members of the Triple Alliance, the powerful combination will have a peaceful tendency. Russia will not hastily rush into war if she has to count on having the combined forces of Germany, Austria and Italy against her, with England at the back of these.

The Latest English Craze.

We are threatened with a new craze, which, properly worked, deserves to become as popular as walking round the agricultural hall used to be. Napoleon Bird is astonishing the north of England with long-distance pianoforte performances. Last week this artist played at Stockport for 36¼ hours without stopping, thereby beating his own best previous record of 11¼ hours. Although much troubled by sleeplessness during the last hour or two, he seemed to have finished very fit, and wound up by singing "Rule Brittania" to his own accompaniment. At present there seems to be no rival in the field. But when we get two or three men playing against one another on different pianos the sport will become exciting as well as intellectual.—Labouchere.

Jenny Lind in America.

The first concert in which Jenny Lind appeared in America was given at Castle Garden, New York, on the night of Sept. 11th, 1850, was attended by some 5,000 persons, and the total receipts were nearly $18,000. Of her share of receipts from the first two concerts in New York she gave $10,000 to local charities. Her manager has recorded that the gross receipts of 95 concerts given in America were over $712,000, or an average of nearly $7,500 per concert. The total amount paid to Jenny Lind (of which $32,000 was refunded on account of her dissolution of her contract) was over $208,000. Her earnings in America were largely devoted to the foundation and endowment of art scholarships and other charities in her native country.—Ex.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

A GOOD LIBRARY.

HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR THE MAN WHO READS.

The First Law in Selecting Books—A Library Should Grow with the Mind. Keep Your School Books—Light Literature.

The first law in selecting books is, I am sure, to buy along the line of your special work. I do not say in the line, for that is precisely what is not wanted. What we want is not to be told what we can see or find out for ourselves, but what will enable us to see more broadly than our separate experience would lead us to see. Books, while not leading us away from sure and special lines of life work, should keep us from narrowing ourselves into grooves.

The second law is to buy books, in the main, as we need them. A library should grow with the mind. These two rules can be illustrated together. We will suppose a man's special line is anthropology. Plainly he must also be a good student of history. He must also be well acquainted with recent biological researches—which involve paleontology and zoology, at least as far as results of investigation go. He will not have gone far before evolution, as a scientific problem, must be handled. Dealing fairly with this, he finds himself involved in ancient religious theories and comparative theology. I need not carry the process farther, but I say his library should be (1) a working library along this line, and (2) his books should be bought as needed.

The possession of a large number of books is not the possession of a library. Books, however inherently valuable under certain circumstances, under other circumstances become lumber. It is like a thousand acre farm, of which only ten acres are worked, while the owner lives in a bit of a hovel. It is impossible to express too strongly the close relation that mind growth should bear to library growth. It should be like the growth of bone to a man's flesh.

No one should sell or give away his books that have been used and seem no longer needful. Especially should old school books and college books be sacredly kept. To no other books do we sustain so intimate personal relationship. We shall surely miss the very copy of Horace and of De Amicitia that we grew familiar with, and some day will desire to turn to a passage in "Ars Poetica," or "Via Sacra," and it will not be quite the same as when we read it in sophomore year on the log in the glen with Classmate Stevens. I give every boy and girl warning not to part with their text books in literature and classics. Even my old Webster's spelling book would now be a treasure to me. Are such books part of a library? Most truly, yes. They are the very essential part of a library—the tools we have used as we came along—but tools that never wear out.

Perhaps a careful distinction should be made between the books in our study and those in the library proper; for each man should have his library, and each family should have its library. The latter should be built on a less restricted plan; yet certainly under careful rules. A home library should, above all, have an atmosphere of refinement and good society. It should not admit a low bred book any more than our drawing rooms should admit the familiarity of low bred people. An hour spent in it should produce the refreshment that comes from a social hour with witty and good friends.

A really good home library must include rescripts; it is sometimes a pity—oftener not. There are not 100 good authors in general literature that cannot be wisely compressed. It will not pay to read them through. These "Half Hours" with the best authors are necessary and valuable. But when it comes to history I am not so sure. And as for "Beauties of Ruskin," "Beauties of Goethe," etc., etc., let us burn them. If I cannot go into a rose garden for myself, I will thank you for a bunch of flowers; but for you to run ahead of me with your nose and demand that I shall smell over again your bouquet, I am inclined to select for myself.

A good library grows as our souls grow; it widens out its sympathies and gets a larger outlook. But at the same time a sloughing goes on. We only grow well as we can die well. Some people have great difficulty in dying to anything; they equally fail to grow; that is, to enlarge. Such are your religious bigots. I hate to see a man who reads an author by the dose—one dose a day; two doses a day—the way my grandmother took her Bible, and as many take it yet, but in smaller pellets. I have a friend who carries Shakespeare in his pocket, and bolts a portion each day. He resembles for all the world a pump that is clogged up from having its chain run too deep. Shakespeare has always been too deep for the fellow, and he is only pumping sand and gravel. Another took to carrying a mathematical treatise. He is himself an equal angled triangle inscribed in a circle. We must be able to change intellectually, outgrow and grow away from old tastes. We all have our chromo period—some stop there.

The bulk of novels is of no more value than blank paper. Children who have little real world as yet need a great deal of the possible and ideal. Novels, contrary to common opinion, are peculiarly the books for the young—true novels. Curiously, the world's earliest literature was mostly imaginative. We have poems and tales 7,000 years old, while logic did not find utterance till about 2,500 years ago. Voyages, travels, natural history gradually come to serve in the place of novels, the actual in the place of the possible. Lowell urges the use of such old volumes of travel as were written by voyagers "when the world was fresh and unhackneyed." That last word of Lowell's tells the story very fully. A well visited place in England was one that hackney coaches ran to and from—it was Hackneyed. Today the whole world is Hackneyed.—"E. P. P." in Globe-Democrat.

Orange and Persimmon.

An orange grower near Lake Eustis, Fla., found on one of his trees a fruit that seemed to be about two-thirds orange and one-third Japan persimmon. The latter resembles a fully grown and ripe red pepper. He dug down to the roots of the orange tree and there found the living root of a Japanese persimmon tree twined among the orange tree roots.—Chicago Herald.

ART ON SAFE DOORS.

A Glimpse at the Artists Who Put Oil Paintings on the Iron Doors.

"There are more than 400,000 safes in use in the United States," said a Broadway manufacturer to a reporter a few days ago, "and with a few exceptions their great iron doors are brightened with artistic designs in oil. The center of the safe painting trade is in this city. Half a dozen artists are engaged in the work. They are all men who have left the private studio and buried their identity for money.

"One man in particular was an artist of recognized ability. His studio up town was one of the finest in the city. Rich draperies and costly bric-a-brac were on every hand. The floor was inlaid with choice woods, and valuable specimens of his handiwork greeted the visitor from the walls. A tropical sun bursting through fleecy clouds shone down from the ceiling. This man got a good start from his father, and, as I remarked, his ability was recognized; but it didn't pan out in cash. When he found a customer for a $400 painting he lived in clover, and when the art mart was drugged and pictures went slow he found it hard work to make both ends meet. 'I've made a name,' said he one day, 'but the artist who lives on his name without money can do more than I can.'

"A week after that," continued the safe manufacturer, "he applied to me for work. If you want to talk with him, come with me."

The reporter then went into the rear apartment and found their man at work. One was painting a scene in the Catskills on the cold black front of a 6,000 pound safe that was billed to be delivered within ten days to a western manufacturer.

"Don't imagine," said the artist after the introduction, "that I have given up being an artist. Oh, no! I am still turning out original studies, but my work goes with the safe like the chromo with the pound of tea. We paint two six by nine landscapes in a day. Ordinarily one man lays in the ground work, another fills in the middle ground and a third adds the fore ground. We get up quite a number of designs to order. On the inner doors of that safe over there you will find a good painting of the lower falls in the Genesee. That picture is to please the fancy of a Rochester man who ordered it.

"We have several orders for the Volunteer in oil. It requires more time to paint waterscapes and boats than anything else. Every line of a crack yacht must be perfect or fault will be found with it. If a landscape happens to be a little too red or brown or green, we can account for it by saying that the green painting shows the scene in early spring and the brown in midsummer and the red in autumn. That, of course, is one of the tricks of the trade."

"What do you consider the nature of your work on safes?"

"We turn out work here," replied the artist after a moment's reflection, "that would sell on canvas and with frames around them for $50. When you are moving around town be particular to observe the paintings on safe doors and see if you don't agree with me."—New York Star.

The Boy and the Elephant.

Many years ago one of the most famous elephants that traveled in this country was Old Columbus. During one of his summer trips through Virginia he stopped at the town of D——. In the neighboring town of H—— a boy, familiarly called Dave and notorious for leadership in all kinds of mischievous tricks, determined to show off before the other boys at Old Columbus' expense, and invited several of his companions to go with him.

Having come to the elephant's stable Dave gave him first candy, then cake, and then finally cried: "Now boys!" and slipped a piece of tobacco in his proboscis, intending to get out of danger and enjoy Old Columbus' disgust and anger.

But before he could move Columbus seized him and whirled him upward through the opening overhead against the roof of the stable.

Unhurt by his unexpected rise Dave dropped on the hay mow. The other boys below, supposing this to be the trick promised them, cried out in admiration:

"Dave, Dave, do that again!"

Dave, comfortably seated out of harm's way, very earnestly answered:

"No, boys! I only do that trick once a day."—Youth's Companion.

A Million Postage Stamps.

Within the last year hundreds of benevolent people were actually busy begging for canceled stamps in order to obtain admission for an old lady in a Philadelphia "home." A Germantown physician took the matter in charge, and it was understood that when the necessary 1,000,000 had been collected they were to be handed over by his wife to a friend, who was to give them to another friend, who was to give them to a third, who knew some one who would arrange with somebody else for the old lady's final reception. The craze spread so far that packages of stamps arrived by every mail from New York, Washington, Chicago and Boston. Little schoolgirls and fashionable young women vied with each other in their eagerness to aid this good work, and half the requisite number had actually been scraped together before it began to dawn on people's minds that the only possible use that any "home" could make of 1,000,000 stamps would be to sell them for old paper.

Then an enterprising Philadelphia reporter undertook to hunt up the old lady, whose name was Peterman, and having found her, had the pleasure of hearing from her own lips that she had no idea of going into any institution at all.—Harper's Young People.

A Strong Argument.

"Ma," remonstrated Bobby, "when I was at grandma's she let me have two pieces of pie."

"Well, she ought not to have done so, Bobby," said his mother. "I think two pieces of pie are two much for little boys. The older you grow, Bobby, the more wisdom you will gain."

Bobby was silenced, but only for a moment.

"Well, ma," he said, "grandma is a good deal older than you are."—New York Sun.

KISSES.

He went into a baker's shop.
A bashful youth was he.
"How much are kisses, please" he said,
And blushed perceptibly.

"They're twenty cents a dozen, sir."
The maid said smilingly,
"But if your want them very much,
I'd let you have some free."

"I didn't mean that kind" he said,
His cheek still redder grew,
"But if you want to throw them in,
I'll take some of them, too."

THE CANTON CONCERT.

A GOOD PROGRAMME AND A CROWDED HOUSE.

Brilliant Drill By the Canton—Interesting Ceremony in the Presentation of the Banner—Capt. McNeil's Reply.

The concert under the auspices of Canton Peterborough, No. 10, which excited more than usual interest during the past few weeks, drew a crowded house at Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday evening. The Canton, mustering twenty-eight swords, marched down George street at eight o'clock, and on arriving there found every available seat in the body of the hall taken and the gallery well patronized

The concert programme was commenced at half past eight o'clock, the amateur orchestra, composed of Messrs. J. Best, W. E. Lech. and R. Tate, first violin; K. G. Lech, cello; J. Butcher, picolo; W. A. Sanderson, cornet; and Geo. Hamilton, double bass viol, favored the audience with an overture, "Little Beauty," by Ripley. It was an exceedingly creditable amateur performance.

Mr. C. Baguley sang in fine mellow bass, Emanuel's well known song "Alone in the Desert." Mr. Baguley has improved his style of singing very much during the past few months. No 3 was a pianoforte duet by Miss Carron and Miss Stevenson from Rossin's "Tancrede." It merited the favor of the audience and received it in an unmistakable way. Messrs. Dunn, Davis, Elliott, and Tierney, sang a quartette, "The Buccaneer's Bride," and were recalled. Miss Brundrett sang "In the Golden Eventide" very pleasingly. Mr D. D. Gallotly's Scottish song "Hail to the Chief" inspired Scotia's sons, and others too. Miss Delaney, sang "Von Dio" by Kummer, with picolo and violin obligato. This selection brought out a remarkable compass, surprising to many, and more than that, a correct style of concert singing. Miss Delaney has certainly made a great advance in voice culture during her stay in Boston. She accepted the compliment which the audience bestowed and responded by singing "Jamie Dear" in a charming style. Miss Cottingham and Miss Vair sang a duet "When the Wind Blows from the Sea," Smart. Their voices blended well and their rendition of it exhibited careful rehearsal. Mr. R. M. Roy brought the first part of the programme to a close by some clever and amusing legerdemain.

The second part opened with sword exercise by the Canton. The curtain when drawn up revealed the chevaliers and officers in their rich uniforms ready for drill. Captain McNeil then put the Canton through various movements, evoking murmers of applause. The exactness with which the movements were executed reflects great credit upon Capt. McNeil, Lieut. Mills, and Ensign McFarlane, as well as on the chevaliers themselves, who must have given much time and close attention to the instructions. After the movements were gone through the Canton was drawn up in lines and Miss Florence White read the following address, the banner at the same time being brought upon the stage with a canvass covering over it:—

To the Commandant, Officers and Chevaliers of Canton Peterborough, No. 10, P. M., I. O. O. F.

CHEVALIERS:—The warmest friends of the Uniformed Branch of the Independent Order of Oddfellows have ever been the ladies, whose love of chivalrous principles, splendor of equipment and martial bearing, has invested with peculiar pleasure the opportunity of showing their interest in the success in that particular service of the Order, and their appreciation of the lofty principles underlying the grand fabric of Oddfellowship.

The most favored beneficiaries of the benign Order of Oddfellowship are the wives, mothers and sisters of the brethren thereof. When disabling accident or illness enters the home and lays prostrate and helpless the support of the family, the Oddfellows enter that home like ministering angels, bringing with them tender care and substantial aid, which are rendered doubly welcome should death remove the stay and support.

The ladies recognize in the organization of its uniformed branch into the army of Patriarchs Militant the latest and highest development of the fratenal and beneficiary capabilities of the Order, which, in addition to the application of the cardinal principles of Friendship, Love and Truth, adds the completing compliment of the sublime principle of righteousness and justice.

The ladies of Peterborough would recognize the increase of the claims of the Order upon their appreciation, impelled by the organization of this great army of chosen brethren banded together and pledged to the maintenance of moral purity, complete manliness, and chivalrous protection of the weak and the oppressed, and they gladly hail the present opportunity of giving specific expression to that appreciation presented by the formation of its gallant Canton Peterborough, No. 10. Patriarchs Militant.

While splendid equipment, warlike trappings and martial discipline appeal to their love for the beautiful, these have still stronger claims on their admiration as the symbols of the great contest waged between purity, truth and righteousness on the one hand; and immorality, error and oppression on the other.

Chevaliers, in order to more fully equip you for waging a successful warfare on the part of the noble cause you champion, the ladies of Peterborough request your acceptance of this banner and trumpet, bearing upon it the grand motto of your calling, "Justitia Universalis—Pax Aut Bellum."

May its lustrous folds ever float over stainless chevaliers, and point the way to victory, in the battle waged by undaunted soldiers, in obedience to the command of the Order to "Visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead, and educate the orphan."

Signed on behalf of the ladies,

FLORENCE WHITE.

When the reader came to the words, "Chevaliers, in order to equip you," the strings were pulled and the canvass covering fell from the banner and the audience burst into applause.

Capt. MCNEIL made an extemporaneous reply worthy of an orator. He commenced by expressing his feeling at being incompetent to suitably acknowledge the gift. It was very gratifying to them to find the ladies taking such an interest in them and he considered it a great privilege to return thanks for it. He referred to the times when gallant knights broke lances in tournament. Then it was considered the highest honor to receive tokens of esteem from their fair companions. It was no less so now, and he only regretted the lack of eloquence that made his speech inadequate to the requirements of the occasion. He referred to the support the Canton had from the ladies from the time it was organized, but they had never expected to receive from the ladies such an eloquent and handsome trophy. It augured well, he said, for the future prosperity of the canton. He referred to a gentleman whom they had all heard of, and the service that that gentleman had done mankind by a discovery he made. It was Mr. Adam to whom he referred, and the discovery was woman. He followed the inference and asked pointedly what the men would have done if Adam had not made this discovery. What would Canton Peterborough have been without the daughters of Eve? Echo answered, "Nowhere." He spoke of the principles of the Order in glowing language and the great advance it had made during the past few years. He explained the reasons of the existence of the body of Patriachs Militant and again returned thanks for their beautiful gift, especially to Mrs. Ryan, of Toronto, who set the project of procuring the banner on foot. He also returned thanks to Mr. Jas. Stevenson, the worthy Mayor, for his present of a kettle drum, and hoped that he would long be spared to mete out the dictates of his large heart and generous hand.

Mr. T. Dunn, sang "The Gay Hussar" and was compelled to bow his acknowledgements twice. Miss Errett sang Blumenthal's "Message" and was greeted with applause. Mr. W. A. Dixon's feats in ventriloquism were very amusing. He carried on a laughable conversation with four figures and did several tricks of polyphony. Miss Cottingham sang "Marguerite" by White, with good voice and expression. Her singing was received with marked appreciation. Mr. Jacques sang a selected song in excellent style; Miss Vair sang very sweetly "Beauty Sleeps," Arditi, and the programme came to an end with the singing of a sacred trio, by Miss Dunn, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Tierney. An encore was bestowed upon them. At the conclusion the curtain was drawn up and Messrs. Baguley, Tierney, Dunn, and Davis sang "God Save the Queen."

The seats were taken out of the hall and a large assemblage enjoyed the succeeding hours in dancing. Lunch was served in the adjoining concert hall.

The Banner.

The banner presented on Tuesday evening by the ladies to Canton Peterborough No. 10 is a magnificent one. It is suspended from a black walnut standard and it falls in white silk on one side and red silk on the other. The ground on the front is white silk. A pretty purple velvet lambrequin hanging over the face of the banner has the words "Canton No, 10, Peterborough," embroidered on it. The central figure on the front is a shield bearing the coat of arms of the order. A lamb couchant is embossed in silver on a blue velvet ground and a lion rampart is likewise treated in gold on a cardinal velvet ground. The motto Pax Aut Bellum is written just below. Peterborough Ont. is inscribed, and the old English letters P.M. are worked most beautifully in gold. Between these letters on the white silk are the following words worked in gold very neatly:—"Presented by the ladies." A lambrequin droops over the red ground of the back of the banner also, and on it is inscribed the following:—"P. No. 10, M.," the number 10 being encircled by maple leaves worked in gold. The central figure on the back is an escutcheon raised in the centre about two and a half inches from the red silk ground. A sword and shepherd's crook stick through it, and across it diagonally is the following inscription: "Justitia Universalis." The fringe is rich and massive, all of gold, and the tassels are very ornamental. The cost of the banner is $250, and it is conceded to be the finest carried by any Canton in Canada.

Personal.

Mr. A. Scott, one of Peterborough's oldest residents, is seriously ill, having been confined to bed for some time.

Mr. J. C. Fitzgerald, who has been in town for some time looking up old friends, leaves for his home at Greenville, South Carolina, on Saturday. Mr. Fitzgerald is a brother of Mr. T. Fitzgerald, and was some fourteen years ago in the photographic business at Peterborough with Thompson & Sun. He is well pleased with his American home, but prefers Canada, and it is possible that within the next twelve or sixteen months Mr. Fitzgerald will return to Peterborough to reside.

Fire Alarm.

A false alarm was rung at the fire station and in the houses of the firemen on Tuesday night at about twelve o'clock. The hose waggon turned out but no sign of fire was apparent. The operator in the central telephone office, when applied to for information as to the whereabouts of the fire, said that no ring had been made in the office. It is probable that the ring, which did not signal any ward, was caused by the crossing of wires.

—A pretty good joke is told on a new clerk that was engaged by a local dry goods house some time ago. The house had some of the goods on sale marked at 19, 29 and 39 cents, so it would not seem so big to customers as though it were labelled at 20, 30 and 40 cents. Among the goods at the boy's counter was a lot of handkerchiefs marked 19, and, getting the tag bottom side up, he read it 61, and had been selling the goods at that figure for over a week before the error was discovered.

THE ANARCHISTS.

Still Trying to Save Them—A Chance for Fielding.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—There are no further developments with respect to the impending fate of the Anarchists. The members of the Amnesty Association have given up all hopes of a commutation. Lingg's murderous attempts have thrown cold water on the ardour of the friends of the condemned, and completely robbed himself of whatever sympathy there was felt for him. His friends admit that he deserves his fate.

The Tribune says Judge Gary has written a statement on behalf of the State that will undoubtedly result in saving Fielden from the gallows. The statement relates to none of the other prisoners, and cannot possibly affect their fate. It is not known what it contains. State Attorney Grinnell said he had endorsed Judge Gary's statement. He said he had also made a plain statement of a few facts in regard to Schwab that he thought the Government ought to know.

Up to a late hour this evening the Governor was still holding private interviews with friends and relatives of the Anarchists. He has given no expression as to his intentions, and it is not likely any decision will be given to-night. It was said this afternoon that Spies' brother would lay a letter before the Governor from Spies this evening. It is claimed that Mr. Grinnell said in his speech that if Spies should be hanged the law would be satisfied. In his letter Spies asked that the sentence of his comrades be commuted, and that he may die, thereby satisfying Mr. Grinnell's demand.

Attorney Solomon this afternoon obtained the signature of Spies, Fielden and Schwab to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The petition will be laid before one of the judges of the Criminal Court to-morrow.

Dr. Halloway, living at 1,010 West Monroe street, found on his front porch when he opened his door this morning a round box about 3 inches long and 1½ inches in circumference. It was enclosed in a thick covering of brown paper on which was written, "Don't let anyone see you open this. Two lives are worth more than one. Beware! beware! the city call upon you for help. Be careful upon which end you open this." The box was taken to the Desplaines street station and found to contain a quantity of saturated gun cotton. A little later in the day a bomb was found on the back porch of Mr. Campbell's home at 11 Clarkson court. It contained enough dynamite to blow the house up.

This afternoon the following telegram was received by Parsons in the goal:—"Sign immediately petition I have prepared for you, and get Engel and Fischer to sign it. Everything may depend upon this—your lives and others—the public. For God's sake sign and wire me at once. W. H. Black." Parsons at once declared the communication to be a fraud, as did also Fischer, but Engel said he would sign if the others did. The despatch was dated Springfield at 2 o'clock p.m.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

Tendered a Banquet by the New York Canadian Club.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Mr. Erastus Wiman, on behalf of the Canadian Club, called on Hon. Joseph Chamberlain to-day to tender him a public banquet in this city at any date that will suit his convenience. Mr. Chamberlain expressed great pleasure at meeting a representative of the club, and accepted the invitation. The date was left in abeyance. The club will endeavour to make the occasion one of considerable importance by securing the attendance of leading public men in this city, and will enlarge the invitation so as to include Sir Charles Tupper and other distinguished personages.

Her skull Was Fractured.

HAMILTON, Nov. 9.—A serious accident occurred on the mountain, about one mile east of the Jolley Cut, this morning. A man named Wm. Ripley was blasting with dynamite. Mrs. Hill, who lives near by, went to the well to obtain water after the first explosion, thinking that she could do with safety, but a quantity of the explosive which had hung fire went off, throwing fragments of rock a great height. In descending one of these struck Mrs. Hill on the head, fracturing her skull. She is in a critical condition. Dr. Shaw attended the injured woman.

TRAGEDY IN THE WOODS.

A Young Man Shoots His Brother Thinking He was a Deer.

On Friday afternoon last, a sad accident occurred a few miles west of the village of Parham, by which Reuben Macoumber, a young married man, lost his life. In the morning in company with a hound he left his home to hunt deer, and his brother Eli, who lives a short distance away, left his house for the same purpose. He also was also accompanied by a hound, and both brothers took the same direction. They neared each other, but neither was aware of the others presence. Near noon the hounds gave evidence of having scented game, and, strange as it may seem, the brothers stealthily approached each other, but each was unaware of the other's presence. Eli saw the bushes moving a short distance ahead of him, and seeing a grey object, he fired and the bullet from his rifle pierced the breast of Reuben, mortally wounding him. The ball entered the breast and came out between the shoulders. The young man died on Saturday morning at six o'clock, leaving behind him a wife and two small children. The remains were interred in Parham cemetery on Sunday afternoon, and were followed by a large concourse of people.—Kingston News.

Gold Discoveries at Sudbury.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Thomas Heys, assayist of this city, has partly completed the assay of a quantity of ore recently discovered near Sudbury. The specimens show a considerable quantity of free gold and that assayed is valued at from $7.000 to $8,000 per ton. Mr. Heys, who has recently returned from an inspection of the Sudbury district, expresses the opinion that there will be an invasion of the section next year by an army of prospectors. He says that he found traces of gold and silver in certain quarters in more or less quantities. A good specimen of copper ore has also been found.

Mr. Blaine.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The Herald's Paris special says:—Mr. James G. Blaine told ex-Congressman Allen, of Boston, here on Monday night, "I have had the best physicians in London and Paris, and they have pronounced me to be in perfect health and condition. I am quite assured of my renomination, but should I not be elected I would not even then give up politics. I consider the Senatorship of a good sound State equal, if not superior, to the Presidency as a position worth seeking. All I want now is perfect rest and quiet."

A Dastardly Attempt.

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 9.—An attempt was made last evening to wreck a passenger train near here. Some one broke open a switch on the Midland Central side track, one mile west of Hammond. The way freight, running ahead, and on the time of the passenger train, dashed into the cars on the side track, overturning the engine and breaking fifteen or twenty cars. The trainmen saved themselves by jumping; damage $15,000.

The Doomed Anarchists.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—The Tribune says: Judge Gary has written a statement on behalf of the State that will undoubtedly result in saving Fielden from the gallows. The statement relates to none of the other prisoners, and cannot possibly affect their fate. It is not known what it contains. State Attorney Grinnell said he had endorsed Judge Gary's statement. He said he had made a plain statement of a few facts in regard to Schwob that he thought the Governor ought to know.

Attempted Assassination.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 9.—A supposed attempt was made to assassinate George A. Cook, ex-M.P.P. of Norwich, the other night. While he was sitting in his house, reading the newspaper, two shots from the outside were fired, and one bullet came through the window and passed close to Mr. Cook's head. No arrests.

The Bank of London's Indebtedness

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—The bank of Toronto opens a branch in London Ont., in the old Bank of London premises, to-day. The new branch will pay all depositors of the London and Dresden offices of the Bank of London on and after the 11th, and will redeem the notes of the latter institution.

Sir Charles Tupper Elected.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 9.—Sir Charles Tupper's majority over Bulmer in the Cumberland election to-day is 1361, with two places to hear from, which will increase Tupper's majority. There were over 1000 less votes polled to-day than in February. Sir Charles leaves Amherst to-night for Ottawa.

Sale of a Railway.

MARSHALL, Tex., Nov. 9.—The Texas and Pacific Railway was sold under a foreclosure yesterday to Gen. T. J. Wistar, who represented the purchasing committee, at $6,000,000 for the eastern division and $4,000,000 for the Rio Grande division.

Suicide at Thorold.

THOROLD, Ont., Nov. 9.—George Hoover, an old resident of Thorold Township, committed suicide last evening by cutting his throat with a butcher knife in his barn. He had been despondent for some months

The Torrance Murder.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—John Downs was this morning committed for trial as being accessary to the murder of John Torrance, recently on Adelaide street. Barney McKenna, the murderer, is still at large.

THE DYNAMITE PLOT.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Commissioner Monroe, of the Detective Department, asserts that he possesses the fullest written proof that the name of "Burchells," who has been mentioned in connection with the case of Cohen, the dead dynamiter is Philips, and that he is an accomplice of Melville. It was Philips, Mr. Monroe says, who took the letter from Box 36, Philadelphia postoffice, on October 24, and it was he who introduced Melville to David O'Brien, who, with one Weaver, may be found at Joel Bailey's, No. 719 Market street, Philadelphia.

THE CANAL COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. H. T. Strickland I would say that I assumed that the G.P.R. people were opposed to the construction of the T.V.C. because so far as I am aware railway men are invariably opposed to water routes, believing that they can no longer compete with the iron horse. And if Mr. S. will inform himself as to what has been going on in the State of New York for years past he will find the railway men there have done their best, not only to cripple but close up the Erie Canal on one pretext or another.

As to Mr. Stricklands assertion that the construction of the T.V.C. would benefit the C.P.R., I fail to see it, inasmuch as its completion would bring into play another competitor for the trade of Lakes Huron and Superior, now competed for by the C. P.R. at Owen Sound.

As to Judge Clarke, I beg to assure Mr. Strickland that no personal reflection was intended; but the best of us being more or less biased by our surroundings, I thought, and still think, the two positions inconsistant, particularly when, so far as I am aware, not one of the commissioners is known to be favourable to a water-route such as that of the T.V.C.

With regard to the duties of the commission, it may be that they will be limited to what appears to me to be the useless object he states, but my recollection of the wording of the commission is that it is wide enough to enable them to enquire into cost, route, water supply, cost of carriage when completed, &c., and, if so, and such subjects be investigated, I think Mr. Strickland will not deny that it is of first importance that the questions raised should be thoroughly investigated, and that an unfavourable report on any one of them would be utilized by its opponents to kill the whole scheme.

Yours,
A CONSERVATIVE.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

WEDDING CHIMES.—There was no less than four weddings on the programme in one day last week. Perhaps the most interesting one to the general public was that of our esteemed townsman, Mr. Matthew Scott, the lady of his choice being Miss C. Kent. The happy couple were honored in the evening by a serenade from the Norwood Cornet Band. We extend our congratulations.

NOISY.—In connection with the above it may be mentioned that a gang of youngsters created quite a noise around the residence of the Misses Kent on the above evening. It Matt. had given them each a stick of gum and piece of bread and sugar, and advised them to go home to their mothers, I think they would have taken his advice.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Council met on Monday evening. Present, Councillors Roddon and Breathen, Reeve Finlay in the chair. A number of small bills were ordered to be paid, but it was decided, on account of the small meeting and the absence of their scribe and lawyer, not to take up any important matter.

COMPLETED.—The handsome residence built for Mr. W. Knox, about a mile east of our village, is finished. The workmanship is first class. We will give it more extended notice when we sum up our year's advance.

CORRECTION.—The Norwood correspondence in last week's REVIEW got considerably mixed, somehow. I suppose the writer thought the printer could make out any kind of scrawling. The errors in question were, 1st, a rich "green" color should have read rich "cream; 2nd, little "match maker" should have read little watch maker, and 3rd, "Mr. D. C. Clarke" should have read our D. C. Clerk.

HYMENIAL.—On Tuesday evening a happy even occurred in the east end of the village, being the marriage of Mr. John Brown (not of Harper's Ferry, but a farmer of Asphodel) to Miss Ellen Hetherington. The band, with their usual gallantry, were on the way to serenade the newly married couple, but before they got to the bride's late residence they met the worthy groom driving his bride home. And this is not the first time the band has been disappointed in the same direction.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

Correspondence of the Review.

I. O. G. T.—The Good Templars here held a free entertainment in their hall, on Thursday evening, Nov. 3rd, at which there was an excellent programme, consisting of addresses by the Rev. D. N. McCamus, of Cavanville, and John Ewing, of this place, and readings and music, both vocal and instrumental. A most pleasant time was spent for a couple of hours, as the programme all through was good, and well carried out.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

MR. O'BRIEN IN PRISON.

DUBLIN, Nov. 9.—Justice of the Peace Egan has paid a visit to Mr. O'Brien in the prison hospital at Tullamore, and states that he found him looking exceedingly ill. Mr. O'Brien told him that he had not had a change of linen since he entered the prison. The Governor of the gaol, who was present, replied that he could have a change if he wished, meaning that he could have the prison clothes.

THE DECORATIONS SCANDAL.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The second days proceedings in the Caffarel-Limouain trial, revealed the utter inability of the accused to fulfil their promises of procuring decorations for those who applied to them. Neither Gen. Caffarel nor the Count de Audlan has ever succeeded in having any one decorated; their applications never crossed the threshold of the ministries at whose doors they applied. The intentions of those who divulged the Cafferel affair and who tried to implicate Gen. Boulanger, are still shrouded in mystery.

THE GWEEDORE TENANTS.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Stuart, member of Parliament for the Hoxton division, of Shoreditch, in a speech at Stratford last evening, read evidence confirming his statement that Colonel Dopping had menaced his Gweedore tenants. It was for repeating this statement that Mr. Gladstone is threatened by Colonel Dopping with an action for libel.

FAIR TRADE DISCUSSED.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Lord Salisbury has received strong representations on the condition of agriculture, which is getting serious in the wheat growing districts. There is reason to believe that rent has almost disappeared, and large numbers of farmers can only tide over the winter by sweeping reductions. The point of the representations to the Premier will certainly be in the direction of protection, but Lord Randolph Churchill's outspoken declaration for free trade has seriously damaged the movement. A year or two ago Lord Randolph was himself a fair trader, and strongly supported the policy of duties on manufactured articles. Now he has turned completely around. His friends are furious with him. Fair trade, however, has continued to make progress among the smaller politicians on the Tory side. It would not be at all surprising if it seriously affects the future of the Conservative party.

TO STOP A PRIZE FIGHT.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The police are taking every possible measure to prevent a prize fight between Sullivan and Smith. The probability is that they will evade the police by taking a boat to Boulogne and fighting on the French coast.

THE KAISER.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The gloomiest rumors come from Berlin concerning Emperor William. It is said he fainted yesterday, and that all the members of the family were summoned to the bedside.

THE ITALIANS AT MASSOWAH.

ROME, Nov. 9.—Gen. Mazana will take supreme command at Massowah. He will to-day issue a manifesto, promising to protect the friendly tribes and the interests of the colony.

MR. MORLEY'S REMEDY.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Morley, in an address at Devon, said there could be no hope of benefiting agriculture through a charge in the fiscal system, and that practical redress could only be found in a consistent reduction of the rents and attention to the demands of the markets.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAMME.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Long, member of Parliament for the Devizes division of Wilts, in a speech at Trowbridge, gave a sketch of the Government's Legislative programme for the coming session. The programe for the measures for the reform of parliamentary procedure and dealing with local Government tithes and railway rates.

ENGLAND IN EGYPT.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—M. DeLesseps, in a long interview, yesterday, with Premier Rouvier, insisted that the neutrality of the Suez canal would be a force so long as England controlled Egypt. He afterwards compiled a memorandum of the scheme to neutralize Egypt, which M. Rouvier promised to submit to the English Government.

ACTION FOR LIBEL.

DUBLIN, Nov. 9.—United Ireland will bring an action for libel against an English member of Parliament for falsely quoting a statement of that journal.

ENGLAND CANNOT MEDIATE.

ROME, Nov. 9.—The Tribune reports that the British mission to Abyssinia carries a letter from Queen Victoria to King John, declaring that it will be impossible for England to mediate until Abyssinia has satisfied Italy's honor, and suggesting that the territory be ceded to Italy.

COMMERCIAL UNION.

WHY, ask some Commercial Unionists, could not Canadian manufacturers compete with their United States competitors if the customs duties were removed and they had a fair chance? Their answer is, because the chances would not be even. One reason why those who favor the scheme in the United States do so is that their manufacturers could then unload surplus productions on Canada. Mr. Butterworth has said as much, and the Philadelphia Record thus emphasizes the point:—

"The home market is insufficient to keep the mills running. Manufacturers have been driven to the expedient of curtailing productions by working short time, of arranging combinations to break down weak competitors, of sending surplus stocks to foreign markets to be sold for what they would fetch, and to various other devices for relieving the glut of unsaleable products."

Does the United States propose to open its markets to Europe? Not much. They want the Canadian market opened to them, and then their combinations arranged for breaking down weak competitors would commence their work. Products unsaleable in the United States would be sold here for what they would bring, until the Canadian competitors were forced out, and the the market would be left in their hands. The combinations could then raise the prices.

They do not slaughter goods where they have the market. Mark that. Into foreign countries the surplus is sent and disposed of, but in markets where they look for regular custom the price is kept up, so as not to injuriously effect their trade. As soon as the purpose of breaking down weak competitors was accomplished here, the Canadian markets would be the same to them as their own markets are now, and high prices would be the rule.

What would be the result to Canada? She would lose many manufacturing establishments, and many workmen who now make the articles used, swell our population and provide a home market for agricultural produce. What would be the result to those termed consumers? They might obtain cheaper goods for a time, but with a return to higher prices, with a poor country, decreased population, home market diminished, and dependence on foreign markets and manufacturers.

Nor would the farmers of Canada be benefitted. Says the Record again:—

"The farmers of the United States and the farmers of Canada are not to any great extent competitors. The prices of their staples are regulated by the prices ruling in foreign markets, thus putting rivalry out of the question."

That is, the farmers of Canada and the United States produce the same staples, and the farmers of both countries send their surplus to foreign markets. The United States would not afford a market for the staple Canadian farm produce, which would still have to be sent abroad. The home market—which is the most important one—would be made less valuable, while a new market, even though a more distant and less valuable one, would not be gained.

Canadians are asked to discriminate against their fellow-countrymen and resign the chief functions of a nation into the hands of foreigners—practically to withdraw from the British Empire and give up all national aspirations—that the manufacturers and business men of a foreign country may be benefitted. But Canadians will not do it.

With one remark of the Record no one will find fault. "If existing disputes," it says, "could be settled by reciprocal trade with reciprocal advantage it would be folly not to bring it about as soon as possible." True. But that would be different from Commercial Union.

THE Kingston Whig agrees that it would be unwise to make any changes in the constitution under which Canada has made such progress unless their were weighty reasons for doing so. As the Whig admits the progress made—what few Reform journals do—it should also agree that it would be unwise to alter the fiscal policy under which the Dominion has been prosperous.

THE resolutions adopted at the Quebec meeting of members of the Provincial Governments were made public to-day. There are twenty-six resolutions, dealing with proposed amendments to the British North America Act, Provincial finances and other subjects. They occupy four columns of space in the Globe.

MR. LAURIER says that above all things he is a Canadian. But the trouble is the Reform leader's preaching and his party's practice do not agree.

HASTINGS.

FIRE.—A lamp exploded in one Mr. Ash's shop windows last Thursday evening. The flames were promptly extinguished but not until a damage of $150 was sustained. It was a pretty close call, for had the fire got the last headway, we might of had a repetition of the conflagration of '82.

REMOVAL.—On Thursday last Dr. O'Gorman and family removed to Cobourg, in which town the doctor has purchased the practice of Dr. Craig. Dr. O'Gorman has been a resident of this village for the past seven years, during which time he acquired an extensive practice. In the removal of the Dr., we lost a valued friend, and the village a good citizen. We voice but the opinion of a host of friends in wishing him and his estimable wife many years of prosperity and happiness in their new home.—Star.

AGAINST THE WORLD

THE ANGLO-SAXON RACE AND ITS GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS.

It Has Contributed More Toward Accomplishing the Results of Modern Civilization Than All the Other Races—Why This Is True.

The Anglo-Saxon race, with its co-operative Celtic branches, may be pardoned for being a little selfcomplacent and egotistical. It is younger in its career than any other European race, and during many centuries it lacked the territorial advantages possessed by its rivals, and it still lacks their advantages in population. Yet it has accomplished more in the chief exploits that go to make up national greatness, and contributed more to the achievements of modern civilization than all the other races combined. It has given a uniform language to more than 100,000,000 of people, a language enriched by a literature which, upon the whole, from Chaucer to Herbert Spencer, in science, philosophy, history, law, poetry, romance and criticism, rivals, if it does not surpass, the literature of all the other modern nations of Continental Europe.

This declaration may cause an Italian, a Frenchman, a German, or a dweller upon the Iberian peninsula to stand aghast; but we know the literature of those people better than they know Anglo-Saxon literature. It has contributed nearly all the important inventions that add to the comfort and convenience of modern society. Obliterate the effects of its mechanical and scientific devices from the face of modern civilization, and the world would seem to fall into almost mediæval simplicity in a single day. Even the art of printing, a Chinese art originally, but credited to continental Europe as its almost solitary great contribution to the inventive arts that have influenced modern civilization favorably, owes its chief utility to the devices of Anglo-Saxons.

AGAINST THE WORLD.

Finally, the Anglo-Saxon countries count their wealth in comparison with the combined wealth of all other countries that are intelligent enough to count statistically, and if the balance be not in their favor the estimate will be so nearly equal that it would be hard to tell to which side the preponderance inclines. In almost everything that speaks of achievement save the musical and fine arts, it is the Anglo-Saxon race against the world, and in most practical things it is the Anglo-Saxon race alone, and there is no competitor. Why is this true?

If we trace the growth of Anglo-Saxon civilization we find the answer to this question. The race advances more rapidly than other races, because it makes use of better agencies for promoting the interests of society than its rivals and cultivates a more stolid spirit of self dependence. From the reign of the earlier English kings down to the American revolution, and following through all the earlier and later years of our own republic, there has been a persistent and an almost intermittent contest in favor of personal independence and the right to inaugurate, carry forward and control personal affairs without let or hindrance from superior authority. The traits implied in this contest have not found their most adequate expression in England. The emancipation of Englishmen, struggling to obtain a firm foothold among the continually crumbling debris of feudal institutions, has been a slow process. But it has been continuous, and in all Anglo-Saxon communities the individual and society have long been the first objects of consideration, the government being held only as their dependent and servant. The former lead, and the latter, through its official representatives, whether hereditary or chosen, is only expected to follow and sustain.—William Nelson Black in New York Sun.

Tricks in New York Barrooms.

"Some of the saloon tricks are very ingenious and amusing," said a Broadway bartender. "Most people practice them merely for the fun of the thing, but not a few exercise their ingenuity for the sake of winning bets. A man came in here the other night and had some whisky. He drained the glass containing the water and turned it upside down on the counter. A few drops of water remained in the glass. The man offered to bet any one a V that he couldn't guess the number of drops left in the glass. Several bystanders, who thought they could count the drops, backed their opinions. The man covered all the bets. The guesses were all the way from three to eight drops. When the money was all up the man took the glass and walked over to one of the mirrors. With a quick, nervous movement, that made the water scatter, he threw the contents of the glass against the mirror. The men who made the guesses gazed with astonishment and disgust, for there on the surface of the mirror were at least 200 distinct drops of water.

"I was once taken in myself by one of these tricks. A green looking fellow bought a cigar and asked for a light. He pretended to be used to the wooden lighters, and laughed at me when I pointed to the spirit lamp and the wire stoppers. 'Never mind,' said he. 'I'll light it with this,' and he pulled out a crisp $50 note.

"I never like to be bluffed, so dared him to do it. 'I'll bet you a bottle of wine,' he replied. 'Do you hear me speak?'

"'Yes,' said I, 'it's a go.'

"I don't know how he rolled that bill, but he lit his cigar without burning more than a sixteenth of an inch off the one end.

"When there's any betting going on here now the bartender is satisfied with holding the stakes."—New York Evening Sun.

The English Postal Telegraph.

The gross returns from the English postal telegraph system last year were, in American money, $9,874,260, which was $1,857,770 less than the expenditures, but the government paid 21,630,085 interest on the telegraph indebtedness, and franked for its own service messages amounting to $134,985, and lost about $1,000,000 from the press and other sources where exceptionally low rates were made and contracts entered into. It is seen, therefore, that the English postal telegraph system, exclusive of the interest on the bonds created to pay for the lines, is a very paying investment.—London Cor. Ohio State Journal.

Fifty railroad ties, each eight feet in length and six by ten inches thick, were cut from one pine tree of Dooly county, Ga.

CRUSH NOT A FLOWER.

Crush not a flower of faith or hope
That in another's heart may rise,
But let the perfumed petals ope
And waft their incense to the skies.

Say not "'tis vain" of any dream,
Or fancy of the human brain,
For out of it some lofty scheme
May ripen into golden grain.

Laugh not to scorn the humblest plan
A brother may have formed for good,
For angels deeper see than man—
It may be wise when understood.

Say not to any careworn heart:
"You ne'er will reach the goal you seek,"
But act the kinder, nobler part—
Give strength and courage to the weak.

Say not of any neighbor's field:
"He's planted where he should have sown;"
For God is patient, and the yield,
Though rich or poor, is all his own.

—Belle Bush in New York Graphic.

HOW "HAND PAINTING" IS DONE.

Preparation of Fancy Articles for the Holiday Trade—An Inside View.

One of the signs that the artist is abroad in the land is the passion for "hand painted" things among the Philistines that the artist himself is far from sharing. "Hand painted!" said one the other day to a young woman who was boasting of a new fan. "That is reason enough for supposing it is very bad." And no wonder, when one comes to know how this "hand painting" is done and paid for (wonder who are the people who paint with their feet). An advertisement appeared in a morning paper the other day asking artists who were accustomed to decorative work and wanted employment to come to a certain down town address, where fancy articles are being prepared for the holiday trade. The Observer is not a painter, but he went to see how it fared with those that were.

Ye gods and little fishes! He saw, if people can be supposed to fare at all who paint cards for a cent apiece and elaborately decorate calendars for twenty cents. It is impossible to see how people can subsist on their earnings at these figures, and probably most of them only in this way eke out an income derived from some other source. Of course it is the shoals of young people with little accomplishments of this sort, who are living by other means, that have driven the prices of this work so terribly low, and this is very hard on the people who are depending upon it for a living.

The people who had advertised for painters seemed a fairly decent couple, a man and his wife, and the woman began in a deprecating way when the Observer asked about the work by saying the prices were not very large. She told afterward how the large firm whom they worked for had said that the cost of the goods must be still further reduced, and how her husband had cut down everybody but the painters. "He didn't see how he could make them work any cheaper." Specimens of the work were shown, and some of it was pitifully good—not as good generally as the better sorts of printed work, but evidently done with the desire to be as artistic as was possible under the conditions.—New York Graphic.

A Nation of Cowards.

"Thugism is on the increase," said an officer, "and there is but little fairness shown in fights nowadays. I don't know exactly to what to attribute it, but it is a fact that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred where arrests are made by the police the complainant or the man who gets the worst of it declares that the other fellow took him unaware. When I was a boy if one person had anything against another he went up to him and 'cussed' him and dared him to take off his coat and have a square rough and tumble fight. Then the bystanders would form a ring and by preventing anybody from interfering would see that the best man would win.

"But it is different now. If a man has anything in the way of a score to settle with you he walks up alongside of you and hits you on the jugular vein or over the eye with his fist, a sandbag or a pair of brass knuckles or slungshot, and stretches you on the pavement. Men come into the Central station every day and night with cut heads and faces and say they were knocked out without provocation and before they could even get in position to defend themselves. Here is a nice question for philosophers: Are we getting to be a nation of cowards? This kind of fighting certainly argues to me that we are. Saloon keepers and their bartenders do a good deal of this one sided slugging. They usually have a billy or a soda water bottle handy, and when a man comes in drunk without money and makes himself disagreeable, they crack away at his head, knock him down and drag him out to the sidewalk. A bartender said to me last night: 'I take no chances. If a man comes in here and gets to monkeying or makes a nuisance of himself I am not going out from behind the bar to put him out and run the risk of getting done up. I take a bottle and hit him once, and then I have no trouble getting rid of him.'"—Kansas City Journal.

The true Oriental never removes the covering from his head for any length of time. When the turban for any reason becomes oppressive indoors, he changes it for the inevitable fez, or red cap of felt with silver or silken tassel. And if this happens to be taken off from his closely shaven crown, he still adheres to an inner cap of white linen next the scalp. Not even when he prays does he attempt to show his reverence in any of our accustomed ways. Our instinctive removal of our hats as we came in was entirely unappreciated.—Dr. C. S. Robinson.

Correspondence of the Review.

LECTURE.—A large and appreciative audience greeted Professor A. B. Kent, last Friday evening, to hear one of his celebrated lectures on electricity, physics and chemistry. His daughter, Miss Eva Kent, gave some very fine recitations which were loudly applauded. The able manner in which Mr. Kent treated the subject shows that he is thoroughly at home with it.

EDUCATIONAL.—Last Friday Miss A. J. Whittington, teacher of No. 8, Otonabee, visited our school. It is to be regretted that such visits are not of more frequent occurrence, as much good would result from such intercourse. Teachers would have an opportunity of critizing one another's teaching and both visitor and visited would be benefited thereby.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. Rutherford, who has visiting friends in Belleville and Trenton, has returned.—Miss Minnie Kindred, who has been very ill, is slowly recovering, but is yet very weak.

DUMMER.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Council met in F. and A. Hall, Warsaw, on Nov. 5th, 1887. The Reeve and all the Councillors were present. The minutes of the last meeting were confirmed. On motion, H. A. Moore, Commissioner, was instructed to make such temporary repairs on the bridge opposite Lot 30, Con. 8, as he deemed necessary for present safety. On motion, a statute labor tax of $2, against Geo. B. Davey, who left the place in March last, was abated to the owner, James Morrison. On motion, the same Deputy Returning Officer and polling place was appointed for Municipal election of 1888 as that of 1887. The following orders were granted:—To James Roob, to pay surveyor one day on 11th Con. line, $6.00; A. R. Kidd, Reeve, selecting jurors in 1887, $2.00; Wm. Darling, Clerk, $2,00; Wm. T. Darling, Assessor, $2 00. The following by-laws were passed:—One to fix a place for holding the nomination, fix polling place and appoint a Deputy Returning Officer for Municipal election, 1888. The Council adjourned to 24th December next.

APPRECIATED.—The following letter, sent to Mr. Jas, Moore, of Lakefield, shows appreciation of his work:—"The Trustees of the new Methodist Church on the 1st Con. of Dummer, at the "Finger Board." wishing to show their appreciation of the faithful and thoroughly satisfactory manner in which Mr. James Moore, contractor, of Lakefield, filled his contract in the building of their church, ordered that he be presented with $30 over and above the stipulated agreement, and that he be given a copy of the resolution conveying to him the thanks of the trustees and the congregation.

"It was moved by Mr. Jacob White, seconded by Mr. J. Payne, and unanimously resolved:

"That the thanks of the trustees and congregation be given to Mr. Jas. Moore, the contractor, for the honest and entirely satisfactory manner in which he carried out his agreement, and we would most cordially recommend him to any who need work done in his line as a thorough reliable man;

"Signed, John Tozland, Chairman of Trust Board; Stewart Payne, secretary; Jacob White, Treasurer."

A Youthful Forger.

The boy Wm. Howland, who signed Mr. J. J. Turner's name to a $2.50 cheque in August last, was nabbed at the Salvation Army Barracks on Wednesday night by P. C. Pidgeon. The boy was not taking part in the services, he was merely one of the audience. At the court this morning His Worship remanded the boy till Saturday.

Settlement.

The settlement of the G. W. Hall estate was effected on Wednesday afternoon. The creditors met and accepted an offer for the stock in trade from Mr. W. J. Minore of $600, subject to a mortgage of $1,000 held by Mr. Robt. Rowe, $1,600 altogether. The book debts were sold to Mr. Jas. Stevenson for $687. The creditors' claims will be settled at less than 15 cents on the dollar.

Fire at Omemee.

During Wednesday night the grain storehouse owned by the Midland (G. T. R.) at Omemee station and occupied by Louchburn & Preston, of Bethany, grain buyers, was destroyed by fire. In the store house at the time was about 1,200 bushels of barley, which was almost entirely destroyed. There was an insurance on the barley in amount sufficient to cover the loss. It was not learned that there was any insurance on the building. Cause of fire not known at date of writing.

J. S. Murphy.

The Leavenworth, Kan., Press, of Nov. 30th, 1881, says:—"The announcement of the appearance of this able actor in the character of "Shaun Rhue" in the Irish comedy of that name, filled the Opera House to its utmost capacity last night. It is a rousing good piece, laughter provoking, vivacious and full of repartee. It is useless to add that Mr. Murphy was good; in the delineation of Irish character he is inimitable, and as a vocalist he possesses great power and feeling. Mr. Murphy was well supported, especially so by the gentlemen who took the parts of "Donovan" and the "Dominie."

Sunday School Union.

An Inter-Provincial Diocesan Sunday School Conference, in the interests of the Church of England, was held in Toronto on Wednesday for the purpose of discussing the advisability of adopting a uniform series of Sunday School lessons. The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's, was present. He is a member of the committee appointed to draft the lessons.

Obituary.

The death is recorded at, Young's Point, on Wednesday last, of Frances, wife of Mr. C. Young, at the age of 38 years. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. G. Pope, of Peterborough, and during her married life of fourteen years had endeared herself to many friends in the vicinity where she resided. Interment takes place at the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Peterborough, on Friday, 11th inst.

The Battalion.

It has been definitely settled that the 57th Battalion will be inspected on Thursday next, Thanksgiving Day. The public review will take place in the P. A. A. A. grounds, Lieut.-Col. Villiers, Deputy-Adjutant-General for the Third Military District, being the inspecting officer in place of Gen. Middleton, who is unable to come. After the duties of the day Lieut.-Col. Villiers will be entertained by the officers at a dinner to be given at Morgan's Hotel.

The Frozen Pirate.

The "Frozen Pirate" is a new story by W. Clark Russell, published by William Bryce, Toronto, in a popular form. It is perhaps the most fascinating of Clark Russel's stories of adventure. It is written in the style readers of fiction delighted to find in his former stories, though not a sea story in the exact sense of the term, being the experiences of a sailor wrecked in the Antartic regions. The book is full of thrilling incidents and is interesting reading.

Peterborough Biscuit Works.

Mr. W. J. Minore has purchased the plant and stock of the Hall biscuit works and will continue the manufacture of biscuit and confectionery at the same stand. Having a thorough knowledge of the business, and being well known to the trade, Mr. Minore enters into manufacturing with every prospect of doing a prosperous trade. With a well organized staff of competent workmen the manufacturing branches will be set in motion on Monday, and superior articles will be made. We wish Mr. Minore success, which we have no doubt he will merit in every respect.

A Potato Prize.

We have received from Mr. H. J. Daubez a copy of a letter sent to the Directors of the Central Exhibition by Mr. A. R. Kidd, and a reply thereto by Mr. Daubez, regarding a prize given for a peck of potatoes. As Mr. Kidd's letter was not made public, and the sending of an answer to the Directors would meet the case, it seems unnecessary to give as much space to the letters as they would take up in the REVIEW. Mr. Daubez maintains his position regarding the exhibit.

THE MARKET REPORTS.

Local and Foreign Grain Markets.

Nov, 10th, 1887.

The local grain market has been fairly active during the week with good deliveries of barley and some wheat. For barley the prices range from 68 cents to 83 cents, the latter being paid for best samples. Wheat is not yet coming to market in quantity, the delivery of barley claiming the attention of farmers. Prices for wheat are practically unchanged.

The outlook regarding the barley crop and market indicates that there will be, in some respects, a shortage, the American crop not turning out as full as was anticipated early in the season. In fact the quantity in view is reported at some considerable amount less than reckoned as available. On the contrary the Canadian crop is now known to be well up as an average crop though possibly less by one-third than that of last year. On the whole it is not unreasonable to infer that prices for barley, while not liable to further advancement to any marked extent, will remain firm for some time. Buyers recognize this year that they are buying on a firm or raising market and the fact materially alters operations from last year. Toronto quotations given to day —(Thursday)—are 80 cents for No. 1, and 75 for No. 2 barley as the ruling prices for car lots.

Oats are bringing 35 cents and in fair demand. Hay is likely to be scarce and prices firm. Prices in all lines of produce, for which there is a good demand, are given in our market list below.

The European grain markets are reported this week as quiet and, in some cases, manifesting an easier tendency. In Liverpool wheat and flour were quiet, but steady.

The stock of wheat in Chicago shows a decrease of 6,086,000 bushels compared with the same time last year, and the visible supply is 22,415,000 bushels of a decrease compared with the date of one year ago.

At Montreal, wheat, on the other hand, has shown an increase of about 1,650,000 bushels. The grain market was more active this week. A fair amount of business was done, there being a better demand. Canada wheat was quiet and steady, while there was a fair demand for Manitoba wheat from Ontario buyers and sales were made at quotations.

British Live Stock Market.

The Montreal Gazette's cable of Monday says:—After a period of unexampled depression, owing to excessive supplies, poor quality and bad trade, the British cattle markets have rallied, and our cables to-day were a good deal better in tone. Receipts from Canada and the United States have been light, while the supplies from elsewhere have also fallen off, which has furnished an opportunity to work off some of the surplus stock. Buyers recovered from the panicky feeling which prevailed and operated more freely, the markets closing steady at the advance. At Liverpool to-day there was a steady demand and fair offering. Prices were quoted 1 cent higher, prime Canadian steers being at 10c., good to choice grades at 9½c.

Montreal Live Stock Market.

At Montreal at Point St. Charles cattle yards, on Monday, says the Gazette, there was little, if any, business done in export cattle, largely on account of the poor class of cattle offered. Therefore, shippers, held off and would not buy, notwithstanding the low prices, and we did not hear of a single sale being made. The receipts for the past week have been light, but the offerings this morning were large, owing to the fact that large lots were left over from last week, and in consequence, the market was dull with business at a standstill. There was a weaker feeling among holders, but asking prices were steady at 3c@3½c per lb. live weight for the best beeves offered. In former years about the close of navigation there was generally a little spurt in the export trade, but this year the boot is on the other foot, and there seems to be no life whatever in shippers. The supply of butchers' cattle was large, for which there was a fair demand, and prices were steady at 2 to 3c. per lb. live weight. The receipts of sheep have fallen off largely, as there is actually no demand for them outside of the local trade, and the market has ruled weaker and prices have declined ½c. to 3c. per lb. live weight. Owing to the large receipts of live hogs and the slow demand, prices have dropped ½c. per lb. from 4½c. to 4¼c. per lb.

Local Brevities.

—Mr. John O'Meara, barrister, meets his Hastings clients every Thursday at that village.

—The Canton banner, which is exhibited in the window of Habilitment Hall, attracts much notice.

—The officers of the 57th Battalion are making arrangements to increase the efficiency of the corps.

—The Hastings Star office has been moved into new premises in the "Star building," opposite the Coughlin House.

—Acting-Chief Adams has lost a $20 oil-cloth coat. Some one took it from the police station while the officers were away.

—The debaters of the woman franchise question are not altogether satisfied and it is likely that they will discuss it again soon —perhaps in the Y. M. C. A. room. It seems to be a case of, "lay on Macduff."

—On Wednesday night some careless smoker dusted the ashes off his cigar on the edge of the platform at Burgess' marble works. The glowing coal rolled into a crack between two planks and was fast getting in the preliminary operations incidental to a fire when noticed by a passer by and extinguished. Similar carelessness has started many a fire.

—The other evening about dusk a farmer with an oldish looking horse and buggy was jogging down the lower end of George street. Soon along tripped a local sport with a fine shining rig. Thought he would have some fun. Told farmer to clear the track, and was almost ahead of him before farmer got woke up. Farmer begins to score up his nag. Old horse looks around to see what's up, or if business is meant. Then he begins to skip and leave the road behind. Farmer braces himself and pulls. F.'s wife grasps buggy with one hand and hat with other. Knobby rig tries to catch up, but it's no use; can't stand the pace. Soon he can't touch the hind wheel of the rattling old buggy, and as they disappear in the darkness a satirical "Ha! ha!" from the farmer is all that is heard.

The Clerks and the Customers.

The trouble with the clerk is a superabundance of inflated ideas regarding the importance of himself and his position. Instead of filling his proper place as the servant of the public he assumes a lordly air, apes feminine talk and ways and welcomes male customers with a crushing glare. Of course there are exceptions. There are clerks in the large dry goods stores who know their place and their business, and by a remarkable coincidence they are almost confined to one nationality—the Scotch. Experience has shown many of the great dry goods houses that Scotchmen make the best salesmen.

The Americans are sometimes suffering with the big head, and besides assuming to know more than the proprietor, do not hesitate to indicate to the male customer any shortcoming that they may observe. To the women they are more polite, and it is only the preference of women for male clerks that keeps them in the business. It has been found that women can transact their business with men much more satisfactorily than with women. When a woman approaches a counter behind which a saleslady is manipulating ribbons, the chances are ten to one that the saleslady will first critically observe the wearing apparel of the customer. If it doesn't come up to the saleslady's ideas of what constitutes a proper outfit, the saleslady's nose will probably assume a crushing elevation and she will proceed to unravel the ribbons with an air that says: "I am just as good as you, if I am here."—St. Louis Republican.

An Unlucky Mistake.

A druggist the other day committed a fatal error. In putting up a prescription he poisoned the patient.

When the terrible news was announced to him he tore out quite a handful of hair and remarked:

"Well! that was unlucky! It was my best customer."—Judge.

FOUR MEN EXECUTED.

FOUR OF THE CHICAGO ANARCHISTS PAY THE EXTREME PENALTY.

A Last Effort Made for a Reprieve—Fielden and Schwab's Sentences Commuted—No Disturbance.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The friends of the doomed Anarchists will play their last card this morning, when they will sue for a reprieve of thirty days. Capt. Black and Buchanan left at 12 30 last night for Springfield on strength of a telegram received by Capt. Black from N. P. Wagner, of New York. Capt. Black said that if the Governor would grant a reprieve for thirty days he thought they could produce the bomb thrower.

At six o'clock this morning three hundred policemen armed with rifles, bayonets, revolvers and full cartridge boxes are on duty at the gaol. Captains Ehersold is in command of a battalion of three companies of police, which have been quartered in the gaol and criminal court buildings. In addition to the battalion inside there will be a force on the outside. This force will be armed with rifles and will surround the entire block in which the gaol is situated. The officers have been especially instructed to hold their position no matter what happens. The police department not on duty will be held in reserve in various stations in readiness to mass at any point at a moment's notice. Detectives will be stationed outside the police lines and will mingle with the crowd.

THE WARRANTS ARRIVE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Chief of Department Gleason arrived here this morning at 9 o'clock, a. m., with the fatal documents authorizing the execution.

THE LAST APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill, Nov. 11.—Capt. Black, counsel for the condemned Anarchists, arrived here this morning and is now making the last appeal to the Governor for the lives of the condemned men. The interview is private. The excitement was intense about the office.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 9 a. m.—The execution of Parsons, Spies, Engel and Fischer will take place at 10 o'clock. The death warrants will be read to them before they ascend the gallows, and it is understood there will be no speech-making.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 10 a.m.—Everything is quiet. The police protection is ample and business is going on as usual.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—At 10 o'clock Parsons, Fischer and Spies requested 20 minutes each on the gallows in which to make speeches. The sheriff did not immediately return an answer to the request.

NO PARDON.

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 11.—Gov. Ogiesby has positively and finally refused to interfere with the execution of Parsons, Engel, Spies and Fischer by reprieve or otherwise.

BLOOD WILL FLOW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Joseph R. Buchanan, in commenting on the govenor's decision, said:—"The state will not be twenty days older before it will regret this action. The people will be sorry and will rue the day they permitted this crime to take place. The work once started will continue and rivers of blood be made to flow."

A FINAL FAREWELL.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 11.30 a.m.—The Sheriff is now reading the death warrant to Spies. The death warrant was read first to Spies, then to Fischer, then to Engel and in conclusion to Parsons.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 11.46, a. m.—The Sheriff has just finished reading the death warrants. Spies, Engel and Fischer are now in their shronds, standing at the grated door, and saying adieus to friends in the visitors cage.

THE EXECUTION.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 11.55 a. m.—The drop has just fallen.

"LONG LIVE ANARCHY."

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 12.05.—As Fischer fell he called out "Long live anarchy."

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 12.08.—Fischer dies hard.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 12 10.—The pulses of all have ceased beating. The police keep the crowd moving, and no disturbance is feared.

A DESPERATE ATTEMPT.

Anarchist Lingg Holds a Cap to His Mouth and Lights it with a Candle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—At 9 a.m., Louis Lingg the bomb maker, has just committed suicide by shooting himself through the head while in his cell. How he secured the weapon with which the deed was committed is a mystery. Lingg has always been regarded as the most desperate Anarchist of the lot. It was he who manufactured the bombs for the Haymarket riot and in whose cell the bombs were found last Sunday. Lingg ended his life by means of a fulminating cap. He held the cap in his mouth and lit it with a candle which was burning in his cell.

O'Neil, one of the town guards who remained on duty before Lingg's cell throughout the day, declared that Lingg was the coolest man in gaol. He was very pale, but his appetite was good, and he slept well. Immediately after the explosion had occurred Deputy O'Neil rushed into Lingg's cell, which was completely enveloped in smoke. There he found the young Anarchist lying on his back with great holes in his head, from which the blood was rushing in torrents. He was at once carried into the gaol office and placed on a table. He was still breathing faintly, and while Dr. Gray was examining him he coughed slightly, and the blood poured forth again from his terrible wounds and from his mouth and nose. The physician said the man could only live an hour or so at the most, and he expects his death every minute.

OMEMEE.

THE STOREHOUSE FIRE.—About 12 o'clock on Wednesday night the fire bell pealed forth its terrible warning that a fire was in progress. When out villagers got out on the street they discovered that the storehouse near the station owned by Mrs. Jas. Balfour, and occupied by Messrs. Touchburn & Preston, grain buyers, was in flames and doomed to destruction. The building and a car standing on the siding contained 9,000 bushels of wheat and barley valued at about $6,500, all of which were consumed. Mr. Henry Toole lost a quantity of lumber and shingles, and Mr. C. Laidley two pair scales, barrows and shovels. Had it not being for the rain and the wind blowing in a north-west direction Mr. Morrison's storehouse, which is occupied by Mr. Sing, would have undoubtedly shared the same fate, as very little water could be procured for the fire engine which had been taken to the scene of the conflagration. The building was insured for $600, while the loss on the grain was partly covered by insurance. The fire was no doubt the work of an incendiary. The loss on building, car and grain will be about $10,000.—Herald.

New Steamers for the C.P.R.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—Sir George Stephen leaves for England to-morrow to make arrangements for building three new mail steamships for service on the Pacific Ocean in connection with the subsidy granted by the Imperial Parliament.

Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. James Stevenson, M. P., returned from Ottawa this morning. He was accompanied to the capital by Mr. Jas. Kendry. Mr. Stevenson's business at Ottawa was to see what was being done in reference to the Trent Valley Canal. He interviewed the Hon. Mr. Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, and received his re-assurance that the Government contemplated nothing other than the continuing of the construction of the Canal. Mr. Stevenson was informed that a man had been sent to Mr. Rubidge's office to complete an unfinished report at once and place it before the Board of Commissioners. The Board will commence its work as soon as the necessary papers are place before it. Mr. Stevenson says that the Commissioners will not likely go over the route this winter, but that evidence will be taken and everything made ready for active work in the spring. He also says that so far as he can learn the Commissioners are all good men for the position and are favorably disposed to the Canal and to Peterborough.

Customs.

While in Ottawa Mr. Stevenson interviewed the Minister of Customs on customs business. When Mr. H. LeBrun received his handsome oil paintings, "Scant Pasturage," valued at $100, and "A Harbour Scene," valued at $200, he had to pay $102 duty on them. It was on account of the pictures being framed that made them subject to the duty. Mr. Stevenson was informed that all Mr. LeBrun would have to do would be to prove that the paintings were by an artist of good reputation and the amount would be refunded. The duty was for the purpose of keeping out "put boiler" stuff, not for preventing good work of art coming into the country.

Barnardo's Industrial College.

The Mail's Ottawa correspondent says that Alfred Owens, of Peterborough, agent for Dr. Barnardo's proposed industrial college shortly to be established near Binscarth, Man., transacted business at the Interior Department on Thursday. The Government has made the college promoters a grant of a section and a half, 960 acres, besides which the promoters have purchased land adjoining the Government grant, bringing the quantity to be worked up to about 7,000 acres

Fun for the College Boys.

Some of the residents of that portion of the city near the Red bridge were treated to a novel sight the other evening. They saw a party of about twenty young men drive down to the Seekonk in hacks, and as soon as they alighted seven of them were taken in hand and escorted to the top of the sand bank. There the seven had their hands tied behind them and hoods were placed over their heads. It then became apparent that the party came from Brown university and that the seven unfortunates were candidates for admission to one of the secret orders of the college. When all was ready the victims were asked if they were brave men. One of them avowed that he had a leaning toward that direction, but he did not make known that fact with any remarkable degree of vociferousness. The others looked as though they were afraid some one would say "rats." At a given signal the seven were sent spinning down the sand bank like so many barrels, and when at the bottom of the incline they were picked up, placed on their feet and again interrogated, but in so low a tone of voice that that portion of the mysterious rites was lost to the spectators. When satisfactory answers were given the candidates were led to the very edge of the river and given a shove, which sent them sprawling into the water. Fortunately there was but little depth of water, and the victims, after spluttering and plunging about, were brought ashore.

Next they were taken to a place near the boathouse, where they were backed up to a faucet. Their pantaloon waists were then stretched out, and the faucet slipped in, and before they could realize the intent of the "degree team" their backs were fairly swimming with cold Pawtuxet water. There were other steps toward the throne of the mystic brotherhood, such as having water poured down their necks, being fastened to stakes and told to remain there until the tide came up and washed the freshman seeds off their garments, and lastly being located on a curbstone, with instructions to wait for further orders. One of the young fellows had a trick played on him not down in the ritual of the society. An East Providence man came along, saw the blindfolded candidates standing like beggars, with hands open as if for alms, and grasping the situation calmly removed a quid for which he had no further use and left it in the victim's hands. Having thus led the candidates through the mysterious gates of the society the degree team bundled them into hacks, and the party drove off to the college in pursuit of other intellectual divertissements. Reports of cases of pneumonia, pleurisy, typhoid fever and other sequences of shower baths and deluges in the cool of a late autumn night are now in order.—Providence Journal.

An Ex-Executioner's Little Show.

A correspondent writes: Binns, the exhangman, is traveling with a show, in which he reveals his art for the entertainment of the large crowds who collect to see him perform the happy dispatch. The subject is a figure representing Mrs. Berry, the Oldham poisoner, and the entertainment is now at Stockport, in Cheshire. The showman, a young man, first gives a biographical sketch of Binns, then the curtain is rung up, revealing a scaffold with the regular cross beam, and the subject standing on the drop strapped hands and feet. A surpliced chaplain stands on one hand and a uniformed jail governor on the other, while two reporters, or individuals to represent them, watch the grim proceedings. Binns, black bag in hand, steps forward, extracts the rope, places the noose around the subject's neck, and when the feeling of the spectators has been wrought to an intense pitch, draws the bolt, and the wax figure disappears into the pit beneath. Mr. Binns then holds a levee.—London Times.

A Long Wait.

The Philadelphia North American says that "Insurance Agent Adams has been waiting for fifteen years for a letter which has just reached him." The sender must have inadvertently put one of the immediate delivery stamps on the letter; but it doesn't seem fifteen years since such stamps were introduced.—Norristown Herald.

Consumption of Railroad Spikes.

There are 200,000 miles of railroad in the United States and it takes five kegs of railroad spikes per mile to keep up repairs, which makes an annual consumption of 1,000,000 kegs. To this must be added three and a half tons per mile for the 12,000 miles of new road which is built annually.—Chicago Herald.

ANOTHER SENSATION.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—A sensation was caused during the Caffarel trial yesterday by the revealing of the fact that two of M. Wilson's letters, dated May and June, 1884, were written upon paper which was manufactured in October, 1885, as the manufacturer of the paper proved. Mme. Lemousin accuses M. Wilson of trying at first to suppress the originals and of only giving copies in which several erasures in the originals did not appear. Premier Rouvier is strongly suspected of having been a party to the attempt to suppress the originals in order to shield M. Wilson.

NORWOOD.

OBITUARY.—The following is from the Perth Courier:—"There passed away, on the 28th of September last, in the township of Barrie, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Mitchell, one whose name is familiar to the older inhabitants of Perth, namely, the late Mr. Wm. Carmichael. The deceased arrived in Canada in the spring of 1842. After residing two years in Montreal he came to Perth. Here he and his family lived till 1848, when they removed to Ogdensburg, N.Y. There the deceased built the cars for the Ogdensburg and Rouse's Point Railroad. Upon the completion of his contract in Ogdensburg he removed, in 1851, to Montreal, where he built the cars for the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad, and also those for the Quebec and Richmond Railroad. He suffered in the commercial depression of 1857. In the fall of the latter year he removed with his family again to Perth. Here he engaged in building, and did the joiner work of the residence of the late Judge Mallock—probably the best finished house in town. In 1862 he again returned to Montreal, and wrought in the carshops of the G. T. R., at Point St. Charles, till the death of his wife in the spring of 1883. A short time after her death he was seized with neuralgia in the head, and leaving Montreal, he lived with his daughter, Mrs. Jack, in Brockville. He was a great sufferer for the past seven years. To him death was a kind friend. The deceased was a man of great integrity and strong religious convictions; beloved by all who knew him. In his early years he was educated with the view of being a minister, but the death of his grandfather, by whom he was brought up, dissipated this. He was a good scholar and retained his knowledge of Latin to the last. He learned the trade of stair-building in the city of Glasgow, Scotland. Before leaving his native land he held some good positions, one being that of manager and book-keeper for John Boag & Son, Johnstone, near Paisley. Three sons and three daughters survive him. The eldest living, and the third of his children, is the Rev. J. Carmichael of Norwood, Ont. Had the deceased lived till the 10th of November he would have been 81 years of age."

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—That the schooner Bessie Barwick has been wrecked and all her crew drowned is now almost assured. All the points on the north shore of Lake Superior where the schooner would likely go in for shelter in case of any accident have been visited by other vessels and yet no tidings of her have been received. The schooner is said to be worth $4,000. She was built in 1886 and purchased by R. O. McKay of this city last spring.

THE CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS.

A series of resolutions adopted by the recent conference of members of Provincial Governments, which sat at Quebec, have been made public. They deal with a number of subjects, many of them of importance.

The tendency of the resolutions is to miminize the powers of the central authority and to weaken the bond which holds the Provinces together. If Canada is to remain a united country, and is not to be allowed to retrogade into a number of detached and independent smaller communities, a strong central authority must be maintained. If a Province has power to pass legislation that would conflict with the policy adopted by the nation as a whole, discord, confusion and disentegration would be the result.

The conference proposes that the central authority should be materially weakened. It is proposed that the veto power be taken away and placed in the hands of the Imperial authorities at London. This does not look like a reform proposed by a Liberal party. If the Conservatives had made the suggestion the war cries of Toryism and Downing street would have been raised. But the principal effect would be to separate the Provinces and to introduce disunion.

The constitution of the Senate is another subject dealt with. It is proposed that as vacancies in that body occur they be filled by the Provinces until one half the number are chosen by them. In what manner this would be done is not stated, but it would probably be through the Legislatures. After half of the Senate had been thus filled with members elected by the Provinces, future vacancies would be filled as they are now when the seat vacated had been held by a nominee of the crown, but a new member would be selected by the Provinces when the vacant position had been held by a nominee of the Province. Thus half the members would be men elected by the Provinces. It is also propased that the terms be limited. This would be in part adopting the constitution of the United States Senate, and would tend to introduce Dominion issues into Provincial politics.

The proposed arrangement of the Provincial subsidies would make an extra charge on the Dominion Treasury. If, as stated by an advocate of these changes, the Dominion Government would be saved an equal sum by the Provinces subsidizing railways which are now aided by the Dominion, how would the Provinces be benefitted?

A resolution in favour of "unrestricted reciprocity under proper conditions" was also adopted. If this means Commercial Union, as the Globe assumes it does, it is simply another proposal looking towards the breaking up of the present confederation.

Look at what the result of all these changes would be. The Dominion Parliament would no longer have the control of the customs rates, internal revenue taxation or customs laws; it would be debarred from negotiating, through Great Britain, any commercial treaties with foreign countries; each Province would be in a position to legislate in opposition to the policy of the whole nation as expressed in the Dominion House; the Dominion Parliament could not say what qualification would be necessary to constitute a voter for Dominion purposes, its control of railways and public works would be curtailed, the power of pardoning prisoners would be largely handed over to the Provinces, and the control of the Senate would be to a great extent in the hands of the Provincial Legislatures. Such a very serious inroad upon the federal authority would lower it in the estimation of the Canadian people, as well as of the rest of the world, and, deprived of its chief functions, the Dominion Parliament would be a body of far less importance than it is now.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

INDORSEMENT OF JOHN.

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY REV. GEO. L. HAYS, D. D., LL. D.

Lesson VII of the International Series (Fourth Quarter) for Sunday, Nov. 13. Text of the Lesson, Matt. xi, 2-15. Golden Text, John v, 35.

John's discouragement must have been extreme as month after month he lay in prison under Herod's oppressive government. What strange meditations he must have had in that prison! He could look back on no unfaithfulness that deserved the reproof of his removal from public activity. In no case had he sought to thrust himself into prominence to the exclusion of Christ. It would not be strange, then, if in his loneliness there should be times when his faith would waver. He might well say, Surely if Jesus is the Messiah whose forerunner I really was, and he has the miraculous power of which I hear so much, he will speedily come to my deliverance. It seems to have been out of this spirit of discouragement under Christ's neglect that John sent these messengers (v. 2, 3). It would have been a solace to know that his imprisonment was part of the programme, and that, after all, all was right.

Christ's methods.—Christ rarely gave direct replies. One difference between a direct reply and a statement of evidence is this: A direct reply assumes responsibility on the part of the person giving it; a statement of evidence leaves the responsibility on the person to whom the evidence is submitted. If Christ had simply said "yes," John could fairly have said, "Then I have no further responsibility in the matter." This was not Christ's purpose with John any more than it is with us. How many have wished that God would, by an audible voice from heaven, tell them just what they ought to do! If he did, however, that would relieve them of the responsibility of determining their duty; and this is just what God lays on every one of us. Christ shuts John up to act upon the evidence the facts afforded as to the Messiahship.

Various translations.—This fact is curiously alluded to by the three different translations which in various editions of the English Bible have been given to the sentence, "The poor have the Gospel preached to them." A very early English Bible has it, "Poor men have taken to preaching the Gospel;" another translation was, "Poor men receive the Gospel;" now we have it, "The poor have the Gospel preached to them."

Christ's estimate of John.—When John's messengers had departed, Jesus turned to the multitude and discussed John. There is a keen criticism upon one phase of human nature in Christ's question (v. 7), "What went ye out to see?" Multitudes find what they determine beforehand that they will find. They find a prophet when they go out to seek a prophet, and a reed shaken with the wind when they go to look for it, and a man clothed in soft raiment when they have condemned him for that beforehand. Christ's question suggests a re-examination of their preconceived opinions and a re-examination of John's claims to a divine commission.

As to John, each step is a reproof of some popular prejudice and an indorsement of John. A reed shaken with the wind was then and is still a metaphorical name for an undecided and irresolute man. Those who looked for such indecision in John were wondrously mistaken, from King Herod down through all the rest. So those who made temporal ease and comfort a proof of divine favor were sadly mistaken in John's case. His raiment was camel's hair, his girdle leather and his food locusts and wild honey. His life was hard, but his mission was sublime. So those who had thrown around the Old Testament prophets their imaginary halo of unreality were much disappointed at John's directness and simplicity. The Saviour, however, puts him before all the prophets whom the Jews then so highly glorified.

Blood earnestness.—Earnest people nearly always succeed, and usually deserve success. The indifferent and slovenly never succeed except when success is thrust upon them. In all ages there have been large numbers who admitted that the question of all questions was the question of religion. The crowds that gathered around John (Luke iii, 1-18) were of this class. It was not true of all of them that their earnestness carried them through repentance of sin into a religious life. The earnest ones, however, did thus persevere through all obstacles and really enter into the kingdom of God. It is not in reproof, therefore, that the Saviour says (v. 12), "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." It is precisely that holy violence that is needed to enter into the kingdom and spread abroad the kingdom.

Elias already here.—Verse 13 calls attention to the difference between John's utterances and the utterances of the Old Testament prophets. They all point to something yet to come. John, however, pointed to that which had already come and was now present.

Verse 14, like verse 10, is an explicit interpretation of John's mission. It is also an implicit interpretation of Christ's own mission. If John was Elias, then Jesus was the Messiah. The two offices are not separated in prophecy, and could not be separate in fulfilment.

HINTS FOR PRIMARY CLASSES.

BY ALICE W. KNOX.

The persons in this lesson are John and his disciples, Jesus and the multitudes.

State that John was in prison, not for any wrong doing, but for confessing and teaching Christ and faithfully rebuking sin. Herod, the king, had "laid hold on John and bound him and put him in prison," etc.

The disciples of John used to visit him and tell him of what things they had seen and heard outside the prison. Among other things they told John about the wonderful works of Jesus. (Ask the children to repeat some of those works.)

These stories seemed very remarkable to John, and he sent two of his disciples to say, "Art thou he?" etc. (See v. 3.) In the word which Jesus sent back he speaks of six things to prove that he was the Christ.

1. The blind receive their sight.—Give examples, as in Matt. ix, 30; xii, 22; xx, 34; Mark viii, 23; John ix, 7. Isaiah had foretold that Jesus would do such works more than 700 years before Christ was born.

2. The lame walk.—(See Matt. xxi, 14; Luke vii, 22.)

3. The lepers are cleansed.—To see the frightful lepers in India, Palestine and other lands where this dreadful disease prevails enables one to realize more fully how wonderful such cures were. For instances see Matt. viii, 3; Mark i, 40-42; Luke v. 13; xvii, 14.

4. The deaf hear.—Children who cannot hear cannot learn to talk. A young father and mother began to fear that their baby boy was deaf. Neither spoke of it to the other, but each watched anxiously, and tried experiments to test the child's hearing when alone with it. At length their anxiety became so great and their fear so strong that they talked together about it, and decided to fire a pistol in the room to see whether the child would notice that loud sound. Alas! the little creature kept on with its play without paying the least attention to the noise. That settled it, and together the parents wept and mourned. Imagine, if possible, how great their joy would have been if by a word some noted physician had made that deaf child able to hear. But Jesus made the deaf to hear. (See Mark vii, 35; ix, 25.)

5. The dead are raised.—Most wonderful of all! The widow's only son, and the only brother of the two loving sisters, are instances. (See Matt. ix, 25; Mark v, 41; Luke vii, 14; viii, 55; John xi.)

6. The poor have the Gospel preached to them.—Jesus came to bring good tidings of great joy to all people—the rich and poor, the high and low. All the world over, the poor are more ready to believe on Christ than the rich are. To them the Gospel is good news for this life and also for the world to come. The rich are but a very small part of the world's people. Where there are thousands of the rich, there are millions of the poor. This is very apparent in Oriental lands, where most of the people are distressingly poor. Ten cents is thought to be good pay for a day's work. Many men who till the land for others cannot afford to eat the rice they raise, but they eat millet, and pick the kernels of corn from the cob after it has been baked hard and dry. They live in mud cabins without windows, and no place for fire except a hole in the ground. For dress they wrap around the body a strip of cloth; for beds they use rough boards or the bare ground. In India thousands have no home at all. In Bombay they go to roost like chickens on the curbstones of the streets. It is a sad sight to see long lines of the poor creatures thus seated for the night. When they hear the sound of singing by some band of Christians who have come out to hold an open air meeting for their benefit they gather around and listen to the Gospel of good news with the greatest interest. There are thirty places in Bombay where the missionaries and their native helpers hold such meetings and multitudes listen and many receive Christ. The change which conversion makes in these poor creatures is marvelous. From idleness they go to industry, from filth to cleanliness, from deepest gloom and poverty to joy and comfort.

But let none dare to pray for this who do not also give and work as much as possible. The poor are calling aloud all over the world for the Gospel. "Why did you not come and tell us before?" said a poor old woman in China. "Why did not your mother tell my mother?" said the little dying Indian girl.—Sunday School World.

A Phenomenal Whistler.

A "lady whistler" is one of the many products of a deplorable craze, but her domain is now invaded by a phenomenal creature, who will probably eclipse this bright particular star of the musical firmament. The new comer is described as Signor Cesar Garcy Cambia, an ex-officer of the Spanish army, and will shortly commence a professional concert tour. This gentleman, in the sight of the audience, cuts off a portion of a hollow bamboo, and after puncturing it with four holes produces therewith (to quote the words of a writer in a weekly journal) "all the melody one is accustomed to hear extracted from a flute itself, with the touch of a true artist.—Musical Herald.

Cider That Sells for Champagne.

The innkeeper fished out from the gloomy and cobwebby depths of a sub-counter closet a quart bottle which bore such marks of age as would have made the mouth of an epicurean wine bibber water with anticipated delight. The cork came out with a mighty pop, and a fine spray filled the air with mist and the aromatic fragrance of champagne.

"Try a glass of that," said the innkeeper, as he filled two glasses with the sparkling fluid. The tourist needed no urging.

"Why, that doesn't taste like cider, neither is it champagne, exactly. What do you call it?"

"Cider."

"How did you make it?"

"I bottled it three days ago. It was fresh, sweet, strained cider then. I put in each bottle a couple of raisins and a small lump of rock candy, and if you can find any champagne that costs less than ten cents a bottle that will beat that I will buy 1,000 cases of it."

"I should think it could be sold in some country places for champagne!"

"I've sold a good many hundred bottles of it."

"In what country town?" asked the tourist.

"In New York city."—New York Mail and Express.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little suffer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It smoothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, Relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

A Bargain in Hosiery.

A great job line of Woollen Hosiery just received. This is the greatest bargain in Hosiery we ever had to offer. A complete range of sizes in Ladies' and Children's. Now is the time to get a winter supply. H. S. GRIFFIN & Co. 3d113

Masonic.

This morning R. W. Bro. Shortly, D. D. G. M., for Ontario District, went north by train to Lindsay, to visit Faithful Brethren Lodge of that town. He was accompanied by Bro. Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, District Secretary. The D. D. G. M. will visit Spry Lodge, Fenelon Falls, on Friday evening, returning home on Saturday.

"Kerry Gow."

The following is clipped from the Buffalo Times:—"That the beautiful and deeply interesting Irish drama, "Kerry Gow," has lost none of its former popularity, has been made evident by the immense audiences that have witnessed its presentation at the Academy the past week by J. S. Murphy and an excellent support. Mr. Murphy is the same pleasing type of the true hearted, happy, traditional Kerry Gow as of old, and is sure to carry his audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm every time. Miss Virginia Marlowe gave an exceedingly pleasing personation of Nora Drew, giving the love passages with a sweetness that captivated all hearts, and manifesting a fine spirit of self-reliance when required."

In Memoriam.

Mr. Joseph Hooper has just completed, says the Port Hope Times, a neat memorial cross for the ladies of Port Hope to be placed on the grave of the late Col. Williams. There was remaining from the money subscribed for floral decorations for the late Colonel's funeral a sum of money that has been expended by the ladies in this becommanner. The cross is cut from pure white marble, is three inches thick, and twenty-two by fourteen inches in length and width. On the cross are cut in raised letters the words "In Memoriam," below them a bunch of lilies of the valley and under that a triple ribbon scrole bears the inscription "From the ladies of Port Hope." The stone is a neat piece of workmanship and is a thoughtful token of the ladies' lasting esteem for the deceased.

Cheese.

Messrs. Dundas & Flavelle shipped, today, about 600 cheese, the product of five factories, Warminster, North Smith, Central Smith, Norwood and Lakefield. This is the balance of the October make, the factories completing their contract for the three months, August, September and October. It was sold at 12½ cents. Mr. W. Cluxton shipped about 500 cheese, the product of six factories in this county. It was all October make, the balance of contract for September and October. The contract price was 12¼ cents. Mr. Cluxton is also shipping the product of four factories, October make, in the county of Victoria, also contracted at 12¼ cents. This finishes the cheese business for this season. Most of the factories have done well this season. The amount of money received for cheese has been large. Warminster, one of the finest and most reliable factories in the county, has obtained about $11,500 for cheese sold during the season. The maker, Mr. Payne, deserves great credit for the careful way he has handled the making. Mr. Warren Taylor, the popular President of this factory, has done much to its success. As Secretary of the Cheese Board, he, with Mr. Drummond, the President, has, by fair play and fair dealing, established one of the best conducted cheese boards in the Dominion.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Financial Statement Presented — Farmers' Institute—Other Business.

A meeting of the Directors of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday afternoon.

There were present: Mr. Wm. Rutherford, President, in the chair, and Messrs. Collins, Fair, Tully, Garbutt, Davidson and Forster.

Mr. Fair, as master of privelege, asked leave to withdraw a motion made and carried at the last meeting in relation to the Fitzgerald & Stanger protest. At the time he moved the resolution he did not know that the diploma had been granted and with the consent of the seconder and this meeting he would withdraw it.

The request was granted.

The minutes of the last meeting were confirmed.

Mr. J. M. Wilson, sent in a communication asserting his right to the first prize in the Jubilee Purse. He was ready to swear that he owned the horses a considerable time before the race.

The Secretary decided to await further information.

The decision arrived at in reference to the prize awarded to Mr. Kidd for collection of potatoes was allowed to stand, notwithstanding a petition from Mr. Daubez and a counter one from Mr. Kidd.

The petition of Mr. Crosby, asking the Society to pay a bill of $7 incurred by him in putting up a stand which he held the Society should have put up, was not allowed.

Mr. Hinman, of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, in a communication, thanked the Society for the kind treatment he received while here, and spoke of the coming meeting of the Association in this town.

Mr. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., was heard. He said that at the request of a number of representative farmers of the riding, and also at the request of the Secretary of the Central Permanent Institute, of Hamilton, he was here to-day to ask them whether, as representative farmers, they thought it advisable to establish a Farmers' Institute in this riding. They were all aware of the value of these institutes, the object of which was to endeavour to have subjects discussed during the winter season that were of benefit to the agricultural community. He gave a statement of the working of the institute and said that if one were formed the Ontario Legislature and the County Council would each grant $25 towards paying the expenses of holding the meetings, etc. The professors of the Agricultural College and Model Farm could be secured at any time to give lectures, provided due notice were given.

Mr. COLLINS said that he believed Farmers' Institutes were good things if properly conducted. If matters relating purely to the interests of the farmers were discussed they would be of benefit, but he did not believe in allowing the Wimanites to come and talk Commercial Union.

Mr. STRATTON said that the members would have it in their power to prevent Commercial Union being discussed if they so desired.

Several other members spoke in favor of the Farmers' Institute.

It was agreed to hold the meeting to elect officers on November 30th, at 2 p. m., in the Council Chamber.

The Treasurer, Mr. McGill, presented the following financial statement of the Society:—

| | |
|---|---|
| This year's expenses | $3,006 80 |
| " receipts | 2,679 16 |
| Deficit | $ 327 64 |
| Last year's deficit | 1,000 00 |
| | $1,327 62 |

The cost of permanent improvements made by the Society, such as the erection of exhibition buildings, sheds, and so forth, is included in the expense account, so that the Society, if their property is taken into consideration, is not in debt.

Mr. FAIR moved, seconded by Mr. TULLY.—That this Board, known as the Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Association of Peterborough, do hereby hold themselves liable for the indebtedness of the Association while holding office as directors, on condition that their successors assume the same responsibility on taking office, and that this resolution be read before the appointment of Directors at every annual meeting, also that this resolution have the seal of the Association affixed thereto.—Carried.

The meeting adjoured.

First Visit to Cobourg.

The Cobourg World says:—"His Lordship, the Most Reverend T. J. Dowling, D. D., Bishop of Peterborough, will visit the parish of Cobourg on Friday next, the 11th inst. He will arrive in the morning by the 10 o'clock train and will be met at the station by a number of our citizens, who will accompany His Lordship to Father Murray's residence. At eight o'clock in the evening he will hold a levee in the hall of the Separate School house, when matters of interest to the diocese and the parish will be discussed. On Sunday morning at high mass (10 o'clock) he will preach. Vespers will be said at 7 o'clock, p. m., and will be followed by a sermon from His Lordship. This will be the first occasion of a visit to Cobourg of the new and learned Bishop of Peterborough."

Training the Children.

Mr. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's Church, is training the children of the Sunday School once a week preparatory to holding a children's musical festival. The children are evincing proficiency in choral singing under Mr. Parker's guidance. The festival will be looked forward to with interest.

GATHERING OF THE CLANS.

St. Andrew's Society Meet and Elect Officers.

The annual meeting of the St. Andrew's Society was held on Thursday evening in the office of Mr. Wm. Cumming, the Collector.

Mr. Thos. Menzies, the President of the Society, occupied the chair. After confirming the minutes he gave a report of the financial condition of the Society for the year, acting in the stead of Mr. M. Millar, the Treasurer. The statement showed that the Society had a balance in hand of $87.19. An audit committee was appointed to report at the adjourned meeting to be held on Thursday evening next, Nov. 17th

The following officers for the ensuing year were unanimously elected:—

PRESIDENT—Wm. Cummings.
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—Jas. Stewart.
2ND VICE-PRESIDENT—Jos. Tully.
3RD VICE-PRESIDENT—Adam Turner.
TREASURER—Thos. Menzies.
SECRETARY—Wm. Menzies.
CHAPLAINS—Revs. E. F. Torrance and J. Wallace.
PHYSICIANS—Dr. J. T. Halliday, Dr. R. W. Bell, Dr. Fife and Dr. John Massie (Keene).
BARD—W. Telford, Smith.
PIPER—Donald McDonald, Peterborough.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—The following were appointed members of the Executive Committee for the Town and County of Peterborough:—

Town—Messrs. Geo. Queen, James Hendry, Alex. Wood, E. H. D. Hall, John Paterson, W. Millar, D. D. Gallelly, W. Paterson, jr., Adam Hall, W. W. Johnston, P. Hamilton, John Spence, Jas. Cummings.

Otonabee—Messrs. John Millar, Donald MacFarlane.

Keene—Wm. Campbell, Dr. Massie.

Smith—Messrs. H. Bowie, W. Graham, A. Morrison.

Lakefield—Messrs. Robert Graham and John Isbister.

Ennismore—Messrs. Thos. Telford and W. Cummins.

North Monaghan—Messrs. Jos. Tully and Wm. Fowler.

Dummer—Messrs. David Rose, A. R. Kidd, Alex. Smith.

Asphodel and Belmont—John Breckenridge, J.P., W. Matheson.

Norwood—W. E. Roxburgh.

Douro—Thomas Russell and Joseph Renwick.

Harvey—Geo. Smith.

Mr. James Hendry moved, seconded by Mr. John Patterson—That St. Andrews Day be celebrated by a supper.—Carried.

The following were appointed to make the necessary arrangements:—The President, the three Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Chas. Cameron, D. D. Galletely, W. H. Robertson and the Secretary.

The President and Secretary were appointed to wait upon the Rev. E. F. Torrance to request him to preach the annual sermon to the Society on Sunday November 27th.

Mr. Wm. Menzies moved, seconded by Mr. Joseph Tully—That the thanks of this Society are due and are hereby tendered to Mr. Wm. Telford, the bard of the Society, for the honor he has conferred upon its members in dedicating to the Society his book of poems, and that the President, ex-Vice-President, Mr. D McLeod, be a committee to purchase a suitable testamonial to Mr. Telford in recognition of his services during the past 27 years on behalf of this Society, and that the presentation be made on the eve of St. St. Andrew's Day.—Carried.

The usual votes of thanks were moved, passed, duly responded to and the meeting adjourned.

An Evening with Longfellow.

An entertainment was given in the W. C. T. U. Hall, George street, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union. The entertainment was called "An evening with Longfellow." The hall was comfortably filled with people. Miss Edwards occupied the chair. After devotional exercises Miss Stratton gave a pianoforte solo. Miss Keele then read an essay on Longfellow's life and works. She gave a concise biography of the poet, and showed the influence which sojourns in different countries had upon his works by quoting from his poems. The essay was very interesting and was well read. Miss Ella Cox sang, "Some Days Must Be Dark and Dreary," and Miss Poole read another of Longfellows productions "The Psalm of Life," Mrs. Seward sang "The Arrow and the Song," a pretty song also from Longfellow. Refreshments were then served. The second part of the programme was commenced by Miss Fairweather giving a pianoforte solo. Mr. Daly and Mrs. Daly sang Longfellow's well known production, "Excelsior." The next was a reading by Miss Sanderson entitled the "Building of the Ship." The piece was impressive particularly the last few lines, which were made to have a reference to the Society's work "and Thou, oh Union, strong and great, etc." Miss Cameron sang "The Reaper whose name is Death" and the entertainment closed with the singing of God Save the Queen.

Personal.

Dr. E. A. Spilsbury, of Peterborough, now in London, England, attending the practice of the large hospitals, has recently been elected a fellow of the British Gynæcological Society.

Mr. W. J. McMurtry, the well known manager of the Ontario Bank at Port Perry, has resigned that position and gone into business with his brother at Bowmanville.

Two Months in Gaol.

The following is from the Cobourg World:—"Two dressed lambs were stolen from Mr. T. W. Webster's slaughter house at an early hour on Sunday morning. Suspicion rested on a family named McDonald, ex-residents of Peterborough and Belleville, who moved into town on the 2nd inst., and leased a house owned by Mr. James Fee on Fourth street. An old woman, her two sons, a little grandson, and a young mamed Edward Ward constituted the new occupants. On Tuesday morning, Chief Constable Rankin executed a search warrant and found Mr. Webster's stolen meat in the house and in the possession of the McDonalds. He took them into custody and on Wednesday morning they were tried by the Police Magistrate, who found Mrs. McDonald and Edward Ward guilty of larceny and sentenced them to imprisonment in the Central Prison for six months. Daniel McDonald and Edward Ward were found guilty of beating and wounding Police Constable Ulyatt, whom they caught without his batton while in the execution of his duty on Monday evening last. They were sentenced to imprisoument in the common gaol for 60 days. Two sons of Mrs. McDonald were lynched in Michigan in 1881 for murdering a man named Carson."

Local Brevities.

—First decided fall of snow for 1887 8 last night. Last year's overshoes and rubbers are being resuscitated to meet the exigencies of the weather.

—Several residents are laying themselves open to the suspicion that they are rather rushing the season by donning fur caps this morning.

—Members of the curling fraternity were observed prowling about the rink this afternoon. Where a man's treasure is there will his heart be also.

—Mr. J. J. Tilley, Inspector of Model Schools, paid the Norwood Model School a visit last week. He pronounces it, the Register says, one of the most efficient schools in the province.

—Local tinsmiths report the liveliest and best season's business in their line yet experienced. Last year's record is completely broken—one might say—pulverized. The large building operations here added to the quantity of work done.

—Mr. M. A. James is editor of the Bowmanville Statesman. That paper says that persons who want money and can give real estate security can get any amount on application to M. A. James. Such an announcement arouses the envy and cupidity of other editors—and they wonder how he can do it.

—Mr. J. D. Flavelle, the renowned skip of the Lindsay Curling Club, proposes to resume hostilities between the clubs (Peterborough-Lindsay), almost as soon as he can his boots on—so to speak. Mr. Flavelle will recollect that the last concussion of the season past resulted in an everlasting scoop for Peterborough. Call in the members. Hands across and down the middle! Balance all!

Regimental Books.

A first-class set of regimental books for the use of the 57th Battalion have been furnished by the REVIEW Company. In these will be kept the issues of the clothing and accoutrements from the Government to the men of the different companies and a record of the state and condition of the regiment. These books are, of course, subject to the inspection of the Deputy Adjutant General on his annual inspection.

Rifle Association.

At the annual meeting of the officers of the 57th Battalion, to be held at the regular mess dinner after the inspection, it is intended to form a Regimental Rifle Association. This is a step in the right direction, and it is hoped will meet with due encouragement from the citizens.

The old bridge at Hale's is to be rebuilt. The work of tearing it down, in order to commence the work of repairing, will begin on Monday.

The Countess Narona.

We begin to-day the publication of a story by the renowned author Wilkie Collins. It is one of his best productions, the plot being strongly drawn and well worked out. The scenes are laid in England, Ireland and Venice, and throughout the whole story the incidents follow each other so rapidly that the interest of the reader is not allowed to flag. Instalments will be given regularly until the story is completed. The present is a good time to subscribe for the REVIEW so as to get all of the "Countess Narona."

Diphtheria.

The Lindsay Post, intentionally or unintentionally, does harm to Peterborough by saying, in regard to diphtheria, that "In Peterborough the existence of the dread disease is kept quiet, but we have heard of three cases in Emily said to have been brought from that town." Diphtheria does not exist in Peterborough, so far as the authorities can discover. Not a single case has been reported to the Medical Health Officer for a considerable time. That officer says that diphtheria has never been prevalent here. The Post should give this space in its columns.

Boys and Fruit.

Daniel Hoolihan, Timothy Cronan, Geo. Bennett, H. Wilson, John Daly and Bert. Hudson stood up before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning to hear a charge preferred against them by Mrs. Mary Gorman, to the effect that they had feloniously stolen, taken and carried away a jar of preserves and a cake, contrary to the statute in that behalf. The boys pleaded not guilty with one accord and sat down To look at them in court would almost satisfy one that the boys would never be guilty of tackling either a jar of preserves or a cake; of course not. Mr. C. W. Sawers defended Bert. Hudson and Mr. O'Meara defended the rest. Two witnesses were examined and the case was adjourned till a week from Monday.

Of Great Importance.

The Lindsay Board of Trade adopted a resolution expressing its pleasure with the advancement made by that town, and resolving further:—"That public expression be given to its recognition of the great importance to this town of the location here of the Grand Trunk Railway Works, and the opening up of water communication with Lindsay, of Cameron and Balsam lakes and Gull and Burnt river waters above; and of Deer, Stoney and Clear lakes, and the Otonabee river below; by the completion of the Trent Valley Canal Works at Fenelon Falls, Buckhorn and Burleigh."

Stapleton's Coming Sales.

MONDAY, Nov. 14.—Unreserved credit sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. Josiah Hayes, on his premises, lot 7, in 4th con. of Cavan, about two miles east of Omemee. Sale at 12.30. No reserve.

TUESDAY, Nov. 15.—Important sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. R. N. Scott, on his premises, lot 8, E. of Communication Road. Sale at 12.30. No Reserve.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 16th.—Extensive and important sale of farm stock, implements and hay, of Catherine & Ellen Nelson, on their premises Lot 14, in 4 Con. of Otonabee about two miles east of Keene. Sale at 10 a.m., lunch at noon.

TUESDAY, Nov. 22nd.—Bona fide sale of farm stock, implements &c., of Mr. H. S. Armstrong, on his premises Lot 27, in 10 Con. of Otonabee, about two miles from town, on the Block road. Sale at 10.30 a.m., lunch at noon.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 23rd.—Desirable sale of Real Estate, by auction, of Mr. T. Hurley, Real Estate Agent, five different lots to be sold at Cavanagh's hotel. Sale at 2 p.m.

THURSDAY, Nov. 24.—Bona fide sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. Thos. Morgan, on his premises, lot 12, in 2nd con. of Douro. Sale at 12.30. No reserve.

THE WILSON SCANDAL.

Violent Scene at a Cabinet Council—Valuable Papers Stolen.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—It is rumoured that a violent scene occurred at the Cabinet Council yesterday, when, to the entreaties of his ministers, President Grevy replied obstinately that he would not part with M. Wilson.

M. Rouvier, in a semi official note, disclaimed having ever handled documents connected with the decoration scandal. M. Gragnon publishes a note refuting the statement that the substitution of the antedated letters occurred while the original documents were in the care of police. This has probably some connection with report of M. Gragnon's dismissal. Burglars have stolen a quantity of papers bearing on the scandal from the residence of M. Portalis, an active agent in the campaign against M. Wilson.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—M. Wilson has officially left the palace of the Elysee.

The District Markets.

Our contemporary the Lindsay Post this week—so to speak—throws up its hat and indulges in a whoop of exultation that prices for barley there have at last reached as high as 85c., and states that farmers are coming from long distances to Lindsay. It ventures the opinion that Lindsay market is better than Peterborough this year. Our contem. will understand that at Peterborough 84c. to 85c. has been the ruling price for the week past, and it will be able to form an estimate of the attractiveness of its local market when we state that Messrs. Geo. Mulcahy, Eugene Shine, W. Houlihan, M. Lehane, of Emily—two of these are from Downeyville—and Mr. D. J. Scully, of Lindsay, have brought their barley to Peterborough instead of selling at Lindsay, only a few miles from where they live. It is all very well to talk in a general way of farmers going "thirty miles with heavily laden teams" to Lindsay, but putting the above names in print shows which market is the best. The Post's whoop was a premature one.

Returned from Europe.

Will be at Phelan's Hotel on Nov. 21 and 22. Prof. Dorenwend has returned from Europe with additional ideas in manufacturing hair goods. He comes here as before stated, and will show all those who lack capillary adornment that his stock of styles this time eclipses anything yet shown. For tasteful designs and variety, his frontpieces are unequalled. Ladies are invited to call and see the new styles of Bangs, Portland, Amanda, Bithis, Lucy, and others. His stock is enormous, and as he has to make room, has bought his raw materials for cash and at big discounts, and has the most improved methods for manufacturing his goods, he will sell at prices that make it possible for every lady to wear his beautiful styles. Gentlemen with bald heads should not forget to call and see his fine coverings (wigs and toupees) for the head. Remember, at Phelan's Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 21 and 22. w45d115

The Shaun Rhue.

The following is from the Leavenworth Kan., Times:—"The new opera house was filled last evening by a large and fashionable audience to witness the play of "Shaun Rhue," and laugh at the keen wit and repartee of J. S. Murphy. There are many strong situations which add much to the success of the piece, but the one great attraction, the particular star, in his own peculiar firmament, is the character of Larry Donovon, who keeps the audience almost continually in laughter, and Shaun Rhue, "who came down thirty-two miles," is a faithful portrayal of the "Far down," and the rich brogue is as natural as can be found in all Ireland. Mr. Murphy is a pleasing comedian; he gives his audience all the bright side of his character."

The Fur Trade.

The Haliburton correspondent of the Independent says:—"On Saturday the usual visit of fur buyers took place, the 5th of November being the date assigned by custom for the fur sales. The open weather of the past week or two has had the effect of keeping the trappers in the woods, and on Saturday only a few came in to sell. Mr. Lech, of Peterborough and Mr. Stern, of of Kingston, were the chief purchasers but only about $500 worth of fur was bought. On Monday and Tuesday some further sales were made, but the quantity brought in was less than usual, and even when all the trappers come in their total quantity will be short of the average."

Local Brevities.

—The adjourned meeting of St. Andrew's Society will be held on Thanksgiving Day at 7.30 p.m., at the office of Collector Cummings.

—Mr. Geo. Raney returned to town yesterday. He will not make the survey at Grundy's Island until after the ice is formed.

WHY THEY DIED.

History of the Crime for which the Four Anarchists were Executed.

The crime for which the four Chicago men were condemned and for which they have suffered the penalty of murder was committed on the 4th of May, 1886. There had been a riot on the previous day at the McCormick Reaper Works, in the south-eastern quarter of Chicago, where a mob of several thousand men had assailed the workmen of the factory, who, it was supposed, had agreed to work ten hours a day. This was a mistake on the part of the rioters. They assailed the men as they came out of the works with clubs and brickbats, and threw stones through the windows of the factory. A platoon of police having been despatched to the scene, the mob first threw stones at them and then fired at them with revolvers. The police returned the fire, wounding several, and finally charged and scattered the mob. On the following day a handbill printed in English and German was distributed, calling upon workingmen to meet at the market space, in the west division of the city, "to denounce the latest atrocious act of the police, the shooting of our fellow-workmen yesterday afternoon." About one thousand men gathered, but the proceedings were very dull until Fielden, the Anarchist, took the stand and began a most incendiary harangue. He became so violent that word was sent to Inspector Bonfield, who marched to the scene with a squad of about one hundred men and ordered the crowd to disperse. Fielden then shouted: "To arms!" Suddenly from behind a waggon, not fifteen feet from the front rank, a dynamite bomb was thrown in between the second and third ranks of the officers. The bomb exploded with terrible effect. Several policemen were killed and fifty or sixty shockingly wounded. Those who were not thrown down or disabled opened fire on the mob, who immediately dispersed. The excitement produced by this practical test of the teachings of Anarchism was tremendous, reaching to all parts of America and Europe. After some delay, six men including Fielden, were arrested for participation in the murderous attack, and one other, Parsons, voluntarily surrendered himself. One other, Schnaebele, supposed to have been the bomb thrower, escaped. The important mistake made by Parsons when he surrendered himself was in supposing that no legal liability would attach to anybody who did not actually handle the murderous instrument. Great was the surprise of all of them when the Judge ruled that all who were concerned in acts consciously and designedly leading to the killing were alike guilty of murder. It was for the jury to decide whether the acts proved did lead up to the murder by the design and intention of the prisoners. This was shown beyond the shadow of doubt. The secret preparation of bombs, the mutual exhortation to kill the police, and the chain of conspiracy, from the midnight meetings of the assassins down to the tragedy in the market square, were brought to light, and it was made manifest that if such acts could be committed and no one be punishable but the person who actually threw the deadly missile, society would be at the mercy of the disciples of John Most. They were accordingly all convicted, and their conviction was affirmed by the highest tribunal in the State.

THE GERMAN CROWN PRINCE.

A False Rumor of his Death Creats a Flurry.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The German Crown Prince is a general favorite with the English people, and when the rumor got abroad yesterday afternoon that he was dead there was an universal feeling of sorrow and regret. The rumour, however, was speedily denied, but the denial came too late to relieve the stock market from the shock it experienced. On the first announcement of the rumor Russian securities dropped two points and there was a dead lull in the trading. The British Medical Journal asserts that a sudden swelling of the edigiottic folds adds greatly to the gravity of the case, and prevents an inspection of the affected parts below. The cancer theory is generally accepted among medical authorities and others. Nothing else explains satisfactorily the stubbon character of the disease. What slight hope is felt for the success of an operation and of the Prince's recovery is buoyed up by the patient's iron nerve and wonderful cheerfulness.

BOBCAYGEON.

FIRE.—An alarm of fire created a slight sensation on Friday. A store house near Mr. Trotter's Furniture Factory, in which is piled a quantity of dry lumber, was found to be on fire, but being caught in time was easily extinguished. It is supposed to have originated from a spark thrown by a passing steamer in the canal.—Independent.

A STRONGER COERCION ACT.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Right Hon. Mr. Childers, in an address at Kilmarnock last evening, said Mr. Balfour's recent speech seemed to indicate that a new and stronger Coercion Act was wanted to prevent persons convicted by magistrates from obtaining bail.

ENGLAND AND ITALY.

ROME, Nov. 11.—The newspapers here, in their comments on Lord Salisbury's speech, refer with satisfaction to the identity of the English and Italian interests, and to the friendship existing between the two nations.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA PLEASED.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The German and Austrian newspapers unanimously express the highest approval of Lord Salisbury's speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet. They consider that his utterances show that England has virtually joined the triple alliance. The North German Gazette says:—"Strong moral support is given by the speech to the prospect of testing the peaceful development of the future, so far as it can be surveyed from leading positions."

UNDER BISMARCK'S DIRECTIONS.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The Borsen Zeitung, commenting on the refusal of the Reichs Bank to make advances on Russian securities, suggests that the course adopted by the bank is intended as a counter move to the Russian decree that branches of the Russian Imperial Bank must not cash drafts written in German. It is believed by many operators on the Beurse that the action of the Reichs Bank had a more serious motive, and that the bank is acting under the directions of Prince Bismarck.

PORT HOPE.

A FIRE.—Between ten and eleven o'clock on Thursday morning the alarm bells sounded when it was found that smoke was issuing from one of the many club rooms in the third story of the Knowlson block over D. J. McLennan's store. The firemen were promptly on hand and soon had the fire under control. The fire seems to have originated from the stove as there was no metal protection under it, the floor had been burnt through into the large room formerly used by the Gospel Army. The loss to the building will probably amount to $100. Mr. McLennan will be the greatest sufferer by the water deluging the store.—Guide.

Departure of the Parthia.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 11.—The steamer Parthia sailed this afternoon for Yokohama and Hong Kong with 34 passengers and 19 Chinese, together with a full cargo, principally flour. She will call at Victoria for 150 more Chinese.

A Switchman Killed.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 11.—Joseph McMaster, a switchman on the Canada Southern Railway, was killed near Ruscomb yesterday. It is not known exactly how the unfortunate man met his death, but it is thought that he fell between the cars. His body was frightfully mangled. He was a resident of Windsor, 21 years old, and married. His remains were brought to Windsor for interment.

The Next President.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The World prints a large number of letters from leading politicians of both parties as to the most available candidates for President in 1888. The summary of the opinions is that Mr. Cleveland is sure of re-nomination by his party, while opinions differ among the Republicans as to Mr. Blaine, the politicians thinking that he is not out of the race, while the editors, as a rule, think he is.

Who were They?

Lately in Canada two men set out evangelizing after the manner of Moody and Sankey. The preaching one, on beginning a meeting, took for his text: "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also." He used three orthodox heads as follows: 1. The world is wrong side up. 2. The world needs to be turned upside down. 3. We are the chaps to do it.—Gospel Age.

Plymouth Pulpit.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 11.—The Rev. Chas. A. Berry, who arrived here on the Britannic, was interviewed in regard to his probable return to America to assume the pastorate of the late Henry Ward Beecher's church. Mr. Berry said that he was greatly impressed by the cordiality of the Brookly people, but before accepting Plymouth pulpit he intended to consult his family and his old flock at Wolverhampton. He enjoyed his trip to America very much.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1887.

THE ANARCHISTS.

FOUR of the men whose lives had been depending on the decisions of the courts and the will of the Governor of Illinois since May 4th, 1886, have paid the extreme penalty for inciting the mobs at Chicago to riot. One of them died exclaiming "long live anarchy," an expression that to good citizens and lovers of order sounds like the wish of a madman.

Yet anarchy was the ideal system of government to these men. What others would consider—and what would be—an intolerable system of society they believed would make the world more comfortable for its inhabitants. Their professed object was the same as that the Socialists claim to have in view—the improvement of the condition of the people—but while the Socialists want a system of government that would carry out their views of common ownership, the Anarchists aimed at the abolition of government.

In the United States, as in Canada, where there is freedom of speech, any man can advocate changes or reforms, but when those who aim at the destruction of existing institutions undertake to revolutionize society and authority with the aid of dynamite, and endeavour to stir up people to committee murder, it is time for the state to put a stop to their proceedings. In this case the Anarchists had been so successful in their efforts that lives were taken, in the most deliberate manner, and those whose duty it was to protect the people were stricken down.

It was said in defence of these men that they did not throw the bombs that slew the seven policemen who were killed. But bombs and everything needed to make them were found in the room of Lingg, while the incendiary speeches of all told against them. They were convicted by the courts, and it was felt that it would be endangering society to allow them to escape the severest punishment, so they died.

The lesson will be heeded. Extremists will hesitate to continue the evil work, with such an example of punishment before them. No one could feel safe in the United States, if men who disapproved of the system of government were allowed to make use of such weapons to enforce their views. The people will not be averse to bettering their condition when they are shown that it can be done, and where the people rule, as in America, they have the power in their own hands. But dynamite is a sort of argument that cannot be allowed.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

ONE of the most important subjects in this country is the growing of crops—the best way of tilling the ground and attending to the land so that it will not become impoverished and that the largest possible returns for the labor expended may be received.

Exchanging ideas and benefitting by the experience of others is one means of education. In a Farmers' Institute, conducted with a view to the objects for which they were intended, the yeomen can meet, exchange experience, compare notes and learn much regarding the industry in which they are engaged.

Besides, there are in public institutions men who have made scientific farming a special study of a lifetime, with all the advantages for experiments that could be procured, and they cannot fail to have much knowledge to impart that would be useful for farmers to know. Addresses from the Professors of the Agricultural College could be procured, if there was an organization to call the farmers together, which would be beneficial.

There are many questions connected with agriculture that it is not easy to thoroughly understand, such as the rotation of crops, the best fertilizers to use on certain lands for the crops desired, the best breeds of animals, and so on. The importance of tree planting is something that our farmers have not sufficiently recognized, and all such subjects could be discussed at meetings of the Institute.

Confined to its proper sphere, and conducted with a view to the best interests of the farmers, an Institute would no doubt be very beneficial, and there should be a large attendance at the meeting on November 30th to organize the Institute for the West Riding. In the East Riding there is such an organization, and the Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society took a right step when they decided to call a meeting to form an Institute for the west half of the county.

THE New Brunswick delegates at the Provincial Conference objected to the resolution regarding the Manitoba boundary railway; the Nova Scotian Premier signed the resolutions with a reservation that he might yet decide not to accept them; the Globe is dissatisfied with the Senate scheme outlined, and the Montreal Witness objects to the proposal regarding the veto, is not satisfied with the proposal as to the Senate and thinks the one regarding the Dominion franchise wrong. The Reform party will soon be at sixes and sevens on the conference platform, as it has been on other questions.

IT is insisted that Sir Charles Tupper should offer to accept Commercial Union. It was not long since it was said that the United States would propose that scheme, but its advocates now want Canada to propose it.

THE FIRST PART.

CHAPTER I.

In the year 1860 the reputation of Dr. Wybrow as a London physician reached its highest point. It was reported on good authority that he was in receipt of one of the largest incomes derived from the practice of medicine in modern times.

One afternoon, toward the close of the London season, the doctor had just taken his luncheon after a specially hard morning's work in his consulting room, and with a formidable list of visits to patients at their own houses to fill up the rest of his day—when the servant announced that a lady wished to speak to him.

"Who is she?" the doctor asked. "A stranger?"

"Yes, sir."

"I see no strangers out of consulting hours. Tell her what the hours are, and send her away."

"I have told her, sir."

"Well?"

"And she won't go."

"Won't go!" The doctor smiled as he repeated the words. He was a humorist in his way; and there was an absurd side to the situation which rather amused him. "Has this obstinate lady given you her name?" he inquired.

"No, sir. She refused to give any name—she said she wouldn't keep you five minutes, and the matter was too important to wait till to-morrow. There she is in the consulting room; and how to get her out again is more than I know."

Dr. Wybrow considered for a moment. His knowledge of women (professionally speaking) rested on the ripe experience of more than thirty years; he had met with them in all their varieties—especially the variety which knows nothing of the value of time, and never hesitates at sheltering itself behind the privileges of its sex. A glance at his watch informed him that he must soon begin his rounds among the patients who were waiting for him at their own houses. He decided forthwith on taking the only wise course that was opened under the circumstances. In other words, he decided on taking to flight.

"Is the carriage at the door?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Very well. Open the house door for me without making any noise, and leave the lady in undisturbed possession of the consulting room. When she gets tired of waiting, you know what to tell her. If she asks when I am expected to return, say that I dine at my club, and spend the evening at the theatre. Now, then, softly, Thomas! If your shoes creak, I am a lost man."

He noiselessly led the way into the hall, followed by the servant on tiptoe.

Did the lady in the consulting room suspect him? or did Thomas' shoes creak, and was her sense of hearing unusually keen? Whatever the explanation may be, the event that actually happened was beyond all doubt. Exactly as Dr. Wybrow passed his consulting room, the door opened—the lady appeared on the threshold—and laid her hand on his arm.

"I entreat you, sir, not to go away without letting me speak to you first."

The accent was foreign; the tone was low and firm. Her fingers closed gently, and yet resolutely, on the doctor's arm.

Neither her language nor her action had the slightest effect in inclining him to grant her request. The influence that instantly stopped him, on the way to his carriage, was the silent influence of her face. The startling contrast between the corpselike pallor of her complexion and the overpowering life and light, the glittering metallic brightness in her large black eyes, held him literally spell-bound. She was dressed in dark colors, with perfect taste; she was of middle height, and (apparently) of middle age—say a year or two over 30. Her lower features—the nose, mouth and chin—possessed the fineness and delicacy of form which is oftener seen among women of foreign races than among women of English birth. She was unquestionably a handsome person—with the one serious drawback of her ghastly complexion, and with the less noticeable defect of a total want of tenderness in the expression of her eyes. Apart from his first emotion of surprise, the feeling she produced in the doctor may be described as an overpowering feeling of professional curiosity. The case might prove to be something entirely new in his professional experience. "It looks like it," he thought; "and it's worth waiting for."

She perceived that she had produced a strong impression of some kind upon him, and dropped her hold on his arm.

"You have comforted many miserable women in your time," she said. "Comfort one today."

Without waiting to be answered she led the way back into the room.

The doctor followed her and closed the door. He placed her in the patients' chair, opposite the windows. Even in London the sun, on that summer afternoon, was dazzlingly bright. The radiant light flowed in on her. Her eyes met it unflinchingly, with the steely steadiness of the eyes of an eagle. The smooth pallor of her unwrinkled skin looked more fearfully white than ever. For the first time in many a long year past the doctor felt his pulse quicken its beat in the presence of a patient.

Having possessed herself of his attention she appeared, strangely enough, to have nothing to say to him. A curious apathy seemed to have taken possession of this resolute woman. Forced to speak first, the doctor merely inquired, in the conventional phrase, what he could do for her.

The sound of his voice seemed to rouse her. Still looking straight at the light, she said abruptly: "I have a painful question to ask."

"What is it?"

Her eyes traveled slowly from the window to the doctor's face. Without the slightest outward appearance of agitation she put the "painful question" in these extraordinary words:

"I want to know, if you please, whether I am in danger of going mad?"

Some men might have been amused, and some might have been alarmed. Dr. Wybrow was only conscious of a sense of disappointment. Was this the rare case that he had anticipated, judging rashly by appearances? Was the new patient only a hypochondriacal woman, whose malady was a disordered stomach, and whose misfortune was a weak brain? "Why do you come to me?" he asked, sharply. "Why don't you consult a doctor whose special employment is the treatment of the insane?"

She had her answer ready on the instant.

"I don't go to a doctor of that sort," she said, "for the very reason that he is a specialist; he has the fatal habit of judging everybody by lines and rules of his own laying down. I come to you because my case is outside of all lines and rules, and because you are famous in your profession for the discovery of mysteries in disease. Are you satisfied?"

He was more than satisfied—his first idea had been the right idea, after all. Besides, she was correctly informed as to his professional position. The capacity which had raised him to fame and fortune was his capacity (unrivaled among his brethren) for the discovery of remote disease.

HALIBURTON COUNTY.

HORSE LOST.—Mr. Alphonse Coulter, of Galway, lost a horse last week whilst engaged in drawing logs in the woods, where he is jobbing in saw logs for the Gilmour concern. The team was drawing at a heavy log, when one of the horses, after giving a jerk, fell back and died in a few moments. —Independent.

COMPLETED.—Mr. Wm. Hartle has just completed a bridge on the Bobcaygeon road 6 miles north of Minden. The bridge is 128 feet long and is said to be one of the best pieces of work in this line performed in the back country.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A very sad accident happened at the residence of Mr. John Bowron, of Lutterworth township, on Tuesday last, causing the death of his youngest son. It appears there was no one in the house at the time, but Mrs. Bowron and the unfortunate child, aged three years. Mrs. Bowron happened to lift a pot of boiling water from the stove, and as is too often the case with women, set it on the floor, when the child took hold of it and upset the scalding contents about its person. Words cannot express the amount of pain the child suffered till the following morning when death came to his relief.—Echo.

KINMOUNT.

BOOMING.—There is not a vacant house in the place, and the demand for houses is very great. This is unquestionably one of the most prosperous villages in Ontario.

IRON MINES.—Mr. Pusy has returned from New York, where he has been for a week or two. There is a rumour here that he has disposed of his interest in the iron mines and railway to a powerful New York syndicate. It is not generally believed in, but still such a thing is possible.

THE FIRES AND SEED.—There is much discussion regarding the probability of the Provincial Government furnishing the money necessary to seed with timothy grass the regions which were burned over during the drought. It would be a good plan and both Mr. Fell and Mr. Cruess have urged the matter on the Government, but its cost renders it impracticable. It would take five pounds of timothy seed to the acre, and there are not less than two hundred thousand acres which require seeding. This involves a million pounds of seed, and how much money that will cost no one but a mathematician can tell.—Independent.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

The Government has won its suit against the Mormon Church in the Supreme Court of Utah, which has decided that a Receiver must be appointed. The Edmunds-Tucker Act dissolved the Church Corporation, which had been forbidden by the Act of 1862 to acquire or hold more than $50,000 worth of real estate, and directed that its affairs should be wound up "conformably to law." It was also provided that the assets remaining after the payment of the corporation's lawful debts should escheat to the United States and be used for the benefit of common schools in the Territory. The church was represented by ex-Senator McDonald of Indiana, and Col. Broadhead, of St. Louis. It appears that immediately after the passage of the Edmunds-Tucker Act, or on February 28 last, President John Taylor made haste to get rid of personal property to the value of about $269,000 belonging to the Church Corporation by distributing it among the subordinate Mormon associations in the Territory. This was admitted by the defendant corporation. The admitted value of the corporation's real estate is $235,000. President Taylor also attempted to convey this property to certain persons, who were to hold it as trustees. The Government held that these conveyances were illegally made with the intention of evading the law.—N. Y. Times.

China's Population.

From China papers of recent date it appears that the authorities of Pekin have recently taken a census of the Empire, and as it was for taxing purposes the proneness to disbelieving in the large estimates must be modified accordingly. The figures returned by the village bailiffs make the population 319,383,500, which, together with the estimates of five provinces omitted, makes the aggregate about 392,000,000. There figures are independent of the population of Corea, Thibet and Kashgar. As the population of India exceeds 250,000,000, the Hindoos and Chinese constitute more than half the entire human race.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Concert.

A concert will be held on Monday evening the 14th inst., in St. Luke's Sunday School room, Ashburnham, in aid of the choir fund. All invited. Good programme. Tickets 25 cents.

A Warning to Young Men.

If a great many young men fill early graves, it is because they do not protect themselves properly from the effects of the sudden change of the weather, by going to J. J. Sheehy's for nice warm underwear.

Military Promotions.

To-day's Canada Gazette contains the following:—"57th Battalion, Peterborough Rangers, No. 4 Company, Peterborough—To be lieutenant, Second Lieutenant Hill. No 6 Company, to be captain, Lieutenant Brennan, from No. 5 Company, vice Cooper left limits."

More Thieving.

On Monday evening, says the Independent, a young man of the name of Simpson was placed before the Magistrates at Haliburton charged with stealing some blankets from a box, the property of Mr. Irwin, whilst on its way to the shanties. Simpson stated that he purchased them from a Frenchman. He was sent to Lindsay for trial.

Official Visit.

R. W. Bro. Shortly, D.D.G.M., accompanied by the District Secretary, Rev. W.C. Bradshaw, was out of town on a tour of inspection on Friday, visiting the Masonic lodges in Lindsay and Fenelon Falls. He visited the Faithful Brethren Lodge at Lindsay in the afternoon and was well pleased with the condition in which he found that lodge in. The Spry Lodge, Fenelon Falls, was inspected in the evening, and there, also, everything was satisfactory. He and Bro. Bradshaw returned to town at noon to-day, much pleased with hospitality extended to them.

An Action for Libel.

At the Lindsay Assizes a suit brought by Mr. Tom Rubidge against the Rev. Wm. Logan, of Fenelon Falls, was tried. Mr. Logan had sent a circular regarding the Trent Valley Canal and Mr. Rubidge to the Mayors of Trenton and Barrie, and on the statements it contained the action was based. Mr. Logan wrote a retraction and sent it to Mr. Rubidge's solicitors, but the case proceeded, and the jury found the defendant guilty, allowing the nominal damages of twenty cents. The verdict was entered with full costs of the court to the plaintiff.

Accidents.

To-day, while Mr. David Menzies, an employee at Messrs. Paterson & Son's tannery, was working at a roller his hand slipped in between the rolls and the bones of his arm, between the hand and the elbow, were snapped off in an instant. Fortunately he had the presence of mind to throw the machine out of gear with his foot, if he had not the machine would have torn his arm out completely. While Mr. Menzies was being taken home Dr. King was sent for to attend Mr. Menzies son Stanley, who had fallen down and broken his arm. The doctor attended the father and son at the same time.

Dramatic.

The man Farley who was brought before the court a few days ago on the charge of vagrancy was before his worship on remand to-day to give an explanation as to how he came into possession of Mr. Bennett's coat. He told how it was in a few words. He went into the yard, saw the coat in the buggy and being tired he made a pillow out of the coat and lay down. He did not intend to steal the coat. This was satisfactory. In reply to the charge of being a vagrant he held up both hands, "Look," said he dramatically (and he himself looked proudly at his toil marked thumbs and fingers), "do those show me to be a vagrant?" Magistrate succumbs and prisoner walks out of court triumphatly.

A THEATRICAL EVENT.

THE GREAT ACTRESS, M'LLE RHEA, IN A CHARMING CHARACTER.

Some Points About the Famous French Actress who will be Seen Here next Saturday.—Leaves from Her History—The Story of Pygmalion and Galatea.

The old saying "nothing succeeds like success," is more than exemplified in the instance of M'lle Rhea, the brilliant French actress, whose career in America has been one series of triumphs, her hold on the American public is easily understood; she is endowed with heavens choicest gifts, beauty and talent, and besides being a great actress, is a true, good woman, against whose name the slightest breath of scandal has never been uttered. She is an actress of undeniable genius and possesses a magnetism that is wonderful; added to her ability as an actress her worth as a pure, good woman has made her hosts of friends who have met her off the stage. She has been courted and feted by American society as no actress, American or foreign, has ever been before her. M'lle Rhea stands amid that bright, select galaxy of theatrical stars that embraces such names as Bernhardt, Modjeska, and Anderson. M'lle Rhea's great reputation has been gained solely by her ability as an actress, she has resorted to none of the sensational advertising devices used by other foreign stars to bring her name before the public. Her claim for favor is based upon her merits alone and the receptions accorded her prove that her merits are recognized and appreciated.

The appearance of this famous actress in this town should be an event for theatre goers to remember. She will on Saturday evening, November 19th, appear at the Opera House in W.S. Gilbert's mythological comedy of "Pygmalion and Galatea," in her wonderful creation of Galatea.

A representative of the REVIEW ran across Owen Ferree, M'lle. Rhea's manager to-day and enjoyed a brief conversation regarding the coming appearance of the famous actress. In reply to a question how long M'lle. Rhea had been in America, Mr. Ferree said:—

"Mlle. Rhea arrived in this country something over four years ago. She came very quietly, notwithstanding the fact that her fine reputation abroad entitled her to appear with all the preliminary puffing and flourishing of old world credentials which usually herald the debut of foreign stars. She preferred to come modestly, and in this displayed a great deal of good sense, inasmuch as her almost unannounced arrival little prepared her first audience to expect anything wonderful. Consequently their surprise and enthusiasm were all the more pronounced when they saw before them an artiste whose genius ranked her among the greatest European stars."

"Where did she make her first appearance?"

"At Rouen. There is just a tinge of romance to her life. She was a pupil in a convent near Paris, when her father, who held a high social position in Belgium, lost his fortune in a financial crisis. The young girl was withdrawn from her studies and drifted to Paris. There she met Charles Fechter, one of the finest actors the world has seen. He detected strong dramatic ability in her and advised her to study for the stage. She went to Rouen, and in that city achieved an instant and brilliant success. Then Paris wanted her, but she had previously made arrangements to go to the Imperial theatre in St. Petersburg. Her performances there were ovations, and she still possesses a magnificent set of diamonds and emeralds presented to her on her first visit to the Russian capital by the unfortunate Czar who afterwards met such a horrible death at the hands of the Nihilists."

"What play will Mlle Rhea present here?"

"The best play in her repertoire, 'Pygmalion and Galatea,' one in which she has achieved her greatest success. She is called the 'Ideal Galatea' her acting is a revelation."

Pygmalion and Galatea is sufficient of a novelty here to afford an excuse for giving its story. Pygmalion, having married Cynisca, carved a statue of Galatea, his wife being the model. As the work progresses he falls deeply in love with it. Finally it is completed, a perfect masterpiece, lacking only one thing—life. He prays the gods to bestow this attribute upon it, and his prayer is heard. As a result, the love which he felt for the statue is intensified a hundred fold when the marble has been changed to flesh and blood. Galatea returns the sculptor's passion, and Cynisca becomes deeply jealous of her strange rival. At the time of Pymgalion's marriage with Cynisca, the goddess Artemis had bestowed on each the gift of calling the curse of blindness on the other for conjugal infidelity. Of this gift Cynisca now avails herself, beseeching Artemis in a passionate appeal. The goddess replies with a flash of lighting, and Pygmalion is blind. The third act shows the sculptor about to leave his home. Galatea approaches him, and Pygmalion, thinking in his blindness that it is his wife, tells her that he never really loved Galatea, and that she is to him no more than a marble statue. Galatea shrinks under this confession, and Cynisca, who has overheard it, is crushed with grief for the infirmity which, through her jealousy, she has brought upon her husband. Again she beseeches the goddess Artemis, this time to restore Pygmalion's sight. Her prayer is heard, and the sculptor, as a proof of his love, consigns Galatea back to the stone from which she came.

This brief outline will give no idea of the brilliancy, passion and pathos of the play. The work, as everything of Gilbert's must be, is most cleverly written, flashing with wit, satire and humor. M'lle Rhea will make a special feature of this production The costumes will all be historically correct, the assessories all being made for the play. The supporting company will appear to unusual advantage. The music has been specially arranged by Mr. Jesse Williams, of New York, and the hand of the artist is seen in every character. M'lle Rhea's Galatea has received unqualified praise everywhere for its originality, its sweetness, its womanliness. She has aptly been called the ideal Galatea.

"How is M'lle Rhea's English?"

"She speaks it like a native. I am trying to get her to take out naturalization papers. But there, I am talked out. Be on hand Saturday night. Things seen, you know, are mightier than things heard. Au revoir."

TRIED FOR FORGERY.

Robert Howland Brought Before the Court.

Robt. Howland, a boy of 14 years, wept when the Magistrate read out the charge this morning preferred against him by Mr. J. J. Turner of having forged a cheque during last June.

The boy pleaded not guilty.

The MAGISTRATE—Have you anyone here to defend you?

The PRISONER—No, sir.

At the Magistrate's request Mr. J. O'Meara acted for the boy.

Mr. J. J. TURNER was sworn. He said that one day last June he went away, leaving some accounts for this boy to collect. The boy went to Mr. Geo. A. Cox—

The MAGISTRATE—You don't know whether he did or not.

Mr. TURNER—I have Mr. Cox's word for it.

The MAGISTRATE—But I can't take that kind of evidence.

Mr. TURNER—The boy presented the cheque at the bank, and—

The MAGISTRATE—That won't do. I can't take that. You will have to prove all these steps.

Mr. TURNER—Mr. Grubbe told me he presented the cheque.

The MAGISTRATE—That's merely heresay evidence. Now, tell me what you did?

Mr. TURNER said that he went to Mr. Cox and asked him for his account. Mr. Cox replied that he had given a boy a cheque for it. The witness produced Mr. Cox's cheque for the amount of the account and stated that the name endorsed on it was forged.

The MAGISTRATE adjourned the case till three o'clock this afternoon to get Mr. Grubbe's statement.

The Assizes.

The fall assizes will open at the Court House on Monday, Chief Justice Armour presiding.

RIOTING IN LONDON.

UNRULY MOBS GATHER IN TRAFALGAR SQUARE.

Encounters With the Police—The Military Called Out and Fix Bayonets—Many Persons Injured.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The proclamation of Sir Charles Warren forbidding the holding of a meeting in Trafalgar Square to-day was placarded throughout London last night. At eight o'clock this morning Trafalgar Square presented an animated appearance, owing to the continued arriving of bodies of police, small drafts having been made from every district in the metropolis. Until 1 o'clock there was no signs of a procession. At that hour groops, mainly of sightseers or roughs, began to assemble in the vicinity of the square, but a squad of Mounted Police kept traffic moving and dispersed each group as it formed.

Fierce fights took place on the Strand, Northumberland avenue, Whitehall, Pall Mall and other adjacent streets. One of the societies succeeded in entering the square, but was repulsed after a bloody fight, in which Mr. Cunningham Graham, M.P., was seriously injured. Mr. Graham was subsequently arrested for attacking the police. At 4.20 p.m. the crowd in the vicinity of the square numbered one hundred thousand.

The police were powerless to thoroughly disperse them. Cavalry and infantry were summoned to the assistance of the police, but no charge was made, as the people of their own accord began to disperse at dusk. About 200 citizens and 40 policemen were injured. Fifty persons were arrested, among them being the Socialist Burns.

Some of the injured were well enough to leave the hospital after treatment. One patient was dreadfully burned with vitriol, squirted from a syringe. Another declares that he was bayonetted in the buttock. Two policemen were stabbed with knives.

Mr. Graham and Mr. Burns tried to force their way through the police lines with an escort, and they were arrested, Mr. Graham receiving a blow on the forehead that caused blood to flow freely. At 4.15 o'clock loud cheers heralded the arrival of a cavalry force, with Colonel Talbot at its head, from Whitehall, and Magistrate Marshall prepared to read the Riot Act in case such warning should should become necessary. At five o'clock, the Grenadiers held the square, with bayonets fixed and with 20 rounds of ball cartridges in their pouches. They were accompanied by an ambulance. They halted in front of the national gallery in open lines. The mob was thus caught between the lines of police and military, and the roughs were compelled to run the gauntlet. They were hastened on their way by a shove from one policeman, a cuff from another and a kick from a third. Some of them showed a disposition to resent, but the soldiers brought their bayonets to the charge position and the sight of the cold steel quickly decided them to retreat. The officers of the Grenadiers rushed to the front and ordered the men to replace their arms and the soldiers then contented themselves with pounding with their rifles on the toes of the crowd. Boxing the ears of the turbulent roughs with vigor seemed to delight the policemen. The crowd now hooted the military. Soon after 5 o'clock the police made a series of violent charges with their batons in a determined effort to clear the vicinity, many points of which had been crowded all the afternoon. During one charge the window of an electrical shop fell with a crash. The crowd asserted that the window was broken by the hoofs of some of the policemen's horses. The police, however, assert that bricks were thrown at the window. The loafers made a rush for the contents of the window, but the police recaptured many articles and arrested the thieves. A minute later the window of a refreshment room was smashed by the pressure of the crowd. There were one or two similar cases in the course of the charges, but by six o'clock there was no fear of more trouble. At 6.30 o'clock the whole force of Life Guards again patrolled the square and finally succeeded in dispersing the crowd. Some excitement was caused at Whitehall by the victorious police marching with the captured flag and banners. The mounted police and Life Guards were now ordered in the direction of the Parliament buildings, the side streets been cordoned with constables to prevent rushes. The move cleared Whitehall and Parliament street, and the Guards with the exception of the body retained in Trafalgar square were enabled to return to their barracks by seven o'clock. Quietude was now somewhat restored, though the square was still crowed by bodies of police, which alternated with each other in order to obtain much-needed refreshments after standing in the same position ten hours. At 7.30 o'clock the remaining Life Guards returned to the barracks. Away from the central scene there were several outpost affairs.

The most serious affray occurred at four o'clock at the bottom of Wellington street. Sticks and stones were freely used by the mob and many policemen were injured. An inspector had his nose broken by a blow from a clenched fist, and the man who committed the assault and twenty others in his company were at once put under arrest. Another procession, consisting of several Radical and Socialist clubs from Clerkenwell, made its appearance at Broad street, Bloomsbury, but were forbidden to enter St. Martin's lane. The Socialist League handed their flag to a Mrs. Taylor, who refused to surrender it on the demand of the police. The latter then attempted to wrest it from her, when the Socialists came to the woman's rescue and a sharp encounter followed. The constables secured the flag.

Suffering from Cancer—His Recovery Very Uncertain.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—At last a decisive examination was made yesterday morning, which resulted in the doctors unanimously declaring that a radical cure was impossible, the only difference of opinion being as to how long the Crown Prince's life could be prolonged. He heard part of the discussion between the doctors. He showed the greatest self-possession when told that his recovery was very uncertain and retired to meet the Princess. He afterwards sent a long despatch to the Emperor, and then recalling the doctors he told them he placed himself in their hands.

NEW YORK STATE CANALS.

Large Increase Over Last Year's Traffic —The Improvement Policy.

An Albany, N. Y., despatch says:—"There has been a steady increase in the traffic of the canals this year compared with the amount of business in 1886. Last year navigation was resumed on May 1st, and this year not until one week later; notwithstanding this the tonnage this year from the date of opening up to and including the first week of November shows an increase of 239,282 tons. The total carried this year from May 7th, the date of opening, until November 8th was 4,982,563 tons, while the total carried last year from the date of opening was only 4,743,281 tons. Last year the total carried until the close of navigation was 5,293,982 tons. This leaves but 311,419 tons to be carried in order to come up to the amount carried last year, but as there are at least three weeks of canal navigation remaining it is likely that the tonnage for that period will be quite half a million tons. This remarkable increase is in a great measure due to the policy of lengthening the locks and deepening the canals, and is regarded as sufficient reason in itself why that policy should be continued.

Mr. Balfour's best powers are all shown in debate, but as a leader in the House he wants temper, experience and tact.

TRAFALGAR SQUARE MEETINGS.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A deputation of West End tradesmen waited on Mr. Matthews, Home Secretary, yesterday, and urged him to maintain the prohibition of meetings in Trafalgar Square and to afford increased protection to the tradesmen and residents of the vicinity. Mr. Matthews said the Government was most unwilling to interfere with open air meetings, but that it was convinced that no useful purpose was served by the meetings in Trafalgar Square. On the contrary, the gatherings there had been tumultuous and disorderly. He recommended that the residents in the neighborhood swear out information that the meetings are dangerous to the public peace.

A DESERVING INSTITUTION.

THE Young Men's Christian Association is attracting special attention this week on account of the services held in its rooms in connection with the week of prayer. During this week similar services are held by all the Associations throughout the world.

This Association, like many other important institutions, had a small beginning. The first one was organized in London, England, forty-three years ago through the efforts of Mr. George Williams, who was then a young man and a junior salesman in the dry goods establishment of which he is now the head. There are now 3,541 Associations, distributed throughout every continent.

Montreal had the honor of establishing, in 1851, the first Association organized in America, and Buffalo followed a few months later with the first one in the United States. There are now 1,176 Associations in Canada and the United States, with an aggregate membership of about 155,000. These Associations own property valued at, after deducting debts, $6,053,259, and 116 of them own the buildings they occupy, while a much larger number have libraries aggregating 295,000 volumes.

The local Association, though it does not yet own a building, has very good facilities for its work. It has a parlor, reading room and lecture room, and its reading-room table is supplied with magazines, newspapers, religious publications and other interesting matter. Meetings are held in the lecture room regularly, all of them except one being for young men only. It has a training class for systematic study with a view to educating workers, and the organization attends to Sunday services at Auburn, and other places at times. The reading room is open all day and till 10 o'clock in the evening. There is a boys' branch connected with it, and an employment bureau has been found a serviceable feature of the work.

This is a brief outline of the plan of work in Peterborough. Each branch is in the hands of committees, while the Secretary, whose whole time is devoted to it, supervises the whole work.

Such an organization is of great benefit. The meetings held, the invitations extended personally and otherwise to young men to attend, the advice given, the moral and religious training, all assist in maintaining and improving the moral status. One fact alone is sufficient to commend it to the support of the people—it is the only religious institution that keeps its doors open for the young men every day and evening ready to welcome and assist the stranger as well as those who reside in the town.

The association could do better work if it had more room—a building of its own, with a gymnasium and other facilities in addition to those it now possesses. This would enable it to do more in the direction of physical training, while at the same time there would be an additional attraction for young men.

These things will, no doubt, be secured, and in the meantime the Association is making good use of its opportunities. The effect on the young men of the town of maintaining this centre of moral culture must be great, and the Association should have the support, and the assistance, of all.

A WINNIPEG paper, the Skandinavisk Canadiensaren, refers to Hamilton's able morning paper as "Tigningen Spectator." The Manitoba boundary railway may deserve to be called the "Red River Valley jernvagen," but what has the Spec. done that it should be called such names?

LAST year the Toronto Mail quoted the the amount expended in building operations in Peterborough as an evidence of the prosperity of Canada. The Mail now professes to believe that the Dominion is far from prosperous, but it does not apply to the same records for evidence.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY.—With the issue of the November, 1887, number, The Century Magazine enters upon its thirty-fifth volume and begins its eighteenth year. That it will prove a year of success there can be no doubt. It has called to its pages the best writers of the day and the skill of the draughtsman and engraver will add to the attractiveness of succeeding numbers. In the number before us "The Home and Haunts of Washington," takes the initial place and is a pleasing and entertaining paper and one admirably illustrated. "Mount Vernon as it is," by Mrs. S. B. Herrick, gives a further view of the home of the Washingtons, with more illustrations. The special art feature is the sculpture of Augustus Saint Gaudens, of which several beautiful samples are reproduced. To Mr. Keyon Cox's article Mrs. Van Rensselaer adds a critical article in his statue of Lincoln for Chicago. "The Last Appeal of the Russian Liberals," by Mr. Kennan, who has studied his subject in the scenes described, is a paper of value and great interest. The Lincoln history reaches an interesting period, between the election and inauguration, and numerous portraits are given. "Sugar making in Louisana," by Eugene V. Smalley, with illustrations by Kemble, introduces interesting facts regarding that industry. "College Composites," by Prof. J. T. Stoddard, shows the results of composite photography. The conclusion of the battle series, "Grants Last Campaign," by Gen. Horace Porter, presents in text and pictures the break up of Lee's army and the surrender at Appomattox. Two serial stories, "The Graysons," a tale of Illinois life half a century ago, by Edward Eggleston, and a novelette of Acadian life, "Au Large," by George W. Cable, begin in this number. Miss Allegra Eggleston furnishes the illustrations for the one and Mr. Kemble for the other. A good short story, interesting talks on topics of the times, several open letters, poetry by well-known authors and the standard "bric-a-brac" department complete an excellent number.

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

"I am at your disposal," he answered. "Let me try if I can find out what is the matter with you."

He put his medical questions. They were promptly and plainly answered, and they led to no other conclusion than that the strange lady was, mentally and physically, in excellent health. Not satisfied with questions, he carefully examined the great organs of life. Neither his hand nor his stethoscope could discover anything that was amiss. With the admirable patience and devotion to his art which had distinguished him from the time when he was a student, he still subjected her to one test after another. The result was always the same. Not only was there no tendency to brain disease—there was not even a perceptible derangement of the nervous system. "I can find nothing the matter with you," he said. "I can't even account for the extraordinary pallor of your complexion. You completely puzzle me."

"The pallor of my complexion is nothing," she answered, a little impatiently. "In my early life I had a narrow escape from death by poisoning. I have never had a complexion since, and my skin is so delicate I cannot paint without producing a hideous rash. But that is of no importance. I wanted your opinion given positively. I believed in you, and you have disappointed me." Her head dropped on her breast. "And so it ends!" she said to herself bitterly.

The doctor's sympathies were touched. Perhaps it might be more correct to say that his professional pride was a little hurt. "It may end in the right way yet," he remarked, "if you choose to help me."

She looked up again with flashing eyes. "Speak plainly," she said. "How can I help you?"

"Plainly, madame, you come to me as an enigma, and you leave me to make the right guess by the unaided efforts of my art. My art will do much, but not all. For example, something must have occurred—something quite unconnected with the state of your bodily health—to frighten you about yourself, or you would never have come here to consult me. Is that true?"

She clasped her hands in her lap. "That is true!" she said, eagerly. "I begin to believe in you again."

"Very well. You can't expect me to find out the moral cause which has alarmed you. I can positively discover that there is no physical cause for alarm; and (unless you admit me to your confidence) I can do no more."

She rose and took a turn in the room. "Suppose I tell you!" she said. "But, mind, I shall mention no names!"

"There is no need to mention names. The facts are all I want."

"The facts are nothing," she rejoined. "I have only my own impressions to confess—and you will very likely think me a fanciful fool when you hear what they are. No matter. I will do my best to content you—I will begin with the facts that you want. Take my word for it, they won't do much to help you."

She sat down again. In the plainest possible words, she began the strangest and wildest confession that had ever reached the doctor's ears.

CHAPTER II.

"It is one fact, sir, that I am a widow," she said. "It is another fact that I'm going to be married again in a week's time."

There she paused and smiled at some thought that occurred to her. Dr. Wybrow was not favorably impressed by her smile—there was something at once sad and cruel in it. It came slowly and it went away suddenly. He began to doubt whether he had been wise in acting on his first impression. His mind reverted to the commonplace patients and the discoverable maladies that were waiting for him, with a certain tender regret.

The lady went on:

"My approaching marriage," she said, "has one embarrassing circumstance connected with it. The gentleman whose wife I am to be was engaged to another lady when he happened to meet with me, abroad—that lady, mind, being of his own blood and family, related to him as his cousin. I have innocently robbed her of her lover and destroyed her prospects in life. Innocently, I say—because he told me nothing of his engagement until after I had accepted him. When we next met in England—and when there was danger, no doubt, of the affair coming to my knowledge—he told me the truth. I was naturally indignant. He had his excuse ready. He showed me a letter from the lady herself releasing him from his engagement. A more noble, a more high minded letter I never read in my life. I cried over it—I who have no tears in me for sorrows of my own! If the letter had left him any hope of being forgiven I would have positively refused to marry him. But the firmness of it—without anger, without a word of reproach, with heartfelt wishes even for his happiness—the firmness of it, I say, left him no hope. He appealed to my compassion; he appealed to his love for me. You know what women are. I was too soft hearted. I said, 'Very well; yes!' So it ended. In a week more (I tremble as I repeat it) we are to be married."

She did really tremble—she was obliged to pause and compose herself, before she could go on. The doctor, waiting for more facts, began to fear that he stood committed to a long story.

"Forgive me for reminding you that I have suffering persons waiting to see me," he said. "The sooner you can come to the point the better for my patients and for me."

The strange smile—at once so sad and so cruel—showed itself again on the lady's lips.

"Every word I have said is to the point," she answered. "You will see it yourself in a moment more."

She resumed her narrative.

"Yesterday—you need fear no long story, sir; only yesterday—I was among the visitors at one of your English luncheon parties. A lady, a perfect stranger to me, came in late—after we had left the table, and had retired to the drawing room. She happened to take a chair near me; and we were presented to each other. I knew her by name, as she knew me. It was the woman whom I had robbed of her lover, the woman who had written the noble letter. Now listen!—you were impatient with me for not interesting you in what I said just now. I said it to satisfy your mind that I had no enmity of feeling toward the lady, on my side. I admired her, I felt for her—I had no cause to reproach myself. This is very important, as you will presently see. On her side, I have reason to be assured that the circumstances had been truly explained to her, and that she understood I was in no way to blame. Now, knowing all these necessary things as you do, explain to me, if you can, why, when I rose and met that woman's eyes looking at me, I turned cold from head to foot, and shuddered, and shivered, and knew what a deadly panic fear was, for the first time in my life."

The doctor began to feel interested at last.

"Was there anything remarkable in the lady's personal appearance?" he asked.

"Nothing whatever!" was the vehement reply. "Here is the true description of her: The ordinary English lady; the clear cold blue eyes, the fine rosy complexion, the inanimately polite manner, the large good humored mouth, the too plump cheeks and chin; these, and nothing more."

"Was there anything in her expression, when you first looked at her, that took you by surprise?"

"There was natural curiosity to see the woman who had been preferred to her; and perhaps some astonishment also, not to see a more engaging and more beautiful person; both those feelings restrained within the limits of good breeding, and both not lasting for more than a few moments—so far as I could see. I say, 'so far,' because the horrible agitation that she communicated to me disturbed my judgment. If I could have got to the door I would have run out of the room, she frightened me so! I was not even able to stand up—I sunk back in my chair; I stared horror struck at the calm blue eyes that were only looking at me with a gentle surprise. To say they affected me like the eyes of a serpent is to say nothing. I felt her soul in them, looking into mine—looking, if such a thing can be, unconsciously to her own mortal self. I tell you my impression, in all its horror and in all its folly! That woman is destined (without knowing it herself) to be the evil genius of my life. Her innocent eyes saw hidden capabilities of my wickedness in me that I was not aware of myself, until I felt them stirring under her look. If I commit faults in my life to come—if I am even guilty of crimes—she will bring the retribution, without (as I firmly believe) any conscious exercise of her own will. In one indescribable moment I felt all this—and I suppose my face showed it. The good, artless creature was inspired by a sort of gentle alarm for me. 'I am afraid that the heat of the room is too much for you; will you try my smelling bottle?' I heard her say those kind words; and I remember nothing else—I fainted. When I recovered my senses the company had gone; only the lady of the house was with me. For the moment I could say nothing to her; the dreadful impression that I have tried to describe to you came back to me with the coming back of my life. As soon as I could speak I implored her to tell me the whole truth about the woman I had supplanted. You see, I had a faint hope that her good character might not really be deserved, that her noble letter was a skillful piece of hypocrisy—in short, that she secretly hated me and was cunning enough to hide it. No! the lady had been her friend from her girlhood, was as familiar with her as if they had been sisters—knew her positively to be as good, as innocent, as incapable of hating anybody, as the greatest saint that ever lived. My one last hope, that I had only felt an ordinary forewarning of danger in the presence of an ordinary enemy, was a hope destroyed forever. There was one more effort I could make, and I made it. I went next to the man whom I am to marry. I implored him to release me from my promise. He refused. I declared I would break my engagement. He showed me letters from his sisters, letters from his brothers and his dear friends—all entreating him to think again before he made me his wife; all repeating reports of me in Paris, Vienna and London, which are so many vile lies. 'If you refuse to marry me,' he said, 'you admit that these reports are true—you admit that you are afraid to face society in the character of my wife.' What could I answer? There was no contradicting him—he was plainly right; if I persisted in my refusal, the utter destruction of my reputation would be the result. I consented to let the wedding take place as we had arranged it—and left him. The night has passed. I am here, with my fixed conviction—that innocent woman is ordained to have a fatal influence over my life. I am here with my one question to put, to the one man who can answer it. For the last time, sir, what am I—a demon who has seen the avenging angel? or only a poor mad woman, misled by the delusion of a deranged mind?"

To be continued.

A single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will establish the merits of this medicine as a blood purifier. Many thousands of people are yearly cured of chronic diseases by the faithful use of this remedy. It is unequalled for the cure of scrofula.

Sauerkraut as an Explosive.

It may not be generally known that sauerkraut is a dangerous explosive. A Philadelphia krautmaker, who is cutting up 5,000 cabbages a day and probably knows what he is talking about, says:—"If a cask of kraut is sealed when too fresh there is sure to be trouble. A cask of gunpowder is hardly more dangerous than a tightly-corked barrel of fresh sauerkraut. As the stuff ferments it swells, and if vent is not furnished there is an explosion that shakes the foundation of store and frightens the life half out of the storekeeper, while the neighbors raise a cry of a dynamite plot. Seriously, sauerkraut is a dangerous article to handle. If I were a fiery Anarchist I would be inclined to adopt it as an instrument of destruction."—Rochester Democrat

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

"That they all may be one!"—that mother and daughters,
Tenderly link'd like the Graces in love,
Girdling the globe, over lands, over waters,
May be united, beneath and above;
Here, on this orb's upper hemisphere olden,
There, on that younger half circle beneath,
Everywhere shall one sweet union enfolden
England's fair scions in olive-twined wreath.

All to be one! What a blest federation,
Britain, Imperial Queen of the World!
Seal'd as one heart, one life, and one nation,
Under one cross, one standard unfurl'd,
Owning one law of religion and reason,
Speaking one language, and rich in its wealth;
Proud of the past, and the bright present season,
And the grand future of hope and of health.

So may the whole world's glorious communion,
Nature and Science and Commerce rejoice,
Growing together in one happy union,
Filling the welkin with gratitude's voice—
Canada, Africa, Zealand, Australia;
India, continent, isles of the sea,
Adding your jewels to Britain's regalia,
One with Old England, the home of the free!

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

Mantles, Mantles.

Childrens Mantles from 75 cents up. Also a large assortment of Ladies' Dolmans, Mantles and Ulsters. Having a large stock which must be sold, prices will be found very close. H. S. GRIFFIN & Co. d117-9

I. O. O. F. Entertainment.

The members of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F., are making preparations for an entertainment about the 9th of December, on the occasion of the completion of the enlargement and improvement of the handsome suite of rooms forming the lodge premises.

J. S. Murphy.

The Boston Journal says:—"The popularity of Mr. J. S. Murphy and 'Kerry Gow' were sufficiently attested when, upon the re-opening of the Howard, the actor and the play drew an overflowing house. Mr. Murphy's personation of Dan O'Hara is a clever bit of Irish acting, and he has the support of a very good company. The part of Nora Drew falls to the lot of Miss Virginia Marlowe."

Committed.

The boy Robt. Howland was again before the Court on Saturday afternoon. The evidence of Mr. R. W. Grubbe, teller in the Bank of Toronto, was taken. He testified that on the date mentioned the prisoner came to him with a cheque. He told the boy that the cheque would have to have Mr. Turner's signature. The boy took it away and returned with it as it was now and got it cashed. The Magistrate committed the prisoner for trial. The case will be brought before the Assize Court.

Teachers' Convention.

In accordance with an arrangement made some time ago a preliminary meeeting of the teachers in the Norwood district was held in Norwood on Saturday. Mr. D. Spence occupied the chair. Mr. A. Stewart, of Warsaw, gave an address on "Reading" dealing with the subject in an interesting manner. After this a considerable amount of informal business was done and arrangements were made as to subjects to be discussed at the next meeting. It is the intention of the Teachers' Association of the county to have these conventions held once every three months in various localities throughout the county. Mr. Jas. Coyle Brown, the Inspector, will be present at as many of them as his time will admit of.

Church Notes.

St. Peter's Cathedral was heated for the first time on Sunday by the new steam heating aparatus put in by Messrs. McAndrew & Noble. The heat is supplied by a steel, low pressure boiler, and is conveyed through the building by three inch and one inch pipes. There is now six thousand feet of pipe in and there is yet five hundred feet of three inch pipe to go in. In the nave of the church the pipes run in a straight line, but the transepts and sacristy are heated by box coils. The Cathedral was very comfortable on Sunday, though the steam was put on just an hour before the first service. In three hours after steam is put on the building can be made radiant with warmth. The cost of the apparatus complete was $2,000.

St. Luke's Church was filled at both the ordinary services on Sunday. Hearty congregational singing is becoming a feature of the services.

Concert.

A concert will be held on Monday evening the 14th inst., in St. Luke's Sunday School room, Ashburnham, in aid of the choir fund. All invited. Good programme. Tickets 25 cents.

Assize Court.

It was expected that the Fall Assizes would open at the Court House at 1 o'clock this afternoon, but Chief Justice Armour telegraphed from Cobourg that he will not be here till five o'clock this evening. The court will open at nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Douro Gas Well.

The well on the farm of Mr. D. Forsyth, Douro, is still emitting gas. When lighted it burns quite brightly. Mr. Forsyth has not yet carried out his idea of running a line of pipe from the well to his house for the purpose of lighting his house with gas, but if the gas continues in good supply he will do so. He is now negotiating for the sinking of the well several hundred feet lower. Mr. Forsyth is evidently determined to get to the "bottom" of it.

When our Fathers were Boys.

It is proposed to have, on some date to be arranged for, a re-union of pupils who attended the Peterborough Grammar School at the time when that institution was under the principalship of the late Rev. Dr. R. J. C. Taylor. Rev. Dr. Taylor came to Peterborough as rector of St. John's Church and afterwards took charge of the Grammar School. Under his direction and advice many of the professional and business men of the town and county received educational training, and, while the proposed re-union has not been advanced in any definite shape, it is understood that among matters to be considered would be the proposition to remove to a suitable place of sepulchre the remains—now interred in the old burying ground (Central Park)—of Rev. Dr. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor and to erect a monument to mark their resting place.

Personal.

Mr. D. Smart leaves town Tuesday on a trip to points in Southern California, and proposes to spend some time at Los Angelos and Santa Fee, points even further south. The object of the trip is improvement of health, which it is hoped will follow. Mr. Smart will return—assuming that he does not yield to the attractions of the country and set up as a fruit grower or a silver miner—by way of San Francisco, being absent about two months.

Messrs. B. B. Osler and Geo. T. Blackstock Toronto, are registered at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Geo. T. Cairns, Smith Falls, and the Rev. Jas. Craig, Stouffville, are registered at the Grand Central Hotel.

Mr. T. A. Colebeck, B. A., of Ridgetown the man appointed by the Board of Education at its last meeting to take charge of the Classical Department at the Collegiate Institute, will probably assume his duties at the beginning of next week.

Manufacturing Notes.

—After making some necessary repairs to the flume at the Blythe Mills the water will be let on and the mill started. Particulars are not at hand of several improvements made throughout the mill and machinery added, but which will be the subject of comment further on.

—Within the last month considerable improvements have been made in the equipment and plant at the Auburn Woollen Mills. To keep the output and quality of goods turned out and up to the mark and to meet the demand for lines of cloths ten new Crompton looms have been added, replacing machinery formerly in use. The looms are of the latest improved build and will work on lines of new tweeds and fancy cashmeres, having an increased capacity over the old looms of from 150 to 200 yards per day. Several sets of new cards have been added and new machines placed in the picking room. General attention has been given to the departments and improvements added that will tend to keep the mill well in the van and strenthen the hold on the market which the goods turned out have already acquired.

—The "Wilson" mill, on Hunter street, near the bridge, has passed into new hands and will, as soon as placed in condition be started up. Messrs. Robt. Mann and H. Kemp, both experienced men in the manufacture of woollen goods take the mill and will at once engage in manufacturing. Mr. Mann has for some years been employed at the Auburn Mills as foreman of the finishing department and is well up in the details of the trade. Mr. Kemp has been engaged as overseer of the Blythe Woollen Mills where he has done excellent work and handled the mill to advantage. The Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Works are putting in the necessary shafting &c. in the "Wilson' mill and expect to have the work completed in time to start the machinery early next month, when the manufacture of several special lines of woollens will be at once commenced. The new firm are pushing, experienced men and will no doubt add to the roll of young business firms who are building up the town and district.

A Bargain in Hosiery.

A great job line of Woollen Hosiery just received. This is the greatest bargain in Hosiery we ever had to offer. A complete range of sizes in Ladies' and Children's. Now is the time to get a winter supply. H. S. GRIFFIN & Co. 3d113

CANDIES.

Eleven Boys Pay $1.40 Each for Stolen Sweets.

The boys are making a dead set on sweets wherever they can lay their hands on them. On Saturday there was a crowd of boys before the Police Court charged with stealing cake and preserves, and this morning another crowd were up charged with stealing candies out of a car on the night of Saturday, November 5th.

A class of eleven boys, P. Waghorn, E. Waghorn, Geo. Martin, W. Weese, Bryden Weese, H. Martin, H. Sabin, T. Sabin, Geo. Bennett, H. Robinson and James Bell, stood up before His Worship at ten o'clock. They did not attempt to reserve the truth. They had seen a car partly open in the Grand Trunk Railway yard and had got into it. They saw a pail. One boy ripped the top off and they all took candies out of it. They smiled when they talked about taking the candies.

The MAGISTRATE questioned them a while on the immorality of their conduct, but did not appear to make a very deep impression. He then said that it would not be for the good of the community nor for their good to let them off. If they were allowed to go on they would become regular thelves. He added severely; "If you were a little older I would send every one of you to goal to be fed on bred and water, as it is I will fine you $1 each and 40 cents to cover damages. You will be kept in the lock up until the fines are paid."

A lugubrious wave swept from one end of the class to the other, and a sudden, sniffel now and then broke the stillness of the court. One little fellow with sore eyes and a red necktie shed tears copiously. Their sorrow did ceasehere for the mammas of some of the boys leaned over the rail and whispered to their offspring that they had foretold what would become of their bad boys.

Champions of the boys appeared in due time and the fines were all paid off.

Mr. D. Spence, Grand Trunk detective, conducted the case for the prosecution.

Local Brevities.

—Mr. J. C. Sullivan has removed from Elizabeth street, Ashburnham, to his fine new residence on Robinson street. It has a pleasant situation, commanding a view of the village and Peterborough.

—Association Notes, published by the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association, has been enlarged, and now contains eight pages. This gives more space for Association news and announcements and also for appropriate selections.

—Mr. T. C. Wilde, of Havelock, relates that a brother of his carried out to Dakota one pound of black barley seed. This was two years ago. The seed was planted and carefully gathered. The result of the second crop—just harvested—gave over thirty bushels of barley as the return from the one pound of seed.

Presence of Mind.

"The wedding which we announced last week would take place at the residence of Judge Plunkett," says an Idaho paper in its society column, "came very near being marred by an awkward occurrence. It happened thus:—The bride, Miss Duckie Plunkett, and her intended, Mr. Frank R. Ellsworth, the enterprising young rancher of Pizen Point, had taken their places under a large floral six-shooter, and the Rev. Pendersnort was beginning the simple but impressive ceremony when the proceedings were suddenly interrupted by the unexpected arrival of the efficient Pizen Point vigilance committee, which promptly lynched the groom to a large tree in front of the house on the judges well-kept lawn for being implicated in some horse-stealing operation at the Point. Everyone, of course, supposed that this would break up the wedding, and regrets were being expressed on all sides when Miss Duckie, with rare presence of mind and commendable courage stepped forward and announced her intention of marrying the Rev. Pendersnort himself. This was received with shouts of enthusiasm by the assembled friends, and the ceremony was performed by Justice Woolly, who happened to be present. Thus it will be seen that the decision and promptness of the young lady avoided a very unpleasant termination of the leading social event of the week."—Chicago Tribune.

ATMOSPHERE OF ALASKA.

Dense Growth of Vegetation—An Almost Incredible Statement.

Lieut. Schwatka, in making the inland passage to Alaska, at one point went ashore among the wilds of the Alexander archipelago, and he describes the vegetation which he encountered as being most rank and luxuriant.

At the feet of the evergreens clothing the land grew a dense mass of tangled bushes and vines, and at the roots of these was a solid carpeting of mosses, lichens and ferns, which often run up the trees to a height greater than a man's reach.

All this dense growth is as moist as a sponge. The thick carpeting of moss extends from the shore to the edges of the glaciers on the mountain summits, and the constant melting of ice through the warm summer keeps it saturated with water. The air is burdened with moisture, and everything is, like Mr. Mantalini's proposed body, "moist and unpleasant."

It is almost impossible to realize the dampness of this region without having experienced it. Water drips from overhead like an April mist and oozes up beneath the foot as one walks.

As an example of the luxuriance of the vegetation, take the Indian's "totem poles," which, although they are dead timbers standing on end near the native houses, bear huge clumps of dripping moss and foliage at heights varying from ten to thirty feet from the ground.

It will be well to explain, in passing, that these totem poles are covered with very curious carvings, and although no one is at all sure of their significance, it is probable that they represent genealogies or tribal histories of the Indians.

It often happens that the seed of a Sitka spruce becomes lodged in the tangle of moss resting upon a totem pole, and there germinates. Its roots crawl down the pole, and, having reached the earth, find additional sustenance there, which they send to the branches flourishing above, and which have thus far been nourished by the juices furnished by the moss.

Imagine a city boy tossing a walnut from his window, so that it lodges upon a telegraph pole, sprouts there, sends down its roots to the earth, and waxes into such a tall tree that the boy can lean from his window and pick walnuts from it every autumn!

That idea is incredible, and yet its equivalent often happens in southeastern Alaska.—Youth's Companion.

How Men Buy Overcoats.

A salesman in a State street store says that the overcoat season is the worst in the year. "Men are worse than women when it comes to buying overcoats." By which he meant that men are more particular in that kind of shopping than women are in theirs. "A man," he continued, "never knows what sort of an overcoat he wants. If his strength lasts him he will try on every overcoat in the house. It is vain to reason with him. I have been in the business fifteen years, and I can't make a customer believe that I tell the truth when it comes to selling overcoats. I have watched the perversity of customers in this respect and it is my observation that nine men out of ten who come in and buy will never take the coat you recommend. Six men out of eight who come in and pull and haul at every coat will go and buy elsewhere. I have heard it said that a man ought to be a good judge of human nature to be a successful salesman. There is no rule that will apply to such customers as I have been talking about. I knew an old man once for several seasons. He always came in, and was just as much troubled the last time as the first. I asked him why it was. He said he always felt mean when he came to buy an overcoat, for he knew that an overcoat was a pawnbroker's delight. He never pawned one himself, but he couldn't rid his mind of the notion."—Chicago Mail.

A Choice of Terms.

Dr. M—— is a very enthusiastic surgeon and delights in cutting up the defunct in the cause of his profession. He was lately called upon to attend a case at St. Mary's hospital. A poor fellow had his face filled with bird shot and one arm nearly taken off. The doctor had come directly from the dissecting room and his head was full of his work there. Walking into the ward with both hands in his pockets, as was his way, he approached the bed.

"Is this the subject?" he asked briefly.

"No, doctor," the poor fellow answered, "I'm not a subject yet; I'm only an object," and he smiled comically.

The doctor nodded grimly (he likes a joke, even at his own expense), but he gave an extra touch to his professional care for the witty patient.—Detroit Free Press.

Consumption of Sugar.

Statistics show that the consumption of sugar in the last fifty years has gone up from about fifteen to seventy pounds per head; of tea from one and one-quarter to four and three-quarter pounds per head; of tobacco from eighty-six hundredths to one and forty hundredths pounds per head, and so on.—Chicago News.

LOOKING TO ENGLAND.

The Continental Combinations Wanting Her Aid.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Nothing comes out more clearly from what is known of the diplomatic activity of the last twelve months than the change which has taken place in the relation of most of the powers to Great Britain. Every power just now appears anxious to be on good terms with England. No one who is acquainted with the ways of diplomacy will believe that this change of front on the part of the powers is accidental or that it is the result of sentimental regard. The explanation is as simple as the state of things it reveals is significant. The powers have been measuring one another's strength with a view to possible troubles. The groups into which they fall are so nearly balanced that both sides look around for an additional weight in their own state, and it has become evident to both that England, in spite of the weak points in her military organization, is able to make the beam point in whichever direction she may take. All the powers of course profess to be anxious above all things for peace. But whether they will be willing to avoid courses that must inevitably lead to a breach of the peace, depends to some extent upon their opinion of what the policy of Great Britain will be.

It is as true now as when Lord Derby said it, that "the greatest of British interests is peace," and the doctrine is one which commands the assent of all parties in the country. There is not, however, entire unanimity with regard to the policy which will best conduce to the preservation of peace in Europe. But opinion is more and more tending to recognize that the central powers have no aggressive aims, and that English sympathy and English interests alike dictate a policy of friendship and support to Germany, Austria and Italy.

The relations of the powers of Great Britain furnishes the clearest evidence that the peace of Europe at present rests upon no solid foundation. The apprehensions too clearly underlie the pacific utterances of statesmen indicate that a conflict in which several of the great powers will be involved is regarded as almost inevitable. A future historian, freed from the feelings without which a contemporary cannot regard the armed truce that now exists, will no doubt be able to show that this age of militarism was a necessity in the growth of the European community and to point to some underlying cause of unrest in the organization of the commonwealth of civilized nations.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Accounts of the German Crown Prince's Condition Confused.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—A despatch from San Remo says the Crown Prince is in no immediate danger.

VIENNA, Nov. 14.—Dr. Schroetter yesterday declared that the press accounts of the German Crown Prince's condition were confused mixtures of false and true. He said he was bound to silence with regard to the medical consultations.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Standard's correspondent at San Remo says:—Dr. Mackenzie expects on his return to find the swelling sufficiently reduced to allow him to extract a portion of the new growth through the mouth with forceps. The portion extracted will be submitted to Prof. Virchow for microscopical examination. The Crown Prince will stay here all winter. The Crown Princess, who is well, attended church yesterday with her daughters. Dr. Mackenzie has received several anonymous threatening letters. Dr. Mackenzie is of the opinion that German doctors are too much inclined to drastic measures and the use of the knife on the "kill or cure" principle.

THE BOUNDARY RAILWAY.

The Manitoba Court Decides Against the Red River Valley.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14.—Judge Killam delivered judgment on Saturday in the injunction case of the Minister of Justice against Mr. Ryan and the Red River Valley road. He holds that the Red River Railway Act, under which the road was built, does not exist, as it has been disallowed and that the defendants have no right whatever to appropriate these lands for the railway under the public works act; establishes the jurisdiction of our courts to deal with such a case, and affirms that the title of the Dominion Government to the lands set out is perfectly good.

MURDERED FOR NINE DOLLARS.

A Blacksmith Attacked by Three Men, Beaten to Death and Robbed.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 14.—As Thomas Hatherley, blacksmith, a resident of Middlemarch, near Fingal, was driving home from St. Thomas on Saturday he passed three strangers, who hailed him and asked for a ride, and soon after taking them in they turned the horses' heads towards the ditch, upsetting the waggon and throwing Mr. Hatherly upon the ground and jumping upon him, commenced to beat him with sticks and stones and undoubtedly have murdered him on the spot but for the approach of a farmer named Howard. Upon seeing Howard the robbers tore open his clothes and snatched what money they could find upon their victim's person and ran. Hatherley was taken to his home bleeding and insensible, and after terrible suffering died at five o'clock this morning. The murderers succeeded in getting about $3, but overlooked $60 which Hatherley had in an inside pocket. Three tramps, supposed to be the murderers, have been arrested and lodged in St. Thomas gaol.

Importation of Military Supplies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—An order-in-council has been passed with reference to the importation of militia supplies and sent to collectors of customs. It provides that the Minister of Customs may remit or refund to military tailors and others importing military clothing or materials therefor, arms or accoutrements for the use of the militia of Canada or of officers thereof, the customs duty actually paid thereon, on the production of satisfactory evidence of the importation thereof, and of the exact amount of duty paid thereon, on the production of a certificate from the Minister or Deputy Minister of Militia that the articles were actually imported for the militia and could not be used for other purposes. The order also provides, under certain regulations, for the free entry of such articles imported by a militia officer for his own use or that of his corps, and of musical instruments for bands, provided the instruments are the property of the corps and not of the individual members of the band.

How the Old Egyptians Worked.

Arnaudeau publishes in The Revue Scientifique an essay upon the question how the ancient Egyptians managed to transport and lift the immense rocks found on top of temples and how they raised their obelisks. He thinks they took advantage of the rise of the Nile. Clothing a block with as much wood as was necessary to raise it a little from the ground they pushed it forward to where they wanted it to lie and held it in position while they removed the wood, which left it in the exact place it was to occupy. An obelisk was lifted horizontally and pushed to where they wanted to erect it. There they took wood away from the base and fastened it to the top, which caused the foot to sink and the top to rise.—Chicago Herald.

The Grand Duke's Philopena.

The Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, who has lately been slopping over with venom against Germany, was last year at a dinner party the neighbour of the celebrated artist, Rosa Bonheur, and as he happened to find two almonds in the same shell he became indebted to her a philopena. Asked what it should be, Rosa Bonheur chose an animal tame enough to be used in her studio as a model. She had forgotten all about the matter, when last month three young white bears were presented to her by the Grand Duke. They are specially trained, and will form the ornament of the little zoological garden the artist has gathered together at her villa at Fontainebleau.—N. Y. Tribune.

Salvation Army Attacked.

QUEBEC, Nov. 14.—The Salvation Army was yesterday attacked by a gang of rowdies while marching through St. Valier street. Stones flew freely, and several people were injured. The members of the Army rushed up Palace Hill, followed by their pursuers, who were checked opposite Arsenal street, however, by a crowd of sympathizers with the Army. Reinforced by a number of young men who did their best to manfully resent the cowardice of the attack, most of the attacking party retired to St. Roch's, but one was recognized on St. John street, and would have been roughly handled had he not retreated into Julien's oyster saloon.

Low Water in the Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—Mr. E. Moore, of the extensive lumbering firm run in that name, says that in the history of lumbering in the Ottawa Valley the water on main river and tributaries had never been so low and serious loss must follow unless there are heavy falls of rain within a few weeks, which is improbable. As the streams are at present it is impossible to get logs and timber floated down the stream, and several heavy contracts for cut lumber, it is believed, will have to be cancelled with American firms.

Indescriminate Shooting.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—A tragedy was attempted in Joe Beef's well-know canteen to-night. Two men under the influence of liquor commenced to shoot promiscuously on the people in the bar. One man named Canavan was shot between the lungs and heart. Another called Woods was shot in the temple, and one Henry Irving was shot in the left eye. All are in the General Hospital. Canavan is in a most dangerous condition. The police are searching the city for the miscreants.

A Legal Warfare.

Augusta is said to have 27 suits for false imprisonment on its hands, brought by members of the Salvation Army. In one case the damages are put at several thousand dollars, it being alleged that death resulted from imprisonment. It is said that if these suits are successful others will be brought in different parts of Maine, the number being set at over 200.—Portland Press.

A Big Reward for a Rabbit Killer.

A reward of £25,000 has been offered by the Australian Government for an effectual method of exterminating the rabbits, and the Minister of Mines has given instructions that the offer should be extensively advertised in the leading English, American and Continental journals.—Ex.

MIDLAND DISTRICT NOTES.

Interesting Items Condensed from Columns of Exchanges.

Barrie has decided to aid the Barrie Implement Manufacturing Company by loaning $25,000 at 5 per cent. for ten years, taking a mortgage on the property of the company.

The Rev. Wm. Logan, of Fenelon Falls, has a Bible that was printed in 1690, and is 197 years old. The borders of each page are hand ruled with red ink.

John Schell, jr., while deer hunting at Bass Lake, capsized his canoe, lost a Winchester rifle and was almost exhausted when help came.

D. J. Smith, of Grass Hill, Victoria County, while returning home at night, fell over a plough, breaking his arm and causing other injuries.

Mr. Thomas Sweeney, of Sydney, one day recently found a two year old heifer dead in the field and on cutting the carcass up he found a long steel needle piercing the heifer's heart.

A team of horses belonging to G. Gray, of Dunsford, became frightened at an obstruction placed on the road on Hallow-E'en and bolted. Miss Cowan was thrown out and her face was severely cut and bruised.

Over a hundred ratepayers have presented a requisition to the Reeve of Eldon, asking him to call a public meeting to consider the financial condition of the municipality, and other matters.

Bucknell, the Cobourg young man accused of incendiarism in connection with the burning of Spence & Kulhman's planing mill last month, was discharged at the county assizes, there being not sufficient evidence for a conviction.

Mr. Alex. Preston, of Manvers, has purchased the M. Guiry farm, east of Lindsay, adjoining the corporation, 100 acres, for $7,000. It is an excellent farm, and as Mr. Preston is an energetic and progressive farmer no doubt he will show that farming pays.

While Mr. W. H. Ives, builder, Colborne, was engaged roofing the new addition to the registry office in that village, the fireproof arch fell in, carrying Mr. Ives with it, completely burying him. He was taken out in a badly cut and bruised condition.

On Saturday afternoon a horse and buggy belonging to Gilbert Bedell, of Sidney, was stolen from a hotel yard in Belleville, and an overcoat was taken from the hotel. The horse was a chestnut in color, eight years old, about 15½ hands high, with a white stripe in its face. The piano box buggy had a leather top, with three springs and a piece of the scroll work on the back was broken off.

Raising the Early Broilers.

The most essential thing with young chicks is warmth. Broilers bring good prices when they reach the market early, and no one can afford to lose them. In winter the young chickens require much attention, but it is the extra care required that renders them salable at good prices and whoever expects to make broilers profitable must not neglect them. The hen must be kept in a dry, warm place, and must not be allowed to roam with her brood at this season. She must be so situated that every chicken can go under her wings whenever it desires, as a few minutes' exposure to severe cold will surely prove fatal, sooner or later.

Never feed chicks during the first 24 hours after hatching, as the food simply taxes the digestive organs, and gives no benefit; as nature makes provision for it. Even thirty-six hours is not too long a fast. Then crumble a hard boiled egg with coarsely ground oatmeal. Feed this for only one day, as the eggs cause bowel disease, if continued. When the chick is two or three days old, it may receive bread soaked in milk, cold rice that has been cooked, finely chopped meat, chopped onions, and a regular food composed of equal parts of ground oats, corn meal, and shorts, with a little salt as seasoning; the mixture to be cooked and crumbled for them. Do not attempt to raise chicks on corn meal, either cooked or raw, as they will not thrive upon it alone, unless with other food. The young of all birds feather very rapidly from the start, and the chickens is no exception; but as the parent birds are given animal or insect food the chickens should have a share also, at least three or four times a week, as well as being fed otherwise four times daily. Screenings, fine gravel, ground shells, and bone meal should be kept within their reach all the time, and as soon as wheat can be eaten it should be substituted for the screenings. As dampness is fatal to chickens, the drinking water must be so given that the chicken can get no portion of its body wet, and it should be kept growing from the start.—American Agriculturist for November.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The executive of the Radical Federation held a meeting last night and resolved to hold a meeting of delegates on Wednesday evening at the London Patriotic Club to decide upon measures for repeating the attempt to hold a public meeting on Sunday next.

FIRE IN BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 14.—The Ministry of Agriculture buildings caught fire during the night and was destroyed. The Chamber of Deputies and the Ministry of Finance buildings were with great difficulty saved. The loss is great. Chevalier de Moreau, the Minister of Agriculture, and his wife and family, who dwelt in the burned building, had to fly for their lives.

AYOUB KHAN'S SUBMISSION.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—It is reported from Sarrakhs that Ayoub Khan who, Lord Salisbury announced, had submitted to the British, had 300 followers, but gave in his submission, trusting to the Queen's mercy, and because he was angry with Russia for refusing to supply him with arms and troops.

A LIBERAL CLUB'S DEFICIT.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 14.—The Liberal club, which was opened a decade ago by Mr. John Bright, has issued a circular to members notifying them of a deficit of six thousand pounds in its finances, and proposing to levy an assessment of ten pounds each upon the members to cover it. The prosperous condition of the club suffered through the Liberal split.

Lotta and the Dressmakers.

Just now I am at the mercy of dressmakers, and they are in the aggregate the trials of a mind. Of course there are some who are mistress of their business, but as a rule they are poor failures. I can't understand it, either. If a woman has to make a living as a dressmaker why doesn't she put her pride in her work and conquer it? A sleeve, it seems to me, is a little thing to make, but out of six modistes five will put it in a dress wrong. Ah! well, poor women, they are the victims of the age in which they live. The time will come when women will roll up their sleeves and go to work, heart, hand and soul, not only to get a living out of it, but to dignify it. We Americans like to preach about the freedom of our people and country, but for all that caste is as distinctly defined as in far away Hindostan, and there is no such thing as equality. A shop girl may be just as good as a retied daughter, but society prefers the pet every time.—Chicago Mail Interview.

Sleeping with Windows Open.

Here is what Professor Virchow says anent the sleeping with open windows: "The vitiated air can only rush out when the temperature inside differs from that outside; it remains stationary when the air inside is already of equal temperature with that outside. In that case serious complications may be the consequence, and many persons have paid their mistaken notion with their life. Moreover, a certain ventilation takes place even with closed windows, namely, through the walls, thick though they be, provided they be otherwise well dried."—Paris American Register

BYE-ELECTIONS.

THE result of the election in Haldimand on Saturday is very satisfactory to those who believe in Conservative principles and policy. For many years that constituency was considered as certain to elect a Reformer and the Conservatives were charged with "hiving" the opponents there. The Reform majority, however, has been dwindling away, as is shown by the following table, giving the results of the elections in the constituency since 1874:—

| | Ref. | Con. | Ref. maj. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1875 | Acc. | ..... | ..... |
| 1878 | 1,566 | 1,400 | 166 |
| 1882 | 1,490 | 1,364 | 126 |
| 1886 | 1,876 | 1,765 | 111 |
| 1887 | 1,746 | 1,746 | 0 |

On Saturday Dr. Montague, Conservative, was elected by a majority of 17.

The Reform candidate had the assistance of several of the foremost men of his party. Mr. Laurier, the leader, Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Paterson, Mr. Charlton and others addressed meetings in the riding, but they were unsuccessful in their efforts to hold the constituency for the party.

Commercial Union was brought prominently forward by Reform speakers. Mr. Laurier, who it seems has not yet decided what course to pursue regarding that question, did not advocate it, but Sir Richard, Mr. Charlton and Mr. Paterson enlarged on the benefits they believed Commercial Union would bring. Haldimand is a border county on the shore of Lake Erie, and if any county would be benefitted by the proposed scheme it would, yet Haldimand has even reversed its old political preferences to pronounce against Commercial Union.

This was the tenth bye-election since the general election last February. Of these the Reform party has carried one and the Conservatives nine. South Renfrew and Charlevoix had elected Opposition candidates in February, but returned Conservatives in the bye-elections, while the Reform party has not made a gain. The bye-elections show that the Macdonald Administration is increasing in popular favor.

THE London Advertiser finds it necessary to lecture "Some of our Reform newspapers who have recently engaged in the discussion of the Reform leadership as though the position was vacant." It is not in one Province alone that Reform organs have shown dissatisfaction with Mr. Laurier's leadership, for in Quebec Province and in Ontario they have spoken out. Mr. Laurier should shoulder that famous musket and go on a still hunt after those papers "who" have been so disrespectful.

THE Lindsay Post suggests that Mr. Hudspeth, M. P. for South Victoria, should be raised to the bench. Mr. Hudspeth would adorn the bench, but the Post should not have exposed its purpose so plainly by proceeding to show that the appointment would open the constituency. It should not cherish the vain hope that South Victoria would return an opponent of the Government.

ANOTHER Reform journal, the Hamilton Times, is displeased with the Quebec conference platform. It is dissatisfied with the scheme for Provincial subsidies. Mr. Mowat may come to the conclusion that he made a mistake in attending the festivities at the old capital.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

BRISK BUSINESS.—On Sunday business was brisk on the C.P.R., no less than eleven freight trains passing through here, the most of them being specials.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Shortly after eight o'clock on Sunday night, brakeman D. Menzies met with a painful accident near the Norwood station. He had his hand jammed between the couplings of two cars and the engine not being attached to them at the time, he had to endure the pain until enough men arrived on the scene to shove the cars apart. He came to Dr. Ford's office and had it dressed and found to his astonishment that no bones were broken. He got off very safely.

Climatic Influence on Cheese.

While quality is conferred upon cheese by care and skill in making, and by its contents of fat, there are some other causes for the variation in quality. Soil and climate have something to do with quality, for they control, to some extent, the character of the herbage, and undoubtedly food has much to do with the flavor of its products. The flesh of animals acquires certain qualities from the feed. Southdown mutton, fed upon the rich herbage of the "downs," or hilly sea side pastures on the chalk districts of Southern England, and the tender and high-flavored meat of the Welsh mountain sheep, are examples of this fact. The hams of Westphalia, fed upon the mast of the forests, also have an agreeable flavor. The wines of some vineyards surpass those of all others in richness of flavor, and the hops of certain localities surpass all others in desirable qualities. Consistently with these analogous facts, it cannot be doubted that the pasture, which is affected by soil and climate, has some effect upon the character of dairy products. But the expert and experienced dairyman may make up for all defects in these respects by good culture, fertilizing, and the growth of such crops as will afford every necessary element in the food for the production of good milk, and by such skill in manipulation as will produce the very best quality in the butter and cheese made from it.—American Agriculturist.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

Dr. Wybrow rose from his chair, determined to close the interview.

He was strongly and painfully impressed by what he had heard. The longer he had listened to her the more irresistibly the conviction of the woman's wickedness had forced itself upon him. He tried vainly to think of her as a person to be pitied—a person with a morbidly sensitive imagination, conscious of the capacities for evil which lie dormant in us all, and striving earnestly to open her heart to the counter influence of her own better nature; the effort was beyond him. A perverse instinct in him said, as if in words, "Beware how you believe in her!"

"I have already given you my opinion," he said. "There is no sign of your intellect being deranged, or being likely to be deranged, that medical science can discover—as I understand it. As for the impressions you have confided to me I can only say that yours is a case (as I venture to think) for spiritual rather than for medical advice. Of one thing be assured—what you have said to me in this room shall not pass out of it. Your confession is safe in my keeping."

She heard him, with a certain dogged resignation, to the end.

"Is that all?" she asked.

"That is all," he answered.

She put a little paper packet of money on the table.

"Thank you, sir. There is your fee."

With those words she rose. Her wild black eyes looked upward with an expression of despair so defiant and so horrible in its silent agony that the doctor turned away his head unable to endure the sight of it. The bare idea of taking anything from her—not money only, but anything even that she had touched—suddenly revolted him. Still, without looking at her, he said, "Take it back; I don't want any fee."

She neither heeded nor heard him. Still looking upward, she said, slowly, to herself: "Let the end come. I have done with the struggle; I submit."

She drew her veil over her face, bowed to the doctor and left the room.

He rang the bell and followed her into the hall. As the servant closed the door on her, a sudden impulse of curiosity—utterly unworthy of him, and at the same time irresistible—sprung up in the doctor's mind. Blushing like a boy, he said to the servant: "Follow her home and find out her name." For one moment the man looked at his master, doubting if his own ears had not deceived him. Dr. Wybrow looked back at him in silence. The submissive servant knew what that silence meant—he took his hat and hurried into the street.

The doctor went back to the consulting room. A sudden revulsion of feeling swept over his mind. Had the woman left an infection of wickedness in the house, and had he caught it? What devil had possessed him to degrade himself in the eyes of his own servant? He had behaved infamously—he had asked an honest man, a man who had served him faithfully for years, to turn spy! Stung by the bare thought of it, he ran out into the hall again and opened the door. The servant had disappeared; it was too late to call him back. But one refuge against his contempt for himself was now open to him—the refuge of work. He got into his carriage and went his rounds among his patients.

If the famous physician could have shaken his own reputation, he would have done it that afternoon. Never before had he made himself so little welcome at the bedside. Never before had he put off until to-morrow the prescription which ought to have been written, the opinion which ought to have been given, to-day. He went home earlier than usual—unutterably dissatisfied with himself.

The servant had returned. Dr. Wybrow was ashamed to question him! The man reported the result of his errand, without waiting to be asked.

"The lady's name is the Countess Narona. She lives at"—

Without waiting to hear where she lived, the doctor acknowledged the all important discovery of her name by a silent bend of the head, and entered his consulting room. The fee that he had vainly refused still lay in its little white covering on the table. He sealed it up in an envelope; addressed it to the "Poor box" of the nearest police court, and, calling the servant in, directed him to take it to the magistrate next morning. Faithful to his duties, the servant waited to ask the customary question, "Do you dine at home to-day, sir?"

After a moment's hesitation he said, "No; I shall dine at the club."

The most easily deteriorated of all the moral qualities is the quality called "conscience." In one state of a man's min his conscience is the severest judge that can pass sentence on him. In another state he and his conscience are on the best possible terms with each other in the comfortable capacity of accomplices. When Dr. Wybrow left his house for the second time he did not even attempt to conceal from himself that his sole object in dining at the club was to hear what the world said of the Countess Narona.

CHAPTER III.

There was a time when a man in search of the pleasures of gossip sought the society of ladies. The man knows better now. He goes to the smoking room of his club.

Dr. Wybrow lighted his cigar and looked round him at his brethren in social conclave assembled. The room was well filled, but the flow of talk was still languid. The doctor innocently applied the stimulant that was wanted. When he inquired if anybody knew the Countess Narona he was answered by something like a shout of astonishment. Never (the conclave agreed) had such an absurd question been asked before! Every human creature, with the slightest claim to a place in society, knew the Countess Narona. An adventuress with a European reputation of the blackest possible color—such was the general description of the woman with the death like complexion and the glittering eyes.

Descending to particulars, each member of the club contributed his own little stock of scandal to the memoirs of the countess. It was doubtful whether she was really what she called herself, a Dalmatian lady. It was doubtful whether she had ever been married to the count whose widow she assumed to be. It was doubtful whether the man who accompanied her in her travels (under the name of Baron Rivar and in the character of her brother) was her brother at all. Report pointed to the baron as a gambler at every "table" on the continent. Report whispered that his so called sister had narrowly escaped being implicated in a famous trial for poisoning at Vienna—that she had been known as a spy in the interest of Austria—that her "apartment" in Paris had been denounced to the police as nothing less than a private gambling house—and that her present appearance in England was the natural result of that discovery. Only one member of the assembly in the smoking room took the part of this much abused woman and declared that her character had been most cruelly and most unjustly assailed. But as the man was a lawyer, his interference went for nothing; it was naturally attributed to the spirit of contradiction inherent in his profession. He was asked derisively what he thought of the circumstances under which the countess had become engaged to be married, and he made the characteristic answer, that he thought the circumstances highly creditable to both parties, and that he looked on the lady's future husband as a most enviable man.

Hearing this the doctor raised another shout of astonishment by inquiring the name of the gentleman whom the countess was about to marry.

His friends in the smoking room decided unanimously that the celebrated physician must be a second "Rip Van Winkle," and that he had just awakened from a supernatural sleep of twenty years. It was all very well to say that he was devoted to his profession, and that he had neither time nor inclination to pick up fragments of gossip at dinner parties and balls. A man who did not know that the Countess Narona had borrowed money at Homburg of no less a person than Lord Montbarry, and had then deluded him into making her a proposal of marriage, was a man who had probably never heard of Lord Montbarry himself. The younger members of the club, humoring the joke, sent a waiter for The Peerage, and read aloud the memoir of the nobleman in question, for the doctor's benefit—with illustrative morsels of information interpolated by themselves.

"Herbert John Westwick. First Baron Montbarry, of Montbarry, King's county, Ireland. Created a peer for distinguished military services in India. Forty-eight years old, doctor at the present time. Not married. Will be married next week, doctor, to the delightful creature we have been talking about. Heir presumptive, his lordship's next brother, Stephen Robert, married to Ella, youngest daughter of the Rev. Silas Marden, rector of Runnigate, and has issue, three daughters. Younger brothers of his lordship, Francis and Henry, unmarried. Sisters of his lordship, Lady Barville, married to Sir Theodore Barville, Bart., and Anne, widow of the late Peter Norbury, Esq., of Norbury Cross. Bear his lordship's relations well in mind, doctor. Three brothers Westwick, Stephen, Francis and Henry, and two sisters, Lady Barville and Mrs. Norbury. Not one of the five will be present at the marriage, and not one of the five will leave a stone unturned to stop it if the countess will only give them a chance. Add to these hostile members of the family another offended relative not mentioned in The Peerage, a young lady"——

A sudden outburst of protest in more than one part of the room stopped the coming disclosure and released the doctor from further persecution.

"Don't mention the poor girl's name; it's too bad to make a joke of that part of the business; she has behaved nobly under shameful provocation; there is but one excuse for Montbarry—he is either a madman or a fool." In these terms the protest expressed itself on all sides. Speaking confidentially to his next neighbor, the doctor discovered that the lady referred to was already known to him (through the countess' confession) as the lady deserted by Lord Montbarry. Her name was Agnes Lockwood. She was described as being the superior of the countess in personal attraction, and as being also by some years the younger woman of the two. Making all allowance for the follies that men committed every day in their relations with women, Montbarry's delusion was still the most monstrous delusion on record. In this expression of opinion every man present agreed—the lawyer even included. Not one of them could call to mind the innumerable instances in which the sexual influence has proved irresistible in the persons of women without even the pretension to beauty. The very members of the club whom the countess (in spite of her personal disadvantages) could have most easily fascinated, if she had thought it worth her while, were the members who wondered most loudly at Montbarry's choice of a wife.

While the topic of the countess' marriage was still the one topic of conversation, a member of the club entered the smoking room, whose appearance instantly produced a dead silence. Dr. Wybrow's next neighbor whispered to him, "Montbarry's brother—Henry Westwick."

The new comer looked around him slowly, with a bitter smile.

"You are talking of my brother," he said. "Don't mind me. Not one of you can despise him more heartily than I do. Go on, gentlemen—go on!"

But one man present took the speaker at his word. That man was the lawyer who had already undertaken the defense of the countess.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existance. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents

HER TITLE DEEDS.

Inside the cottage door she sits
Just where the sunlight, softest there,
Slants down on snowy kerchief's bands,
On folded hands and silvered hair.

The garden pale her world shuts in,
A simple world, made sweet with thyme,
Where life, soft lulled by droning bees,
Flows to the mill stream's lapsing rhyme.

Poor are her cottage walls and bare,
Too mean and small to harbor pride,
Yet with a musing gaze she sees
Her broad domains extending wide.

Green slopes of hills, and waving fields,
With blooming hedges set between,
Through shifting veils of tender mist
Smiles, half revealed, a mingled scene.

All hers—for lovingly she holds
A yellow packet in her hand,
Whose ancient, faded script proclaims
Her title to this spreading land.

Old letters! On the trembling page
Drop unawares unheeded tears.
These are her title deeds; her lands
Spread through the realms of bygone years.

TRAIN AND THE CHILDREN.

The Eccentric Old Man Chatting with the Little Ones in Madison Square.

My duties take me nearly every day across Madison square and I always made a detour and stood a minute and listened to Train talking to the children. He was always there unless the weather was too bad for his small friends to be out and then the place lost its attraction for him. In fair weather he was always to be found on the same bench, a stalwart, handsome figure, clothed from head to foot in crisp white linen and mane of curling white hair pushed back from a face that from long exposure had grown as swarthy as an Indian's. He is a very handsome man, with features bold and well cut, the skin, though so dark, smooth and clear, thick, vigorous hair, strong, even white teeth and a pair of fine, large, calm gray eyes. His physical health was perfect and his cleanliness fairly radiant.

There was always a crowd about Train, a group of children who listened with grave and respectful attention to his sayings, and a nursemaid or two and a couple of passers by like myself who lingered out of curiosity. To the adults he was perfectly oblivious. He affected not even to see us. His hat, which he never wore, always lay on the bench beside him, and his buttonhole was usually adorned with a big bunch of field flowers, presented by some juvenile admirer. Train, as far as I could gather from his conversations with the children, was not insane, further than he wanted to put mankind's theories into practice.

He did good in his way, sowed some excellent seeds in little minds that regarded his sayings with reverence. He had a way of lecturing the young ones in his jerky fashion upon the necessity for clean hands as well as pure hearts, and used to settle their small disputes and administer lectures on loving kindness and fraternity, of which, though the manner flew far above their undeveloped comprehensions, yet the matter seemed to sink into their hearts and may yet bring forth good fruit. There is general lamentation at his announcement that he will return no more, and even the elders miss the quaint, handsome old crank, and the square seems lonely without him.—New York Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there was a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Visit of Laurence the Optician.

Mr. B. Laurence, the eminent optician, will be at Mr. J. McKee's drug store on SATURDAY next, Nov. 19th. All who need his services should remember the date. His skill can be availed of without extra charge. It is satisfactory to be able to obtain Laurance's glasses and particularly so to have them adjusted to the requirements of the eye by an expert. 4d117

Joke on the Major.

While Sergt.-Major Rundell was putting a division of the 57th Battalion through their drill at the drill shed on Monday evening, he came to that part where he commanded a "fire!" The men levelled their rifles and click went the hammers, and with them a loud report which almost took the Major off his feet. It was fortunate that it was only a blank cartridge that happened to be in the rifle.

Keeping Out the Weather.

Messrs. Breeze & Bain, of Peterborough, having received the contract for covering the roofs of the new Midland Railway station and baggage room at Midland with metallic shingles, Mr. Breeze with a corps of assistants went up to the lake port on Monday and commenced the job. It will be finished—favorable weather given—this week. Score another win for Peterborough enterprize.

A Locomotive Smashed.

A Midland Railway engine came to grief at Port Hope on Monday. It was going out with the train when the pins of the driving rods and one of the cylinder heads broke. The pressure, says the Times, required to draw the heavy train on the wet rails, set the slipping wheels whirling with lightning revolutions. One of the driving rods on the right hand side flew up and tore a slice off the cab; on the other side both bars were wrenched off and the cylinder head burst out. The disabled engine was taken back to the yard. It will be some time before the repairs will be completed.

League of the Cross.

Instead of the usual meeting of this Association a reunion of the Literary and Temperance Societies took place on Monday evening. A debate was held on the question, "Resolved, that intemperance is more destructive to mankind than war." Mr. E D. Gough led on the affirmative side of the question, and was supported by Messrs. O'Meara, Hurley, Roche, and Dr. Collins. The negative was handled by Messrs. Sheehy, Henry, Hoolihan, Hackett and Dr. Brennan. The Chairman, Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle, summed up the evidence, and after commenting on the style and language of the various speakers, decided that the affirmative was entitled to succeed on the arguments adduced. The subject for debate at the next meeting is, "Resolved, that the American colonies had not sufficient cause for separation from the Mother Country." Messrs. Phelan and Lynch will lead on the affirmative and negative respectively. So far the meetings of these two societies have been very successful, and every meeting witnesses the entrance of a number of new members.

LOT.

His Life Contrasted with Abraham's—Advice Deducted Therefrom.

The series of special addresses to young men which are to be given every night this week in connection with the week of prayer at the Young Men's Christian Association, were opened on Monday evening.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., spoke, having for his subject, "Lot's Choice." In commencement, he pictured Abraham and Lot standing upon a pre-eminence overlooking the country round about the plains of Jordon. Abraham displayed the traits of a true gentleman. The generous and large hearted way in which he gave his nephew the first choice was a worthy example for Christians. Abraham's paramount desire was to do the will of God. Considering the character of Lot, he said that, although he had been trained under Abraham, he did not develop the same traits. He chose what seemed to be for his own material, worldly interests. That was his character. How many Lots there were to-day; how few Abrahams! He spoke of the evil consequences of Lot's choice. The final consequence was Lot's property and family were lost, and Lot was compelled to make his home in a cave.

The practical lessons he drew from the life of Lot was that young men should exercise wisdom in the choice of business. They should not chose a business which would hinder the development of a noble character. In the selection of associates they should chose none but those who would encourage a pure and upright life. In conclusion he contrasted the results of the choice of Lot and those of the choice of Abraham, and quoted the Matthew vi, 33—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

The President of the Association, Mr. Roger, occupied the chair.

The Secretary announced that the meetings would be continued each evening except Wednesday. The subject for to-night will be "The Rich Young Ruler."

Evening Entertainment.

An entertainment was given in the bright cheery school room in connection with St. Luke's Church on Monday evening. The first piece on the programme was a piano duet by Mrs. Bain and Mrs. E. A. Peck. It was given in a mannershowing the pianistes to be possessed of more than ordinary ability. The vocal solo, "The Soldiers' Good Bye," by Mrs. Bowman, was pleasingly sung and much appreciated. Mr. M. Dunn's song, "You'll Remember Me," won loud and continued applause, which he acknowledged by singing "Committed to the Deep." Miss E. Tivey sang "The Lighthouse Light." Miss Tivey has a sweet soprano voice and her appearance in public in the future will be looked forward to with pleasure by those who heard her on Monday evening. The Duet "Drift My Bark" by Miss Vair and Miss Cottingham received merited applause. The vocalists were even interrupted with applause while singing, so much were they appreciated. "Love's old Sweet Song" was sung by Miss Strickland, evoking a hearty encore. Mr. Chas. Brown read a humours selection entitled "The Irishman's Panorama," creating much amusement. Master W. Bowman sang "Rock-a-bye-Baby." The song was well received. The duet by Miss Tivey and Mr. Tierney "Hope Beyond" was exceedingly pretty and so well given that a repetition was demanded. Miss Cottingham sang "Gates of the West," which gave scope for her voice of remarkable compass. A decided encore was accorded her but she declined to respond. The vocal solo "I am Waiting" by Mr. M. Tierney, given in fine style, concluded the programme.

The Union.

The committee appointed by the Town Council to arrange with the Ashburnham Council in regard to the uniting of Ashburnham with the town, went over to the village on Monday evening, but owing to a misunderstanding no meeting of the council was held. The preliminary arrangements toward carrying out the union idea is as follows:—There will have to be a meeting of the committee and the Ashburnham Council to arrange a basis of union; the councils of the two municipalities will have to agree, and a union may be effected by an Order-in-Council. It is not intended to make the town a city; if an arrangement is come to it will merely make the town a bigger town. The Reeve of Ashburnham signifies his willingness to meet the committee at any convenient time to hear their preparation of a basis of union.

Thanksgiving Services.

A union Thanksgiving service under the auspices of the congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist Churches will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday at 11 o'clock.

On Wednesday evening at half past seven o'clock a service will be held in St. John's Church. On Thursday Holy Communion will be administered at 8.30 and a Thanksgiving service at 11 a. m.

At St. Luke's Church there will be public services on Thursday at 11.30 and again at 7.30 p. m.

Otonabee Lodge I. O. O. F.

The entertainment of Otonabee Lodge I. O.O.F. was fixed for the meeting of the Lodge on Monday for Friday, December 9th. The anniversary of the resuscitation of Otonabee Lodge is December 8th, but the change was made out of brotherly courtesy to Peterborough Lodge I.O.O.F., which has a meeting on the former date.

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES.

HIS LORDSHIP CHIEF JUSTICE ARMOUR ON THE BENCH.

The Grand Jury and His Lordship's Address—Only One Criminal Case—The Bar.

The Autumn Assizes opened at the Court House at nine o'clock this morning, His Lordship Chief Justice Armour presiding.

The names of the gentlemen composing the Grand Jury are as follows:—

Andrew McNeil, Foreman.

| | |
|---|---|
| Robert Burgess, | M. Brackenridge, |
| John Coughlin, | Alex. Drummond, |
| Hugh Davidson, | George Elliott, |
| Joseph Edwards, | John M. Fife, |
| John Garbutt, | Edward Hawthorne, |
| David H. Moore, | George Nelson, |
| Richard Meade, | Robert Neill, |
| James Richmond, | Walter Scott, |
| W. W. Johnston, | W. B. Kelly, |
| Arch. R. Kidd, | Sparham Sheldrake, |
| D. J. Parker, | E. Foley. |

HIS LORDSHIP addressed the Grand Jury. The duties which they had to perform were very light. There was only one case which demanded their investigation and that was a forgery case. He explained the nature of the crime, pointing out that a person might be found guilty of forgery even though he did not negotiate the forged instrument. If the jury were satisfied that there was an intention to defraud they would be justified in bringing in a verdict of "guilty." In this case, however, they had not to look into the case from that point of view, as this boy had negotiated the forged instrument; therefore the intent to defraud was apparent. The only other duty they would have to perform was that of visiting the county gaol and examine its condition. They should see that no persons were illegally confined. They should see that those confined there were properly treated. They should see that the sanitary conditions were such as not to endanger the health of the prisoners. They should also see that the cells were safe, being adaquate for the safe custody of prisoners confined in them. When they reported to him he would have much pleasure in discharging them.

The Grand Jury retired.

A BENCH WARRANT.

Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, asked for a bench warrant for the apprehension of Peter Warner, who was before this court on a charge of perjury previously and was released on his own recognisances to appear when called on. He was not now to be found. The warrant was granted.

THE BAR.

The bar was represented at the opening of the court by the following:—Messrs. Geo. T. Blackstock, Toronto; John A. Barron, Lindsay; T. Titus, Brighton; R. Clute and J. Kearns, Belleville; and R. E. Wood, D. W. Dumble, C. J. Leonard, Geo. Edmison, C. W. Sawers, W. A. Stratton, J. O'Meara, W. J. Bennett and John Green, Peterborough.

TRUE BILL.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Robt, Howland this forenoon; after having examined several witnesses.

TO-DAY'S BUSINESS.

The case, O'Shea vs. King, occupied the attention of the court till about three o'clock this afternoon. The case, Johnston vs. Johnston, was taken up when the jury retired.

THE NEW PASTOR.

The Rev. S. J. Shorey Accepts the Charlotte Street Church Call.

A telegram received to-day from the Rev S. J. Shorey, of the Sherbourne Street Methodist Church, Toronto, accepting the call given to him by the Charlotte Street Methodist Church here, is in the hands of Mr. Wm. Cluxton, the Recording Steward.

The Rev. Mr. Shorey will commence his ministry next June. He is a man of excellent ability, a fact that is recognised by his having had several calls in his hands when chosing that extended by the Charlotte Street Church congregation.

The Charlotte Street Church congregation is to be congratulated upon securing a pastor who will not fail to give the utmost satisfaction.

Personal.

On saturday evening, says the Port Hope Times, while quietly reading at his home, the Rev. W. E. Cooper was attacked by what was at first feared was apoplexy. Medical assistance was summoned, and after careful attention the patient is able to sit up, and it is hoped that a few days will be sufficient for his recovery.

The Rev. W. J. West, formerly of Lakefield, who was left without a station at the last conference at his own request, has been admitted a full member of the New York Conference and is stationed at Rush, eleven miles from Rochester. His appointment is said to be a good one.

The Dominion Oddfellow says:—"While in Peterborough the Grand Secretary was the guest of Bro. James Stevenson, Mayor, and Mrs. Stevenson, where he was most hospitably entertained. Mayor Stevenson is one of Peterborough's indispensable citizens, and a most worthy incumbent of the civic chair."

Mr. D. J. Lynch, Campbellford, formerly of Peterborough, is in town in attendance at court. He is engaged on the McNaughton-Wier case.

Judge Armour's Promotion.

The New York Sun says:—"We learn that the Hon. John Douglas Armour, long a member of the Court of Queen's Bench in Ontario, has been promoted to be Chief Justice of that court. We take a special interest in this event from the fact that Judge Armour is related through marriage to a distinguished member of the bar in this city. Mrs. Grosvenor P. Lowrey being his daughter."

An Ardent Chevalier.

One of the Chevaliers of Canton Peterborough, No. 10, travels about 30 miles every time he attends drill here, and, of course, the same distance on returning. The worthy chevalier is Mr. J. B. Ferris, of Campbellford.

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind that the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d106eod

A Masonic Adieu.

The Port Perry Observer of Nov. 10th contains a column account of a complimentary supper tendered to Mr. G. S. Miller, who is now in Messrs. Rush Bros.' store, on the eve of his departure for Peterborough. The company was, the Observer says, all that could be desired and the spread was one of those enjoyable affairs which never fail to please. The usual loyal toasts were honored, and the chairman proposed the guest of the evening in telling and complimentary language, referring to Bro. Miller's many good qualities as an energetic and valuable townsman, an active, successful and popular business man, but above all as an esteemed and worthy Mason. The toast was enthusiastically received, Bro. Prince leading in "He's a jolly-good fellow." Mr. Miller made a suitable reply. While he could not leave Port Perry without regret, he was pleased at the thought of moving to Peterborough, one of the most prosperous and enterprising towns in the Dominion. Several other brethren followed, all speaking in the highest terms of Bro. Miller as an honorable and valued townsman and worthy Mason, all wishing him and his family continued prosperity and happiness.

Local Brevities.

—Some Port Hopers are so anxious to hear Mrs. Scott-Siddons that they have arranged to go to Cobourg on a freight train for that purpose.

—Gentlemen engaged in shingling houses the last few days have had what Mr. Mantilini termed a "moist and unpleasant time of it."

—Rubber overcoats, umbrellas and water tight boots ornament the door posts of shops. Peterborough merchants can bring out stocks to suit any weather on shortest notice.

—A [quantity of very moist, unpleasant snow fell on Monday night. This fact is no doubt apparent to most people, but some folks pay so little attention to the weather that a reminder may save trouble.

—On Monday Mr. Hall, employed at Breeze & Bain's shop, had the misfortune to slip while coming down the staircase carrying a load of goods and sprained his left ankle. It is hoped he will be able to get about in a short time.

—His Lordship Justice Armour, in addressing the Grand Jury this morning, advised them to see that the persons who were confined in gaol were properly treated. His Lordship ought to be more circumspect. Perhaps there might have been members of the Anti-Treating Society on the Jury, and besides this is a Scott Act county.

—The regular weekly meeting of the Y. P. A. was held at the Methodist Sunday School rooms on Monday night. After routine matters had been disposed of Mr. Mulligan gave a stirring song, Miss Allen a vocal solo, and Mr. A. Clegg contributed a reading. An interesting Bible reading followed, conducted by Mr. Griffin, Superintendent of the school, and which was participated in by many of the members present. A vocal solo by Miss Butcher, a reading by Mr. Scott, and a song by Mr. Jaques finished the excellent programme, after which the meeting closed.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The flowers spoke all summer as they chose:
They said in colors what they sweetest thought.
They seized the jeweled dews, light's latest glows,
And into living signs swift splendor wrought.

All summer long the flowers! The leaves—the leaves,
They were the slaves; they had no word to say.
They wore the russet livery, and pale sheaves,
Gathered for grain, were not more mute than they.

But reckless winds at last the flowers killed;
They withered into rags upon their stalks;
And then the leaves, too, felt their firm hearts chilled.
Yet—hush! The dying forest nobly talks:

"Oh, slaves have passion. The dumb leaves of toil
Accept not life ignobly—no, nor death.
They show their colors!" Autumn's air and soil
Burn with inspiration of their breath.

LOOKING TO ENGLAND.

The Continental Combinations Wanting Her Aid.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Nothing comes out more clearly from what is known of the diplomatic activity of the last two months than the change which has taken place in the relation of most of the powers to Great Britain Every power just now appears anxious to be on good terms with England. No one who is acquainted with the ways of diplomacy will believe that this change of front on the part of the powers is accidental or that it is the result of sentimental regard. The explanation is as simple as the state of things it reveals is significant. The powers have been measuring one another's strength with a view to possible troubles. The groups into which they fall are so nearly balanced that both sides look around for an additional weight in their own state, and it has become evident to both that England, in spite of the weak points in her military organization, is able to make the beam point in whichever direction she may take. All the powers of course profess to be anxious above all things for peace. But whether they will be willing to avoid courses that must inevitably lead to a breach of the peace, depends to some extent upon their opinion of what the policy of Great Britain will be.

It is as true now as when Lord Derby said it, that "the greatest of British interests is peace," and the doctrine is one which commands the assent of all parties in the country. There is not, however, entire unanimity with regard to the policy which will best conduce to the preservation of peace in Europe. But opinion is more and more tending to recognize that the central powers have no aggressive aims, and that English sympathy and English interests alike dictate a policy of friendship and support to Germany, Austria and Italy.

The relations of the powers of Great Britain furnishes the clearest evidence that the peace of Europe at present rests upon no solid foundation. The apprehensions too clearly underlie the pacific utterances of statesmen indicate that a conflict in which several of the great powers will be involved is regarded as almost inevitable. A future historian, freed from the feelings without which a contemporary cannot regard the armed truce that now exists, will no doubt be able to show that this age of militarism was a necessity in the growth of the European community and to point to some underlying cause of unrest in the organization of the commonwealth of civilized nations.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Accounts of the German Crown Prince's Condition Confused.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—A despatch from San Remo says the Crown Prince is in no immediate danger.

VIENNA, Nov. 14.—Dr. Schroetter yesterday declared that the press accounts of the German Crown Prince's condition were confused mixtures of false and true. He said he was bound to silence with regard to the medical consultations.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Standard's correspondent at San Remo says:—Dr. Mackenzie expects on his return to find the swelling sufficiently reduced to allow him to extract a portion of the new growth through the mouth with forceps. The portion extracted will be submitted to Prof. Virchow for microscopical examination. The Crown Prince will stay here all winter. The Crown Princess, who is well, attended church yesterday with her daughters. Dr. Mackenzie has received several anonymous threatening letters. Dr. Mackenzie is of the opinion that German doctors are too much inclined to drastic measures and the use of the knife on the "kill or cure" principle.

THE BOUNDARY RAILWAY.

The Manitoba Court Decides Against the Red River Valley.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14.—Judge Killam delivered judgment on Saturday in the injunction case of the Minister of Justice against Mr. Ryan and the Red River Valley road. He holds that the Red River Railway Act, under which the road was built, does not exist, as it has been disallowed and that the defendants have no right whatever to appropriate these lands for the railway under the public works act; establishes the jurisdidiction of our courts to deal with such a case, and affirms that the title of the Dominion Government to the lands set out is perfectly good.

MURDERED FOR NINE DOLLARS.

A Blacksmith Attacked by Three Men, Beaten to Death and Robbed.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 14.—As Thomas Hatherley, blacksmith, a resident of Middlemarch, near Fingal, was driving home from St. Thomas on Saturday he passed three strangers, who hailed him and asked for a ride, and soon after taking them in they turned the horses' heads towards the ditch, upsetting the waggon and throwing Mr. Hatherly upon the ground and jumping upon him, commenced to beat him with sticks and stones and undoubtedly have murdered him on the spot but for the approach of a farmer named Howard. Upon seeing Howard the robbers tore open his clothes and snatched what money they could find upon their victim's person and ran. Hatherley was taken to his home bleeding and insensible, and after terrible suffering died at five o'clock this morning. The murderers succeeded in getting about $9, but overlooked $60 which Hatherley had in an inside pocket. Three tramps, supposed to be the murderers, have been arrested and lodged in St. Thomas gaol.

Importation of Military Supplies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—An order-in-council has been passed with reference to the importation of militia supplies and sent to collectors of customs. It provides that the Minister of Customs may remit or refund to military tailors and others importing military clothing or materials therefor, arms or accoutrements for the use of the militia of Canada or of officers thereof, the customs duty actually paid thereon, on the production of satisfactory evidence of the importation thereof, and of the exact amount of duty paid thereon, on the production of a certificate from the Minister or Deputy Minister of Militia that the articles were actually imported for the militia and could not be used for other purposes. The order also provides, under certain regulations, for the free entry of such articles imported by a militia officer for his own use or that of his corps, and of musical instruments for bands, provided the instruments are the property of the corps and not of the individual members of the band.

How the Old Egyptians Worked.

Arnaudeau publishes in The Revue Scientifique an essay upon the question how the ancient Egyptians managed to transport and lift the immense rocks found on top of temples and how they raised their obelisks. He thinks they took advantage of the rise of the Nile. Clothing a block with as much wood as was necessary to raise it a little from the ground they pushed it forward to where they wanted it to lie and held it in position while they removed the wood, which left it in the exact place it was to occupy. An obelisk was lifted horizontally and pushed to where they wanted to erect it. There they took wood away from the base and fastened it to the top, which caused the foot to sink and the top to rise.—Chicago Herald.

The Grand Duke's Philopena.

The Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, who has lately been slopping over with venom against Germany, was last year at a dinner party the neighbour of the celebrated artist, Rosa Bonheur, and as he happened to find two almonds in the same shell he became indebted to her a philopena. Asked what it should be, Rosa Bonheur chose an animal tame enough to be used in her studio as a model. She had forgotten all about the matter, when last month three young white bears were presented to her by the Grand Duke. They are specially trained, and will form the ornament of the little zoological garden the artist has gathered together at her villa at Fontainebleau.—N. Y. Tribune.

Salvation Army Attacked.

QUEBEC, Nov. 14.—The Salvation Army was yesterday attacked by a gang of rowdies while marching through St. Valier street. Stones flew freely, and several people were injured. The members of the Army rushed up Palace Hill, followed by their pursuers, who were checked opposite Arsenal street, however, by a crowd of sympathizers with the Army. Reinforced by a number of young men who did their best to manfully resent the cowardice of the attack, most of the attacking party retired to St. Rochs, but one was recognized on St. John street, and would have been roughly handled had he not retreated into Julien's oyster saloon.

Low Water in the Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—Mr. E. Moore, of the extensive lumbering firm run in that name, says that in the history of lumbering in the Ottawa Valley the water on main river and tributaries had never been so low and serious loss must follow unless there are heavy falls of rain within a few weeks, which is improbable. As the streams are at present it is impossible to get logs and timber floated down the stream, and several heavy contracts for cut lumber, it is believed, will have to be cancelled with American firms.

Indescriminate Shooting.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—A tragedy was attempted in Joe Beef's well-know canteen to-night. Two men under the influence of liquor commenced to shoot promiscuously on the people in the bar. One man named Canavan was shot between the lungs and heart. Another called Woods was shot in the temple, and one Henry Irving was shot in the left eye. All are in the General Hospital. Canavan is in a most dangerous condition. The police are searching the city for the miscreants.

A Legal Warfare.

Augusta is said to have 27 suits for false imprisonment on its hands, brought by members of the Salvation Army. In one case the damages are put at several thousand dollars, it being alleged that death resulted from imprisonment. It is said that if these suits are successful others will be brought in different parts of Maine, the number being set at over 200.—Portland Press.

A Big Reward for a Rabbit Killer.

A reward of £25,000 has been offered by the Australian Government for an effectual method of exterminating the rabbits, and the Minister of Mines has given instructions that the offer should be extensively advertised in the leading English, American and Continental journals.—Ex.

MIDLAND DISTRICT NOTES.

Interesting Items Condensed from Columns of Exchanges.

Barrie has decided to aid the Barrie Implement Manufacturing Company by loaning $25,000 at 5 per cent. for ten years, taking a mortgage on the property of the company.

The Rev. Wm. Logan, of Fenelon Falls, has a Bible that was printed in 1690, and is 197 years old. The borders of each page are hand ruled with red ink.

John Schell, jr., while deer hunting at Bass Lake, capsized his canoe, lost a Winchester rifle and was almost exhausted when help came.

D. J. Smith, of Grass Hill, Victoria County, while returning home at night, fell over a plough, breaking his arm and causing other injuries.

Mr. Thomas Sweeney, of Sydney, one day recently found a two year old heifer dead in the field and on cutting the carcass up he found a long steel needle piercing the heifer's heart.

A team of horses belonging to G. Gray, of Dunsford, became frightened at an obstruction placed on the road on Hallow-E'en and bolted. Miss Cowan was thrown out and her face was severely cut and bruised.

Over a hundred ratepayers have presented a requisition to the Reeve of Eldon, asking him to call a public meeting to consider the financial condition of the municipality, and other matters.

Bucknell, the Cobourg young man accused of incendiarism in connection with the burning of Spence & Kulhman's planing mill last month, was discharged at the county assizes, there being not sufficient evidence for a conviction.

Mr. Alex. Preston, of Manvers, has purchased the M. Guiry farm, east of Lindsay, adjoining the corporation, 100 acres, for $7,000. It is an excellent farm, and as Mr. Preston is an energetic and progressive farmer no doubt he will show that farming pays.

While Mr. W. H. Ives, builder, Colborne, was engaged roofing the new addition to the registry office in that village, the fireproof arch fell in, carrying Mr. Ives with it, completely burying him. He was taken out in a badly cut and bruised condition.

On Saturday afternoon a horse and buggy belonging to Gilbert Bedell, of Sidney, was stolen from a hotel yard in Belleville, and an overcoat was taken from the hotel. The horse was a chestnut in color, eight years old, about 15½ hands high, with a white stripe in its face. The piano box buggy had a leather top, with three springs and a piece of the scroll work on the back was broken off.

Raising the Early Broilers.

The most essential thing with young chicks is warmth. Broilers bring good prices when they reach the market early, and no one can afford to lose them. In winter the young chickens require much attention, but it is the extra care required that renders them salable at good prices and whoever expects to make broilers profitable must not neglect them. The hen must be kept in a dry, warm place, and must not be allowed to roam with her brood at this season. She must be so situated that every chicken can go under her wings whenever it desires, as a few minutes' exposure to severe cold will surely prove fatal, sooner or later.

Never feed chicks during the first 24 hours after hatching, as the food simply taxes the digestive organs, and gives no benefit; as nature makes provision for it. Even thirty-six hours is not too long a fast. Then crumble a hard boiled egg with coarsely ground oatmeal. Feed this for only one day, as the eggs cause bowel disease, if continued. When the chick is two or three days old, it may receive bread soaked in milk, cold rice that has been cooked, finely chopped meat, chopped onions, and a regular food composed of equal parts of ground oats, corn meal, and shorts, with a little salt as seasoning; the mixture to be cooked and, crumbled for them. Do not attempt to raise chicks on corn meal, either cooked or raw, as they will not thrive upon it alone, unless with other food. The young of all birds feather very rapidly from the start, and the chickens is no exception; but as the parent birds are given animal or insect food the chickens should have a share also, at least three or four times a week, as well as being fed otherwise four times daily. Screenings, fine gravel, ground shells, and bone meal should be kept within their reach all the time, and as soon as wheat can be eaten it should be substituted for the screenings. As dampness is fatal to chickens, the drinking water must be so given that the chicken can get no portion of its body wet, and it should be kept growing from the start.—American Agriculturist for November.

COMPLAINS OF TORTURE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 14.—Mr. O'Brien complained to the visiting Justices in the Tullamore gaol yesterday of being slowly tortured to death.

WILL TRY AGAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The executive of the Radical Federation held a meeting last night and resolved to hold a meeting of delegates on Wednesday evening at the London Patriotic Club to decide upon measures for repeating the attempt to hold a public meeting on Sunday next.

FIRE IN BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 14.—The Ministry of Agriculture buildings caught fire during the night and was destroyed. The Chamber of Deputies and the Ministry of Finance buildings were with great difficulty saved. The loss is great. Chevalier de Moreau, the Minister of Agriculture, and his wife and family, who dwelt in the burned building, had to fly for their lives.

AYOUB KHAN'S SUBMISSION.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—It is reported from Sarrakhs that Ayoub Khan who, Lord Salisbury announced, had submitted to the British, had 200 followers, but gave in his submission, trusting to the Queen's mercy, and because he was angry with Russia for refusing to supply him with arms and troops.

A LIBERAL CLUB'S DEFICIT.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 14.—The Liberal club, which was opened a decade ago by Mr. John Bright, has issued a circular to members notifying them of a deficit of six thousand pounds in its finances, and proposing to levy an assessment of ten pounds each upon the members to cover it. The prosperous condition of the club suffered through the Liberal split.

Lotta and the Dressmakers.

Just now I am at the mercy of dressmakers, and they are in the aggregate the trials of a mind. Of course there are some who are mistress of their business, but as a rule they are poor failures. I can't understand it, either. If a woman has to make a living as a dressmaker why doesn't she put her pride in her work and conquer it? A sleeve, it seems to me, is a little thing to make, but out of six modistes five will put it in a dress wrong. Ah! well, poor women, they are the victims of the age in which they live. The time will come when women will roll up their sleeves and go to work, heart, hand and soul, not only to get a living out of it, but to dignify it. We Americans like to preach about the freedom of our people and country, but for all that caste is as distinctly defined as in far away Hindostan, and there is no such thing as equality. A shop girl may be just as good as a petted daughter, but society prefers the pet every time.—Chicago Mail Interview.

Sleeping with Windows Open.

Here is what Professor Virchow says anent the sleeping with open windows: "The vitiated air can only rush out when the temperature inside differs from that outside; it remains stationary when the air inside is already of equal temperature with that outside. In that case serious complications may be the consequence, and many persons have paid their mistaken notion with their life. Moreover, a certain ventilation takes place even with closed windows, namely, through the walls, thick though they be, provided they be otherwise well dried."—Paris American Register

BYE-ELECTIONS.

THE result of the election in Haldimand on Saturday is very satisfactory to those who believe in Conservative principles and policy. For many years that constituency was considered as certain to elect a Reformer and the Conservatives were charged with "hiving" the opponents there. The Reform majority, however, has been dwindling away, as is shown by the following table, giving the results of the elections in the constituency since 1874:—

| | Ref. | Con. | Ref. maj. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1875 | Acc. | ..... | ..... |
| 1878 | 1,566 | 1,400 | 166 |
| 1882 | 1,490 | 1,364 | 126 |
| 1886 | 1,876 | 1,765 | 111 |
| 1887 | 1,745 | 1,746 | 0 |

On Saturday Dr. Montague, Conservative, was elected by a majority of 17.

The Reform candidate had the assistance of several of the foremost men of his party. Mr. Laurier, the leader, Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Paterson, Mr. Charlton and others addressed meetings in the riding, but they were unsuccessful in their efforts to hold the constituency for the party.

Commercial Union was brought prominently forward by Reform speakers. Mr. Laurier, who it seems has not yet decided what course to pursue regarding that question, did not advocate it, but Sir Richard, Mr. Charlton and Mr. Paterson enlarged on the benefits they believed Commercial Union would bring. Haldimand is a border county on the shore of Lake Erie, and if any county would be benefitted by the proposed scheme it would, yet Haldimand has even reversed its old political preferences to pronounce against Commercial Union.

This was the tenth bye-election since the general election last February. Of these the Reform party has carried one and the Conservatives nine. South Renfrew and Charlevoix had elected Opposition candidates in February, but returned Conservatives in the bye-elections, while the Reform party has not made a gain. The bye-elections show that the Macdonald Administration is increasing in popular favor.

THE London Advertiser finds it necessary to lecture "Some of our Reform newspapers who have recently engaged in the discussion of the Reform leadership as though the position was vacant." It is not in one Province alone that Reform organs have shown dissatisfaction with Mr. Laurier's leadership, for in Quebec Province and in Ontario they have spoken out. Mr. Laurier should shoulder that famous musket and go on a still hunt after those papers "who" have been so disrespectful.

THE Lindsay Post suggests that Mr. Hudspeth, M.P. for South Victoria, should be raised to the bench. Mr. Hudspeth would adorn the bench, but the Post should not have exposed its purpose so plainly by proceeding to show that the appointment would open the constituency. It should not cherish the vain hope that South Victoria would return an opponent of the Government.

ANOTHER Reform journal, the Hamilton Times, is displeased with the Quebec conference platform. It is dissatisfied with the scheme for Provincial subsidies. Mr. Mowat may come to the conclusion that he made a mistake in attending the festivities at the old capital.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

BRISK BUSINESS.—On Sunday business was brisk on the C.P.R., no less than eleven freight trains passing through here, the most of them being specials.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Shortly after eight o'clock on Sunday night, brakeman D. Menzies met with a painful accident near the Norwood station. He had his hand jammed between the couplings of two cars and the engine not being attached to them at the time, he had to endure the pain until enough men arrived on the scene to shove the cars apart. He came to Dr. Ford's office and had it dressed and found to his astonishment that no bones were broken. He got off very safely.

Climatic Influence on Cheese.

While quality is conferred upon cheese by care and skill in making, and by its contents of fat, there are some other causes for the variation in quality. Soil and climate have something to do with quality, for they control, to some extent, the character of the herbage, and undoubtedly food has much to do with the flavor of its products. The flesh of animals acquires certain qualities from the feed. Southdown mutton, fed upon the rich herbage of the "downs," or hilly sea side pastures on the chalk districts of Southern England, and the tender and high-flavored meat of the Welsh mountain sheep, are examples of this fact. The hams of Westphalia, fed upon the mast of the forests, also have an agreeable flavor. The wines of some vineyards surpass those of all others in richness of flavor, and the hops of certain localities surpass all others in desirable qualities. Consistently with these analogous facts, it cannot be doubted that the pasture, which is affected by soil and climate, has some effect upon the character of dairy products. But the expert and experienced dairyman may make up for all defects in these respects by good culture, fertilizing, and the growth of such crops as will afford every necessary element in the food for the production of good milk, and by such skill in manipulation as will produce the very best quality in the butter and cheese made from it.—American Agriculturist.

A Humorous Patriot.

A covered waggon drawn by a pair of somewhat weary looking horses crossed the ferry to Windsor last week. Upon the side was a rudely painted legend:—"In Dakota we trusted. In Dakota we busted." Within were John Ainslie, an intelligent farmer, his wife and six children, who have been drawn from Douglas County, Dakota, a distance of over 1,000 miles, en route for Garfield, Essex County, Ont., their former home. In spite of their long journey all looked clean, comfortable and in good health.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

Dr. Wybrow rose from his chair, determined to close the interview.

He was strongly and painfully impressed by what he had heard. The longer he had listened to her the more irresistibly the conviction of the woman's wickedness had forced itself upon him. He tried vainly to think of her as a person to be pitied—a person with a morbidly sensitive imagination, conscious of the capacities for evil which lie dormant in us all; and striving earnestly to open her heart to the counter influence of her own better nature; the effort was beyond him. A perverse instinct in him said, as if in words, "Beware how you believe in her!"

"I have already given you my opinion," he said. "There is no sign of your intellect being deranged, or being likely to be deranged, that medical science can discover—as I understand it. As for the impressions you have confided to me I can only say that yours is a case (as I venture to think) for spiritual rather than for medical advice. Of one thing be assured—what you have said to me in this room shall not pass out of it. Your confession is safe in my keeping."

She heard him, with a certain dogged resignation, to the end.

"Is that all?" she asked.

"That is all," he answered.

She put a little paper packet of money on the table.

"Thank you, sir. There is your fee."

With those words she rose. Her wild black eyes looked upward with an expression of despair so defiant and so horrible in its silent agony that the doctor turned away his head unable to endure the sight of it. The bare idea of taking anything from her—not money only, but anything even that she had touched—suddenly revolted him. Still, without looking at her, he said, "Take it back; I don't want any fee."

She neither heeded nor heard him. Still looking upward, she said, slowly, to herself: "Let the end come. I have done with the struggle; I submit."

She drew her veil over her face, bowed to the doctor and left the room.

He rang the bell and followed her into the hall. As the servant closed the door on her, a sudden impulse of curiosity—utterly unworthy of him, and at the same time irresistible—sprung up in the doctor's ind. Blushing like a boy, he said to the servant: "Follow her home and find out her name." For one moment the man looked at his master, doubting if his own ears had not deceived him. Dr. Wybrow looked back at him in silence. The submissive servant knew what that silence meant—he took his hat and hurried into the street.

The doctor went back to the consulting room. A sudden revulsion of feeling swept over his mind. Had the woman left an infection of wickedness in the house, and had he caught it? What devil had possessed him to degrade himself in the eyes of his own servant? He had behaved infamously—he had asked an honest man, a man who had served him faithfully for years, to turn spy! Stung by the bare thought of it, he ran out into the hall again and opened the door. The servant had disappeared; it was too late to call him back. But one refuge against his contempt for himself was now open to him—the refuge of work. He got into his carriage and went his rounds among his patients.

If the famous physician could have shaken his own reputation, he would have done it that afternoon. Never before had he made himself so little welcome at the bedside. Never before had he put off until to-morrow the prescription which ought to have been written, the opinion which ought to have been given, today. He went home earlier than usual—unutterably dissatisfied with himself.

The servant had returned. Dr. Wybrow was ashamed to question him! The man reported the result of his errand, without waiting to be asked.

"The lady's name is the Countess Narona. She lives at"——

Without waiting to hear where she lived, the doctor acknowledged the all important discovery of her name by a silent bend of the head, and entered his consulting room. The fee that he had vainly refused still lay in its little white covering on the table. He ealed it up in an envelope; addressed it to the "Poor box" of the nearest police court, and, calling the servant in, directed him to take it to the magistrate next morning. Faithful to his duties, the servant waited to ask the customary question, "Do you dine at home today, sir?"

After a moment's hesitation he said, "No; I shall dine at the club."

The most easily deteriorated of all the moral qualities is the quality called "conscience." In one state of a man's min his conscience is the severest judge that can pass sentence on him. In another state he and his conscience are on the best possible terms with each other in the comfortable capacity of accomplices. When Dr. Wybrow left his house for the second time he did not even attempt to conceal from himself that his sole object in dining at the club was to hear what the world said of the Countess Narona.

CHAPTER III.

There was a time when a man in search of the pleasures of gossip sought the society of ladies. The man knows better now. He goes to the smoking room of his club.

Dr. Wybrow lighted his cigar and looked round him at his brethren in social conclave assembled. The room was well filled, but the flow of talk was still languid. The doctor innocently applied the stimulant that was wanted. When he inquired if anybody knew the Countess Narona he was answered by something like a shout of astonishment. Never (the conclave agreed) had such an absurd question been asked before! Every human creature, with the slightest claim to a place in society, knew the Countess Narona. An adventuress with a European reputation of the blackest possible color—such was the general description of the woman with the death like complexion and the glittering eyes.

Descending to particulars, each member of the club contributed his own little stock of scandal to the memoirs of the countess. It was doubtful whether she was really what she called herself, a Dalmatian lady. It was doubtful whether she had ever been married to the count whose widow she assumed to be. It was doubtful whether the man who accompanied her in her travels (under the name of Baron Rivar and in the character of her brother) was her brother at all. Report pointed to the baron as a gambler at every "table" on the continent. Report whispered that his so called sister had narrowly escaped being implicated in a famous trial for poisoning at Vienna—that she had been known as a spy in the interest of Austria—that her "apartment" in Paris had been denounced to the police as nothing less than a private gambling house—and that her present appearance in England was the natural result of that discovery. Only one member of the assembly in the smoking room took the part of this much abused woman and declared that her character had been most cruelly and most unjustly assailed. But as the man was a lawyer, his interference went for nothing; it was naturally attributed to the spirit of contradiction inherent in his profession. He was asked derisively what he thought of the circumstances under which the countess had become engaged to be married, and he made the characteristic answer, that he thought the circumstances highly creditable to both parties, and that he looked on the lady's future husband as a most enviable man.

Hearing this the doctor raised another shout of astonishment by inquiring the name of the gentleman whom the countess was about to marry.

His friends in the smoking room decided unanimously that the celebrated physician must be a second "Rip Van Winkle," and that he had just awakened from a supernatural sleep of twenty years. It was all very well to say that he was devoted to his profession, and that he had neither time nor inclination to pick up fragments of gossip at dinner parties and balls. A man who did not know that the Countess Narona had borrowed money at Homburg of no less a person than Lord Montbarry, and had then deluded him into making her a proposal of marriage, was a man who had probably never heard of Lord Montbarry himself. The younger members of the club, humoring the joke, sent a waiter for The Peerage, and read aloud the memoir of the nobleman in question, for the doctor's benefit—with illustrative morsels of information interpolated by themselves.

"Herbert John Westwick. First Baron Montbarry, of Montbarry, King's county, Ireland. Created a peer for distinguished military services in India. Forty-eight years old, doctor at the present time. Not married. Will be married next week, doctor, to the delightful creature we have been talking about. Heir presumptive, his lordship's next brother, Stephen Robert, married to Ella, youngest daughter of the Rev. Silas Marden, rector of Runnigate, and has issue, three daughters. Younger brothers of his lordship, Francis and Henry, unmarried. Sisters of his lordship, Lady Barville, married to Sir Theodore Barville, Bart., and Anne, widow of the late Peter Norbury, Esq., of Norbury Cross. Bear his lordship's relations well in mind, doctor. Three brothers Westwick, Stephen, Francis and Henry, and two sisters, Lady Barville and Mrs. Norbury. Not one of the five will be present at the marriage, and not one of the five will leave a stone unturned to stop it if the countess will only give them a chance. Add to these hostile members of the family another offended relative not mentioned in The Peerage, a young lady"——

A sudden outburst of protest in more than one part of the room stopped the coming disclosure and released the doctor from further persecution.

"Don't mention the poor girl's name; it's too bad to make a joke of that part of the business; she has behaved nobly under shameful provocation; there is but one excuse for Montbarry—he is either a madman or a fool." In these terms the protest expressed itself on all sides. Speaking confidentially to his next neighbor, the doctor discovered that the lady referred to was already known to him (through the countess' confession) as the lady deserted by Lord Montbarry. Her name was Agnes Lockwood. She was described as being the superior of the countess in personal attraction, and as being also by some years the younger woman of the two. Making all allowance for the follies that men committed every day in their relations with women, Montbarry's delusion was still the most monstrous delusion on record. In this expression of opinion every man present agreed—the lawyer even included. Not one of them could call to mind the innumerable instances in which the sexual influence has proved irresistible in the persons of women without even the pretension to beauty. The very members of the club whom the countess (in spite of her personal disadvantages) could have most easily fascinated, if she had thought it worth her while, were the members who wondered most loudly at Montbarry's choice of a wife.

While the topic of the countess' marriage was still the one topic of conversation, a member of the club entered the smoking room, whose appearance instantly produced a dead silence. Dr. Wybrow's next neighbor whispered to him, "Montbarry's brother—Henry Westwick."

The new comer looked around him slowly, with a bitter smile.

"You are talking of my brother," he said. "Don't mind me. Not one of you can despise him more heartily than I do. Go on, gentlemen—go on!"

But one man present took the speaker at his word. That man was the lawyer who had already undertaken the defense of the countess.

HER TITLE DEEDS.

Inside the cottage door she sits
Just where the sunlight, softest there,
Slants down on snowy kerchief's bands,
On folded hands and silvered hair.

The garden pale her world shuts in,
A simple world, made sweet with thyme,
Where life, soft lulled by droning bees,
Flows to the mill stream's lapsing rhyme.

Poor are her cottage walls and bare,
Too mean and small to harbor pride,
Yet with a musing gaze she sees
Her broad domains extending wide.

Green slopes of hills, and waving fields,
With blooming hedges set between,
Through shifting veils of tender mist
Smiles, half revealed, a mingled scene.

All hers—for lovingly she holds
A yellow packet in her hand,
Whose ancient, faded script proclaims
Her title to this spreading land.

Old letters! On the trembling page
Drop unawares unheeded tears.
These are her title deeds; her lands
Spread through the realms of bygone years.
—Albion Mary Fellows.

TRAIN AND THE CHILDREN.

The Eccentric Old Man Chatting with the Little Ones in Madison Square.

My duties take me nearly every day across Madison square and I always made a detour and stood a minute and listened to Train talking to the children. He was always there unless the weather was too bad for his small friends to be out and then the place lost its attraction for him. In fair weather he was always to be found on the same bench, a stalwart, handsome figure, clothed from head to foot in crisp white linen and mane of curling white hair pushed back from a face that from long exposure had grown as swarthy as an Indian's. He is a very handsome man, with features bold and well cut, the skin, though so dark, smooth and clear, thick, vigorous hair, strong, even white teeth and a pair of fine, large, calm gray eyes. His physical health was perfect and his cleanliness fairly radiant.

There was always a crowd about Train, a group of children who listened with grave and respectful attention to his sayings, and a nursemaid or two and a couple of passers by like myself who lingered out of curiosity. To the adults he was perfectly oblivious. He affected not even to see us. His hat, which he never wore, always lay on the bench beside him, and his buttonhole was usually adorned with a big bunch of field flowers, presented by some juvenile admirer. Train, as far as I could gather from his conversations with the children, was not insane, further than he wanted to put mankind's theories into practice.

He did good in his way, sowed some excellent seeds in little minds that regarded his sayings with reverence. He had a way of lecturing the young ones in his jerky fashion upon the necessity for clean hands as well as pure hearts, and used to settle their small disputes and administer lectures on loving kindness and fraternity, of which, though the manner flew far above their undeveloped comprehensions, yet the matter seemed to sink into their hearts and may yet bring forth good fruit. There is general lamentation at his announcement that he will return no more, and even the elders miss the quaint, handsome old crank, and the square seems lonely without him.—New York Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Visit of Laurence the Optician.

Mr. B. Laurence, the eminent optician, will be at Mr. J. McKee's drug store on SATURDAY next, Nov. 19th. All who need his services should remember the date. His skill can be availed of without extra charge. It is satisfactory to be able to obtain Laurance's glasses and particularly so to have them adjusted to the requirements of the eye by an expert. 4d117

Joke on the Major.

While Sergt.-Major Rundell was putting a division of the 57th Battalion through their drill at the drill shed on Monday evening, he came to that part where he commanded a "fire!" The men levelled their rifles and click went the hammers, and with them a loud report which almost took the Major off his feet. It was fortunate that it was only a blank cartridge that happened to be in the rifle.

Keeping Out the Weather.

Messrs. Breeze & Bain, of Peterborough, having received the contract for covering the roofs of the new Midland Railway station and baggage room at Midland with metallic shingles, Mr. Breeze with a corps of assistants went up to the lake port on Monday and commenced the job. It will be finished—favorable weather given—this week. Score another win for Peterborough enterprize.

A Locomotive Smashed.

A Midland Railway engine came to grief at Port Hope on Monday. It was going out with the train when the pins of the driving rods and one of the cylinder heads broke. The pressure, says the Times, required to draw the heavy train on the wet rails, set the slipping wheels whirling with lightning revolutions. One of the driving rods on the right hand side flew up and tore a slice off the cab; on the other side both bars were wrenched off and the cylinder head burst out. The disabled engine was taken back to the yard. It will be some time before the repairs will be completed.

League of the Cross.

Instead of the usual meeting of this Association a reunion of the Literary and Temperance Societies took place on Monday evening. A debate was held on the question, "Resolved, that intemperance is more destructive to mankind than war." Mr. E D. Gough led on the affirmative side of the question, and was supported by Messrs. O'Meara, Hurley, Roche, and Dr. Collins. The negative was handled by Messrs. Sheehy, Henry, Hoolihan, Hackett and Dr. Brennan. The Chairman, Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle, summed up the evidence, and after commenting on the style and language of the various speakers, decided that the affirmative was entitled to succeed on the arguments adduced. The subject for debate at the next meeting is, "Resolved, that the American colonies had not sufficient cause for separation from the Mother Country." Messrs. Phelan and Lynch will lead on the affirmative and negative respectively. So far the meetings of these two societies have been very successful, and every meeting witnesses the entrance of a number of new members.

LOT.

His Life Contrasted with Abraham's—Advice Deducted Therefrom.

The series of special addresses to young men which are to be given every night this week in connection with the week of prayer at the Young Men's Christian Association, were opened on Monday evening.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., spoke, having for his subject, "Lot's Choice." In commencement, he pictured Abraham and Lot standing upon a pre-eminence overlooking the country round about the plains of Jordon. Abraham displayed the traits of a true gentleman. The generous and large hearted way in which he gave his nephew the first choice was a worthy example for Christians. Abraham's paramount desire was to do the will of God. Considering the character of Lot, he said that, although he had been trained under Abraham, he did not develop the same traits. He chose what seemed to be for his own material, worldly interests. That was his character. How many Lots there were to-day; how few Abrahams! He spoke of the evil consequences of Lot's choice. The final consequence was Lot's property and family were lost, and Lot was compelled to make his home in a cave.

The practical lessons he drew from the life of Lot was that young men should exercise wisdom in the choice of business. They should not chose a business which would hinder the development of a noble character. In the selection of associates they should chose none but those who would encourage a pure and upright life. In conclusion he contrasted the results of the choice of Lot and those of the choice of Abraham, and quoted the Matthew vi, 33—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

The President of the Association, Mr. Roger, occupied the chair.

The Secretary announced that the meetings would be continued each evening except Wednesday. The subject for to-night will be "The Rich Young Ruler."

Evening Entertainment.

An entertainment was given in the bright cheery school room in connection with St. Luke's Church on Monday evening. The first piece on the programme was a piano duet by Mrs. Bain and Mrs. E. A. Peck. It was given in a mannershowing the pianistes to be possessed of more than ordinary ability. The vocal solo, "The Soldiers' Good Bye," by Mrs. Bowman, was pleasingly sung and much appreciated. Mr. M. Dunn's song, "You'll Remember Me," won loud and continued applause, which he acknowledged by singing "Committed to the Deep." Miss E. Tivey sang "The Lighthouse Light." Miss Tivey has a sweet soprano voice and her appearance in public in the future will be looked forward to with pleasure by those who heard her on Monday evening. The Duet "Drift My Bark" by Miss Vair and Miss Cottingham received merited applause. The vocalists were even interrupted with applause while singing, so much were they appreciated. "Love's old Sweet Song" was sung by Miss Strickland, evoking a hearty encore. Mr. Chas. Brown read a humours selection entitled "The Irishman's Panorama," creating much amusement. Master W. Bowman sang "Rock-a-bye-Baby." The song was well received. The duet by Miss Tivey and Mr. Tierney "Hope Beyond" was exceedingly pretty and so well given that a repetition was demanded. Miss Cottingham sang "Gates of the West," which gave scope for her voice of remarkable compass. A decided encore was accorded her but she declined to respond. The vocal solo "I am Waiting" by Mr. M. Tierney, given in fine style, concluded the programme.

The Union.

The committee appointed by the Town Council to arrange with the Ashburnham Council in regard to the uniting of Ashburnham with the town, went over to the village on Monday evening, but owing to a misunderstanding no meeting of the council was held. The preliminary arrangements toward carrying out the union idea is as follows:—There will have to be a meeting of the committee and the Ashburnham Council to arrange a basis of union; the councils of the two municipalities will have to agree, and a union may be effected by an Order-in-Council. It is not intended to make the town a city; if an arrangement is come to it will merely make the town a bigger town. The Reeve of Ashburnham signifies his willingness to meet the committee at any convenient time to hear their preparation of a basis of union.

Thanksgiving Services.

A union Thanksgiving service under the auspices of the congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist Churches will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday at 11 o'clock.

On Wednesday evening at half past seven o'clock a service will be held in St. John's Church. On Thursday Holy Communion will be administered at 8.30 and a Thanksgiving service at 11 a. m.

At St. Luke's Church there will be public services on Thursday at 11.30 and again at 7.30 p. m.

Otonabee Lodge I. O. O. F.

The entertainment of Otonabee Lodge I. O.O.F. was fixed at the meeting of the Lodge on Monday for Friday, December 9th. The anniversary of the resuscitation of Otonabee Lodge is December 8th, but the change was made out of brotherly courtesy to Peterborough Lodge I.O.O.F., which has a meeting on the former date.

THE AUTUMN ASSIZES.

HIS LORDSHIP CHIEF JUSTICE ARMOUR ON THE BENCH.

The Grand Jury and His Lordship's Address—Only One Criminal Case—The Bar.

The Autumn Assizes opened at the Court House at nine o'clock this morning, His Lordship Chief Justice Armour presiding.

The names of the gentlemen composing the Grand Jury are as follows:—

Andrew McNeil, Foreman.

| | |
|---|---|
| Robert Burgess, | M. Brackenridge, |
| John Coughlin, | Alex. Drummond, |
| Hugh Davidson, | George Elliott, |
| Joseph Edwards, | John M. Fife, |
| John Garbutt, | Edward Hawthorne, |
| David H. Moore, | George Nelson, |
| Richard Meade, | Robert Neill, |
| James Richmond, | Walter Scott, |
| W. W. Johnston, | W. B. Kelly, |
| Arch. R. Kidd, | Sparham Sheldrake, |
| D. J. Parker, | E. Foley. |

HIS LORDSHIP addressed the Grand Jury. The duties which they had to perform were very light. There was only one case which demanded their investigation and that was a forgery case. He explained the nature of the crime, pointing out that a person might be found guilty of forgery even though he did not negotiate the forged instrument. If the jury were satisfied that there was an intention to defraud they would be justified in bringing in a verdict of "guilty." In this case, however, they had not to look into the case from that point of view, as this boy had negotiated the forged instrument; therefore the intent to defraud was apparent. The only other duty they would have to perform was that of visiting the county gaol and examine its condition. They should see that no persons were illegally confined. They should see that those confined there were properly treated. They should see that the sanitary conditions were such as not to endanger the health of the prisoners. They should also see that the cells were safe, being adaquate for the safe custody of prisoners confined in them. When they reported to him he would have much pleasure in discharging them.

The Grand Jury retired.

A BENCH WARRANT.

Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, asked for a bench warrant for the apprehension of Peter Warner, who was before this court on a charge of perjury previously and was released on his own recognisances to appear when called on. He was not now to be found. The warrant was granted.

THE BAR.

The bar was represented at the opening of the court by the following:—Messrs. Geo. T. Blackstock, Toronto; John A. Barron, Lindsay; T. Titus, Brighton; R. Clute and J. Kearns, Belleville; and R. E. Wood, D. W. Dumble, C. J. Leonard, Geo. Edmison, C. W. Sawers, W. A. Stratton, J. O'Meara, W. J. Bennett and John Green, Peterborough.

TRUE BILL.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Robt. Howland this forenoon, after having examined several witnesses.

TO-DAY'S BUSINESS.

The case, O'Shea vs. King, occupied the attention of the court till about three o'clock this afternoon. The case, Johnston vs. Johnston, was taken up when the jury retired.

THE NEW PASTOR.

The Rev. S. J. Shorey Accepts the Charlotte Street Church Call.

A telegram received to-day from the Rev S. J. Shorey, of the Sherbourne Street Methodist Church, Toronto, accepting the call given to him by the Charlotte Street Methodist Church here, is in the hands of Mr. Wm. Cluxton, the Recording Steward.

The Rev. Mr. Shorey will commence his ministry next June. He is a man of excellent ability, a fact that is recognised by his having had several calls in his hands when chosing that extended by the Charlotte Street Church congregation.

The Charlotte Street Church congregation is to be congratulated upon securing a pastor who will not fail to give the utmost satisfaction.

Personal.

On Saturday evening, says the Port Hope Times, while quietly reading at his home, the Rev. W. E. Cooper was attacked by what was at first feared was apoplexy. Medical assistance was summoned, and after careful attention the patient is able to sit up, and it is hoped that a few days will be sufficient for his recovery.

The Rev. W. J. West, formerly of Lakefield, who was left without a station at the last conference at his own request, has been admitted a full member of the New York Conference and is stationed at Rush, eleven miles from Rochester. His appointment is said to be a good one.

The Dominion Oddfellow says:—"While in Peterborough the Grand Secretary was the guest of Bro. James Stevenson, Mayor, and Mrs. Stevenson, where he was most hospitably entertained. Mayor Stevenson is one of Peterborough's indispensable citizens, and a most worthy incumbent of the civic chair."

Mr. D. J. Lynch, Campbellford, formerly of Peterborough, is in town in attendance at court. He is engaged on the McNaughton-Wier case.

Judge Armour's Promotion.

The New York Sun says:—"We learn that the Hon. John Douglas Armour, long a member of the Court of Queen's Bench in Ontario, has been promoted to be Chief Justice of that court. We take a special interest in this event from the fact that Judge Armour is related through marriage to a distinguished member of the bar in this city. Mrs. Grosvenor P. Lowrey being his daughter."

An Ardent Chevalier.

One of the Chevaliers of Canton Peterborough, No. 10, travels about 30 miles every time he attends drill here, and, of course, the same distance on returning. The worthy chevalier is Mr. J. B. Ferris, of Campbellford.

Blank Books.

Business men are asked to bear in mind that the REVIEW bindery is turning out the very best description of work in all lines of account books and ledgers. All orders finished up with despatch. Customers can select their own papers from a large and well assorted stock, and have any special ruling desired. d108eod

A Masonic Adieu.

The Port Perry Observer of Nov. 10th contains a column account of a complimentary supper tendered to Mr. G. S. Miller, who is now in Messrs. Rush Bros.' store, on the eve of his departure for Peterborough. The company was, the Observer says, all that could be desired and the spread was one of those enjoyable affairs which never fail to please. The usual loyal toasts were honored, and the chairman proposed the guest of the evening in telling and complimentary language, referring to Bro. Miller's many good qualities as an energetic and valuable townsman, an active, successful and popular business man, but above all as an esteemed and worthy Mason. The toast was enthusiastically received, Bro. Prince leading in "He's a jolly-good fellow." Mr. Miller made a suitable reply. While he could not leave Port Perry without regret, he was pleased at the thought of moving to Peterborough, one of the most prosperous and enterprising towns in the Dominion. Several other brethren followed, all speaking in the highest terms of Bro. Miller as an honorable and valued townsman and worthy Mason, all wishing him and his family continued prosperity and happiness.

Local Brevities.

—Some Port Hopers are so anxious to hear Mrs. Scott-Siddons that they have arranged to go to Cobourg on a freight train for that purpose.

—Gentlement engaged in shingling houses the last few days have had what Mr. Mantilini termed a "moist and unpleasant time of it."

—Rubber overcoats, umbrellas and water tight boots ornament the door posts of shops. Peterborough merchants can bring out stocks to suit any weather on shortest notice.

—A quantity of very moist, unpleasant snow fell on Monday night. This fact is no doubt apparent to most people, but some folks pay so little attention to the weather that a reminder may save trouble.

—On Monday Mr. Hall, employed at Breeze & Bain's shop, had the misfortune to slip while coming down the staircase carrying a load of goods and sprained his left ankle. It is hoped he will be able to get about in a short time.

—His Lordship Justice Armour, in addressing the Grand Jury this morning, advised them to see that the persons who were confined in gaol were properly treated. His Lordship ought to be more circumspect. Perhaps there might have been members of the Anti-Treating Society on the Jury, and besides this is a Scott Act county.

—The regular weekly meeting of the Y. P. A. was held at the Methodist Sunday School rooms on Monday night. After routine matters had been disposed of Mr. Mulligan gave a stirring song, Miss Allen a vocal solo, and Mr. A. Clegg contributed a reading. An interesting Bible reading followed, conducted by Mr. Griffin, Superintendent of the school, and which was participated in by many of the members present. A vocal solo by Miss Butcher, a reading by Mr. Scott, and a song by Mr. Jaques finished the excellent programme, after which the meeting closed.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The flowers spoke all summer as they chose:
They said in colors what they sweetest thought.
They seized the jeweled dews, light's latest glows,
And into living signs swift splendor wrought.

All summer long the flowers! The leaves—the leaves,
They were the slaves; they had no word to say.
They wore the russet livery, and pale sheaves,
Gathered for grain, were not more mute than they.

But reckless winds at last the flowers killed;
They withered into rags upon their stalks;
And then the leaves, too, felt their firm hearts chilled.
Yet—hush! The dying forest nobly talks:

"Oh, slaves have passion. The dumb leaves of toil
Accept not life ignobly—no, nor death.
They show their colors!" Autumn's air and soil
Burn with inspiration of their breath.

THE RICH YOUNG RULER.

Special Addresses to Young Men—The Rev. Mr. Bell Delivers a Telling Address

In the Association Hall on Tuesday evening the series of special meetings in connection with the Y.M.C.A. were continued. Mr. H. S. Griffin occupied the chair, and after the usual opening exercises introduced the Rev. Alex. Bell, of St. Andrew's Church, who spoke from the subject of the "Rich Young Ruler."

He said it might be difficult for most of us to understand fully the difficulty that was on the young man's mind in coming to Christ, as he was rich and most of us probably thought we would get on even better if we had a little more of this world's goods. The incident from which he was to speak was recorded in Mark 10, commencing at the 17th verse. The preceding verses of the chapter showed the mothers bringing their children to be blessed. This young ruler perhaps standing near by became interested in this new prophet. Look at the young man: He was young, rich, respected by his fellow citizens and was a ruler. His character was alright—Jesus Christ did not charge him with an untruth, when he said "All these things have I observed from my youth up." So far as represented to us everything was favorable. His question, "Good master, what good thing must I do to inherit Eternal Life?" It did not come out that he believed in Christ as God. His manner towards Him was patronizing. The answer Christ made was, "If thou will be perfect, go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come an follow me." He wanted Life Eternal. Christ now puts him to the test. Was there ever such a test before? Yes, the father of their nation, Abraham, had forsaken lands, friends and all, and gone out not knowing whither he went, simply to do God's will. We are told the young man went away sorrowful because he had great possessions, grieved because he could not get Eternal Life, but would have been more grieved to have given up his possessions. Money was his stumbling block, covetousness his sin. In referring to his morality Mr. Bell said it was not sufficient for Eternity. Christ required of all who became his followers a whole hearted surrender and if they kept anything back he would not receive them. He presented the following code of morals in conclusion.

1. Have no attachment to the world but in proportion to the short duration of life.
2. Serve God with all that fervor which the need thou hast of Him deserves.
3. Labor for the other Life that awaits thee and consider the time it must endure.
4. Strive to escape the fire out of which if once cast in ye can never escape.
5. If thou hast temerity enough to sin measure beforehand the strength thou shall require to endure the fire of hell and the chastisement of God.
6. When thou wishest to transgress seek for a place where God cannot see thee.

The next address will be Thursday evening, Thanksgiving Day. Subject, "Absalom."

THE RICHEST IN THE WORLD.

The Recently Discovered Gold Mine Near Prescott, Arizona.

PRESCOTT, Arizona, Nov. 15.—Private advices go to show that the recently discovered gold mine ten miles from here, on the Nassayannia river, is richer by far than anything ever discovered in the world. The ore averages 1,000 per ton, and thousands of tons are in sight. Two men with a common mortar pounded out 100 in less than one hour. The gold clings to the rock in the purest scales. A man with a knife can scale a handful in a few minutes. There is every indication of the ledge containing fabulous wealth. This river has produced millions in years past in placer mining, and on one occasion a pocket was found which yielded $100,000 in a few weeks. People are flocking there in great numbers.

MORE DEVELOPMENTS.

Hon. M. Wilson Obtained Hundreds of Thousands of Francs.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Before the Investigating Committee, yesterday, M. Rochefort testified that Madame Selliere complained to him that M. Wilson got 200,000 francs from her husband for engineering him military contracts, and that 700,000 francs were paid for a contract for rugs; also that the Viscountess Frederne bribed M. Wilson with 600,000 francs to obtain judgment against her husband. M. Portalis testified that he had the Selliere cheque for the rugs contract, and that it was endorsed by M. Wilson, who had not questioned its authority.

The Siecle publishes documents showing that Leon Grevy, the nephew of the President, offered to procure a position on the Credit Foncier for a retired notary, M. Grougeon, for 15,000 francs. The notary paid the money, but failed to obtain the position. He brought an action against Leon Grevy to recover the money, but the matter was settled before it came into court.

THE DEAD ANARCHISTS.

The Amnesty Society and the Defence Committee to Join Forces.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—It is announced that the amnesty society and the defence committee will join forces and assume the responsibility of providing for the families of the dead anarchists, and a permanent fund will be started for that purpose. There will be, after a final accounting of the expenses of the funeral, a surplus of about $1500 or $2000 in the hands of the defence committee, which will form a nucleus for them to start the fund with. It is intended to make the new organization national in extent. There is another object in establishing this fund. One of the leaders yesterday said he expected there would be more money required for purposes of defence. He did not expect that the prosecutions would stop here, but thought that others, who made themselves conspicious in the movement, would be prosecuted under various charges, and that would necessitate a permanent defence fund.

THE CROWN PRINCE

To Submit to an Operation—Dr. Mackenzie to Perform it.

SAN REMO, Nov. 15.—Before leaving for London yesterday, Dr. Mackenzie reported that the cancerous growth in the Crown Prince's throat was still very small. He denied that the trouble was due to excessive smoking, and concurs in the doctrine that the germ of cancer is born with the individual. The growth, as yet, does not impede respiration. The Crown Prince has decided to submit to an operation. Dr. Mackenzie will perform it.

A despatch to the Neue Frie Presse of Vienna from San Remo says the tumor in the Crown Prince's throat has disappeared but is expected to return. The congestion is less and there is no pain in swallowing.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—It is reported that the Crown Prince, on being approached on the subject of the proposed operation on his throat, said: "As long as the Kaiser lives I shall not submit to an operation. I prefer to let my old father have some hope and I will not risk hastening a catastrophe by undergoing a dangerous operation." The Pope has written the Crown Prince Frederick William expressing his earnest wishes for the Prince's recovery. Prof. Schroeter states that the Crown Prince may live for four or five years after the operation of tracheotomy.

UTICA, N.Y., Nov. 15.—Engine 496, drawing a live stock train east on the Central Hudson, exploded at Palatin Bridge at 8.50 a.m. to-day, killing the fireman, John Gingrees, of Albany, and severely injured the engineer, William Mitchell, also of Albany. The engineer is conscious and at last account it was thought he had a good chance of recovery.

Disastrous Gale.

PORT TOWNSEND, W. T., Nov. 15.—On Saturday and Sunday a gale raged here. Several vessels were wrecked. Two steamers filled and sank. Another was driven ashore and totallly wrecked. ### IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. C. Young, departed this life, Wednesday, Nov. 9th, 1887. Requiescat in pace.

And art thou gone, no more to dwell among us,
To cheer our lot, to soften sorrow, pain?
Will thou no more our daily labor lighten?
Oh art thou gone, ne'er to return again?

How sad 'twill be to miss thy loving features!
Our hearts will feel a loss time cannot heal,
The dire agony of parting from our loved one,
God's wisdom hath permitted us to feel.

"Fiat voluntas tua," our only consolation,
That will which made of thee an angel pure;
A grand sweet thought which lightens our great burden,
And fits us all life's trials to endure.

Farewell to thee, fond wife and loving mother,
Farewell, to meet around God's heavenly throne;
May we but follow in His guiding footsteps,
And reap the fruit His heavenly hand hath sown.

A BANK SUSPENSION.

The Central Bank, a Toronto Institution, Closes Its Doors.

At a meeting of the directors of the Central Bank, held on Tuesday evening in Toronto, it was decided to suspend for the present. The announcement made by them was as follows:—

"TORONTO, Nov. 15.—In consequence of the present money stringency the Central Bank has not been able to realize on its assets promptly enough to meet immediate demands upon it, it has, therefore, for the present, suspended payment. By order of the Board,

"A. A. ALLEN, Cashier."

At a meeting of the managers of the other banks doing business in Toronto the following resolution was adopted:—"Owing to there not being time to acquire information sufficient to estimate the amount of assistance necessary to aid the Central Bank, the meeting approves of the decision of the directors of the Central Bank to suspend in the meantime in order to enable them to realize on their assets."

According to the last official statement of the bank's affairs, there was a surplus of assets over liabilities of $390,453.

The officers of the Central are: David Blain, President, Samuel Trees, Vice-President; H. P. Dwight, A. McLean Howard, C. Blackett Robinson, K. Chisholm, M. P. P., D. Mitchell MacDonald, Directors, and A. Allen, Cashier. The head offices of the bank are in Toronto, with branches in Brampton, Durham, Guelph, Port Perry, Richmond Hill and Sault St. Marie. Agencies were also opened in Chicago, New York, and London, England.

Less than a month ago Central stock ran from 104 to 106. On Oct. 24th it fell to 100, and on Oct. 25th to 27th, dropping rapidly to 94¾ on Oct. 28th, and on Nov. 1 stood at 92¼. After that came a rally, the stock jumping to 96 on Nov. 2nd and reaching 98 on Nov. 4th. Since that date there was but little fluctuation, except a later decline to 95 on Saturday last. Disquieting rumors ran the stock down to 91 on Monday, and on Tuesday came the break, the ex-dividend stock selling at 84 and closing at 82, with a still further lowering in anticipation of Tuesday. Central, it may be said, has always been a stock somewhat easy to depress but quick to rally.

Divorces in High Life.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The World says that Mrs. Amos L. Hopkins and Mrs. Fernendo Ysnaga, prominent members of New York society, are in San Francisco for the purpose of acquiring legal residence there, preparatory to securing divorces from their husbands. Mr. Hopkins is vice-president of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company. Mrs. Ysnaga is a sister of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and her husband is a brother of Lady Mandeville.

An Unsavory Character.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Detective Jas. Bonfield, brother of the captain who commanded the police at the Haymarket, pronounces Howell Trogden, the man that persisted in carrying the Stars and Stripes in front of the Anarchist funeral, a worthless, lying loafer, who itches for notoriety. Bonfield says Trogden was at one time used by the police as a "pigeon" to associate with thieves and betray them.

Fresh Disorder Expected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The Herald's London special says it is certain that fresh disorder will come, and a new attempt will be made to hold a meeting in Trafalgar Square next Sunday. JOHN MORLEY'S PREDICTION.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Mr. John Morley spoke at Edinburgh last evening. He defied anybody to say that the Liberals were not a million times more likely to win now than they were a year ago. A year ago, he said, the Liberals were trying to reconcile the Unionists, but they had since found that the Unionists were trying to ensnare them, and to find a pretext for knocking the bottom out of their policy. He ventured to predict that the Unionists would win no more seats.

Newfoundland Mail Service.

Mr. Josh Wood, of Halifax, had an interview with the Deputy Minister of Marine. He states that he has made arrangements for building two fine composite steamers at Dumbarton, on the Clyde, for performing the mail service on the coast of Newfoundland under a contract with the Newfoundland Government, and also for carrying mails and passengers in the winter months between Halifax and Newfoundland. The vessels are to be of 750 tons gross register, and will be built with all modern improvements and strengthened in the best manner for contending with ice, at a cost of $75,000 each. The mail contract with the Newfoundland Government will extend over twelve years. Mr. Wood left for Toronto to interview Mr. Cockburn, M. P., and those Toronto merchants who are interested in the opening up of direct steamship communication between Halifax and the West Indies.

A Cool Customer.

Col. Grant relates that Gen. Custer once met in this city a noted cavalry officer who was a good writer and talker, and who was delivering a lecture on Gettysburg after the war. Handing Custer a couple of tickets for the lecture, the cavalryman remarked: "I hope you will come, for I describe all the cavalry movements in that fight. By the way, I transfer your brigade from the right wing, where it did operate, to the left wing and mass it with my brigade; it makes the story more imposing you know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Disastrous Fire in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Nov. 15.—Fire last night destroyed the station of the Culvers, Prospect Park and Coney Island Railroad, the stables of the Vanderbilt avenue horse car line, a large quantity of feed, rolling stock and 127 horses; loss $300,000, partially insured. The two three story buildings on the opposite side of 9th avenue were also destroyed, and many poor people lost all they had. The origin of the fire is not known.

A Compliment to Canada.

It is understood that Mr. Cunningham Stewart, superintendent of the money order branch of the Postoffice Department, has prolonged his stay in England one week longer at the request of the Imperial authorities, who desire information relative to the working of our postoffice savings bank system. They say it is better conducted than that of any other country in the postal union.

THE POWER OF DISALLOWANCE.

In the resolutions of the Quebec conference it is recognized that some authority independent of the legislatures should have power to veto provincial legislation. This power has since confederation rested with the Dominion Executive, but those present at the conference are dissatisfied—since 1878, when their friends ceased to exercise the power—with it remaining as fixed by the British North America Act.

As it is not argued by any party that the veto power should be abolished, but the conference asks that it be transferred to the Imperial authorities. Arguments in favor of the provision used at the time of confederation would not apply to such a change. Speaking in the Legislative Assembly in 1864 the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie said:—

"The veto power is necessary in order that the general government may have control over the proceedings of the local legislatures to a certain extent. The want of this power was the great source of weakness in the United States, and it is a want that will be remedied by an amendment to their constitution very soon. So long as each state considered itself sovereign, whose acts and laws could not be called in question, it was quite clear that the central authority was destitute of power to compel obedience to general laws. If each province were able to enact such laws as it pleased, everybody would be at the mercy of the local legislatures, and the general legislature would become of little importance."

This extract is reproduced, not so much because it contains the words of a Reform leader as because it gives weighty reasons why the veto power was given to the Dominion authorities and why it should be retained. The Hon. George Brown said:—

"But in truth the scheme now before us has all the advantages of a legislative union and a federal one as well. We have thrown over on the localities all the questions which experience has shown lead directly to local jealousy and discord, and we have retained in the hands of the general Government all the powers necessary to secure a strong and efficient administration of public affairs. * * * * * * * By vesting the appointment of the Lieutenant-Governors in the General Government, and giving a veto for all local measures, we have secured that no injustice shall be done without appeal in local legislation."

If the alterations proposed by the conference ever have to be decided on by the electors, the question will be, whether they would prefer to have the Imperial authorities in London, Eng., reviewing all provincial legislation and disallowing what they saw fit, or to have the veto power remain as where it is now. If the Imperial authorities have the power to and do disallow provincial acts the people of Canada would have no way of reversing their decision; but as the law is now, should a Canadian government wrongly exercise the power of disallowance the people can call it to account at the polls.

---

During the month of October the Dominion debt was reduced by $256,628. The revenue for the first four months of the financial year exceeds the expenditure by $2,328,829. The arrivals of a good class of immigrants this year has been larger than last year. With a decreasing debt, a good balance on the right side of the ledger, and an increasing population, the outlook is not as blue as some artists paint it.

---

Sir Lyon Playfair argued at Boston that the tendency of trade restrictions was to destroy the good feeling between nations, and his argument has been endorsed by a leading organ in Canada of Commercial Union. Yet we are asked to believe that increasing the restriction of trade with Great Britain will draw Canada closer to that country.

---

Mr. Laurier hesitates to pronounce in favor of Commercial Union because he is not sure that it would be consistent with our relations with England. Mr. Laurier opposed the National Policy on the ground that it was disloyal, and the proposed Union would not only tax British goods but actually discriminate against them.

---

The pretence that the Quebec conference was not a party move is being dropped. Mr. Laurier rejoices in the adoption of the resolutions, because he says he "sees in them a brilliant future for"—the country? Not at all, but for—"the party."

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

Ayer's Pills,

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

"I stand alone in my position," he said, "and I am not ashamed of repeating it in anybody's hearing. I consider the Countess Narona to be a cruelly treated woman. Why shouldn't she be Lord Montbarry's wife? Who can say she has a mercenary motive in marrying him?"

Montbarry's brother turned sharply on the speaker. "I say it!" he answered.

The reply might have shaken some men. The lawyer stood on his ground firmly as ever.

"I believe I am right," he rejoined, "in stating that his lordship's income is not more than sufficient to support his station in life; also that it is an income derived almost entirely from landed property in Ireland, every acre of which is entailed."

Montbarry's brother made a sign, admitting that he had no objection to offer so far.

"If his lordship dies first," the lawyer proceeded, "I have been informed that the only provision he can make for his widow consists in a rent charge on the property of no more than £800 a year. His retiring pension and allowances, it is well known, die with him. Four hundred a year is therefore all that he can leave to the countess, if he leaves her a widow."

"Four hundred a yea. is not all," was the reply to this. "My brother has insured his life for £10,000; and he has settled the whole of it on the countess, in the event of his death."

This announcement produced a strong sensation. Men looked at each other and repeated the three startling words, "Ten thousand pounds!". Driven fairly to the wall, the lawyer made a last effort to defend his position.

"May I ask who made that settlement a condition of the marriage?" he said. "Surely it was not the countess herself?"

Henry Westwick answered, "It was the countess' brother;" and added, "which comes to the same thing."

After that there was no more to be said—so long, at least, as Montbarry's brother was present. The talk flowed into other channels, and the doctor went home.

But his morbid curiosity about the countess was not set at rest yet. In his leisure moments he found himself wondering whether Lord Montbarry's family would succeed in stopping the marriage after all. And more than this, he was conscious of a growing desire to see the infatuated man himself. Every day, during the brief interval before the wedding, he looked in at the club, on the chance of hearing some news. Nothing had happened, so far as the club knew. The countess' position was secure; Montbarry's resolution to be her husband was unshaken. They were to be married in the chapel at Spanish place. So much the doctor discovered about them—and no more.

On the day of the wedding, after a feeble struggle with himself, he actually sacrificed his patients and their guineas, and slipped away secretly to see the marriage. To the end of his life he was angry with anybody who reminded him of what he had done on that day!

The wedding was strictly private. A close carriage stood at the church door; a few people, mostly of the lower class, and mostly old women, were scattered about the interior of the building. Here and there Dr. Wybrow detected the faces of some of his brethren of the club, attracted by curiosity, like himself. Four persons only stood before the altar—the bride and bridegroom and their two witnesses. One of these last was a faded looking woman, who might have been the countess' companion or maid; the other was undoubtedly her brother, Baron Rivar. The bridal party (the bride herself included) wore their ordinary morning costume. Lord Montbarry, personally viewed, was a middle aged military man of the ordinary type; nothing in the least remarkable distinguished him either in face or figure. Baron Rivar, again, in his way, was another conventional representative of another well known type. One sees his finely pointed mustache, his bold eyes, his crisply curling hair, and his dashing carriage of the head repeated hundreds of times over on the boulevards of Paris. The only noteworthy point about him was of the negative sort. He was not in the least like his sister. Even the officiating priest was only a harmless, humble looking old man, who went through his duties resignedly, and felt visible rheumatic difficulties every time he bent his knees. The one remarkable person, the countess herself, only raised her veil at the beginning of the ceremony, and presented nothing in her plain dress that was worth a second look. Never, on the face of it, was there a less interesting and less romantic marriage than this. From time to time the doctor glanced round at the door or up at the galleries, vaguely anticipating the appearance of some protesting stranger, in possession of some terrible secret, commissioned to forbid the progress of the service. Nothing in the shape of an event occurred—nothing extraordinary, nothing dramatic. Bound fast together as man and wife, the two disappeared, followed by their witnesses, to sign the registers; and still Dr. Wybrow waited, and still he cherished the obstinate hope that something worth seeing must certainly happen yet.

The interval passed, and the married couple, returning to the church, walked together down the nave to the door. Dr. Wybrow drew back as they approached. To his confusion and surprise, the countess discovered him. He heard her say to her husband, "One moment, I see a friend." Lord Montbarry bowed and waited. She stepped up to the doctor, took his hand, and wrung it hard. He felt her overpowering black eyes looking at him through her veil. "One step more, you see, on the way to the end!" She whispered those strange words, and returned to her husband. Before the doctor could recover himself and follow her, Lord and Lady Montbarry had stepped into their carriage, and had driven away.

Outside the church door stood the three or four members of the club, who, like Dr. Wybrow, had watched the ceremony out of curiosity. Near them was the bride's brother, waiting alone. He was evidently bent on seeing the man whom his sister had spoken to, in broad daylight. His bold eyes rested on the doctor's face, with a momentary flash of suspicion in them. The cloud suddenly cleared away; the baron smiled with charming courtesy, lifted his hat to his sister's friend, and walked off.

The members constituted themselves into a club conclave on the church steps. They began with the baron. "Damned ill looking rascal!" They went on with Montbarry. "Is he going to take that horrid woman with him to Ireland?" "Not he! he can't face the tenantry; they know about Agnes Lockwood." "Well, but where is he going?" "To Scotland." "Does she like that?" "It's only for a fortnight; they come back to London, and go abroad." "And they will never return to England, eh?" "Who can tell? Did you see how she looked at Montbarry, when she had to lift her veil at the beginning of the service? In his place, I should have bolted. Did you see her, doctor?" By this time, Dr. Wybrow had remembered his patients, and had heard enough of the club gossip. He followed the example of Baron Rivar, and walked off.

"One step more, you see, on the way to the end," he repeated to himself, on his way home. "What end?"

CHAPTER IV.

On the day of the marriage Agnes Lockwood sat alone in the little drawing room of her London lodgings, burning the letters which had been written to her by Montbarry in the bygone time.

The countess' maliciously smart description of her, addressed to Dr. Wybrow, had not even hinted at the charm that most distinguished Agnes—the artless expression of goodness and purity which instantly attracted every one who approached her. She looked by many years younger than she really was. With her fair complexion and her shy manner it seemed only natural to speak of her as a "girl," although she was now really advancing toward 30 years of age. She lived alone with an old nurse devoted to her, on a modest little income, which was just enough to support the two. There were none of the ordinary signs of grief in her face, as she slowly tore the letters of her false lover in two and threw the pieces into the small fire which had been lighted to consume them. Unhappily for herself, she was one of those women who feel too deeply to find relief in tears. Pale and quiet, with cold, trembling fingers, she destroyed the letters one by one without daring to read them again. She had torn the last of the series, and was still shrinking from throwing it after the rest into the swiftly destroying flame, when the old nurse came in and asked if she would see "Master Henry"—meaning that youngest member of the Westwick family, who had publicly declared his contempt for his brother in the smoking room of the club.

Agnes hesitated. A faint tinge of color stole over her face.

There had been a long past time when Henry Westwick had owned that he had loved her. She had made her confession to him, acknowledging that her heart was given to his eldest brother. He had submitted to his disappointment; and they had met thereafter as cousins and friends. Never before had she associated the idea of him with embarrassing recollections. But now, on the very day when his brother's marriage to another woman had consummated his brother's treason toward her, there was something vaguely repellent in the prospect of seeing him. The old nurse (who remembered them both in their cradles) observed her hesitation; and sympathizing, of course, with the man, put in a timely word for Henry. "He says he's going away, my dear; and he only wants to shake hands, and say goodby." This plain statement of the case had its effect. Agnes decided on receiving her cousin.

He entered the room so rapidly that he surprised her in the act of throwing the fragments of Montbarry's last letter into the fire. She hurriedly spoke first.

"You are leaving London very suddenly, Henry. Is it business or pleasure?"

Instead of answering her, he pointed to the flaming letter, and to some black ashes of burned paper lying lightly in the lower part of the fireplace.

"Are you burning letters?"

"Yes."

"His letters?"

"Yes."

He took her hand gently.

"I had no idea I was intruding on you, at a time when you must wish to be alone. Forgive me, Agnes—I shall see you when I return."

She signed to him, with a faint smile, to take a chair.

"We have known one anotner since we were children," she said. "Why should I feel a foolish pride about myself in your presence? Why should I have any secrets from you? I sent back all your brother's gifts to me some time ago. I have been advised to do more, to keep nothing that can remind me of him—in short, to burn the letters. I have taken the advice; but I own I shrunk a little from destroying the last of the letters. No—not because it was the last, but because it had this in it." She opened her hand, and showed him a lock of Montbarry's hair, tied with a morsel of golden cord. "Well, well; let it go with the rest!"

She dropped it into the flame. For awhile she stood with her back to Henry, leaning on the mantel piece and looking into the fire. He took the chair to which she had pointed, with a strange contradiction of expression in his face; the tears were in his eyes, while the brows above were knit close in an angry frown. He muttered to himself:

"Damn him!"

She rallied her courage and looked at him again when she spoke.

Gentlemen with Bald Heads

should not miss the opportunity offered by Prof. Dorenwend to get a nice wig or toupee. He will be at Phelan's Hotel on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 21st and 22nd, where he invites all to call and see his improved coverings for bald heads. w45d115

George Mill's Will.

The will of the late Geo. Mills, who committed suicide a short time ago in Ashburnham, has gone through the usual legal course. It provides that all of his property amounting to about $600 shall go to his son George Mills by his first wife and that his first wife be guardian of his son till the latter is of age.

Visit of Laurence the Optician.

Mr. B. Laurence, the eminent optician, will be at Mr. J. McKee's drug store on SATURDAY next, Nov. 19th. All who need his services should remember the date. His skill can be availed of without extra charge. It is satisfactory to be able to obtain Laurance's glasses and particularly so to have them adjusted to the requirements of the eye by an expert. 4d117

Temperance Meeting.

A meeting of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, branch of the Church of England Temperance Society, was held on Tuesday evening in the school room. There was a good attendance and an attractive programme, comprising a vocal solo by Miss E. Tivey, a reading by Miss Smith; a vocal duet by the Misses Philips and Rombough, a reading by the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw and a vocal duet by the Misses Long and Young. New members are being added at the meetings and the society is flourishing.

Help for Sunday School Workers.

At the late Provincial Sabbath School Convention, held in the city of London, at which five hundred delegates were present from Montreal to Sarnia—four representing the county of Peterborough, three from our town and one from Lakefield—a movement was made for county organization all along the line. At the instance of the Provincial Convention, and with the concurrance of a representation of the superintendents of our schools, it has been decided to call a convention to meet in Peterborough on the 5th of December. A programme is being prepared and will be sent out next week. Some of the foremost workers of the Province will be present from Toronto and the county. Pastors and superintendents should lose no time in appointing their delegates. A helpful time for the workers may be looked for.

Military Inspection.

The 57th Battalion, Peterborough Rangers, will assemble at the drill shed to-morrow afternoon at half-past one o'clock, for the annual inspection, the inspecting officer being Lieut.-Col. Villiers, D. A. G, of this military district. The weather being favorable the Battalion will march to the P A. A. A. grounds.

Thanksgiving Service.

To-morrow (Thursday) there will be thanksgiving service in the Baptist Church at 11 o'clock, and in the evening at 6 o'clock tea will be served in the school room of the church, being the reception to the new pastor, the Rev. P. Clifton Barker, to which all the members of the church and congregation are cordially invited. 1d118

Shaun Rhue.

The San Francisco Alta, speaking of the above play, says:—"The play is a very good one of its class—full of humor, pathos and interesting and sensational situations. It affords an evening of excellent amusement." In the principal role of Larry Donovan Mr. J. S. Murphy has character that fits his varied abilities. He does not fail to render the character in a thoroughly acceptable manner. The supporting cast is good."

M'lle Rhea.

The appearance of M'lle Rhea, the famous French actress, on Saturday evening next, should be an event for theatregoers to anticipate with pleasure. M'lle Rhea has established a reputation as one of the greatest actresses of the day, and her receptions elsewhere are veritable ovations. The Portland Evening Express of Sept. 20th says of M'lle Rhea as Galatea:—"M'lle Rhea's Galatea was excellent. She infused into it much wit, vivacity, fire and pathos. Rhea was created for Galatea. She is a great artist, her expressive physiognomy reflects her every thought. Everything she does is finished. There was a fascination about the performance that is beyond description."

Returned from Europe.

Will be at Phelan's Hotel on Nov. 21 and 22. Prof. Dorenwend has returned from Europe with additional ideas in manufacturing hair goods. He comes here as before stated, and will show all those who lack capilliary adornment that his stock of styles this time eclipses anything yet shown. For tasteful designs and variety, his frontpieces are unequalled. Ladies are invited to call and see the new styles of Bangs, Portland, Amanda, Bithis, Lucy, and others. His stock is enormous, and as he has to make room, has bought his raw materials for cash and at big discounts, and has the most improved methods for manufacturing his goods, he will sell at prices that make it possible for every lady to wear his beautiful styles. Gentlemen with bald heads should not forget to call and see his fine coverings (wigs and toupees) for the head. Remember, at Phelan's Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, Nov 21 and 22. w45d115

Kerry Gow.

Murphy, the well known Irish comedian, commenced his two night engagement at Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday night, appearing in the title role of the popular comedy drama, the Kerry Gow. The cast of characters is as follows:—

Dan O'Hara, the Kerry Gow, Mr. J. S. Murphy
Raymond Drew, a good friend in time of need, Harold Courtenay.
Major Gruff, who hates emotion but admires grit, Harry Sinclair.
Valentine Hay, the Vulture....Ed. Wideman
Mr. O'Driver, who always had a word in season, C. R. Barrows.
Patrick Drew, who always finds experience a stern teacher, Kirk Armstrong.
Dennis Doyle, a good boy in his way.....S. P. Hasher.
Sergeant Bull, a good soldier but uncertain ticker, F. K. Sailer.
Capt. Basil Sidney, firm in duty, sympathetic in distress, D. Brooke.
Nora Drew, who struggles with fate and finds fortune, Miss Virginia Marlowe.
Alice Doyle, a help in more senses than one, Miss Ada Shattuck.
Boy Bill, a Jockey par excellence, Miss Sadie Deane.
Peasants, Soldiers, Jockeys, etc.

The following is a synopsis of the four acts:—

Act I—Drew Farm, Tableau, the Arrest.
Act II—The Prison, Tableau, the Escape.
Act III—The Smithy, Tableau, the Blow.
Act IV—The Dovecot, Tableau, the Race.

It is needless to say that Mr. Murphy took the part of the typical Irishman with correctness, as he has heretofore given the people of Peterborough ample proof of his excellence in that character. On Tuesday evening his drollery of speech and gesticulation, together with his witticisms, kept the audience in constant laughter. Miss Marlow, as Nora Drew, was petite and graceful. Her clever acting won frequent applause. Among the support Mr. Harry Sinclair as Major Gruff, took his part particularly well. The play for to-night is "Shaun Rhue," another popular Irish drama.

TWO DAYS BUSINESS—THE CASES ALL CLEARED OFF.

The Boy Howland Acquitted—Two Cases Referred to the Masters in Chacery —One Case Dismissed—One Settled Out of Court.

The business at the assize court progressed very satisfactorily on Tuesday. The first case brought was that of O'SHEA VS. KING.

Both the plaintiff and the defendant are farmers living in the township of Asphodel. Mr. O'Shea had a nice piece of wood on one side of his farm, which was valuable to him both on account of the timber and the protection it afforded to fall wheat. This piece of wood obstructed the view of the road from Mr. King's house, and frequently the latter had asked the former to cut it down. On the 31st of August last, when the country was as dry as cinder after a protracted term of hot weather, fire got into Mr. King's woods, spread into that of Mr. O'Shea and destroyed it. Mr. O'Shea accused Mr. King of having caused the woods to be set afire and brought this action to recover $500 damages. The defence was that Mr. King had not set the fire, caused it to be set afire, or knew anything about it. The only explanation offered was that a butcher's boy passed that way on the day of the fire and he might possibly have dropped a match. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant. Dumble, for plaintiff; Edmison, for defendant.

JOHNSTON VS. JOHNSTON.

The circumstances of this case are as follows:—In the year 1871 there was litigation between John Johnston, of the township of Ennismore, and his wife, said to have arisen out of family troubles. It was ended by a settlement deed of his farm being given by Mr. Johnston in favor of himself and wife, securing a life competence for each, the remainder of the estate to go to the children by his present (second) wife. In 1879, however, Mr. Johnston gave an absolute deed to his son Michael by his first wife. Since then Michael has had possession of the farm. A short time ago Mr. Johnston died and the children of the second wife brought this action to recover possession of the farm under the settlement of 1871. Michael Johnston put in a claim for improvements which he had made on the farm under mistake of title; and also for a sum of money lent to his father during the last few years. The case was decided without a jury. The court gave judgment in favor of the plaintiffs, possession of the farm to be given up on March 1st, 1888. Nothing was allowed the defendant for improvements or loaned money. Blackstock, counsel, and Stratton, solicitor, for plaintiffs; Dumble & Leonard for defendant.

MUMFORD VS. WARNER.

This case was transferred here from the Cobourg assize court. It was brought by the plaintiff to recover wages due him from the defendant and to recover damages from the defendant for mismanagement of his affairs while in the Northwest. Judgment for plaintiff of $1,149.55. Clute & Titus, for plaintiff. No one appeared for the defence.

PRICE VS. BELLEGHEM.

This was an action brought by the plaintiff, an employee in Mr. Belleghem's furniture factory, to recover $1,000 on account of an accident suffered by the plaintiff while operating at a buz saw. The action was brought under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1886. The case was settled by the parties before it was brought into court, the defendant agreeing to pay the plaintiff wages from August 23rd, the time the accident happened, until now. The settlement caused quite a ripple of fun among the members of the bar at the expense of the lawyers engaged in the case. Blackstock, counsel, and Stone, solicitor, for plaintiff; Osler, Q.C., counsel, and Hatton & Wood, solicitors, for defendant.

DUMBLE VS. MCWILLIAMS.

This action was brought by the executors of the late Thomas Dumble, junior, to set aside a tax deed of a farm in the township of Belmont, on the ground that the sale was illegal. A part of the land in question was assessed to the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Railway in 1881-2-3-4 and a part of it was assessed to the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company in 1884. Besides this, during all these years the entire lot was assessed to another party under Mr. Dumble, so that the property paid taxes three times over. It was put up at a tax sale and was purchased by Mr. J. B. McWilliams. It was stated by the plaintiff that $50 had been offered to Mr. McWilliams to sign a quit claim deed, and that he refused and had deeded the property to Thos. H. Darcy, who is now in Rochester. The plaintiff claimed that the transfer was fraudulent without consideration, being made to harass the plaintiff. The court ordered that Mr. Darcy should be made a party to the suit. Dumble & Leonard for plaintiff; Stratton for defendant.

FAUCHER VS. ERSKINE.

An action brought by D. Faucher against the Erskine estate for illegal distress. The case, on evidence being taken, was dismissed. Edmison, for plaintiff; Hatton & Wood, for defendant.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jury presentment was read this forenoon as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH, 16th Nov., 1887.

The Grand Jury assembled at the Fall Assizes of the county of Peterborough respectfully beg leave to felicitate your Lordship upon your elevation to the highest judicative position in Ontario. We hail with thankfulness the appointment of one so able, just and righteous in judgment, and we beg most respectfully to assure your Lordship that the honor bestowed upon you could not be more highly esteemed or more fully appreciated than by the members comprising this Grand Jury.

In accordance with your Lordship's commands we have inspected the County Gaol and found it scrupulously clean, and in so far as we could judge, it is in a satisfactory sanitary condition.

We regret, however, to have to repeat a complaint previously referred to by Grand Juries, viz., the lack of accommodation for idiots. We find three helpless female idiots confined in the gaol.

We ask that your Lordship communicate to the parties in authority our feelings of regret at the lack of provision for their suitable accommodation, and ask for a speedy removal from their present place of confinement.

A. MCNEIL,
Foreman.

HIS LORDSHIP graciously acknowledged the compliments bestowed upon him by the Grand Jury. In reference to the paragraph referring to the confinement of idiots he stated that he would forward the Grand Jury's presentment to the Provincial Secretary. He said that not only the Peterborough gaol, but those of nearly every place he visited, were used for confining idiots or lunatics. He had no doubt that the Legislature was doing everything in its power to provide proper accommodation, but that pressure from the Grand Jurors would not be amiss. He hoped that before long places would be found to accommodate those suffering people.

IRWIN VS. MANSFIELD.

This was an action brought by James M. Irwin, lumberman, against Michael Mansfield, for alleged trespass. The case was referred by consent to the Master, Judge Weller. Edmison, for plaintiff; Campbell & Brown, for defendant.

RYAN VS. DREW, LEWIS & CO.

An action to recover an account. Referred by consent to the Master in Chancery at Perth. G. T. Cairns, Smith's Falls, for plaintiff; W. B. Carroll, Gananoque, for defendant.

QUEEN VS. HOWLAND.

Robert Howland was brought into Court this forenoon to receive the verdict of the jury. The verdict was returned at eleven o'clock, the foreman declaring the prisoner "not guilty" of the crime imputed, forgery. The evidence went to show that the cheque was misdated, and that it had been June 6th instead of June 7th. It was proved that the boy had returned a considerable amount of money on June 6th, and that the $2 got from the cheque was probably in it. There was no evidence that the boy had made an attempt to defraud. Wood, County Crown Attorney, for the prosecution; O'Meara, for the defence.

FISHERY COMMISSION.

THE BRITISH AND CANADIAN MEMBERS AT WASHINGTON.

Pinkerton Detectives in the Party—Unsuccessful Attempts to Interview Mr. Chamberlain—An Early Meeting of the Commission to be Arranged.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the English member of the Commission which will try to negotiate a treaty to settle the fisheries difficulties, arrived at Washington at 4.30 this afternoon. In his party were W. Maycock, his private secretary, J. H. G. Borgne, head of the Treaties Department in the British Foreign Office, and Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian Commissioner, who joined them in New York. Besides these gentlemen were the following from Ottawa: Hon J. S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice; Maj.-Gen. D. R. Cameron, Wallace Graham, C. C. Chipman, and Geo. Johnson. Less prominent in the party were four quiet, plainly-dressed citizens, who proved to be Pinkerton detectives, who are constant in attendance upon Mr. Chamberlain. Sir Lionel Sackville West, the British Minister, was at the station to meet the party, and he accompanied them to the Arlington hotel, where he took dinner with them. The British delegates will meet the American members of the Commission at the State Department early to-morrow morning, when they will come to some understanding as to the time of the conference. They will be presented to the Secretary of State by Sir Lionel Sackville West, but will not call upon the President until Saturday.

During the evening a number of reporters and correspondents called at the hotel and endeavored to see Mr. Chamberlain, but the detective who stood guard over the august diplomat brought back word in every instance that Mr. Chamberlain was too tired to see anyone this evening. He would be willing to see all comers and answer all questions which might be addressed to him to-morrow, and appointed 5 o'clock as the hour which would be most convenient for meeting the questioners. One of the detectives was asked how long he had been traveling with the party, but he declined to give any information beyond the fact that he and his confreres had been with them since they arrived in New York. He said that the Secretary of State would perhaps make public any desired information on that score, and he intimated that he had been employed by the Government to look after the welfare of the British party. Mr. Putnam, who is one of the American commissioners, said to-night that neither he nor Mr. Angell had yet met Mr. Chamberlain or Sir Charles Tupper. He said that as soon as they come together an effort will be made to secure an early business meeting. It was his desire, and he thought the other American commissioners shared the desire, that the whole matter should be gotten through with as soon as possible, as it is desirable that the treaty, if one is forthcoming, shall be submitted to the Senate for approval at the earliest possible moment.

ECHOS FROM TRAFALGAR SQOARE.

Ex-M.P. Saunders Discharged From Custody—The Radicals Jubilant.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Wm. Saunders, an ex-member of Parliament who was arrested last week while addressing a crowd in Trafalgar-square, was arraigned in court to-day. He was charged with disorderly conduct in speaking at Trafalgar-square and thereby causing a disorderly assemblage. He was also charged with obstructing the police. Crown Counsel admitted that the charges were unstatutory and requested that they be dismissed. Mr. Saunders insisted on a conviction. The magistrate, however, dismissed the charges on the ground that a breach of the prohibitive order of Gen. Warren, the Police Superintendent, did not form a statutory offence. The Radicals are jubilant over the result of the arrest and may possibly revoke their decision not to meet in Trafalgar-square on Sunday.

Big Cotton Fire at Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 17.—The most disastrous fire that ever visited this city occurred to-night, and resulted in the complete destruction of 12,000 bales of cotton and Compresses Nos. 4 and 5 of the Merchants' Cotton Compress and Storage Co. Loss $630,000.

BANK FAILURES THIS YEAR.

Merchants are Docking Central Bank Bills 10 per Cent.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—The suspension of the Central Bank continues to be the subject of lively discussion among business men. There is also unfavorable rumors in regard to some of the other banks, and judging from the reports going round one would not be surprised to hear of a run being soon made on one or two banks here.

Already this year three banks have suspended in Canada: The Maritime in February last, the London two months ago and the Central. In every one of these instances holders have lost money by the bank notes of the suspended concern, which, though by law are a first charge on the assets of the bank, yes are either refused or heavily discounted by those who take them in. In the case of the Maritime Bank the redemption of its circulation has not yet commenced and the current value of its notes is 55 cents on the dollar. The brokers are docking the Central bills of 10 per cent. or more, and merchants are refusing them altogether, though there is little doubt that they are worth their face value. The arrest of three Canadians in Buffalo on a charge of "shoving" Central bills is an unpleasant incident. Many a poor man happens to have his wages in the bills of a suspended bank, and in the excitement of the moment and in his need he is compelled to sacrifice his money at half its value. Many cases of such hardship occur at every bank suspension.

M. WILSON TO BE PROSECUTED.

The French Chamber Decide Against President Grevy's Son-in-Law.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—A Committee of the Chamber of Deputies to-day decided that M. Wilson should be prosecuted. The decision was telegraphed to him and he was informed that before proceedings were begun he would be given an opportunity to be heard. He replied that he had no statement to make.

After a brief debate on the report the Chamber, by a vote of 527 to 3, approved the demand for the prosecution of M. Wilson.

The Ministers, after meeting at the Palais du Bourbon to consider the situation, went in a body to the Elysee Palace and informed President Grevy of the decision of the Chambers. M. Maseau then placed his resignation in the hands of M. Grevy, and the President entrusted Minister Fallieres temporarily with the duties of Minister of Justice.

The Extreme Left continues to cling to M. Grevy. At the conference of the ministers to-day President Grevy expressed no intention of resigning.

A TURTLE IN HER STOMACH.

Peculiar Death of a Young Woman at Chicago—Grew From a Germ.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Miss Rendau, 19 years old, was buried on Wednesday. Her death was unexpected, though the young lady had been subject to violent spasms and fits of vomiting for many days. On the day before her death she was seized with a more violent paroxysm than ever before. There was a choking sensation in her throat and finally there was forced up from her stomach a live young snapping turtle with a shell as large as a silver half dollar. Then the patient became unconscious and began to swell up in her limbs like one afflicted with the dropsy. It is believed the turtle grew from a germ swallowed in water from Lake Michigan.

AFFAIRS AT THE CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17.—There is no truth in the report published in The Free Press and other papers that Hon. Mr. Taillon was appointed judge for the district of Terrebonne by order in council, passed on Oct. 22. Mr. Taillon has not been appointed to any judgeship, nor have any judicial appointments been made beyond those announced and gazetted.

It is expected that Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Jenkins, will leave for Washington some time during next week.

The Department of Marine yesterday received the following telegram from Mr. Gregory, its agent at Quebec: "Tremendous gale last night; Upper Traverse lightship driven from her station and not heard from since; sending boat, and notified pilots."

Sir A. P. Caron, accompanied by Lady Caron and Adjutant-General Powell, left for British Columbia to-night.

A quantity of Japanese curios has been placed under seizure at the port of Toronto, the appraiser having found upon examination of the invoice presented by Wing, Tar & Co., that the goods were under valued to the extent of 30 per cent. The matter is being considered and no decision will be given until further investigation has been made.

A Milton Merchant in Trouble.

MILTON, Nov. 17.—On Tuesday Mr. Brown, of the firm of Brothers, Downs & Brown, swore out an information charging Amos J. Brothers, a member of the firm, with embezzling money and property belonging to the firm. Brothers was arrested and taken before the Mayor and bail accepted. Monday next was fixed for the hearing of the charges.

Commercial Union in Kent.

RIDGETOWN, Ont., Nov. 17.—The Farmers' Institute of East Kent met here to-day. Farmer Fuller and Agitator Shaw spoke, and a resolution in favor of the fad was passed.

Colonel Valentine Baker Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Baker Pasha died at Tel-El-Kebir yesterday from fever contracted at Port Said while proceeding to Cairo. He was 52 years old, and in 1875, while holding the appointment of Assistant Quartermaster-General at Aldershot, was compelled to leave the service on being found guilty of assaulting a lady in a railway carriage.

HERR MOST GETS IN QUOD.

THE ARCH-ANARCH IS ARRESTED AT NEW YORK.

His Recent Inflammatory Utterances the Cause—The Penalty of His Offence—The Alarm Newspaper to be Revived—The Daily Stories of Dynamite.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—John Most, the Anarchist, was arrested at noon to-day by Inspector Byrnes' detectives. He was found in his office at 167 William-street and was taken to police headquarters, where he was locked up. Most was indicted this morning by the grand jury. The indictment charges him with using violent and seditious language at the Anarchist meeting last Saturday night. The policemen who were at the meeting furnished the testimony on which Most was indicted.

When Most was arrested he protested his innocence, declaring that he had always obeyed the laws and always intended to do so. The crime charged against him is misdemeanor and it is punishable with a year imprisonment or a fine of $250, or both. Most was arrested on the same charge on April 30, 1886. He was convicted and received a sentence of both fine and imprisonment.

The "Alarm" Again to be Heard.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—To-morrow The Alarm, of which Parsons the Anarchist was editor, will be issued for the first time since the execution. The leading article, written by Dyer D. Lum, the successor of Parsons, says: "The former editor of The Alarm has been strangled to death by the state. The seal of legal disapproval has been placed upon free speech. Henceforth workingmen and women must keep silent, or only clamor for relief through the lines laid down for them."

DOINGS OF THE DYNAMITERS.

Pine Bluffs, Cincinnati and Troy Send in Their Contributions.

PINE BLUFFS, Ark., Nov. 17.—Last evening in the switch yard of the St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas Railway a locomotive passed over a dynamite shell which exploded and seriously injured John Ross.

Gas Pipe Bomb at an Orphanage Door.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—At 10 o'clock last night the door bell of St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum in Cumminsville rang and the attendant, on going to the door, found a gas pipe bomb nearly two feet long with a fuse attached. The fuse was quickly cut off.

A Bomb Under a Building.

TROY, N.Y., Nov. 17.—The postoffice at Schaghticoke was robbed last night. Six cents in money and $200 worth of postage stamps were taken from the safe which was blown open. It was discovered that an attempt had been made to blow up Canfields & Scongal's carriage factory by means of a dynamite bomb, which was found under a corner of the building.

A Supposed Dynamiter Set Free.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Cowatsch, the man who was arrested at Greenock on landing from a steamer from America because he had dynamite cartridges in his possession, has been released.

The Anarchists Compared with the Saviour.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 17.—A petition was yesterday freely signed by members of Unity Church calling a special meeting to take action in relation to Rev. J. C. Kimball, the pastor, who has created contempt by his Sunday sermon, comparing the Chicago Anarchists with the Saviour. There will be a call for his resignation.

The Powder Kills the President.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 17.—The factory of the Union Powder Company, located seven miles northwest of this place, was blown to atoms this morning. A man named Galick was fatally injured. S. S. Carter of New York, President of the company, was mangled terribly and soon died.

Chamberlain's Reception Satisfactory.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Times says Mr. Chamberlain's reception in America is in the highest degree satisfactory, not only to his personal and political friends but to the British nation and is a substantial proof that the solid mass of the American people is amicably disposed toward the Mother Country.

HIS TROUBLE IS MOST MALIGNANT

Satisfactory to His Physicians—His Highness Relies on His Constitution.

SAN REMO, Nov. 17.—Notwithstanding a cold rain the physicians are satisfied with the condition of the Crown Prince. The swelling has entirely disappeared and there is no immediate fear of difficulty of breathing or swallowing. The other local symptoms are satisfactory. There is no fear that tracheotomy will be necessary at present.

Constitution Versus Physic.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—A despatch to The National Gazette says the German Crown Prince confidently hopes that his good constitution and unbroken physical strength will be of more service to him than medical remedies or the knives of the physicians.

The Prince's Ailment Clear.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Despatches received here to-day from San Remo say that there has been a discharge of green matter from the Crown Prince's throat which proved to be cancerous. In view of this fact his case is considered much worse, as this type of soft cancer is of the most malignant kind and is regarded as incurable. The German doctors, the report says, are trying to deny the serious, almost critical development of the Prince's ailment which is now clinically and pathologically clear.

Sympathy for the Sufferer.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The Imperial Advertiser says that since the saddening news of the serious illness of the Crown Prince was announced the warmest sympathy for the sufferer and for the Emperor has been manifested throughout the German Fatherland and from far abroad. The heavy blow to the heir to the throne and the hard trial of the Emperor and the whole royal household have everywhere produced profound feelings of sympathy. This has found unequivocal expression in the numerous addresses which have reached the Emperor from Germany and from foreign countries, particularly Austria, Russia, France, Belgium, Holland, England, Italy and Spain. Many of the letters received by the Emperor recommend remedies and methods of treatment to effect a cure of the Prince's malady. Some of the writers say they have been afflicted with a similar disease and narrate their own experience. The Emperor is deeply affected by these marks of universal sympathy for his son, and has ordered that all the addresses that have been sent to him be brought to the knowledge of all concerned.

AFFAIRS IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—Mr. Harrington, M.P., in a letter published to-day says the Irish Members of Parliament always know where to find Mr. Parnell, who is never absent when Irish politics urgently demand his presence.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Mr. Sheehy, M.P., who failed to appear before the court at Castleres in answer to a summons.

Lord Dufferin's Tenants Ask a Reduction.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—The tenants, including the leaseholder, of the County Down estates of Lord Dufferin, have asked a 40 per cent reduction of rents and an extension of time for paying them.

Goschen's Advice to Liberal-Unionists.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Mr. Goschen, addressing a meeting of Liberal-Unionists, urged the Unionists to continue in active co-operation with the Conservatives. They need not fear reactionary measures by the Government. On the contrary, the Cabinet's legislative program would command the support of advanced Liberals, as it would deal with many questions affecting social and industrial interests, and would leave on the statute book measures of a truly liberal spirit.

O'Brien Starving Himself.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—Visitors to Tullamore Jail declare that Mr. O'Brien has greatly changed, and that he refuses to take nourishing food.

During an eviction near Dungarvon to-day four policemen, several bailiffs and twenty spectators were injured. The members of the evicted family escaped from the house by an underground passage.

Two Victims of Falling Walls.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 17.—By the falling of the walls this afternoon of the Everson building in Salina-street, recently burned, two workmen were killed and another is missing.

DAY OF GRATEFULNESS

THANKSGIVING SERVIECE IN THE VARIOUS CHURCHES.

A Large Attendance at the Union Meeting—Addresses by the Rev. F. H. Wallace and Rev. E. F. Torrance—St. John's and St. Luke's—At the Baptist Church.

A thanksgiving service was held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday in which the congregations of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches joined. On the platform there were: The Rev. A. Bell, the Rev. F. H. Wallace, the Rev. E. F. Torrance, the Rev. I. Tovell and the Rev. Jas. Cleland.

The Rev. A. Bell, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, conducted the services. The Rev. I. Tovell read from the Scriptures. After singing and prayer

The Rev. F. H. WALLACE delivered an address. He said that it would not be inopportune at this service to ask themselves the question whether or not there was reason for thanksgiving or humiliation, for hope or for tears, for joy or for despondency? Were there not to-day people who repeated the taunt in Isiah, xxi, 11:—"Watchman, what of the night?" There were some who asked what Christianity had been doing for more than 1800 years? The same answer might be returned, "The morning cometh and also the night." Modern objectors asserted that the whole church was honeycombed with insincerity and doubt; that even the contractors had to be watched to see that no bad timber was put in the structure. They turned to the lives of professing Christians and pointed out that the Christian merchants could weigh and measure to their own advantage; that the Christian public men made the worst case appear the best to suit their own purposes; that Christian politicians were ready to sell themselves and country to get office; that while Christian ministers proclaimed the gospel of peace and good-will Christian nations were armed to the teeth and frowning defiance if not belching it from the cannon's mouth; and that if all was now quiet the Nihilistic, Socialistic and Anarchistic forces were steadily working, and that there would be an explosion some day that would blow away the whole fabric. Christians must admit many imperfections. But they should remember that Grumbler & Co. had done a large business in all ages and that they were not a reliable firm to deal with. The persons who had grumbled most were those who had allowed religion to depart from them. He was firmly of the opinion that in no age were the business relations throughout the Christian world carried on with as much candor and honesty as at present. They had men in every community standing boldly for the right. They had brave men to-day exploring dark places and bringing a new continent into the light of Christianity and civilization. The growth and progress of science had enabled man to subdue Nature and compel obedience to his commands. Valleys were bridged, mountains tunnelled and rivers spanned to contribute to the smoothe, swift rush of material travel. Seas no longer divided hostile nations, but argosies of peaceful commerce passed from land to land. They had reason to thank God that now education was not limited to priest and clerk, but that it was everybody's possession if they chose to take it. The speaker referred to other evidences of progress. The excellent system of education now prevaling in civilized lands; the decline of regal power and a corresponding increase on the part of the people; and all the comforts which modern civilization brought. He spoke of great uprisings which some people dreaded, as being often for the ultimate good of the people. Paris was much better without the Bastile. There was danger in these movements, but there was also hope, and might not the outcome of all this Socialistic, Anarchaic and Communistic uneasiness, which now looked so threatening, if strongly influenced by ardent Christianity, result in a purer christianity—the brotherhood of man. This was not the evening twilight, it was dawn. He confessed that there were many imperfections both in Christian people and the Christian church as well. But it was not all imperfection. It was not the wisest man who said "under these flowers there is darkness and shadows," but rather "above this darkness the flowers are in bloom." Christianity he had full faith in and its influence on mankind was increasing, not decreasing. Voltaire 120 years ago prophesied that by the year 1900 Christianity would not be in existence But since 1830 the Greek Church has increased in membership 26 per cent., the Roman Catholic Church 80 per cent. and the Protestant churches 170 per cent. This did not look as if Christianity were on the wane. He also gave statistics as to the large percentage of college students who were professing Christians. He felt that Christianity was strong and was growing stronger. He did not deny that men were thinking more broadly, and Christians were more ready to meet a new fact of science. The tendency now was to spend less time in the useless defence of outposts, but to mass the whole force in guarding the central citadel—to preach the early faith in all its simplicity and beauty. He was confident that, despite all drawbacks, they had abundant reason to give God heartful thanks for both personal and material blessings.

The Rev. E. F. TORRANCE spoke briefly, giving reasons why thanksgiving should be offered to God and the means by which earnest thanks could be made.

The Rev. Mr. Cleland offered up prayer and the Rev. A. Bell pronounced the benediction.

There was an efficient choir in attendance under the direction of Mr. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's Church.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

A thanksgiving service was also held in the Baptist Church at 11 o'clock. The service was opened with the customary religious exercises, the choir leading in the singing.

The Rev. P. CLIFTON PARKER, the pastor, conducted the service, and for the sermon chose as the text Deut. ii., 2nd and 15th and 16th verses. He pointed out that the children of Israel were asked to remember how God led them out of Egypt as a proof of His love, and of His great goodness contrasted with their baseness towards Him. They were called on to remember that God was their leader and that he ought to have the gratitude of their hearts. In relation to their own existence God was their leader. There was a great law governing all things throughout the world, and that he believed to be the will of God. The eagle flew, the wind blew and man controlled his limbs according to a great principle of law without which the earth would be smashed to atoms, and all would be chaos. What was true of the world generally was also true of individuals. Not only was God their leader, but the Christians course was not always the smoothest. This was shown by referring to Biblical and historical characters. But after all they had to say that God led them and that all was for their good. They also had Divine care—they had God's guidance, and he was their provider. There never was a greater miracle than the provisions made for the food, clothing and warmth of the millions on the earth to-day, and these evidences of Divine care should lead them to fall down and worship God. There was a purpose in everything. The most insignificant animal and the smallest insect had its purpose. The wandering of the Israilites in the wilderness was for the purpose of ridding them of Egyptian pride, falseness and idolatry, and of begetting in them the great principles of morality that made them a great nation. All the trials and difficulties they had passed through during the past year was for their good, that they might be made better. If they could not always understand the purpose of trials, they must trust God. The time would come when, standing on the platform of higher knowledge in Heaven, they would be able to look back and see the purpose of all, even what they could not now understand.

The thoughts in the sermon were exemplified by references to the Bible and history and made plain by many beautiful illustrations.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

On Wednesday evening at half past seven o'clock a service was held in St. John's Church. On Thursday Holy Communion was administered at 8.30 o'clock and at 11 o'clock a Thanksgiving service was held. The Rector delivered a short address on the need of greater self sacrifice on the part of the people.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

Services were held in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, on Thanksgiving Day, in the morning at 10.30 and in the evening at 7.30, both being fairly attended. The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, the Rector, preached at both the services eloquent and practical sermons on the duty and privilege of thankfulness.

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

OVERCOATS.

Thousands to Select from. Any size from 4 years old up to size 44 breast, ranging in price from $2.00 to $18.00.

I wish to call particular attention to our $18.00 Overcoat; it is made of an English Knap Beaver, lined throughout with Black Satin, mother of pearl buttons, and being made by one of the best tailors in Canada, it is, therefore, equal to the finest of fine custom made. This overcoat I sell for $18.00; if you left your measure for it, it would cost and be considered cheap at $30. Any person in want of a very fine Overcoat should not fail to see it.

Our Overcoats at $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00 beat anything in Canada, either wholesale or retail; and why should they not when I bought them at 50c. on the dollar, and, therefore, when wholesale houses connot compete with the WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN, it is simply impossible for small retail houses to compete. Sixty per cent. of the goods I sell I buy at less than the first cost of manufacture, and hence the reason I can defy any wholesale house in Canada to touch my prices.

It is one thing to make an assertion and another thing to prove it. If any man doubts what I herein state, let him come to my store, and I will prove to his satisfaction that it is the absolute truth. My stock of Suits and Gent's Furnishings is as large and complete as my Overcoat stock, and, therefore, whether it is an Overcoat, or a Suit, or Shirt or Drawers you want, take a friend's advice and follow the crowd to

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

"Well, Henry, and why are you going away?"

"I am out of spirits, Agnes, and I want a change."

She paused before she spoke again. His face told her plainly that he was thinking of her when he made that reply. She was grateful to him, but her mind was not with him; her mind was still with the man who had deserted her. She turned round again to the fire.

"Is it true," she asked, after a long silence, "that they have been married to-day?"

He answered ungraciously in the one necessary word: "Yes."

"Did you go to the church?"

He resented the question with an expression of indignant surprise.

"Go to the church?" he repeated. "I would as soon go to"— He checked himself there. "How can you ask?" he added, in lower tones. "I have never spoken to Montbarry; I have not even seen him since he treated you like the scoundrel and the fool that he is!"

She looked at him suddenly without saying a word. He understood her and begged her pardon. But he was still angry.

"The reckoning comes to some men," he said, "even in this world. He will live to rue the day when he married that woman!"

Agnes took a chair by his side, and looked at him with a gentle surprise.

"Is it quite reasonable to be so angry with her because your brother preferred her to me?" she asked.

Henry turned on her sharply.

"Do you defend the countess, of all the people in the world?"

"Why not?" Agnes answered. "I know nothing against her. On the only occasion when we met she appeared to be a singularly timid, nervous person, looking dreadfully ill; and being indeed so ill that she fainted under the heat of the room. Why should we not do her justice? We know that she was innocent of any intention to wrong me; we know that she was not aware of my engagement"——

Henry lifted his hand impatiently, and stopped her.

"There is such a thing as being too just and too forgiving!" he interposed. "I can't bear to hear you talk in that patient way, after the scandalously cruel manner in which you have been treated. Try to forget them both, Agnes. I wish to God I could help you to do it!"

Agnes laid her hand on his arm.

"You are very good to me, Henry; but you don't quite understand me. I was thinking of myself and my trouble in quite a different way, when you came in. I was wondering whether anything which has so entirely filled my heart, and so absorbed all that is best and truest in me, as my feeling for your brother, can really pass away as if it had never existed. I have destroyed the last visible things that remind me of him. In this world I shall see him no more. But is the tie that once bound us completely broken? Am I as entirely parted from the good and evil fortune of his life as if we had never met and never loved? What do you think, Henry? I can hardly believe it."

"If you could bring the retribution on him that he has deserved," Henry Westwick answered sternly, "I might be inclined to agree with you."

As that reply passed his lips, the old nurse appeared again at the door, announcing another visitor.

"I'm sorry to disturb you, my dear. But here is little Mrs. Ferrari wanting to know when she may say a few words to you."

Agnes turned to Henry before she replied. "You remember Emily Bidwell, my favorite pupil years ago at the village school, and afterward my maid? She left me, to marry an Italian courier, named Ferrari—and I am afraid it has not turned out very well. Do you mind my having her in here for a minute or two?"

Henry rose to take his leave. "I should be glad to see Emily again at any other time," he said. "But it is best that I should go now. My mind is disturbed, Agnes; I might say things to you, if I stayed here any longer, which—which are better not said now. I shall cross the channel by the mail to-night, and see how a few weeks' change will help me." He took her hand. "Is there anything in the world that I can do for you?" he asked, very earnestly. She thanked him, and tried to release her hand. He held it with a tremulous, lingering grasp. "God bless you, Agnes!" he said, in faltering tones, with his eyes on the ground. Her face flushed again, and the next instant turned paler than ever; she knew his heart as well as he knew it himself—she was too distressed to speak. He lifted her hand to his lips, kissed it fervently, and, without looking at her again, left the room. The nurse hobbled after him to the head of the stairs; she had not forgotten the time when the younger brother had been the unsuccessful rival of the elder for the hand of Agnes. "Don't be downhearted, Master Henry," whispered the old woman, with the unscrupulous common sense of persons in the lower rank of life. "Try her again, when you come back!"

Left alone for a few moments, Agnes took a turn in the room, trying to compose herself. She paused before a little water color drawing on the wall, which had belonged to her mother; it was her own portrait when she was a child. "How much happier we should be," she thought to herself, sadly, "if we never grew up!"

The courier's wife was shown in—a little, meek, melancholy woman, with white eyelashes, and watery eyes, who courtsied deferentially, and was troubled with a small chronic cough. Agnes shook hands with her kindly. "Well, Emily, what can I do for you?"

The courier's wife made rather a strange answer: "I'm afraid to tell you, miss."

"Is it such a very difficult favor to grant? Sit down, and let me hear how you are going on. Perhaps the petition will slip out while we are talking. How does your husband behave to you?"

Emily's light gray eyes looked more watery than ever. She shook her head and sighed resignedly.

"I have no positive complaint to make against him, miss. But I'm afraid he doesn't care about me; and he seems to take no interest in his home. I may almost say he's tired of his home. It might be better for both of us, miss, if he went traveling for awhile—not to mention the money, which is beginning to be wanted sadly."

DR. WILD ON CANADA.

He Thinks Canadians Ought to be Thankful—He Opposes Commercial Union.

Dr. Wild in his thanksgiving sermon at the Bond-street Church thought Canadians had every reason to be thankful. That was a wise man or nation who learns the art of contentment and cultivates a spirit of thankfulness. When you see a boy don't worry because he isn't a man; when you see a country a boy in years with a population of five million, don't get restless, don't whine because it isn't larger.

How are matters with us as a people, as a country? Have we done well during the past year? Without hesitation I say yes. We have traded $195,000,000 worth, ten million more than last year, and have had an increase in duties of three million. Yet some are not satisfied; nor was Satan in heaven. In grains, fruits, meals, and dairy products we have been greatly blessed. Our population has increased naturally and by immigration. For nine months of this year 231,442 immigrants have entered the Dominion, 43,000 more than last year. These mean at $60 each $15,000,000; 8 bushels of grain apiece, 2,000,000 bushels; 20 bushels to acre, 100,000 acres of land to be cultivated; 35,714 new houses. Think of all the tradesmen these immigrants will give work to.

Do not let us forget that the home market is our largest and best. Of the 33,000,000 bushels of wheat raised by ourselves we consume 20,000,000. Let us not sacrifice the 33,000,000 of wheat to 8,000,000 of barley. There was no likelihood of the farmer getting the 10 cents if the duty were taken off barley. Remember the case of coal.

The United States this year have over and above their home demands and their exports a surplus of 74,000,000 bushels of wheat. That surely is no place for us to sell wheat, especially as for the past five years the average price per bushel in Canada has been 5 cents more than in the United States. Great Britain was our best market. She can consume all our surplus. We ought to have a fair trade alliance with England. Canada was going to be an immense wheat country and we ought to be looking to England to take it. The Manitobans were growling though Canada had built them the Canadian Pacific Railway at a cost of $150,000,000 and had reduced thereby the cost of all the goods they consumed.

For a young country we are doing well, none more so. Look at these figures:

| Country. | Revenue Per Head. | Expenditure Per Head. |
|---|---|---|
| Queensland | $43 44 | $43 61 |
| New South Wales | 42 90 | 36 76 |
| West Australia | 40 34 | 33 10 |
| New Zealand | 34 83 | 35 30 |
| South Australia | 31 70 | 37 40 |
| Victoria | 30 99 | 30 22 |
| Tasmania | 21 67 | 20 55 |
| France | 15 49 | 15 94 |
| Great Britain | 12 62 | 13 61 |
| Russia | 12 32 | 9 15 |
| Netherlands | 10 98 | 12 73 |
| Italy | 10 85 | 10 60 |
| Belgium | 10 74 | 10 09 |
| Spain | 9 48 | 9 67 |
| Chili | 8 43 | 6 97 |
| United States | 7 94 | 6 29 |
| Canada | 7 30 | 5 48 |

We do not stand bad after that!

What we want in Canada is to look toward Imperial Federation. We want a Supreme Court to decide issues between provinces or between provinces and Dominion. Our danger lies in such conflicts—the old question of state rights. This danger is increased by the claims and aims of Roman Catholics, and by political partisanship. We want to cultivate loyalty to our religion, our Queen and country.

As a wind-up the Doctor called upon Artist-Poet Sherwood to recite his coronation ode. The poet stepped up to the platform and delivered it like a little man, the large congregation applauding him most liberally.

SIX MEN BLOWN TO SHREDS.

A Terrible Explosion of Dynamite at Hancock, Mich.

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 17.—Shortly before noon yesterday, people in Red Jacket, Calumet, Houghton, Hancock and Lake Linden were startled by a loud explosion resembling an earthquake. Windows were broken and light articles thrown from the tables or walls. The frightened people quickly found there had been an explosion in the buildings of the Hancock Chemical Company, three miles distant from Hancock. The packing house where dynamite was put in packages, or sticks, had entirely disappeared. Where it stood a few moments before was a yawning pit fifteen feet deep and of a larger size than the building that stood on the spot. Six men were in the building at the time: William Renaud, Charles Barkell, Thomas Thompson, Timothy Crowley, William [illegible]ng, William Tapp. Tapp is 30 years old and leaves a wife and several small children. The others are from 18 to 22 years old and unmarried.

The glycerine house and laboratory, which stood only a short distance away, was totally wrecked. Several large iron acid tanks standing several rods from the packing house, were blown 600 feet into the forest, where they were found twisted out of all shape. The search for the bodies of the victims continued until nightfall. All that was found was a dozen scraps of human flesh. There was over a ton of dynamite in the packing house.

A Young Woman's Sad End.

Youngstown, Ohio., Nov. 17.—Early this morning workmen discovered the nude remains of a young woman lying in a pool of water just outside the city. The remains were identified as those of Mabel Patterson alias Nellie Shipley. Her clothing was found near the body. Its condition indicated a struggle and it is believed the girl was choked to death.

A Weak Scaffold Kills Two Men.

Pittsburg, Nov. 17.—A scaffold at the power house of the Pittsburg Traction Railway Company on Fifth-avenue near Washington-street fell shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon. Four men were thrown to the ground, a distance of thirty feet, and two of them fatally crushed. The others were painfully but not seriously injured.

Duty on Plum Buff.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The Treasury Department has decided that imported plum pudding is dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem as an unenumerated manufactured article.

Italian Troops in Africa.

Rome, Nov. 17.—In the Senate to-day Signor Farini, on assuming the President' chair, referred to the Italian troops, now in Africa, saying that the expedition had the support and good wishes of the Senate. A motion to that effect was introduced and approved by the House and the text of the resolution was subsequently telegraphed to Massowah. The Chamber of Deputies re-elected Signor Biancheri president of that body.

Stanley's Hard Time in Africa.

Brussels, Nov. 17.—News received by mail from the Congo says Tippoo Tib failed to keep his promise to reinforce Explorer Stanley at Yambuya. Whether his failure was due to treachery or to the opposition of neighboring tribes is not known. It is unofficially rumored here that there has been fighting between the natives and Stanley's force and that the rear guard of the latter has been cut off.

The Baseball Club had an engagement on Wednesday late in the day—in fact it was late in the evening before it was over. And the boys had a game at ball, too. It was their first annual assembly, and it was held in the fine hall in the Snowden block, Simcoe street. A large company was present at nine o'clock, when dancing commenced. A first class orchestra furnished music, and Mr. Jas. Coughlin was efficient in his position of master of ceremonies. The floor managers were Messrs. Fred Billings, Howard A. Galley and J. V. Callaghan. The company enjoyed themselves till an early hour, when the "short stop" was arrived at. During the evening Messrs Welsh & Co., confectioners, furnished refreshments. The success of the ball is due to the energetic committee: Messrs. F. H. Brennan, M. D., J. E. Fitzgerald, J. E. Landy, G. C. Clark and Arch. R. Moore.

RESULTS OF A SOCIAL.

Mrs. Cox Presented with Beautiful Mementoes—The Churches Future.

On Thursday evening a congregational "tea" was held at the Charlotte Street Methodist Church. The school room was filled with the church members and friends from six until eight o'clock, during which time lunch was served by the ladies.

At eight o'clock the people went into the church.

Mr. Wm. Cluxton was called to the chair.

The PASTOR, the Rev. I. Tovell, led in prayer and the singing of a hymn followed.

Mr. CLUXTON spoke briefly, making the explanation that they were about to do honor to Mrs. Cox who was about to sever her connection with the active work with the church. He referred to his long acquaintance with Mrs. Cox, to her excellence of character, and to her being a good wife and a "fine housekeeper" (applause). He concluded by calling upon Mr. Mayor Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson took the platform and at the same time the covering was removed from the elevation behind him disclosing a marble clock of elegant design and finish. On each side of the clock was a piece of bronze statuary about two feet high, one entitled distress and the others succour "Distress" represented a man stranded on a rock at sea holding to a broken spar and waiving a garment as an appeal for help. "Succour" took the form of a sturdy sailor in the act of giving assistance in the time of need. The clock had this inscription:—"From the members of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church to Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, as a token of their regard and esteem." When the covering was removed the large assemblage burst into applause. Mr. Stevenson then read the following address:—

To Mrs. Geo. A. Cox.

DEAR MADAM.—The members of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church learn with the deepest regret of your approaching departure from Peterborough, and consequently of the severence of you active connection with the congregation.

We need hardly assure you that your absence will in many ways be deeply felt.

For the past fifteen years you have been connected with the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and during that time you have been actively and zealously associated with the promotion of its every interest, spiritual, social and material.

Your religious relations with the Church have afforded the example of a uniform equable, unostentatious and consistent christian deportment, and to this you have added a worthy example of energetic anticipation in the work of the promotion of the more material interests of the church.

In the Sunday school you have been a faithful and acceptable teacher, regular in attendance and undefatable in your efforts for the advancement of the welfare of this nursery of the church.

As President and member of the Ladies' Aid Society you have done a noble work. You have supplied encouragement and hope at all times, but when encouragement was most needed and hope was faintest. Of the means which God has given you you have bestowed with no illeberal nor grudging hand; no appeal in the interests of the church or church work has been made to you in vain—Indeed appeal was unnecessary; for you have ever been ready to anticipate such wants and to promptly supply them.

If full expression of our appreciation of your good qualities and valuable services were given it might be thought flattering by those not fully acquainted, as we are, with the course and incidents of your past relations with us in these respects, but we might be permitted to say that in being deprived of your presence amongst us, we lose one of our most respected and best beloved church members, one of our best friends and one of our most active co-operators in all good works, but we are sure that the work which circumstances make it necessary for you to lay down here, will be taken up in another community and in connection with another church, for you love the Master's work too well to retire from the vineyard before the plaudit sequel, "Well done, good and faithful servant," is heard.

We are cheered by the hope that your separation from us may not be complete. We know and feel that your interest in the Charlotte Street Methodist church can never pass away, and we hope to have frequent opportunities of here renewing the sacred and social relations which have so brightened our church gatherings in the past.

Therefore, we make our farewell, not good-bye, but au revoir, and in token of our love and respect, we ask your acceptance of this present, to remind you that while the flight of time is marked by its dial, you will be held in our remembrance as our true friend in prosperity and adversity.

In conclusion, we pray that you and yours may be happy in your new home, and that you may gather about you, if possible, as many and as warm friends as those you leave in Peterborough. We can find no more fitting words to give emphasis to our farewell prayers and good wishes than the sublime benediction of Holy Writ—"The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord make His face to shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace."

Peterborough, Nov. 17th, 1887.

Mr. Stevenson added a few words to the address speaking in flattering terms of Mrs. Cox's excellence.

Mr. Cox replied. He said that he was deeply touched at the presentation of such magnificent ornaments to his wife and at the expression of their good will and kindness. He protested against one feature and that was the implied removal from Peterborough. They might be somewhat justified in the assumption but he could assure them that he was not going to leave Peterborough. The expansion of his business demanded the removal of one of his sons to Toronto some time ago and he found it advisable now to have a home in the city, but his home would still be in Peterborough also, (applause). He had no intention of abandoning his interest in the Charlotte Street Church, the George Street Church or any other interest in Peterborough, (applause). He referred to the pleasant years he had spent in the good town and said he would be most sorry to break off old associations. He would still spend at least one half of his time in Peterborough and he would not wonder that after a few years he would be in Peterborough altogether. He had been approached by gentlemen who desired to tender him a banquet on his removal but he distinctly told them he was not going to move. He returned thanks for their kindness and assured the congregation that Mrs. Cox would be as proud of the presents as he was of her.

After the presentation ceremony a number of the prominent church members gave short speeches on the future prospects of the church. The result was that the handsome sum of $3,300 was subscribed toward paying off the church debt. More subscriptions are to be added and the list will be published on Tuesday.

A PASTOR'S WELCOME.

A Social in the Baptist Church to Receive the Rev. Mr. Parker.

A social tea was held in the Sunday school room of the Baptist Church on Thursday evening, in order to afford an opportunity for the congregation to meet and welcome the new pastor, the Rev. P. Clifton Parker. There was a large attendance, including a few from other town congregations. The tea was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, and was very creditable to the ladies of the congregation. At 8 o'clock Mr. Wm. Graham, of Smith, was called to the chair, and, after singing, Mr. Parker led in prayer.

The Rev. Mr. KEDDICK, of Port Hope, then delivered an address. He said that, having known Mr. Parker in the past, he could heartily join in welcoming him, as he felt that even in Port Hope they would be strengthened by his presence here. This congregation had for a pastor a man of ability, and one who had consecrated his abilities to God. There was nothing the church had greater reason to be thankful for than consecrated men and women. He proceeded, in an able manner, to point out things which they should be thankful for. One was the harvest. Each season brought blessings, but the harvest was the golden crown of material blessings. They should be thankful for constitutional government. In this connection he referred to the social and political troubles in other countries and to the fact that the revolutionists were unsuccessful. The preservation of life and health was a subject for thankfulness. They should show their thankfulness for the coming of Jesus Christ, the gift that excelled all others, by giving themselves up to God. He was impressed since he had heard Mr. Parker was coming with the belief that God was going to richly bless them, and he hoped they would often rejoice together over the ingathering of souls.

Letters of regret were read from clergymen of the town, who were unable to be present on account of meetings in their own churches.

The CHAIRMAN then made an interesting speech, expressing his thankfulness because God had sent them an under-shepherd and because, though the season had been dry, the harvest gave them enough and to spare.

The Rev. E. DUFF extended a welcome to the pastor. They had cause for thankfullness because though they had been without a pastor so long their meetings had not fallen behind, and they should now join in the work with their pastor.

Mr. CURTIS also welcomed Mr. Parker. He continued in a pleasant strain for some time, and concluded by hoping that the church would be prosperous and successful.

The Rev. Mr. PARKER thanked the people for the hearty reception they had given them. It showed him that he was still inside the family of the Lord. He had the privilege, though English, of being born in Scotland, and he believed in the Scotch idea of a long pastorate. He believed he came here through the Lord's direction, and hoped to put in the best years of his life in the work here. He gave a brief sketch of his life, and hoped that with their co-operation and God's blessing they would have peace, harmony and prosperity. While he was a Calvanistic Baptist, and loved his church, he came to them as a Christian, and asked their sympathy and co-operation in the work of the church.

Mr. JAS. STRATTON spoke in a humorous way of the success of the social. They had unamiously decided on a call for Mr. Parker, and he thought that a good omen. He emphasized the necessity for a bond of love and referred to the different positions of the pastor and the people in church work. He also referred to the time, 22 years ago, when seven men had decided to again establish the church, and it had since grown to what it now was. He concluded by expressing the hope that God would bless the pastor, his work and the church.

Mr. B. MATHEWS also spoke briefly, excusing himself on account of the lateness of the hour.

A vote of thanks moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Gillespie and supported by Mr. W. B. Mathews, was tendered the ladies and the chairman, which Mr. Graham acknowledged.

The meeting concluded with the doxology and the benediction.

After the conclusion of the social, Mrs. Jas. Stratton presented Mr. and Mrs. Parker each with a handsome cake. On the one given to Mr. Parker the words "Welcome to Our Pastor" were traced on the top in colored icing.

The "Illustrated News."

Mr. George H. Anderson, of New York called on the REVIEW to-day. He is representing the Illustrated London News, one of the handsomest publications extant, which is published similtaneously in New York and London. ## THE 57TH INSPECTED.

Flattering Remarks by the Deputant Adjutant General.

On Thursday Lt-Col. Villiers, Deputy Adjutant General of the 3rd Military District, arrived in town to inspect the 57th Battalion. He was accompanied by Major King, the Paymaster.

The battalion mustered at the drill shed at two o'clock in the afternoon 230 men strong and marched to the Riverside Park, Lt.-Col Rogers being in command. The staff officers on parade were:

Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, Major T. M. Grover, Major R. W. Bell, Major and Paymaster Howard, Surgeon R. Kincaid, Assistant Surgeon O'Gorman, and Quarter-Master W. Millar. The company officers were:

No. 1 COMPANY—Lieuts. Dennistoun and Mason.

No. 2 COMPANY.—Capt. Langford and Lieut. Lee.

No. 3 COMPANY.—Lieut. Peck.

No. 4 COMPANY.—Capt. Birdsall and Lieut. Hill.

No. 5 COMPANY.—Capt. Burke.

No. 6 COMPANY.—Capt. Brennan and Lieut. Hammond.

The inspection was watched by a large assemblage of people. The movements which the battalion went through were interesting and exceedingly well done. The Deputy Anjutant General spent about an hour putting the men through different exercises and then ordered a march back to the drill shed. At the drill shed Col. Villiers addressed the battalion. He spoke as follows:—

Lieut-Col. Rogers, officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th,

I can assure you that on coming to Peterborough this morning to inspect you I really felt very nervous. If I inspected you last year I would certainly have found fault with you for many reasons, but as General Middleton inspected you I could say nothing. The 57th, as a rural regiment, was always a splendid corps, and really one of the best in the district, but I could not say that of it last year. This year I am surprised, simply amazed, at the position you stand in to-day. The proficiency of your movements, your steadiness in the field, your physique and general appearance really surprised me to-day, and according to what I say now I intend to report. The regiment is a great credit to the Colonel and officers, and I hope you will continue in your present state of efficiency. You have a good drill shed, good accoutrements, new and clean clothing, a very fine band, and everything to keep you in an efficient state, and if you do not, then by heaven (the Colonel added sotto voce) I will make you a rural battalion again.

The number of officers and men in the Battalion is as follows:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Field and Staff Officers | 7 |
| Captains | 5 |
| Lieutenants | 6 |
| Staff Sergeants | 5 |
| Sergeants | 18 |
| Corporals | 18 |
| Buglers | 6 |
| Band | 21 |
| Privates | 181 |
| Total strength | 267 |

In the evening an officers dinner was held at Morgan's Hotel at which Col. Villiers and Major King were guests. Toasts, speeches and songs were indulged in and the evening passed off very pleasantly. Singing "God Save the Queen" at 11 o'clock brought the proceedings to a close.

The G. J. R. Case.

CARD OF THANKS.

To E. E. Henderson, Agent National Fire Insurance Company of Ireland. (Established 1822):—

SIR,—Please accept my cordial thanks for the prompt payment of loss sustained by me in the fire in my house of the 25th ult, as per cheque received from you this morning, and also convey the same to the chief agents of the "National" in Canada, Messrs. Boult and Murphy, Montreal. Such prompt and practical recognition of my claim is deserving of the highest commendation.

Yours truly,
ALEX. W. GIBSON.

Jubilee Coins.

Mr. H. A. Hammond, who returned from England last week, brought with him a selection of the "Jubilee" coins issued this year. Among them was a four shilling piece, known as the English dollar, a half crown, two shillings, one shilling and sixpence, all of silver, and a sovereign and a half sovereign in gold. Each of them has a bust of the Queen, showing a profile of her face, with the Imperial crown on her head. It is not a very satisfactory piece of artistic work. The crown is too far back on the head and seems to be slipping off. On the reverse side there are different designs on the various coins. The silver sixpense is the same size as the half sovereign, and owing to the fact that it could be easily guilded and passed for the gold, it has been called in, and is becoming a rare and valuable con. Mr. Hammond was away about six months, and saw the jubilee procession and other festivities connected with the celebration.

Local Brevities.

—We regret to learn this morning of the death of the youngest son of Mr. A. G. Mortimer, of the Canada Lumberman. The child had been ill of inflamation of the brain for a week. The funeral will be held at 2.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

—The Lindsay Warder says that some men from the shanties, who went from Peterborough on Wednesday, got on a spree in Lindsay and commenced fighting on the train after the train left for the north. The conductor went back to Lindsay and four of them were taken into custody.

THE FISHERY CONVENTION

MR. CHAMBERLAIN IS INTERVIEWED BY WASHINGTON NEWSPAPER MEN.

Mr. Chamberlain Gives an Audience to Newspaper Men and They Gather From His Remarks That He Will Not Give up Any Part of Canada's Case.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 18.—Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Chamberlain called officially upon Secretary Bayard to-day and arranged the first meeting of the Commission, which is to take place at the State Department on Monday next.

Mr. Chamberlain gave an audience specially to newspaper men this afternoon, and seemed both amazed and perplexed at the cross questioning to which he was subjected. He said that the definite instructions given the British plenipotentiaries were, of course, confidential, but he was at liberty to say that the scope of the Commission was sufficient to cover all difficulties existing between the United States and Canada. He stated that while the fishery question was at present one of limitations it might be found that other troubles would have also to be considered and he had no doubt whatever that an amicable solution would be arrived at. The fishery trouble seemed to him to be that the United States objected to the literal interpretation of the treaty in force, namely, that of 1818, and was disposed to put a new construction upon its terms. He held that the treaty explained or interpreted itself, and that no new patches would be added to make it serviceable. It must either remain in force according to its literal construction or be superseded by a new treaty.

From the decided and unhesitating manner in which the senior plenipotentiary expressed himself on this point, it may be taken for granted that there is no disposition on his part to relinquish the pound of flesh, or rather of fish to which the Canadians are entitled under the existing treaty without an acknowledged equivalent.

In reference to the surmise of some credulous newspapers that the majority power would be exercised and that the Canadian Commissioners would be compelled to acquiesce in any proposal which he and Sir Lionel West might feel disposed to agree to. Mr. Chamberlain said that he should consider it no agreement unless the final decisions were unanimous.

In answer to the question as to whether Commercial Union would be considered, he said that he had been sent clippings from some Canadian papers on the subject, but could not discover that any feasible scheme had been promulgated. The Canadian Government had not proposed it, and he was quite certain that the home Government would never do so. If the United States made the proposition with some tangible explanation of details it might be considered. The points which he mentioned as yet incomprehensible are: First, what authority or power will frame and modify the tariff against other countries; second, Canada being equally concerned with other parts of the Empire in existing treaties as to the most favored classes, what effect will that have on the new proposal, which will virtually annul these treaties.

He intimated very decidedly that unless the desire were unanimous on the part of Canada, the Imperial veto power would undoubtedly be called into requisition and applied to any such legislation on the part of the Canadian Parliament.

He referred to the wish of the Canadian Government to revert to the treaty of 1854, and said that no doubt the standing offer of reciprocity of natural products would be brought to the notice of the Commission. On this point the Canadian Government had done all that was possible, and if the United States Commission would acquiesce it would also be gratifying to the Government of Great Britain.

Sir Chas. Tupper and Mr. Chamberlain will be formally presented to President Cleveland by Secretary Bayard to-morrow at noon, after which Sir Chas. will present the other Canadian officials who are at present in Washington.

IRELAND'S NEW PARLIAMENT.

The Draft of a Legislature for Ireland He Thinks Would Please all Parties

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The Tribune's Dublin correspondent gives the outlines of a plan for an Irish Parliament, as formulated by Michael Davitt. Mr. Davitt declares himself against a double Chamber, and the principle of voting by first and second orders contained in Mr. Gladstone's bill. He says: "I am satisfied that no Nationalist objects to any practicable provision which will ensure to our Protestant fellow-countrymen the fullest representation to which their numbers entitle them. Twenty-five per cent. of the entire representation in the National Assembly could be guaranteed to them. This would be more than the minority population could justly claim, but I am sure that this number would not be objected to by the Catholic portion of the community. To ensure also that the Protestants of the south and west should be as fully represented as those of the north, a "scrutin de liste" system of election could be provided, by aid of which the ablest champions of the minority could be voted for in Connaught and Munster as freely as in the most Protestant part of Ulster.

In a Legislature of say 300 members the Ministry would thus have a compact part of seventy-five, comprising the best ability within its ranks, and when, what is now known as the Nationalist or Home Rule party, would be certain to be divided into two or three parties in a national assembly, it would not be at all improbable to find the minority representatives holding more or less of the balance of power. The division of power in the national assembly would probably be as follows: First party—a Conservative Nationalist party; second party—a Democratic or Radical Nationalist party, sub-divided into two groups; third party—comprising the representatives of those who are now opposed to Home Rule.

The first duty of the new Parliament, Mr. Davitt says, would be easily performed, That would be to make the law and order respected and obeyed. National sentiment so long at war with unjust and alien administrations would combine with national honor to uphold laws which would become popular the moment the people's confidence would be secured in their justice and impartial administration. But the first task which I hope will devolve upon the new Legislature will be that which has baffled the efforts of English statesmen—a final settlement of the Irish land question. I am aware that the present landlord government is hugging the hope of being able to pass a measure for the solution of this great problem, but I maintain now, as I have never ceased to assert during the last five years, that it is in Dublin and not in London that the final settlement of this question must be made. The next national undertaking, Davitt says, would be the resuscitation of Ireland's manufacturing industries. Concurrently with the building up of the linen and woolen manufactures an Irish Parliament could not omit extending an immediate helping hand to the fisheries. Not more than 10,000 or 12,000 men now find employment round the coast, where at one time over 66,000 were engaged in harvesting the food treasures of the seas.

A scheme of artificial drainage upon a national scale would have to be one of the first great public works undertaken by an Irish Parliament. Mr. Davitt also advocates the abolition of the workhouse system.

THE BANK FEVER SUBSIDIES.

An Anticipated Rush on City Banks that Did Not Take Place.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.

Thanksgiving Day reduced the feverish financial excitement that characterized Tuesday and Wednesday to the level of moderate curiosity. If the talkers were to have been believed half a dozen banks would have been raided yesterday. Instead, the day passed quietly, with the exception of spasmodic alarming rumors, which were proven false almost as soon as started. The banks were ready for a rush, which, had it come, would have found them well prepared. The fact is that if the people will stop talking and attend to their ordinary duties no trouble need be feared. A few long-tongued people who are rushing about the street with idle sensational rumors—people who never had a bank account in their lives—are doing more to create a panic than all the business men of Toronto put together.

At the Central Bank yesterday a great deal of work was done. The directors held a meeting early in the day, the matter that came before them being the disposal of the business in the branches of the bank in outside towns. At present the directors are not prepared to report on the progress made.

The feeling that the Central will resume business is on the wane. Even some of the banks own officials believe that liquidation will ensue, though one of the large shareholders yesterday said that if business was resumed he was prepared to double his stock. The President, Mr. David Blain, is seriously ill and has not left his residence and scarcely his bed since Monday. He has been in bad health for some months past, and the bank's difficulties have aggravated his trouble. It is known that he feels the suspension keenly, and that before it took place he supplemented the bank's funds largely from his private means.

It is generally believed that the Central will not have to take advantage of the three months' grace provided by law, but that long before that period has elapsed bill-holders and depositors will have been paid in full.

The Failures for the Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the past seven days, as reported to Dun, Wiman & Co. to-day (Friday) by telegraph, number for the United States 205 and for Canada 19, or a total of 224 as compared with a total of 217 last week and 245 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 242, being 207 failures in the United States and 35 in Canada.

AN OLD MAN'S AWFUL DEED

A CAPTAIN MURDERS A WOMAN AND COMMITS SUICIDE.

The Deceased Was Seventy-Two Years of Age and is Said to Have Maintained for Several Years Criminal Relations With the Woman Whom He Murdered.

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—Capt. A. H. Mills, owner of a line of harbor tugs, was one of the best known citizens in Detroit. For years he has occupied a comfortable house on Jefferson-avenue. He was twice married, and had three children by his first wife. His second wife died two years ago, leaving two children, a son and daughter. Of late the Captain's worldly affairs seemed to go against him. Two of his tugs were seized by the authorities at Windsor, and are still held by them. Competition in business became keen. He was 72 years old yesterday, and advancing years, together with reverses in business, appeared to work upon his mind, and yet his reputation as a pleasant, sociable man was maintained. There is said to have been a romance in the life of Capt. Mills. For the past twenty years or more, he has known Mrs. Mary Rising, who resided with her husband, Austin Rising, on Congress-street. Mr. Rising has for a number of years been Capt. Mills' business manager. Rumor was busy concerning the relations of the captain with the wife of his employe. Captain Mills visited Mrs. Rising yesterday forenoon, the two remaining in the house together about two hours, when the captain left. He returned, according to the account given by neighbors, late in the afternoon.

Capt. Stone of the yacht Leila, lives next door to the Rising home. He says about 5 o'clock he saw Capt. Mills leave the latter place. Capt. Stone met him on the sidewalk, opposite his own house. The two, who are old friends, stopped and talked together. There was something strange, Stone thought, in the other's appearance, and a wild look in his eyes. His impression was confirmed when Capt. Mills spoke. "Stone," he almost shouted, gesticulating wildly with both hands, "I have known that woman for over twenty years and kept company with her. I have bought everything in that house. I bought her a $40 plush coat some time ago which made her look so fine that she loved to dress up in it and go out with other men. When I called to see her this morning she told me that she had an engagement to go out at 3 o'clock. She did not go. I conquered her," he continued fiercely, "and now I have done with her forever. That $40 coat has made me crazy, but while she was out in the back yard this afternoon I cut it to pieces. She will never be able to wear it again." The two friends parted, Mills walking in the direction of his home and Stone going into his own house. Captain Stone thought Mills had quarrelled with Mrs. Rising and dismissed the subject from his mind. He did not suspect the fearful tragedy revealed later. Captain Mills went to his home on Jefferson-avenue.

About 6 o'clock in the evening, J. C. Berry, the new special administrator of estates, called to get some information relative to property left by Mills' second wife. The members of his family say one of the daughters told her father Mr. Berry wanted to see him. The captain told her, "show him in." She turned to do so, but had hardly left the room when a report occasioned by the discharging of a revolver rang through the house. The alarmed family rushed to the captain's room and found him sitting in his chair, with a deathly pallor on his face. A revolver lay on the floor beside him and blood was oozing from a wound in the side of his head, just behind the left ear. Life was extinct. The shrieks of the family alarmed the neighbors, who rushed into the house. On the table near the captain's chair was his business letter paper pad, with some memoranda written in ink, not quite dry. The neighbors lifted the body from the chair and placed it upon a bed and summoned a coroner. The latter investigated the case thoroughly, and decided not to hold an inquest. He concluded the captain's business reverses had unbalanced his mind.

About 8.45 last night Officer Holland left the house where Rising lives. The latter, according to the account of a neighbor, sat in the house for about half an hour and then left with a friend. The two went into a saloon together. Holland, who was standing in front of Mills' house, saw Rising walking down the avenue about 10 o'clock. He stopped near his door, turned as if he meant to go inside, but changed his mind and walked on. He was slightly under the influence of liquor. Holland followed him a short distance and then returned to his beat.

Mr. Rising went home and prepared to go to bed. About 10.30 Capt. Stone's door was burst open, and Rising, with startled look on his face, ran into the house and asked for a revolver. Capt. Stone told him he had no weapon. Rising drew a pocket-knife, and, opening the blade, made a pass as though he would cut his own throat. "Great God!" he cried, "this is too much; my wife is killed." Officer Holland, attracted by the noise, went to the house and arrested Rising, who was locked up on suspicion. A telephone message was sent to Police Headquarters and a special officer was despatched to the house and found Mrs. Rising dead.

The room in which the body lay presented a horrible spectacle. The body lay on the floor beside the bed with glazed eyes staring at the ceiling. The left hand was extended by her side and her right thrust into her bosom as if the final throes had been fearful. The head lay in a pool of blood, and brains and blood were spattered over the walls and furniture of the room. The body was cold and stiff. She had been dead some hours, with her head full of bullets. The elegant plush coat was cut into shreds. Some fragments of plush were scattered over the body, as if the coat had been ruined after the shooting was done. One pair of new shoes, two pair of slippers and a pair of rubbers—all of the best quality—were found on the table in the dining-room. Every pair had been cut and ruined, then replaced in the boxes in which they had been carried from the store. These circumstances seemed to corroborate Capt. Mills' declarations that he had ruined all the articles of dress which he had purchased for Mrs. Rising. The woman was about 40 years old. She had been a beauty in her youth, and still retained many of her former attractions. No suspicion attaches to Rising as no revolver was found in the house or on Rising's person when he was searched at the station. The tragic death of Capt. Mills and Mrs. Rising, spoken of in the same breath, and Capt. Stone's story of the affair was the impression of the entire neighborhood last night. It is thought Mills quarrelled with the woman and shot her in a fit of jealousy and then took his own life. Capt Mills was born in Springfield, Mass., and sailed on the salt water some years. He came to Detroit thirty-three years ago, since which time he has been a prominent figure in marine circles.

CZAR VISITS BERLIN.

Great Crowds Gather to See the Imperial Visitor.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The Czar of Russia arrived in Berlin this morning. The preparations to receive him were in keeping with his rank. At 10 o'clock the Alexander Regiment, in parade uniform, took up a position in the Alsenstrasse Esplanade. They were to act as a guard of honor at the depot. A company of the Second Regiment of the guard with band colors and one company of the Alexander Regiment with colors were stationed in front of the Russian Embassy. Prince William of Prussia went to Urillenberg early this morning to join the train bearing the Russian Imperial family. At the Berlin depot were gathered the Royal Prussian Princess, the hereditary Prince of Saxe Meningen, Duke John of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Gen. Von Moltke and all the generals of the Berlin and Potsdam garrisons. On the arrival of the Imperial train at 10.40 a.m. the Czar passed in front of the guard of honor at the depot, being accompanied by Prince William and the other Prussian princes and Gen. Von Moltke.

The Emperor William started for the Russian Embassy at 11 o'clock. The Czar and Czarina were driven to the embassy. The Czar with Prince William of Prussia occupied an open carriage drawn by four horses, and both wore Russian uniforms. The Czarina and Princess William followed in a close carriage. Dense crowds of people were collected in Unter den Linden from the Brandenburg gate to the Lehrte depot, and the imperial party were greeted most enthusiastically as they passed along the thoroughfare. On arriving at the embassy the Czar received three flags as Colonel of the Alexander Regiment and a general officer, a non-commissioned officer and a private reported themselves to act as orderlies.

After the Emperor had entered the palace on his return from the Embassy he appeared at his favorite window and was again wildly cheered by the crowds. The Czar's children remained on the train which brought the family from Copenhagen.

Prince Bismarck's visit to the Czar lasted an hour. It was made at the Czar's request.

The Czarina and her five children visited Emperor William this afternoon. As the Czar and Prince William were driving through the Koenigsplatz a man threw a paper into the carriage in which they were riding. The occurrence for a moment caused intense excitement among the onlookers. The Czar took the paper and without opening it placed it under his cloak. The man who threw it is a stranger in Berlin. He was immediately seized by the police. Later, while the imperial party was passing through Unter den Lindens a young man tried to throw a petition into the Czar's carriage. He was arrested.

At the state banquet this evening ninety-eight covers were laid. Prince Bismarck and his wife and Count Herbert Bismarck were present at the banquet. The Czar and his party left Berlin for St. Petersburg at 9.30 this evening.

PARNELL'S HEALTH IMPROVING.

If the Winter is too Severe He Will Make a Visit to Egypt.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Mr. Parnell has written a letter to a news agency stating that his health is slowly but steadily improving. He does not intend to speak during the parliamentary recess, as his doctors have advised him to avoid exposure, which would probably bring on chills. He has also been warned against undue exertions. He is now staying at Hastings, where he will remain during the winter, unless the weather becomes so severe as to compel him to go to Egypt.

The Mitchellstown Affray.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Mr. Gladstone in a letter says that the Mitchellstown shooting and the arrest of Mr. Wilfred Blunt had no connection with the crimes contemplated under the Coercion Act, and therefore the Government's action was illegal.

Acquitted.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—A special term of the court was convened at Ennis to try the case of Doughty, charged with inciting the people of Six Mile Bridge to join an unlawful association. The case came up to-day and the prisoner was acquitted. There are two other charges against him on which he will have to stand trial.

TO BE A JUDGE IN ONTARIO

W. G. FALCONBRIDGE Q.C., APPOINTED TO THE QUEEN'S BENCH.

The Other Vacancies will Probably be Filled on Monday—Six More Members Added to the Labor Commission—The Announcements in The Gazette.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—At the meeting of council to-day the first appointment to a vacancy on the Ontario bench was made, the fortunate gentleman being Mr. W. G. Falconbridge, Q. C., Toronto, who was appointed a Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench, in place of Judge Armour, promoted to the Chief Justiceship of the Court. The other vacancies on the Bench will most probably be filled on Monday.

The Labor Commission has completed its work here for the present and the members left for Toronto to-night, where the taking of evidence will be commenced on Tuesday or Wednesday. It has not been decided where the meetings will be held, but it is probable that a room in Shaftesbury Hall will be secured, if possible, as being a good central locality. It is understood that five more members have been added to the commission, but their names could not be ascertained to-night.

Mr. Emerson of Toronto, who has been ordered by the Ontario Government to replace the Journals of the House of Assembly of Upper Canada before the year 1824, which were destroyed by fire when the Parliament Buildings were burned at Montreal, will soon end his labors. Seven copies of these interesting historical documents have been made. The papers relating to 1808 are missing, having been captured by French privateers. There are copies in the Colonial office, however.

Lieut.-General Sir Fred Middleton has received a private letter from his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, commanding Her Majesty's forces, complimenting him for his able direction of the Canadian militia and expressing regret that owing to compulsory retirement the Imperial army should lose so valuable an officer.

It is rumored here that La Presse of Montreal, generally regarded as Hon. Mr. Chapleau's organ, has been purchased from the Messrs. Blumhart by Messrs. Ganantel, M. P. P. for Terre Bonne, and Mr. A. Wurtelle, who was the late Senator Senecal's private secretary.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—To-morrow's Canada Gazette will contain the official announcement of the calling of Mr. John Macdonald of Toronto to the Senate, in place of the late Hon. Wm. McMaster, and also of the promotion of Judges Armour and Gals to the Chief Justiceships of the courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, respectively, and of Junior Judge Benson to the County Court Judgeship of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham.

The Government savings' banks statement for October shows the amount of deposits during the month to have been $290,116 and the withdrawals $453,978, leaving a balance at the credit of depositors of $20,817,726, which is $578,845 more than in October last year, and nearly $2,500,000 more than at the end of October, 1885.

The unrevised statement of Inland Revenue receipts for the month of October shows the amount to have been: Spirits, $345,600; malt and malt liquor, $44,966; tobacco, $164,520; cigars, $50,539; inspection, etc., $12,869; total excise, $617,994; canals, $32,622; other revenue, $11,102; total Inland Revenue, $661,718.

NO WORK FOR THE BROOM

THOSE who have been drinking in all that the newspaper advocates of Commercial Union having been pouring out regarding that question must have felt a shock when they read Mr. J. D. Edgar's open letter to Mr. Wiman. One of the favorite expressions—aye, arguments—of the Commercial Unionists has been that "the customs houses along the frontiers would be swept away." The effect this would have in relieving travellers from the examination of the officials, in its "civilizing tendency," and in saving the salaries now paid to customs collectors and their staffs has been dwelt upon frequently and at length. Grip, the pictorial puffer of the scheme, pictured the genius of civilization sweeping away the customs houses with a big broom.

But Mr. Edgar tells Mr. Wiman that this is all wrong, as no doubt it is, and as opponents of the scheme have before pointed out. The withdrawing of this part of their policy makes a great change in it. Commercial Union with the customs houses remaining is vastly different from the proposal as it stood before, and as the scheme continues to be discussed its advocates may learn that in other ways it is impracticable and unacceptable to the people of Canada. Mr. Edgar says that the customs officials would all be retained. Further, that they would have more work. Still further, that more assistances in the customs house might be necessary. So that, not only would the expenses be as high as now, but they would be increased by Commercial Union, while at the same time the revenue from the customs houses would be diminished.

Mr. Edgar is a leading advocate of Commercial Union. His discovery of the force of the argument against one important feature of the scheme gives ground for the hope that he and his associates may yet see that anything further than a reasonable reciprocity treaty is not advisable. Another Haldimand will bring further concessions. The sooner the scheme is dropped the better, if it would cause the persistent disparagement of Canada in the columns of the Commercial Union press to cease.

STILL another. The Belleville Ontario says:—"The better way would be to let the local governments find their own funds, even if they had to resort to direct taxation." So here is another Reform paper dissatisfied with the scheme proposed by Mr. Mowat and the other members of the Quebec conference. The same paper adds:—"Then we should find that local governments would be more rigidly economical than they now are." Perhaps so. But when the Mowat Government has been so loosely extravagant that a change in the constitution is needed to check them would it not be better to replace it with an economical Government.

THE Montreal Witness sees in the result of the Haldimand election a sign of weakness in its party. It says:—"Haldimand has returned the Conservative candidate by a small majority. The result seems to indicate that the Liberals are losing their hold upon even Liberal constituencies in Ontario."

THE FIRST PART.

She put her handkerchief to her eyes, and sighed again more resignedly than ever.

"I don't quite understand," said Agnes. "I thought your husband had an engagement to take some ladies to Switzerland and Italy?"

"That was his ill luck, miss. One of the ladies fell ill—and the others wouldn't go without her. They paid him a month's salary as compensation. But they had engaged him for the autumn and winter—and the loss is serious."

"I am sorry to hear it, Emily. Let us hope he will soon have another chance."

"It's not his turn, miss, to be recommended when the next applications come to the couriers' office. You see, there are so many of them out of employment just now. If he could be privately recommended"— She stopped, and left the unfinished sentence to speak for itself.

Agnes understood her directly. "You want my recommendation," she rejoined. "Why couldn't you say so at once?"

Emily blushed.

"It would be such a chance for my husband," she answered, confusedly. "A letter, inquiring for a good courier (a six months' engagement, miss!) came to the office this morning. It's another man's turn to be chosen—and the secretary will recommend him. If my husband could only send his testimonials by the same post—with just a word in your name, miss—it might turn the the scale, as they say. A private recommendation between gentlefolks goes so far."

She stopped again, and sighed again, and looked down at the carpet, as if she had some private reason for feeling a little ashamed of herself.

Agnes began to be rather weary of the persistent tone of mystery in which her visitor spoke.

"If you want my interest with a friend of mine," she said, "why can't you tell the name?"

The courier's wife began to cry.

"I'm ashamed to tell you, miss."

For the first time Agnes spoke sharply.

"Nonsense, Emily! Tell me the name directly—or drop the subject—whichever you like best."

Emily made a last desperate effort. She wrung her handkerchief hard in her lap, and let off the name as if she had been letting off a loaded gun:

"Lord Montbarry!"

Agnes rose and looked at her.

"You have disappointed me," she said, very quietly, but with a look which the courier's wife had never seen in her face before. "Knowing what you know, you ought to be aware that it is impossible for me to communicate with Lord Montbarry. I always supposed you had some delicacy of feeling. I am sorry to find that I have been mistaken."

Weak as she was, Emily had spirit enough to feel the reproof. She walked in her meek noiseless way to the door. "I beg your pardon, miss. I am not quite so bad as you think me. But I beg your pardon, all the same."

She opened the door. Agnes called her back. There was something in the woman's apology that appealed irresistibly to her just and generous nature. "Come," she said, "we must not part in this way. Let me not misunderstand you. What is it that you expected me to do?"

Emily was wise enough to answer this time without any reserve. "My husband will send his testimonials, miss, to Lord Montbarry in Scotland. I only wanted you to let him say in his letter that his wife has been known to you since she was a child, and that you feel some little interest in his welfare on that account. I don't ask it now, miss. You have made me understand that I was wrong."

Had she really been wrong? Past remembrances, as well as present troubles, pleaded powerfully with Agnes for the courier's wife. "It seems only a small favor to ask," she said, speaking under the impulse of kindness which was the strongest impulse in her nature. "But I am not sure that I ought to allow my name to be mentioned in your husband's letter. Let me hear again exactly what he wishes to say." Emily repeated the words—and then offered one of those suggestions, which have a special value of their own to persons unaccustomed to the use of their pens. "Suppose you try, miss, how it looks in writing?" Childish as the idea was, Agnes tried the experiment. "If I let you mention me," she said, "we must at least decide what you are to say." She wrote the words in the briefest and plainest form: "I venture to state that my wife has been known from her childhood to Miss Agnes Lockwood, who feels some little interest in my welfare on that account." Reduced to this one sentence, there was surely nothing in the reference to her name which implied that Agnes had permitted it, or that she was even aware of it. After a last struggle with herself, she handed the written paper to Emily. "Your husband must copy it exactly, without altering anything," she stipulated. "On that condition I grant your request." Emily was not only thankful—she was really touched. Agnes hurried the little woman out of the room. "Don't give me time to repent and take it back again," she said. Emily vanished.

"Is the tie that once bound us completely broken? Am I as entirely parted from the good and evil fortune of his life as if we had never met and never loved?" Agnes looked at the clock on the mantelpiece. Not ten minutes since those serious questions had been on her lips. It almost shocked her to think of the commonplace manner in which they had already met with their reply. The mail of that night would appeal once more to Montbarry's remembrance of her—in the choice of a servant.

Two days later the post brought a few grateful lines from Emily. Her husband had got the place. Ferrari was engaged for six months certain as Lord Montbarry's courier.

THE SECOND PART.

CHAPTER V

After only one week of traveling in Scotland, my lord and my lady returned unexpectedly to London. Introduced to the mountains and lakes of the Highlands, her ladyship positively declined to improve her acquaintance with them. When she was asked for her reason, she answered with a Roman brevity, "I have seen Switzerland."

For a week more the newly married couple remained in London, in the strictest retirement. On one day in that week the nurse returned in a state of most uncustomary excitement from an errand on which Agnes had sent her. Passing the door of a fashionable dentist, she had met Lord Montbarry himself just leaving the house. The good woman's report described him, with malicious pleasure, as looking wretchedly ill. "His cheeks are getting hollow, my dear, and his beard is turning gray. I hope the dentist hurt him!"

Knowing how heartily her faithful old servant hated the man who had deserted her, Agnes made due allowance for a large infusion of exaggeration in the picture presented to her. The main impression produced on her mind was an impression of nervous uneasiness. If she trusted herself in the streets by daylight while Lord Montbarry remained in London, how could she be sure that his next chance meeting might not be meeting with herself? She waited at home, privately ashamed of her own superstitious fears for the next two days. On the third day the fashionable intelligence of the newspapers announced the departure of Lord and Lady Montbarry for Paris, on their way to Italy.

Mrs. Ferrari, calling the same evening, informed Agnes that her husband had left her with all reasonable expression of conjugal kindness, his temper being improved by the prospect of going abroad. But one other servant accompanied the travelers—Lady Montbarry's maid, rather a silent, unsociable woman, so far as Emily had heard. Her ladyship's brother, Baron Rivar, was already on the continent. It had been arranged that he was to meet his sister and her husband at Rome.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Y. M. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the "Y." will be held on Monday evening (21st) at 7.30 o'clock. All young women are cordially invited.

New Arrival.

At Elliott & Tierney's, just received a large lot of hand picked apples in barrels, consisting of Northern Spies, Greening, Ben Davis, Baldwin, 20oz Pippin, H Pippin, Bell Flower and Rainbo.

Committee Meeting.

The members of the committee on the celebration of the 5th anniversary—(December 9th) of the recesstition of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F. are request d to meet in the hall of the Lodge this, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. 1d120.

Grand Lamp Display.

Messrs. Breeze & Bain have recently imported a large assortment of Library Parlor and Hall Lamps, direct from the American manufacturers, and are enabled to sell them at very reasonable prices. Call and see them. d117-6-1w

Rhea Arrived.

M'lle Rhea, Mr. Bell and the Rhea Dramatic Company are at the Oriental. Judging from the number of seats taken there will be a large audience at Bradburn's Opera Houst to-night to greet this great actress.

Malicous Injury to Property.

Three boys, two by the name of Weese and one named Waghorn, were charged at the Police Court this morning with having committed malicious injury to the South Ward School by cutting holes in the brick wall. The chairman of the Board of Education appeared in their behalf and secured their release before the trial came off.

Visit of Laurence the Optician.

Mr. B. Laurence, the eminent optician, will be at Mr. J. McKee's drug store on SATURDAY next, Nov. 19th. All who need his services should remember the date. His skill can be availed of without extra charge. It is satisfactory to be able to obtain Laurance's glasses and particularly so to have them adjusted to the requirements of the eye by an expert. 4d117

False Alarm.

Some one got into the engine house at about 11 o'clock on Thursday night and rung an alarm. The call was not for any particular place, but as the No. 4 Ward alarm came over the engine house wire the operator in the central office rung the alarm for No. 4. The firemen responded promptly, but were chagrined to find, after galloping up to No. 4 that all was peaceful repose. The engine house alarm signal should be placed so that inquisitive busybodies cannot get their hands on it.

Gloves and Moccasins.

In Dunford's new block, water street, Mr. J. McComb is fitting up the premises to commence the manufacture of gloves and moccasins. Mr. McComb comes here from Orno, where he has been engaged in business for the last fifteen years. When the new industry gets thoroughly under way about 25 hands will be employed. It is the intention to manufacture for the wholesale as well as the retail market, and with the reputation already gained by Mr. McComb the goods alone will no doubt find a ready sale. We wish the new enterprise every success, and as the winters in this locality are quite up to average Canadian weather the gloves, mitts and moccasins will come into general use.

New County Offices.

The new county offices at the Court House are completed and occupied. The judges chambers are situated at the south-west corner of the building. There are two plainly, comfortably finished rooms. There is an audience room fitted with an elevated desk and chair for the Judge and a table with chairs for those who come before His Honor. Off this room is a private apartment finished with a handsome desk standing on a large handsome mat, chairs, a leather sofa and a large fire proof vault. The County Crown Attorney's office is situated directly north from the Judges chambers. It has suitable furniture and a fire proof vault. The law library has a long table, handsome chairs, and the shelves contain about 1,200 volumes.

EDITOR O'BRIEN is in prison, Chamberlain is coming to America, and KIDD is selling the best boot in town. Try it!

Addresses.

Mr. S. H. Blake and the President of the Y.M.C.A., Toronto, will deliver addresses in the George Street Methodist church on Sunday evening.

Fire.

Mr Richard Lillico's barn was burnt on Friday night. While he was in the mow, getting out some hay a cat upset the lantern and the fire caught in the hay. The horses buggy and waggon were saved, but the grain stored away was destroyed. Insurance $500.

SOLD by weight! What? Blankets, tha are Blankets, at TURNBULL'S.

Personal.

Bishop Dowling went to Campbellford this afternoon and will remain over Sunday.

Referring to the visit of the Masonic D. D. G. M. and D. S. to Lindsay the Warder says:—"The Rev. Mr. Bradshaw is a first-class after dinner speaker, Mr. Shortly a thorough instructor, and all worthy brethren of the mystic tie. Free Masons in this district are to be congratulated on their Grand Master and Grand Secretary."

Accepted the Ten.

Wm. Johnston sat on the prisoner's seat in the Police Court this morning. When his name was called he hopped spryly before the Magistrate. "You are charged here," said His Worship, "with being drunk at 1 o'clock this morning. Are you guilty or not guilty." "Guilty, Your Worship" Where do you come from?" mildly enquired the court. "From England, sir, from the British army." "You are fined $2 or ten days in goal." The prisoner chose the ten, responding promptly to the beck of P. C. Pidgeon.

BOY'S Suits and Underwear to fit all ages at TURNBULL'S.

Raising a Ruction.

A man was walking up George street near the corner of Hunter street on Friday when he was accosted by his wife who charged him with having taken $2 of her money and with having bought whiskey with it. She proceeded to investigate and a crowd gathered. She soon found a bottle and at once flung it into the street. This put the man in a fighting mood and he wanted to thresh everybody. After a while he sat down on a window sill to meditate, but a merchant appeared and ordered him off. Once more he was incensed. He square-toft and dared anyone to come out and give him battle. Nobody accepted his challenge. He next went up to a spectator and before the latter was aware of the fellow's intentions he was given two blows with the fist. The spectator would have drubbed the fellow but on second thought he concluded to let the man go, seeing that he was under the influence of liquor. The police were not present.

M'lle Rhea.

W. S. Gilbert's greatest work will be presented on Saturday evening next. "Pygmalion and Galatea," a beautiful mythological comedy, with the charming actress M'lle Rhea, in the character of "Galatea." A recent critic says:—"Rhea, of course, was the Galatea of the play. Loving and confiding in the simplicity of her new born life, she was the essence of perfection. The stainless plumage of her young life had not been tarnished by contact with the grosser elements about her and looked upon Pygmalion as her savior with the tenderness and fondness of an unblighted and simple love. Pygmalion in return was carried away by a blind attachment to his quickened handiwork. His wife, Cynisca, in a moment of jealous rage invoked the vengeance which had been promised her and the inconstant Pygmalion suffered blindness for his folly. All the actors in the execution of their different roles proved equal to the occasion. Not a blemish marred the surface as the play progressed and the most exacting critic must acknowledge that it was good."

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Business in Peterborough has been booming. But the past will now be eclipsed. A large consignment of dry goods was in transit to British Columbia. It was an excellent assortment of first class goods. It was on the way. But the eagle eye of a Peterborough business man was upon it, and he saw in it bargains—big bargains, great bargains—for the many who flock to his store. He aimed at intercepting it, and he caught it on the fly. Bang! The whole consignment, of the finest wearing apparel, was secured—at a high price? Oh, no; but at 50 cents on the dollar, and next Wednesday morning it will be opened for sale at his store. Boom! It will be sold, as it was bought on the fly and at half prices. Boom! Boom! Here is an opportunity for the world to clothe itself in new, in good, in handsome apparel, and at less than half the ordinary prices. As the news of this purchase, and this unequaled opportunity, spreads among the people of the town, the country and the neighboring counties, the discussion of Commercial Union will be hushed, and speculation as to whether $10 can be gained on a horse next year or 10 cents on barley, will be forgotten in the knowledge of the fact that now, within easy reach is a way of saving much more. This supply of goods consists of silks, satins, dress goods, prints, flannels, cottons, blankets, tickings, corsets, gloves, hosiery, etc., etc.—what everyone requires—$20,000 worth of staple and fancy goods, to dispose of at half price. Who is the man who has made such a purchase? Gough. Where will those bargains be offered? At Gough's. Gough, one of the keenest of business men, who is ever on the watch for every special advantage the trade will offer to pluck and ready cash whose doings are the talk of the district and whose name is on every tongue. On Monday and Tuesday his store will be closed. His clothing departments will be raised to the second and third storeys, and the ground floor will be cleared for the reception of this new stock. On Wednesday morning at nine o'clock the doors will be opened for customers to go in and bargains to come out. Such a chance seldom comes and it will be appreciated accordingly. At the same time sweeping reductions will be made in the price of clothing, and the fame of the goods and the prices will increase the renown of even this famous emporium.

HOW DOES IT STAND?

IS IT "REVERSED" OR IS IT "RESERVED?"

The County of Peterborough Said to be Committed to Pay $100,000—A News papers Statement not Credited.

Excitement was created in town this afternoon at the appearance in the Mail of a statement to the effect that Messrs. Blake, Lash, Cassells & Holman, Toronto, Solicitors for Mr. E. O. Bickford, had cabled that the case Grand Junction Railway vs. the County of Peterborough had been decided before the Privy Council and that the decision of the courts had been reversed. The belief is that there has been a mistake. Mr. Edwards' cablegram received at half past three o'clock on Friday read "Judgment reserved; prospects favorable." As it was half past three o'clock when the cablegram was received it would be about half past seven o'clock when the message was sent. It is certain that Mr. Edwards' cablegram has been correctly received, while it is probable that the message sent to the Toronto lawyers may have been incorrectly received. It is hardly probable, after reserving judgment at half past seven o'clock in the evening, that the court would give judgment on so important a case at a short time afterwards, which it must have, if the statement in the Mail is correct.

The case has been before the courts for the past eight years, and in every Canadian court, except one, the county's contentions have been sustained. It arises out of a by-law having been carried in 1870, when the county of Haliburton was tagged on this county, giving a bonus of $75,000 to the Grand Junction Railway and $25,000 to the Peterborough and Haliburton Railway. In the county of Peterborough the by-law was defeated by 41 of a majority, but the people of Haliburton voted almost en masse for it and carried it. The council of the County of Peterborough refused to give the by-law a third reading and hence this protracted litigation.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

Presented to Bishop Dowling on the Occasion of His Visit to Cobourg.

The following address, which we take from the Cobourg World, was presented by the Roman Catholic congregation of Cobourg to His Lordship Bishop Dowling on the occasion of his first visit to that town last week:—

CAED MILLE FAILTHE.

To His Lordship, the Most Reverend T. J Dowling, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP,—The intelligence of your visit to the parish of Cobourg filled the hearts of your people with joy, and on behalf of the Catholics of this parish we now approach your Lordship to tender you a most cordial welcome. It is with feelings of just pride we recognize the high position one of the Canadian priesthood has attained by his virtue and learning in the Church of God. We have followed with interest every line in the public press relating to your person. When, from the lips of an eye witness, we heard of your first appearance at the alter of your cathedral, and of the manner of man you were—standing in all the youth and beauty of manhood in pontifical robes, the perfect high priest,—and giving out in clear utterance the wishes of your heart for the welfare of the clergy and people confided to your care, we anxiously look forward to this happy day. With sincere joy, therefor, do we now meet your Lordship to offer you a thousand welcomes and to lay at your feet the faith, love, loyalty and devotion ever found in the hearts of sterling Catholics for the Pope's representative,—the Bishop of their diocese.

From the day when our Holy Father, the great Leo XIII., selected you to rule over the See of Peterborough, the different portions of that vineyard have had your provident care. The work begun here, under your illustrious predecessors, will, therefore, while a source of pride to us, be a matter of no little interest to your Lordship.

On his first visitation to this parish, the Most Rev. Dr. Jamot saw with sorrow the vast distances that lay between the priest, and his people and the parochial school. We heard of his great desire that priest, church and school—the choicest flower in the parish garden—should be in the centre of the flock. With our best endeavors we tried to realize his desires, and before he went to his reward, that saintly prelate had the happiness of rejoicing with his people over the success of the convent school he had founded and blessed.

This reference to your predecessor,—his loving care for the little ones of this parish and our union with him in the work of Catholic education, may not only give your Lordship a holy joy, but it may also be the best assurance that in all undertakings the young Bishop of Peterborough will ever find willing hands and warm generous hearts among the Catholics of Cobourg.

The knowledge that you are surrounded by a faithful Catholic people, will, doubtless, make smoothe many a rugged path, will cheer you in the lonely height that men in your position must necessarily tread, and will lift at times from your shoulders the heavy burden of the episcopate.

Asking your Lordship's blessing,

We remain, your obedient servants.
(Signed on behalf of the Congregation.)
D. ROONEY.

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace Elected Professor of New Testament Exegesis.

A meeting of the Board of Regents of Victoria University, Cobourg, was held on Friday for the purpose of electing a successor to the late Dr. Nelles, Chancellor of the University, and for making other re-arrangements on the staff.

Dr. Burwash, Dean of the Faculty of Theology, was elected chancellor, and the Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., pastor of the George Street Methodist church, was elected Professor of New Testament exegesis. Mr. Wallace's duties will commence with the new year.

While glad to learn of his advancement to a place where his talents will have greater scope, and to a place where his deep learning will be of much value, the Rev. Mr. Wallace's friends in Peterborough, not only in his own church but among the citizens generally, will sincerely regret his departure from this town. His scholarly addresses are a delight to listen to, and his sermons always exhibit research and reflection.

The official Board of the George Street Church will meet on Monday night to consider the appointment of a successor to the Rev. Mr. Wallace.

Gentlemen with Bald Heads.

should not miss the opportunity offered by Prof. Dorewend to get a nice wig or toupee He will be at Phelan's Hotel on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 21st and 22nd, where he invites all to call and see his improved coverings for bald heads. 145 l115

A Good Price.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy owns a farm of 140 acres in the Township of Otonabee, two miles and a half from town. Last week he sold a corner of 14 acres off of it for $2,200 to Mr. T. J. Welsh. This is at about $165 per acre.

W. C. T. U.

A meeting of the Union will be held on Monday afternoon, at 4 p. m., at the rooms.

The Truth.

The REVIEW agrees with the Post that the truth should be known about the alleged diphtheria outbreak in Peterborough and, therefore, it asks the Post to reprint the following statement of the Medical Health Officer. He says: "I do not know of a single case in Peterborough, nor has there been any case reported to me for a good while. As the physician attending a case of diphtheria is liable to a fine of $20 if he does not promptly report to me, it is not likely that cases should exist without my hearing of them."

NOBBY Suiting's, Trousering's and Overcoating's at CLARK'S. d-111

Will be at Phelan's Hotel on Nov. 21 and 22. Prof. Dorenwend has returned from Europe with additional ideas in manufacturing hair goods. He comes here as before stated, and will show all those who lack capilliary adornment that his stock of styles this time eclipses anything yet shown. For tasteful designs and variety, his front pieces are unequalled. Ladies are invited to call and see the new styles of Bangs, Portland, Amanda, Bithia, Lucy, and others. His stock is enormous, and as he has to make room, has bought his raw materials for cash and at big discounts, and has the most improved methods for manufacturing his goods, he will sell at prices that make it possible for every lady to wear his beautiful styles. Gentlemen with bald heads should not forget to call and see his fine coverings (wigs and toupees) for the head. Remember, at Phelan's Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, Nov 21 and 22. w45d115

Local Brevities.

—In the fall a Scotchman's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of—haggis.

—The St. Andrew's dinner promises to be unusually successful.

—Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co. expect to open their new store, Simcoe street, on December 15th.

—The collection in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday in aid of the Nicholls Hospital amounted to $60.

—Complaints reach us of some mending needed to the road bed on Rubidge street, between Simcoe and Brock streets. Will the S'pond B. Inspector—who is usually attentive to these matters—give the locality named a little attention?

—On Thursday the Ontario Canoe Company shipped a fine canoe to Thompson & Co., Pesaris de Santa Fe, Argentine Republic, South America, as set forth on the address label. This is a good distance away off for the company to find a market and the result of the order will, it is hoped, be to further trade. Good goods find their demand in every market.

—Had the circumstances warranted interference, Mr. J. Nugent might have asked on Friday night to be saved from his friends. However, Mr. Nugent was in good hands, for about fifty good naturned folk invaded his residence on Brock street. They carried baskets. After pleasant greetings and a capital time socially the baskets were unpacked. The result exceeded the most sanguine expectations and a capital supper was discussed. Being a special occasion, the fun was kept up until an early hour, all enjoying themselves mightily.

A DISASTROUS COLLISION.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

A Rotterdam Steamer Bound for America Run Down in a Fog—Distressing Scenes on the Sinking Vessel—Many of the Dead Brought Into Dover.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The steamer W. A. Scholten, Capt. Taat, which left Rotterdam yesterday for New York, was sunk by a collision with the steamer Rosa Mary of Hartlepool at 11 o'clock last night, ten miles off Dover.

The Scholten carried a complement of 230 passengers and crew. The steamer Ebro of Sunderland rescued ninety of the crew and passengers and landed them at the Sailors Home, Dover. One hundred and forty of the passengers are missing. One passenger and a child of the party brought to Dover were found dead from exposure. It is hoped that passing vessels have rescued the missing ones. The W. A. Scholten's masts are visible from Dover pier. Boats have left Dover bound in all directions for the purpose of saving life and property if possible.

The Rosa Mary is anchored off Ramsgate with her bows stove in.

5 p.m.—Up to this hour twenty-two bodies from the W. A. Scholten have been landed at Dover. The W. A. Scholten left Rotterdam Saturday morning. At the time of the accident a dense fog prevailed. The Scholten was struck on the port bow by the Rosa Mary. Immediately after the shock was felt the Scholten's passengers, all of whom had retired for the night, rushed on deck in their night gowns. The boats were promptly ordered to be lowered, but it was found that only two were available. The three others were useless and were not lowered. The water rushed swiftly through the hole in the bow and a terrible scene ensued. The panic-stricken passengers uttered piercing shrieks and many fell upon their knees and prayed aloud. Little children clung to their mothers, who themselves were shrieking with terror. The officers were cool and self-possessed and remained on the bridge to the last. Several persons procured life-preservers and leaped into the sea. Within twenty minutes of the shock the Scholten was engulfed. All those who had put on life belts floated and were rescued by the boats from the steamer Ebro, which cruised around until 4 o'clock in the morning. Many of the rescued lost wives, husbands, brothers and sisters. The survivors were supplied with clothes and everything possible was done to ensure their comfort.

Conflicting Accounts.

The passengers' accounts differ regarding the circumstances of the collision, and the reports of the officers of the Scholten clash with those of the Rosa Mary. Some of the passengers state that the evening's merriment had ceased and most of the passengers had retired to their bunks, only a few remaining in the saloon, when a tremendous crash was heard on the port bow. They say it is impossible that the collision could have occurred by the Scholten striking an anchored vessel.

The second mate of the Scholten reports that he was on deck when he saw an unknown steamer coming through the fog. Before anything could be done the Scholten was struck in the fore rigging and port bow. The other vessel, which he now presumes was the Rose Mary, backed off and disappeared. Within twenty minutes the Scholten sunk.

The captain of the Rose Mary states that his vessel was run into while anchored southeast of South Sandhead by an unknown steamer. Finding that his vessel was damaged he proceeded to Dover Roads, where the vessel is now docked. The Rose Mary was laden with coals for St. Nazaire.

One Hundred and Thirty-two Missing.

According to the latest statement there were 210 persons on board the Scholten, leaving 132 drowned and missing. The first mate and fourth engineer have been recognized among the dead. The Scholten lies four miles from the Admiralty pier. Her three masts are visible. She is in a position dangerous to navigation and a buoy and lights have been placed at the wreck.

A Passenger's Experience.

George Moore, a passenger, states that when the crash occurred a general rush was made for the deck. "I was told that nothing serious had occurred," he says, "but I secured a life belt. There were six English passengers on board the vessel, and one of these, a girl, asked us to keep in a group, that the English might go down together. I was in the water a long time before being picked up. When the Scholten sank the cries were heartrending. The captain of the Ebro, the rescuing vessel, behaved nobly. He had all his deckload of timber thrown overboard and this judicious act saved many lives. Only two of the Scholten's boats were lowered. The others could not be got adrift. I do not know whether this was due to any fault on board. The vessel listed over so much that all the boats could not be dropped into the water. The people rushed about in the greatest state of excitement, all trying to get a place in the two boats which had been successfully launched. The scene and disorder prevented many persons being saved. The water was freezing cold and this hastened the death of many, rendering them powerless."

The Captain Kept a Good Look-out.

The second officer declares that every precaution had been taken on board the Scholten. A good look-out was kept and Capt. Taat not only had the ordinary watch on the bridge at the time of the disaster, but all the officers, who intended to remain there until the vessel was fairly down the channel. The captain was last seen at his post trying to quiet the passengers and get the boats off.

The Recovery of the Bodies.

The quays at Dover were crowded throughout the day with people who had come to watch the recovery of the bodies. No bodies were recovered during the morning because the tide was running to the eastward, but many were brought back with the ebb. Darkness prevented the recovery of more bodies, but many boats and tugs have put to sea on the chance of picking up others in the morning. Many of those whose bodies have been recovered look as if they had been frozen to death.

The Rosa Mary Showed No Side Lights.

The Rosa Mary sustained extensive damage and was only kept afloat by her watertight bulkheads. An officer of the Scholten states that the Rosa Mary showed no side lights, but was showing the usual mast headlights to indicate that she was lying at anchor. They steered straight down the channel, leaving her sufficient room to pass clear. When they drew near they found that she was steaming ahead and making right on to them. They tried to signal her off, but it was too late. She struck the Scholten on the port bow, ripping off the plates some distance and exposing the interior, the hole thus made being below the water line. The officers of the Rosa Mary avow that they were lying at anchor and were run into. They say that they did not weigh anchor until morning.

HELD FOR COUNTERFEITING.

Two Families Living Near Fort Huron Get Into Trouble.

PORT HURON, Nov. 19.—For a number of months past this city and county and Sarnia and vicinity have been flooded with counterfeit dollars and nickels. Sheriff Beruatz, his deputy, George Philips and Detective Buckeridge have been working on the case for some time. Early this morning they drove to the residence of John Mack, about seven miles from here, and searched his house.

Mack is a blacksmith and has twice been arrested for counterfeiting. Their search was highly satisfactory. They found plaster of paris molds for making dollars and nickels, and $100 in bogus dollars, some coin partly finished and other stuff which go to make up a counterfeiter's stock. Mack and his wife were arrested, and a search of the house of F. W. Ernest, about a mile distant, was made. There they found a "lay out" similar to the one found at Mack's, and a large quantity of bogus coin. Ernest, his wife and Jennie Leonard, the only inmates of the house, were arrested, and, together with the Mack family, are now in the county jail.

ATKINSON'S SILLY PROPOSAL.

Portland Business Men of Opinion that Great Britain Will Not Sell.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 19.—The Argus publishes over three columns of interviews with Portland business men on the proposal of Edward Atkinson of Boston to settle the commercial relations dispute by purchasing the Maritime Provinces for $50,000,000. Mr. Atkinson's proposition is generally considered impracticable on the ground that Great Britain would not be likely to sell. The gentlemen who are for Annexation, but do not believe it possible at present, and who propose Commercial Union, or a renewal of reciprocity, as a substitute, include the Hon. George O. Talbot, ex-Mayor Walker, Daniel W. True, James P. Baxter, Gen. John Marshall Brown and ex-Mayor Deering.

Gen. Brown, speaking from a military point of view, says that England will never consent to surrender her great fortified stronghold in Halifax. Fishing owners ridicule Atkinson's plan, and declare that they have had enough of Canada. Several gentlemen are opposed to annexation, union or reciprocity. The article gives all shades of opinion, but brings out strong sentiments in favor of reciprocity and free trade relations. While deeming the projects of Mr. Atkinson impracticable, The Argus expresses the opinion that the discussion begun by him will lead up to Commercial Union, and, perhaps, eventually to annexation. It believes that the majority of Maine people favor Commercial Union, but are indifferent to annexation.

A MAGNIFICENT DONATION.

Toronto's New Senator Gives $40,000 Towards an Hospital.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.

For some time past Hon. John Macdonald, Toronto's leading merchant and model citizen, has been advising with one or two intimate friends as how best to establish a hospital in this city which would be the means of alleviating suffering and which at the same time might assist the progress of surgical and medical science, the whole to be a memorial to his daughter Amy, not long ago deceased. Mr. Macdonald among others consulted Mr. Wm. Mulock, M.P., Vice-Chancellor of the University of Toronto, and in a letter to that gentleman he generously gives $40,000 toward the object in hand, leaving it to his fellow-citizens to make up the balance of $150,000 required.

The letter is dated Oaklands, Nov. 1st. In it Mr. Macdonald expresses the hope that the institution from the very first may be worthy of its location, worthy of the city, and in all respects equal to the best institutions of the kind on this continent. To do this Mr. Macdonald thinks $150,000 is at present required, $40,000 of which he has contributed. Further on he says:

Now, remember that twenty years ago at the time of the Fenian raid $40,000 or $45,000 was subscribed by our citizens in a few hours. Our people now have doubled the wealth they had then and I do not think they have retrograded in the spirit of which that effort was an evidence.

Further on he suggests that it would be well if parties desired it to spread large subscriptions over one, two or three years. Next in speaking of the abandonment of the original idea that the institution should bear his daughter's name, he says:

You will, I have no doubt, be greatly surprised at this change in my purpose, but I see in it advantages so great, and which do not appear to me to be possible in any other way that I have no difficulty in reaching this conclusion. Trusting that this project may be the means of leading up to an institution which will, in an eminent degree, prove not only a blessing for all time to come to the afflicted classes of this great city, and which was the earnest wish of my child, but which will also materially contribute to the advancement of medical science in connection with the University of Toronto,

I am very truly yours,

JOHN MACDONALD.

Dr. T. D. French, a prominent dentist of Vicksburg, Miss., committed suicide on Saturday by shooting himself in the head. No cause assigned for the deed.

Two Barges Adrift.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 19.—The barges Mayflower and Emerald broke away from the steamer Thomas H. Smith, off Sheboygan, this morning, and at last accounts were rapidly drifting towards the beach. The life-saving crew rescued the crew of the Mayflower, but the Emerald's crew are still in peril.

The Archbishop is Well Fixed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Private letters from the City of Guatemala bring the following intelligence: Archbishop Raoul has gone to the United States. The Government of Guatemala forced him to leave the Republic. The charges against him were insubordination and a tendency to interfere in temporal concerns. The Bishop retired with his private fortune of over $100,000 intact.

A DEFEAT FOR M. ROUVIER

THE EXPECTED MINISTERIAL CRISIS HAS COME.

On the Defeat of a Motion to Interpellate the Government on the Question of Its Domestic Policy the Cabinet Resigns and the Chamber Adjourns.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Soon after the Chamber of Deputies met to-day the Extreme Left moved an interpellation of the Government on the question of its domestic policy. A motion was made by the Ministry to postpone the debate. The motion was rejected by a vote of 328 to 242. Prime Minister Rouvier immediately announced the resignation of the Cabinet.

The motion for an interpellation of the Government was made by M. Clemenceau. Premier Rouvier demanded that the debate on the subject be adjourned until Nov. 24 in the interest of the measure for the conversion of the public debt.

M. Clemenceau said it was a singular method of reassuring the holders of public funds to tell them that they could live in peace until Nov. 24 and to promise that there would then be a crisis such as had never before occurred. The public, he declared, had too long awaited an explanation. There was practically no Government. The Ministry was not in condition to guide a Republican policy. Parliament was abandoned to the direction of the Right. The law officers of the state and the police were in conflict, and the administrative disorder was complete.

The division on the Government's proposal to adjourn the debate was taken at the conclusion of Mr. Clemenceau's speech. Upon the announcement of the result of the vote the Chamber adjourned until Monday amid great excitement.

Subsequent to the adjournment of the Chamber of Deputies, the Ministry held a conference, after which they proceeded to the Palace of the Elysee and placed their resignations in the hands of President Grevy.

M. Rouvier, upon leaving the Chamber of Deputies, accosted Mr. Clemenceau and said: "You have relieved me of a troublesome burden. I have now to advise President Grevy to send for you to form a ministry."

Among those who voted with the majority on the motion to adjourn the debate were 169 Republicans and 148 Conservatives. The minority included 221 Republicans and 7 Conservatives.

President Grevy accepted the resignations of his Ministers at the Elysee.

President Grevy held consultations this evening with M. De Freycinet, M. Floquet and other prominent statesmen. The President has asked the members of the Cabinet to continue the performance of their duties until a new Ministry is formed. The Republican groups are trying to organize a union of the whole party, with a view of establishing unassailable power in the Chambers.

President Grevy Will Not resign.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The Journal des Debats says that the fixed intention of President Grevy is not to resign. He does not admit that parliamentary pressure can enforce a President's resignation. Such a state of things, he holds, would be subversive of the constitution. His resignation would create a mischievous precedent, as his successors would thereby be bound to resign every time public opinion was against them.

STORM ON THE LAKES.

A Hurricane of Snow and Sleet Sweeps Over Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Last night an old-fashioned winter blizzard developed on Lake Michigan and is still raging with unabated fury. Gathering its forces in the west, the wind blew a sixty-mile gale from that quarter until dark when it hauled to the northward and increased in violence, a blinding storm of snow and sleet and freezing temperature keeping pace with the fury of the wind and outside the lake is a great wilderness of foam. The north sea came rolling up like a huge tidal wave, and within two hours the water in the river rose twenty-six inches. It is believed that many disasters will be reported, although the barometer giving timely warning of the storm may have enabled many vessels to find shelter. Only one vessel reached Chicago, the steamer Russell Sage, and she only came from Milwaukee, leaving there this morning. Capt. Root, her master, pronounced it the worst storm he had ever encountered. The only vessels that left the harbor were the steamers Clyde, Clarion and Russia, all grain laden, and bound for Buffalo. They got away before the storm set in. The Russia, which was the last to start, ran for shelter after battling with wind and sea for three hours. It is probable that the others ran into the bay at Milwaukee. The steamer Tioga, as powerful a vessel as ever was built, was due here this morning but has not arrived yet.

Don't use any more nauseous purgatives, such as Pills, Salts, &c., when you can get Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that moves the Bowels gently, cleansing all impurities from the system and rendering the Blood pure and cool. Sold by all Druggists.

BEFORE THE PRESIDENT.

THE COMMISSIONERS ARE RECEIVED BY MR. CLEVELAND.

The American Representatives in the Conference Said to be Shrewd Tacticians, Fully Able to Support Their Case—The Behring Sea Seizures.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 20.—Yesterday was a quiet day in reference to international matters at the American capital. The chief event to the visiting negotiators so far was their presentation to the President of the United States which took place at noon on Saturday. Secretary Bayard first introduced Mr. Chamberlain, after which Sir Lionel West introduced Sir Charles Tupper, who in turn presented, the officials connected with the conference, consisting of Judge Thompson, General Cameron, and Messrs. Graham, Chipman, Stewart and Johnson of Canada, and Messrs. Bergne and Maycock of the Imperial Foreign Office.

The President was most gracious and manifested the slight interest he had taken in the proceedings so far by enquiring of Secretary Bayard as to the names of the plenipotentiaries whom he had selected. If appearances however, are any indication of character, the United States team is a strong one. Both Bayard and Putnam are accomplished tacticians who evince diplomacy even in social intercourse, and will be found without doubt worthy of the great nation they are to represent. The other, Mr. Angell, is a quiet, thinking man who will succeed if decision of character constitutes an essential element. He will, perhaps, be found more correctly posted in details and more dogged in his determination to adhere to what he has no doubt prejudged to be the right of his nation than either of his colleagues. If his university theories do not impede the solution of the difficulties I have misjudged the man.

The United States representatives make a combination that is a very strong one, and it will require all the brilliancy of Mr. Chamberlain, all the force and determination of Sir Charles Tupper, and all the genial suavity of Sir Lionel West to match them when the tug-of-war comes in the diplomatic chamber of the State Department next week.

There seems to be an impression here that the United States plenipotentiaries will try to avoid a discussion of Behring Sea matters. They have made no preparation for it, and seem to have taken it for granted that the present conference will confine itself to the grievances of the Gloucester fishermen.

POPULATION AND FARM VALUES.

According to the annual report of the Bureau of Statistics for 1886, published by the Ontario Government, the urban population of the Province has been increasing more rapidly then the rural population. In 1887 the total population of Ontario, as the Monetary Times points out, was 1 620,000, and the dwellers in villages, towns and cities 544,000 or say 31.5 per cent., against 68.5 per cent. on the farm. In 1886 these proportions had so changed that out of a total population increased to 1,820,000 there were 37.06 per cent. (675,000 persons) living in the towns, &c., against 62.94 per cent. (1,144,000) living on the farm.

In Peterborough County the rural population was 18,071 in 1877 and the urban population 9,073. In 1886 the number of persons living in the town and villages had increased to 11,663, and the farm population to 18,777. Hence the population of the towns and villages has increased more rapidly than that of the townships, the growth of the town of Peterborough being marked, its population having risen from 6,875 in 1877 to 8,159 in 1886—or, including the village of Ashburnham in both years, from 8,171 in 1877 to 9,565 in 1886, and this year's figures will show a further increase.

The value of farms and farm property has also increased. The value of farm land in the county, averaged for the years 1882-86, was $20.98 per acre, and in 1886 it had risen to $21.34, farm buildings, per acre, from $5.01 to $5.47, implements from $1.29 to $1.43 and live stock from $2.97 to $3.02, or, in the short period mentioned, the increase in the value of all farm property per acre was from $30.25 to $31.26. In the Province the increase in values was:—Average for the five years 1882-6, $43.98; value in 1886, $45.47.

The growth of cities, towns and villages has an effect on the value of farm property. Everyone knows that land is more valuable, for farming purposes, when it is near a large manufacturing or business centre, for the more produce their is consumed near to the place of production the better it is for the producer. The augmentation of the urban population of the Province, as shown by the report, has been a factor in the increase in the value of farm property.

It is therefore in the interest of the farming community that the growth of the towns should not be checked and that manufacturing should be encouraged. Those counties which contain manufacturing districts have made better progress than sections with smaller mechanical industries. Any fiscal policy that would injure the manufacturing industries would decrease the population of the towns, and depreciate the value of the farms.

[The Last Shipment of Cheese.—Warminster factory shipped the balance of the season's cheese on Friday, Nov. 11th, including the total make for October. It amounts to about $1,800, which makes up the total amount (for this season of fine prices) of $12,000. The people of this district, I am sure, all join in thanks to Mr. Flavelle, of Lindsay, for the manner in which he fulfilled his contract, and wish him success with all goods bought.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

One by one the dull weeks succeeded each other in the life of Agnes. She faced her position with admirable courage, seeing her friends, keeping herself occupied in her leisure hours with reading and drawing, leaving no means untried of diverting her mind from the melancholy remembrance of the past. But she had loved too faithfully, she had been wounded too deeply, to feel in any adequate degree the influence of the moral remedies which she employed. Persons who met with her in the ordinary relations of life, deceived by her outward serenity of manner, agreed that "Miss Lockwood seemed to be getting over her disappointment." But an old friend and school companion, who happened to see her during a brief visit to London, was inexpressibly distressed by the change that she detected in Agnes. This lady was Mrs. Westwick, the wife of that brother of Lord Montbarry who came next to him in age, and who was described in The Peerage as presumptive heir to the title. He was then away, looking after his interests in some mining property which he possessed in America. Mrs. Westwick insisted on taking Agnes back with her to her home in Ireland. "Come and keep me company while my husband is away. My three little girls will make you their playfellow, and the only stranger you will meet is the governess, whom I answer for your liking beforehand. Pack up your things, and I will call for you to-morrow on my way to the train." In those hearty terms the invitation was given. Agnes thankfully accepted it. For three happy months she lived under the roof of her friend. The girls hung round her in tears at her departure; the youngest of them wanted to go back with Agnes to London. Half in jest, half in earnest, she said to her old friend at parting: "If your governess leaves you, keep the place open for me." Mrs. Westwick laughed. The wiser children took it seriously, and promised to let Agnes know.

On the very day when Miss Lockwood returned to London, she was recalled to those associations with the past which she was most anxious to forget. After the first kissings and greetings were over, the old nurse (who had been left in charge at the lodgings) had some startling information to communicate, derived from the courier's wife.

"Here has been little Miss Ferrari, my dear, in a dreadful state of mind, inquiring when you would be back. Her husband has left Lord Montbarry without a word of warning—and nobody knows what has become of him."

Agnes looked at her in astonishment. "Are you sure of what you are saying?" she asked.

The nurse was quite sure. "Why, Lord bless you! the news come from the couriers' office in Golden square—from the secretary himself!" Hearing this, Agnes began to feel alarmed as well as surprised. It was still early in the evening. She at once sent a message to Mrs. Ferrari, to say that she had returned.

In an hour more the courier's wife appeared in a state of agitation which it was not easy to control. Her narrative, when she was at last able to speak connectedly, entirely confirmed the nurse's report of it.

After hearing from her husband with tolerable regularity from Paris, Rome and Venice Emily had twice written him afterward—and had received no reply. Feeling uneasy, she had gone to the office in Golden square to inquire if he had been heard of there. The post of the morning had brought a letter to the secretary from the courier then at Venice. It contained startling news of Ferrari. His wife had been allowed to take a copy of it, which she now handed to Agnes to read.

The writer stated that he had recently arrived in Venice. He had previously heard that Ferrari was with Lord and Lady Montbarry at one of the old Venetian palaces, which they had hired for a term. Being a friend of Ferrari, he had gone to pay him a visit. Ringing at the door that opened on the canal, and failing to make any one hear him, he had gone round to a side entrance opening on one of the narrow lanes of Venice. Here, standing at the door as if she was waiting for somebody—perhaps for the courier himself—he found a pale woman with magnificent dark eyes, who proved to be no other than Lady Montbarry herself.

She asked, in Italian, what he wanted. He answered that he wanted to see the courier Ferrari, if it was quite convenient. She at once informed him that Ferrari had left the palace, without assigning any reason, and without even leaving an address at which his monthly salary (then due him) could be paid. Amazed at this reply, the courier inquired if any person had offended Ferrari, or quarreled with him. The lady answered, "To my knowledge, certainly not. I am Lady Montbarry, and I can positively assure you that Ferrari was treated with the greatest kindness in this house. We are as much astonished as you are at his extraordinary disappearance. If you should hear of him, pray let us know, so that we may at least pay him the money which is due."

After one or two more questions (quite readily answered) relating to the date and the time of day at which Ferrari had left the palace, the courier took his leave.

He at once entered on the necessary investigations—without the slightest result so far as Ferrari was concerned. Nobody had seen him. Nobody appeared to have been taken into his confidence. Nobody knew anything (that is to say, anything of the slightest importance) even about persons so distinguished as Lord and Lady Montbarry. It was reported that her ladyship's English maid had left her, before the disappearance of Ferrari, to return to her relatives in her own country, and that Lady Montbarry had taken no steps to supply her place. His lordship was described as being in delicate health. He lived in the strictest retirement—nobody was admitted to him, not even his own countrymen. A stupid old woman was discovered who did the housework at the palace, arriving in the morning and going away again at night. She had never seen the lost courier—she had never even seen Lord Montbarry, who was then confined to his room. Her ladyship, "a most gracious and adorable mistress," was in constant attendance on her noble husband. There was no other servant then in the house (so far as the old woman knew, but herself. The meals were sent in from a restaurant. My lord, it was said, disliked strangers. My lord's brother-in-law, the baron, was generally shut up in a remote part of the palace, occupied (the gracious mistress said) with experiments in chemistry. The experiments sometimes made a nasty smell. A doctor had latterly been called in to his lordship—an Italian doctor, long resident in Venice. Inquiries being addressed to this gentleman (a physician of undoubted capacity and respectability), it turned out that he also had never seen Ferrari, having been summoned to the palace (as his memorandum book showed) at a date subsequent to the courier's disappearance. The doctor described Lord Montbarry's malady as bronchitis. So far, there was no reason to feel any anxiety, though the attack was a sharp one. If alarming symptoms should appear, he had arranged with her ladyship to call in another physician. For the rest, it was impossible to speak too highly of my lady; night and day she was at her lord's bedside.

NORWOOD.

Correspondence of the Review.

Measles.—This disease is very prevalent in this section, principally among children, but no fatal cases have been reported as yet.

Norwood Grain Market.—The Hastings Star comes out this week with a letter in regard to an item printed in the Review from your correspondent. Among the first mistakes he makes he claims the article was from the Peterborough Times correspondent. The price of grain in Norwood as compared with Hastings is what seems to displease him most, he stating that better prices are paid there than in Norwood. Now, no later than yesterday seven farmers that we know of drove their barley through Hastings, where they were offered 68 cents and came to Norwood and got 73 and 75 cts. per bushel. They all spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Rork, who buys for the Norwood elevator. Three of them came from within four miles of Campbellford and one from Dartmouth.

Fire.—Thursday morning about 3 o'clock a fire was discovered in the upstairs of Geo. Hendren's carriage works. It was too far advanced to be got under control, and, the building being very old and all of wood, was burned to the ground, as was also a large unoccupied tenement building adjoining. We understand Mr. Hendren has $900 insurance on the contents.

Off His Balance.—A man has been around the village for the last few weeks whose actions clearly show that he is insane. He visited the Presbyterian Church the Sunday before last and was lurking rround the hub factory at a late hour one night last week. He is laboring under the delusion that a doctor has tried to poison him. He is a big burly fellow and would be difficult to handle. The authorities ought to take a look after him.

Death of a Pioneer.—Died, at his residence, lot 7, con. 5, Dummer, on the 12th inst., Mr. John Kelly. The deceased was a native of the County Antrim, Ireland, and was born in the year 1806, and emigrated to Canada in the year 1831. He was one of the first settlers in the township of Dummer, and has resided in the township and on the claim he first located for over 56 years. He was a man of sterling integrity, hard-working and industrious and indued with great strength, which was often called into requisition by the pioneers of those days. He has been known to carry from Peterborough on his back 150 pounds of flour to his residence in Dummer, a distance in those days of 20 miles and six miles of the road only a blazed line, leading on logs over creeks which were much larger then than now. He was married to Miss Fitzpatrick in the year 1835, to whom there was born six children, four of whom survive him. He shouldered his musket in 1837 and walked to Toronto to aid in suppressing the rebellion of that day. He was elected for many years to the Municipal Council of Dummer. In politics he was a Reformer. His remains were followed to the R. C. Cemetery on the 14th inst by a large concourse of mourning friends.

HARVEY.

Proposed Bridge.—The bridge across Gannon's narrows is still much talked of. Some few weeks ago Mr. J. Moloney, Mr. J. Lang, Mr. W. B. Kelly and Mr. Belcher, the county engineer, visited the proposed sites and investigated into the details. The two sites are from Crowley's Island to the Ennismore town line and from Chase's mill to a point between the summer lodges of Mr. Hudspeth and Mr. Belcher. This landing is obstructed by a high hill, south of that again being Gannon's marsh. The distance across here is 1,850 feet, with an average depth of water of 10½ feet, and when the scheme was proposed some years ago the cost was then estimated at $7,000. The distance from Crowley's island across is 1,100 feet, with an average depth of 7 feet. From the island to the Harvey shore, Mr. W. B. Kelly offers to bridge and maintain at his own expense, consequently the Crowley site is the cheapest, and easiest maintained, and within the grant of $5,000 made by the county.—Independent.

HASTINGS.

Shipping Lumber.—Large quantities of lumber are being shipped from this station.

Repairing the Dam.—Mr. Hugh Burnet has a gang of men at work repairing the slide and apron of the dam.

Logs Purchased.—Mr. Wm. Fowlds has purchased a large quantity of logs and boom timber from the owners of the Harwood Mills (which have shut down,) sufficient for next summer's cut. He will not engage in lumbering operations in the woods this winter.

A Thimblerigger Fined.—A professor of the art of thimblerigging, who hailed from Norwood, was in town on Thursday last exhibiting his skill. He roped one verdant citizen who was so chagrined by the swindle that he had the professor brought before Magistrate Huycke, who fined the gambler $10 and costs.—Star.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

The Boys.

The boys who were charged with stealing Mrs. Gorman's cakes and preserves were before the court this morning. The case was further adjourned till Thursday.

New Arrival.

At Elliott & Tierney's, just received a large lot of hand picked apples in barrels, consisting of Northern Spies, Greening, Ben Davis, Baldwin, 20oz Pippin, H Pippin, Bell Flower and Rainbo.

Two or Thirty.

Samuel Levit is the man who raised the row on the corner of George and Hunter streets on Friday evening. He was found by the police and called upon this morning to contribute $2 to the town coffers or languish for 30 days on the hill.

Grand Lamp Display.

Messrs. Breese & Bain have recently imported a large assortment of Library Parlor and Hall Lamps, direct from the American manufacturers, and are enabled to sell them at very reasonable prices. Call and see them. d117-6-1w

Visit of Laurence the Optician.

Mr. B. Laurence, the eminent optician, will be at Mr. J. McKee's drug store on SATURDAY next, Nov. 19th. All who need his services should remember the date. His skill can be availed of without extra charge. It is satisfactory to be able to obtain Laurance's glasses and particularly so to have them adjusted to the requirements of the eye by an expert. 4d117

Adam's Application.

Adam Dobbin entered the Police Court this morning carrying a little bag in his hand. He elbowed his way up to the Magisterial desk and made application or his annual hibernation. His Worship looked over the informations and found the wanted one. "Adam," said he, "you are charged with a very grave offence again." "What's that?" asked Adam, "With being a vagrant." "A what!" "Well, I'll put it milder," His Worship remarked; "you are said to have no place of abode or visible means of support. Is that corect?" Adam said that it was and that he wanted to go in till the first of May. His Worship asked if he wouldn't like to get out for the 17th of March, but Adam held out for May 1st. He was handed his papers and went off to gaol without escort.

Rhea.

M'lle Rhea, the celebrated actress, supported by Mr. Edward Bell and a competent company, appeared in Bradburn's Opera House on Saturday evening in the comedy, "Pygmalion and Galatea." The story of the play is as follows:—Pygmalion is a Greek sculptor. On his marriage to Cynisca the gods gave power, should either prove untrue to the other—gave power to the faithful to call down upon the faithless the curse of blindness. While in his studio one day Pygmalion drew the curtain and gazed fondly on a statue he had just completed, Galatea. In a fit of anger he upbraided the gods for giving him such divine power to create without giving him power to breathe life into his figures. Then he prayed that Galatea might come into real life. His prayer is answered. Galatea moves, speaks, and the first word she utters is Pygmalion. The sculptor is in ecstasy. His Galata lives! She approaches him confidingly and looks upon him with eyes of love. But when Cynisca finds that her lord reciprocates Galatea's adoration there is trouble She uses the punishment which the gods place in her hands. With tragic voice she invokes the wrath from above and Pygmalion is smitten. Anon the blindfold man repents his faithlessness. He is restored to his wife and his sight and Galatea again becomes marble. Rhea's Galatea makes an impression on the mind not easily removed. Her innocent wonder in coming into this strange world is most natural. Her love is pure, tender, earnest. Pygmalion is her whole support. In her sweet guilelessness she cannot understand why she may not love her adored and be loved by him. The sympathy of the audience is entirely here when she, distressed and resigned, comes to a knowledge of the truth. Rhea's speech is flavored with just sufficient foreign ascent to make it musical and charming. Mr. Bell took his part with much credit.

Look For It.

Rev. J. I. Dowling's Grand Panoramic Combination of Oriential and Biblical illustrations, nearly 6,000 square feet of oil paintings. Interesting, instructive and eloquent addresses on each scene will be given by the great artist himself, in the Sabbath School Room, of the George street Methodist Church, Monday and Tuesday evenings, 28th and 29th of November. Admission 15 cents, children 10 cents. 7d121

Purchased Another Flyer.

The Lindsay Post says:—"Mr. 'Joe.' Daly, of Congress Hall fame, recently purchased from Mr. S. McGrath his fine spring filly sired by Phil. Ryadyk. 'Joe' is, by the way, always on the look out for promising 'youngsters,' and in this colt—if breeding, general make-up and way of going count in the race—should be a veritable flyer. It is without doubt one of the best bred colts in the county, being on the sire's side from the celebrated Ryadyk family of Hambletonians, while the dam is a direct descendant of Henry Clay, this being today one of the most desirable crosses know'n in trotting circles, and has been fully maintained during the past season. Price private. Mr. Daly has also purchased a black stallion colt of the same age from a Cobourg gentleman for which he also pays a handsome figure."

Victoria Home for the Aged.

The Mail has the following notice of the opening of an institution founded in Toronto by Mrs. Leigh, formerly of Lakefield, and whose husband was Major of the 57th Battalion:—"This very deserving institution, situated on Lakeview avenue, was formally opened on Thursday. Suitable religious services were given by Rev. J. McLean Ballard, assisted by Revs. F. Groves, Hoyles, Clarke and Herbert Symonds. This institution, although private, is in the fullest sense a charitable one, non-sectarian, and is deserving of encouragement from all. A board of ladies of the Church of England have the management of the home. Mrs. Major Leigh is the founder of the institution and the generous owner of the building. Mrs. Groves, the president, and Miss Minnie Featherstonhaugh, the treasurer, have secured a very competent matron, who will kindly and attentively wait upon those who are under her charge. Several applications are now on the list to be added to those already admitted."

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

To-day's Toronto World has the following:—"The World yesterday dropped into the office of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, 38 King street east, with a view to renewing a big advertising contract with the Managing Director. "Can't do it," said Mr. Carlile. "The rush of business has been so immense on account of advertising already done, that we will advertise no more this year. Applications are pouring in from all quarters of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Why, I submitted to-day alone applications amounting to $350,000 to the Insurance Committee, the largest amount ever put before an insurance committee at one time by any company in Canada. A large amount of our business is secured in the city; wholesale and professional men have become alive to the fact that we issue a liberal policy at a low premium, compatible with safe business principles. Ah, Mr. World, there's nothing succeeds like success." Business at the Peterborough office is booming. Though the agents, Messrs. Wilson & Morrison, have only represented the Manufacturers' Life for three months the business done already exceeds $600,000. Straws show which way the wind blows. 1d121-1w47

A Sad Fatal Accident.

The Kalamazoo, Mich., Telegraph of a recent date contains an account of the sad death of Mr. Robt. Brockie, formerly of Otonabee, and who was married to a daughter of Mr. P. W. Elmhirst, of Otonabee. The Telegraph says:—"Saturday afternoon Mr. Robt. Brockie, one of the best known farmers in this county, fell off a load of cornstalks he was hauling at his farm in Pavillion township and dislocated his neck. The cause of the accident was the sudden starting up of the horses. The hired man, Mr. Gray, who was helping with the work, ran to his assistance. Mr. Brockie was in terrible agony and, exclaiming that his back had been broken, begged that none would touch him, but that he might be allowed to remain there and die in the open air. Dr. Brahan, of Scotts, was summoned and the unfortunate gentleman was placed on a cot and the dislocation reduced by straps, a pulley and a weight. He was still alive at noon to-day, but his whole body below his breast is paralyzed and has no feeling. Dr. Hitchcock, who went to see him on Sunday, commends very highly the prompt action of the Scotts physician, but expresses no hope for Mr. Brockie's recovery. The injured man is strapped flat on his back and is not allowed to move in the least from this position." Mr. Brockie lived until the following Thursday, Oct 27th, when death ended his sufferings. He was born in Aug. 25th, 1834, in Bongate, Jedburgh, Roxburgshire, and in 1854 came to Canada. He remained in the vicinity of Peterborough for six years, and in 1860 removed to Kalamazoo. The Telegraph adds:—"At an early age he sought and found the Saviour and has been a faithful follower ever since, and when the grim messenger of Death held him in his fast embrace, he had no fear, but said he was ready to die, and often when pain was excruciating would cry out, 'Jesus, Jesus, how precious to my soul!' and looking at those around him would earnestly beseech each one to cling to the Cross and meet him in Heaven." He was vice-president of the Kalamazoo County Sunday School Association and superintendent of two schools.

A MENACE IN THE STATE

THE YOUNG MEN SAID TO BE A SOURCE OF DANGER.

Ten Young Men in Gaol to one in Church —The Antidote to Socialism and Anarchy.

On Sunday Mr. S. H. Blake and Mr. T. F. Caldicott, President of the Toronto Young Men's Christian Association delivered addresses in town in favour of the Y. M. C. A. institution.

In the George Street Church on Sunday night there was a large congregation. After devotional exercises the Rev. F. H. Wallace introduced the first speaker.

Mr. Caldicott on rising remarked that the Word of God was the sword of the spirit but but at present he was unarmed. He had mislaid his Bible and in his Bible were all all of his notes. Therefore he would have to do the best he could without them. An able American writer in reviewing the dangers that threaten the United States democracy said that one of them was the rapid accumulation of money. There were three ways to get wealth. First by inheritance, second by hard work and third by stealing. The Anarchists of the United States were asking this question:—"How is it possible for a man in a single life time to accumulate say a million dollars?" They pointed out the fortunes being got by gigantic stock jobbing and other devices, and argued that if it was right in the larger way it should be right in the smaller way. He would dread to see Anarchists overturn law and order and stated that what was required to prevent great evils was that men should get the principles of Christianity in their hearts and practise them. He looked at the state of society dotted as it was with means to entrap young men into ways of vice and sin and asked the question:—"Are the young men safe?" At the battle of Waterloo the farm house was taken and retaken by the opposing forces, both sides knowing that the one getting possession of it and keeping it would win the battle. So it was with young men. If the church got them it got the state. If the devil got them then woe to the church, and woe to the state! The only thing to do was for the church to lay hold of the young men and take possession of them. The Y.M.C.A. was a means to this end. It was a movement of the century. All over the world it was working actively for the eternal welfare of the young men. He spoke of the recreation young men needed and how hard it was for them to get amusement. The billiard saloon and bar room stood open and young men were lured there because of no other place to go. In Toronto they had 20,000 young men, and a great effort had been made to provide proper amusements for them. A building has been erected and furnished at an expense of $100,000. He prayed the people to support the Y.M.C.A. there with both prayer and purse.

The speaker left to address the congregation in St. Paul's Church, and while Mr. Blake, who had spoken in St. Paul's while Mr. Caldicott was speaking in the George Street Church, was coming, the Rev. F. H. Wallace spoke briefly.

MR. BLAKE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. BLAKE spoke about the good Samaritan and Christ's answer to the lawyer's question: "Who is my neighbor?" The nature of a parable was the placing along side a spiritual truth a circumstance with which everyone was familiar and through that circumstance making the truth plain. Miracles and parables were before us all the time. Yesterday the streets were muddy and dirty. God's wondrous sun touched the dirty places on earth, took up moisture to the cloud and to-day that foulness is returned pure and bright and sparkling. As in the natural world so in the spiritual. God's Son touches the foul and unclean heart, takes from it its foulness and makes it pure and good. The man came down from Jerusalem to Jerico, fell among thieves. He was wounded and stripped of his clothing. A priest saw him and passed by on neither side. Were any here guilty of that? Did they see their fellow men in trouble and pass them by? A Levite came, full of formalism. He passed by on the opposite side. But the Samaritan saw him, had compassion, went to him, bound up his wounds pouring in oil and wine, and leaving Him at an inn enjoined the keeper to take care of him. So with Jesus. He bound up our wounds and with the oil and wine of affliction. He healed them perfectly. The speaker marked the language: "Take care of him," and the injunction of Christ to the interogater "Go thou and do likewise." This meant that all people in trouble and distress should receive the sympathy and help of Christians. He invited all to accept Christianity, in the confidence that Christ was as willing to accept the sinner as he was 1,800 years ago. He touched on the results of the application of steam and electricity in aiding human progress, but he wanted to see Christianity applied and it would work just as great wonders. Young men, it was said by an eminent man, were a standing menace to civilization. Why? Because of their aptness to go into, and continue in, wrong doing, turning out dangerous men. Statistics showed now that for every one young man that got in the church ten young men got in the gaol. The latter class of men were those who recruited the ranks of the Anarchists and Socialists. They might have been rescued from imprisonment had they been cared for in early manhood. From 900 to 1,000 young men in Peterborough lived in boarding houses, without genial companionship and social intercourse. A pleasant place where they might meet, exchange civilities, engage in mental and physical exercise, or amuse themselves, would be of inestimable benefit to them and to the town. He spoke of how, properly organized, Y. M. C. A.'s engaged in cultivating all a young man's best parts, moral, mental and physical, making them vigorous in body and strong in mind. He urged the people to build a suitable place for the young men in this town to meet together, assuring them that if they did so they would not be without their reward.

Church Notes.

—This evening will be held the quarterly meeting of the official board of the George Street Methodist Church. Among matters to come up for discussion and arrangement will be the matter of a temporary supply for the pulpit after the retirement of Rev. Mr. Wallace, and further on the selection of a clergyman to take the pulpit permanently—or to the extent that the system of church government permits. The names of several prominent divines have been mentioned in this connection and who are now filling pulpits in the Bay of Quinte Conference, but nothing definite enough has been made public to warrant the mention of any particular clergyman as the choice of the board.

—Rev. Mr. Wallace on Sunday morning prefaced the sermon with a few remarks relative to his approaching retirement from the pulpit of the George Street Methodist Church. He said he had looked forward with pleasant anticipation to the work of the next three years among the congregation, but having been called to another sphere of work he was willing to undertake it, trusting that the work and church interests of the denomination at large would not suffer. It would cause him to sever the pleasant relations which had subsisted as pastor with the church, and he should ever remember with feeling the many kindnesses shown.

MANUFACTURES BOOMING.

Large Orders Already Executed and now in Hand at the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Coy's Shops.

The best possible indication of the popularity of a manufactured article is shown in the demand. If that demand be large and urgent it can be relied on that the goods are of value and up to the requirements. No matter how large and bulky the manufacture this well known rule holds good. The truth of the axiom is evinced by the successful business done at the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Coy's shops on Reid street. Seeing a number of cars standing on the siding and loaded for shipment a representative of the REVIEW was led to enquire where the quantities of boilers, mountings, smoke stacks and machine tools were being sent and learned that shipments had been very active during the week past, including, among others, a large order for the Georgian Bay Lumber Company of an 18x24 inch slide valve engine, a No. 2 5-head block carriage, a No. 3, 3-head block carriage and other machinery. The company have been awaiting receipt of the above machinery in order to extend their output.

The Midland North Shore Lumber Company, at Parry Harbour, have now on the way from the shops an 11x14 engine, shingle machin, knee bolter, drag saw and shingle machine. Some other tools are in process of construction.

The Hamilton Works have long held a fine reputation for excellent work and it is a gratifying reflection that the market being opened up with the North-West is likely to add largely to the trade and prove remunerative. From the Haslam Lumber Company at Nanaimo, British Columbia, orders have been received for several pieces of heavy machinery, a first instalment of which, including a boiler 4 feet in diameter, was shipped last week. The Company (Hamilton's) are now furnishing estimates for the building of a large amount of saw mill machinery for the British Columbia trade. It is almost certain that large orders will result and that new machines, specially designed to meet the requirements of the lumber trade, will be got out.

Coming nearer home the firm have reason to congratulate themselves that without any special exertion they have carried off an order ahead of Toronto and London manufacturers. For the new

COCHRANE ROLLER MILLS

Supply Company at Dundas, is now on the floor at Hamilton's shops a splendid 13x30 Corliss engine. The construction embodies the very latest improvements directed to the production of the maximum amount of power and economical use of fuel. Engineers and mechanics will examine with interest the new valve releasing gear with which the engine is fitted and which promises to give important results over the style of valve gear formerly in use. The engine will run at a speed of 75 strokes per minute, developing at fair boiler pressure 50 h. p. The Hamilton works are supplying the boilers and all necessary mountings for the Cochrane Company's shops, without even being requested to tender or state the ultimate cost, Mr. Cochrane briefly stating "that they built the best machinery in Canada and he knew where to place his order."

The shops present a scene of great activity and are well laid out to push work in hand through with despatch. New tools are being added to increase the already large facilities.

Returned from Europe.

Will be at Phelan's Hotel on Nov. 21 and 22. Prof. Dorenwend has returned from Europe with additional ideas in manufacturing hair goods. He comes here as before stated, and will show all those who seek capilliary adornment that his stock of styles this time eclipses anything yet shown. For tasteful designs and variety, his front pieces are unequalled. Ladies are invited to call and see the new styles of Bangs, Portland, Amanda, Bithis, Lucy and others. His stock is enormous, and as he has to make room, has bought his raw materials for cash and at big discounts, and has the most improved methods for manufacturing his goods, he will sell at prices that make it possible for every lady to wear his beautiful styles. Gentlemen with bald heads should not forget to call and see his fine coverings (wigs and toupees) for the head. Remember, at Phelan's Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, Nov 21 and 22. w45d115

A PECULIAR CASE.

Messrs. Ambrose & Winslow, Brewers Charged with Violating the Scott Act.

A case was tried at the Police Court this morning, the circumstances of which are something out of the ordinary.

The brewing firm of Ambrose & Winslow, Port Hope, since the Scott Act has been in operation here have done quite a trade in this town. Their agent has been residing here, has taken orders, and has on forwarding them to Port Hope had them filled. The charge against them was that between the 20th of August and 14th of November they had sold intoxicating liquor in the town of Peterborough.

Mr. Winslow was present. He admitted having sent ale here since August 20th. Their agent here took orders and sent them to Port Hope. Sometimes the agent made collections and sometimes payment was sent to Port Hope. All was sent here and paid for within the dates mentioned.

CROSS-EXAMINED.—He considered that the sales were not made here. They were made in Port Hope. Frequently they had rejected orders which which had been sent. Their agent had not authority to take an absolute order. The could refuse to fill any order if they chose.

Other witnesses were called and examined and judgment was reserved.

Mr. W. R. Riddel, Cobourg, acted for Messrs. Ambrose & Winslow and Mr. Wood for the prosecution.

A similar charge was brought against Mr. H. Calcutt. He put in a similar defence, viz., that he had not sold any intoxicating liquor in Peterborough, that his sales had all been effected in Ashburnham.

Personal.

Miss Annie Delaney will sing at a grand evening concert to be given in Ottawa this evening. Among other vocalists to be present is Mr. Warrington, Toronto's baritone.

Mr. T. C. Colbeck, the new classical master, has arrived in town and has assumed his duties at the Collegiate Institute to-day.

Mr. Jackson and Mr. Burfield, of London, Eng., were in town to-day. They were prospecting with a view of opening an agency for musical instruments and with ultimate object of manufacturing.

Address to Young Men.

At the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock the Hon. S. H. Blake delivered an address before about a hundred and fifty young men. The subject was "Jacob." He specially emphasized the principles of sowing and reaping as evinced in Jacob's life and character. At the close he asked all who desired to consecrate their lives to the service of God, to express it by holding up their hand. Nearly the whole audience acceded to his request. His address was listened to with rapt attention throughout, and made a deep impression on the young men present.

War Declared.

The cable correspondents often try to work up a war scare. In Afghanistan. India, Germany, Russia or France they warn the reading public to look out for slaughter. But war has been declared—by Mr. Thos. Kelly. For two months, as will be seen by his advertisement, he will slaughter dry goods at low prices. His house is a trustworthy one, and the prices will be as he says, and the people are invited to call and inspect the goods. A rapid disposal of goods may be expected. The house is a well known one and such an announcement will be interesting to purchasers of dry goods—which means everyone.

Local Brevities.

—Mr. M. Parker lost, on Friday night, between Fraserville and Centerville, a pair of horse blankets. Like a business man he had some bills printed at this office on Saturday morning. The first bill posted upbrought in the blankets. Mem. Advertise advertise.

—In its account of the anniversary of the Lindsay Y. M. C. A., the Post says:—"Mr. Stevens of Peterborough explained the work done at a young men's meeting and some of the effects. He admired of all men a Christian athlete, and his face glowed as he spoke of the lacrosse field. He also accepted a challenge proffered by the chairman for a game of lacrosse between Lindsay and Peterborough."

A Great Salughtering and Cutting of Prices in Dry Goods

—AT—

for the Next Two Months.

After considering the matter over carefully he has decided to force the sale of his large and well assorted stock of Dry Goods. This means a loss but, rather than carry goods over until another season he feels justified in taking this course. It is not his practice to make random statements misleading to customers, therefore when he says the prices will be cut down you will find that the prices will be cut down. Remember that price alone is no criterion of cheapness. You should see the goods and judge of their values. What we say we do, and more than that we reduce seasonable goods, not old goods lying around the shelves from season to season. A few quotations will serve as a guide, and possibly startle you into the advisability of calling.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

With the November, 1887, issue THE CENTURY commences its thirty-fifth volume with a regular circulation of almost 250,000. The War Papers and the Life of Lincoln increased its monthly edition by 100,000. The latter history having recounted the events of Lincoln's early years, and given the necessary survey of the political condition of the country, reaches a new period, with which his secretaries were most intimately acquainted. Under the caption

Lincoln in the War.

the writers now enter on the more important part of their narrative, viz.: the early years of the War and President Lincoln's part therein.

Supplementary War Papers.

following the "battle series" by distinguished generals, will describe interesting features of army life, tunneling from Libby Prison, narratives of personal adventure, etc. General Sherman will write on "The Grand Strategy of the War."

Kennan of Siberia.

Except the Life of Lincoln and the War Articles, no more important series has ever been undertaken by THE CENTURY than that of Mr. Kennan's. With the previous preparation of four years' travel and study in Russia and Siberia, the author undertook a journey of 15,000 miles for the special investigation here required. An introduction from the Russian Minister of the Interior admitted him to the principal mines and prisons, where he became acquainted with some three hundred State exiles,—Liberals, Nihilists, and others,—and the series will be a startling as well as accurate revelations of the exile system. The many illustrations by the artist and photographer, Mr. George A. Frost, who accompanied the author, will add greatly to the value of the articles.

A Novel by Eggleston.

with illustrations will run through the year. Shorter novels will follow by Cable and Stockton. Shorter fictions will appear every month.

Miscellaneous Features

will comprise several illustrated articles on Ireland, by Charles De Kay; papers touching the field of the Sunday-school Lesson, illustrated by E. L. Wilson; wild Western life, by Theodore Roosevelt; th English Cathedrals, by Mrs. van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Pennell; Dr. Buckley's valuable papers on Dreams, Spiritualism, and Clairvoyance; essays in criticism, art, travel, and biography; poems; curious, etc.

By a special offer the numbers for the past year (containing the Lincoln history) may be secured with the year's subscription, from November, 1887, twenty-four issues in all, for $4.00, or, with the last year's numbers handsomely bound, $7 50.

THEY WILL SIT IN SECRET.

THE FISHERY COMMISSIONERS HOLD A PRELIMINARY MEETING.

No Reporters Will be Admitted During the Sittings, Nor Will the Result be Made Public, it Being Deemed Expedient to Refuse Information at Present.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Fisheries Conference was set in motion by a preliminary meeting to-day, at which some necessary rules were established. As intimated a few days ago and as was generally anticipated, the actual proceedings will be treated by the plenipotentiaries as strictly confidential.

The conference room is a neat and comfortable one, adjoining the office of the Secretary of State. The only confidants who will share the mysteries of the conference room are the respective British and United States Secretaries, Mr. Bergne of the Imperial Foreign Office and Mr. Moore of the State Department here.

The meeting to-day was merely a preliminary one and the first formal session will be held to-morrow.

Col. McDonald of the United States Fishery Service has just returned from Gloucester, where he has erected a permanent codfish hatchery capable of incubating 100,000,000 eggs at a time. He claims that the experiment has proved successful on the coasts of Maine and Massachusetts, and he accordingly claims that he has found the secret of rearing American born codfish that will be trained to scorn Canadian bait but rush with eager gratitude around boats carrying the Stars and Stripes.

The Preliminary Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The British Fishery Commissioners called at the Department of State at noon to-day, where they were met by Messrs. Putnam and Angell, the American negotiators. They were shown into the diplomatic reception room, where they were joined by Secretary Bayard. It is understood that the conference, which is now in progress, is preliminary in its nature and will be devoted to the arrangement of the date of the regular meeting.

Stenographers will not be employed but an outline record of the proceedings will be kept by the secretaries and at the end of every session all of the members of the conference will then agree upon and sign a formal statement of the result of the day's work. Third Assistant Secretary Moore and Mr. Bergne have been chosen as the official secretaries of the conference. Perhaps the most important conclusion reached to-day was a resolution unanimously adopted to keep the proceedings of the negotiators secret, at least until the conclusion of their work.

The statement is authorized by Secretary Bayard that any article that may appear purporting to tell what has been done at any meeting of the negotiators will be entirely unauthorized, and must be the purest speculation. In reply to an enquiry as to whether the representatives of the United States had agreed upon a line of policy for their guidance in the negotiations, Secretary Bayard said that the public had been fully informed as to the position of the Government in the matter. The subject, he said, is two years old, as far as the Administration is concerned, and over a hundred years old as far as the people of the United States were concerned. The English contention had also been known through the official publications, so there is nothing before the negotiators of which the public is not informed.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

The Royal Patient at San Remo Continues to Eat and Sleep Well.

SAN REMO, Nov. 21.—The Crown Prince continues to eat and sleep well. While a band was playing in his honor to-day the Prince appeared on the terrace and was cordially greeted.

It is rumored that the King of Italy and the King of Wurtemberg intend to come to San Remo to see the Crown Prince.

The Prince Depressed.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—Reports are current here that the German Crown Prince has of late shown signs of occasional mental depression. He has written long letters to the Prince of Wales, the Crown Prince of Austria and the Grand Duke of Baden.

The Minister of Education has sharply reproved Prof. Storck for his recent attack on Dr. Mackenzie.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT.

An Attempt Made to Revive Anarchist Spies by Electricity.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Mrs. VanZandt said yesterday that an effort was made to revive August Spies after his body reached the undertakers. Electricity was used. August never appeared to be dead. His lips were moist and his cheeks were warm after his body was received from the jail, but no encouraging effects were produced and though at one time there was a spark of hope the physicians soon gave it up. The embalmers began work at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and he died at 12. They should have waited several hours or more and perhaps a day or two more.

THE BRIDGEPORT FIRE.

Barnum & Bailey Lose a Great Many of Their Valuable Animals.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 21.—By the fire at Barnum's last night, four elephants, five lions, seven leopards, six panthers, four kangaroos, six horses and a large number of smaller animals perished. One of the large elephants escaped and this morning was found drowned in the Sound near the lighthouse. Mr. Bailey says $100,000 will probably cover the loss.

A TALK WITH MR. PARNELL

HE REFUSES TO CRITICISE DATITT'S COURSE IN IRELAND.

He is of Opinion That the Action of the Government Has Produced More Lawlessness in Ireland Than Existed Before —Landlords Favor Dual Ownership.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—An interview was had with Mr. Parnell here to-day during a flying visit made by him on business. He looked thin and careworn, but said that his health was slowly improving. Sir Henry Thompson, who has been treating him for a year, insists that he must recuperate, as otherwise he will be unable to bear the labors of the coming session of Parliament.

Mr. Parnell, on having his attention drawn to Mr. Davitt's speech at Stepaside yesterday, said: "I do not think it would become me to criticise or approve the management of the plan of campaign. I was not consulted at its initiation and have since been unable, owing to the state of my health, to take any part in active politics outside of Parliament. Those who are on the spot actively engaged are the best judges of what their own honor and the interests of the country require. Mr. Davitt is in a different position. His opinion is entitled to respect, coming from one who is in Ireland and who is a man of singularly remarkable courage, who never shrank from the consequences of his words. But I do not gather that Mr. Davitt did criticise the plan. He rather seemed to be apprehensive that things might be misunderstood in America respecting the general situation.

"I may say that in my judgment a more feeble or inert government never held the reins in Ireland. They are teaching Irishmen a most disastrous lesson by their bungling incapacity, teaching that law may be successfully defied. For the law, as recently constructed by the Unionist majority in the House of Commons, is daily defied, and with impunity by thousands of members of suppressed branches of the league and by every Nationalist newspaper in Ireland. In fact one of the extraordinary results of a coercion act and a firm and resolute government is that for every offence against the law committed before the passage of the Coercion Bill hundreds are committed now. I leave it to you to say whether Ireland's respect for the Imperial Parliament, the possibility of her continued government by the same agency or the solidity of the union is likely to be increased, or whether this administrative incapacity does not render much nearer the concession of such reasonable powers of self-government as will make our people law-abiding, prosperous and happy."

A Meeting of Landlords.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—At a meeting of Limerick landlords yesterday a resolution was adopted favoring dual ownership of land. It was proposed that the state advance money at a low rate of interest to enable landlords to grant insolvent tenants three years' rent as compensation on evictions, the principal and interest to be repayable to the Government in thirty-five years. The resolution will be submitted to a large meeting of landlords in this city on Wednesday.

T. M. Healy, at a league meeting at Edgeworth, contrasted the prison treatment of Mr. O'Brien with that of Ellis French and Col. Baker, and solemnly warned the Government that if Mr. O'Brien died there would be blood for blood and life for life. He denounced Judge O'Hagan as an enemy of the Irish nation.

Mr. Clancy told the meeting at Stephaside yesterday that he had seen a letter which had been smuggled from Tullamore Jail written in O'Brien's blood.

INTERESTING ITEMS BY WIRE.

The labor troubles on the plantations at Thebodeaux, La., are over.

A fire at York, Neb., on Sunday destroyed seven stores, including the Union and Masonic blocks; loss $100,000.

W. D. Welsh, a traveling salesman, was frozen to death while out duck shooting near Waukegan, Ill., on Saturday.

Thirty-five buildings covering two blocks at Mound City, Ill., were destroyed by fire yesterday. A great many families are homeless.

Patrick O'Brien, a milkman, was shot dead in Chicago yesterday by Wm. Klee, a saloonkeeper. A trivial quarrel was the cause of the act.

The steamer Christie which was exposed to the storm off Death's Door, in Lake Michigan, with broken machinery has reached Manitowoc.

In a collision on the Cairo and Chicago Railway on Sunday two engines and eight cars were badly smashed and the two engineers, a brakeman and a fireman were instantly killed.

John Conroy, a hackman, was foully murdered at Sing Sing on Sunday night by three Hungarians who had employed him to drive them to the new aqueduct. The cause of the crime is unknown.

F. Northey, who was recently convicted at San Francisco of a charge of attempting to bribe a jury, was sentenced yesterday to nine years' imprisonment.

The Dublin Constitutional Club has resolved to present addresses to Lord Hartington and Mr. Goschen on their arrival in that city.

Lord Hartington and Mr. Goschen have both declined an invitation to visit Belfast and deliver addresses there.

The balloon in which M. L'Poste and another aeronaut made an ascent from Paris on Sunday, Nov. 13, has landed at Revigny, in the Department of the Meuse.

The Cavass arrested at Sofia last week and about whose arrest Servia, it was said, had demanded an explanation, was not a Servian agent. His arrest was not for a political offence.

In recent raids upon Nihilists in the leading towns of Russia 180 persons were arrested. Nine officers under arrest committed suicide. The Czar and family have returned to the Gatschina Palace.

The miners of the County of Northumberland have decided to rescind their resolution not to further support Mr. Burk, M.P. for Morpeth, and Mr. Fenwick for the Wansbeck division of Northumberland.

The Chronicle's Rome correspondent says Cardinal Gibbons has sent to the propaganda further documents relating to the Knights of Labor with the object of showing that the association is in no way hostile to the Romish Church and that it is the duty of the church to support the organization.

Mr. VanHorne of the Canadian Pacific Railway leaves Montreal to-night for Vancouver, B.C. He will be away about a fortnight.

Mr Æmilius Irving, Q.C., will be in Bothwell on Wednesday, Nov. 23, to investigate the charges against John Gage and Joseph Roberts, J.P.'s for the County of Lambton.

Charles McCarthy, a lad employed at Gurney's Scale Works, Hamilton, drilled a hole through his wrist by accident on Saturday. He became unconscious from the pain, but recovered under Dr. Woolverton's care. He is getting along all right.

James McMames of Waterdown, who left suddenly for the Western States, left his affairs in a very complicated state.

Mrs. Hempstock, living in Locke-street, Hamilton, her daughter and a young lady visitor were nearly suffocated by coal gas on Sunday night.

THE VACANT JUDGESHIPS.

They are Not Yet Filled—Additions to the Labor Commission.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—There was a meeting of Council this afternoon, but the vacancies on the Ontario bench were not filled, and most probably it will be a few days yet before the appointments are made.

The writs for Yarmouth and Shelburne, N.S., have been issued. Nomination in both places will take place on Dec. 8 and polling on Dec. 15.

The following new members have been added to the Labor Commission: W. A. Gibson and Uriah Carson, Ottawa; Patrick Kirwin, Quebec; Louis Cote, St. Hyacinthe; H. A. McLean, London.

A petition for the repeal of the Canada Temperance Act in the County of Simcoe was received by the Secretary of State to-day and transferred to the Department of Justice. It is signed by 3833 electors, over 1000 more than the minimum required by the act. No date for polling on the Halton petition has yet been fixed.

Information was received here to-day that the two Halfbreeds, Gabbe and Racette, accused of the murder of McLeish, who have been extradited from the United States, have arrived in Regina. As there was some talk about an attempt on the part of some Halfbreeds to effect a rescue on American territory, the United States Government, in the most friendly manner, ordered a cavalry escort from Fort Benton to the boundary, where they were met by a squad of Mounted Police.

The Halfbreed Commission is winding up its labors at Fort Pelly. It has been engaged during the past two seasons adjusting the claims of Halfbreeds and original white settlers. Last summer was spent in the northern part of the territories. The commissioners left Prince Albert on Aug. 5, descending the North Saskatchewan river, and visiting all points en route. All were satisfied with the terms of settlement. Children born since 1870 receive 240 acres of land or scrip for an equivalent amount; heads of families get $160 worth of scrip, the latter terms also applying to original white settlers. The majority accepted scrip. The Halfbreeds in many instances accepted scrip, abandoning the treaty taken along with the Indians.

It is reported on pretty good authority that the Bell farm is to be divided into small farms, which will be offered to immigrant settlers on favorable terms. It is said the experience of the past few years has demonstrated that farming on a gigantic scale is a very doubtful experiment.

Two seizures of drugs have been made, one at Clifton and the other at Thornton, Ont., by Officers Grosse and Millard. In each case the smuggling has been acknowledged and the value of the goods, including duty which should have been paid, has been deposited by the respective importers and all claims on their part abandoned.

Considerable progress continues to be made on the Pontiac Pacific Junction Railway, and it is expected that the line, some sixty miles of which is now in operation, will be open from Aylmer to Pembroke next summer.

The officers of the special customs service have seized a quantity of door handles from a person doing business in Clifton, Ont. on a charge of being smuggled into Canada. The importer has abandoned all claim to the goods and made a deposit of the duty.

Tenders have been received by the Department of Railways for the western division of the Oxford and New Glasgow Railway, but have not as yet been opened.

The Department of Marine has just launched a new lightship at Barrington Bay, N.S.

Mr. J. M. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, will leave for Washington towards the end of the present week.

Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, chief engineer of Government railways, will leave to-day for Cape Breton on business connected with the Short Line Railway. The contractors for the last section let, Messrs. Isbester & Reid, are sending down a large quantity of plant and making preparations for a vigorous prosecution of their work. They will be able to go on with the grading of the section during the winter months, as the snowfall is not so heavy on the island as in other parts of Canada.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 22.

The Trent Valley Canal commissioners are engaged in the preliminary work, by correspondence, of arranging for the taking of evidence as to the desirability of extending the canal to Lake Simcoe and the Georgian Bay. The three commissioners are ex-Judge Clark of Cobourg, Frank Turner, C.E., Toronto, and Harbor Master Kennedy, of Montreal. Mr. Clark's resignation from the bench and his acceptance of the solicitorship of the Canadian Pacific Railway may entail such duties upon him as will fully occupy his time. It is hoped, however, as his presence on the commission is considered of great value that arrangements can be made whereby he will be able to at least attend the more important sittings of the commission.

The Reformers of Haldimand have demanded a recount of the ballots cast at the recent election, which will commence before Judge Upper at Cayuga to-day. A prominent Conservative barrister left the city for Cayuga last night to watch over the interests of Dr. Montague. MELINDA.

Yesterday afternoon Sergeant Detective Reburn and Detective McGrath made an arrest that may perhaps lead to an exercise of the Extradition Treaty between Canada and the United States. For a month or more past a fish and fruit store has been kept at the corner of McCaul and Queen-streets by a man who styled himself Thomas Bates. Yesterday the detectives named arrested Mr. "Bates" on the charge of forgery committed in Detroit six weeks ago.

It is claimed that the real name of the man is W. W. Young, and that he used to keep a restaurant in Detroit and that he forged the name of another W. W. Young to a bank check for $1500, afterwards skipping to Toronto. Detective Tuttle of Detroit was here a month ago enquiring after Young who could not then be found. Late last night Young's wife wanted to see him at Agnes-street Police Station, but she was not permitted.

M. GREVY ASKED TO RESIGN

M. CLENENCEAU TELLS HIM HIS USEFULNESS IS GONE.

The French President Refers the Request to a Committee, and, it Pronouncing Against Him, He Says He Will Appeal to Other Statesmen.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The summoning of M. Clemenceau by President Grevy indicates the speedy resignation of the latter. M. Clemenceau declared publicly on Saturday that President Grevy could not retain office if he found a responsible politician to form a cabinet under him.

In the Chamber of Deputies M. Jolibois moved that the constitution be revised, urging that the sole remedy for the present situation was to restore the people's right to nominate the head of the state, and thus make the people the arbiter, instead of as at present the plaything of political parties. He demanded urgency for his motion. M. Barodet and M. Michelin spoke in favor of a revision of the constitution in order, as they said, to abolish the presidency. The demand for urgency for Jolibois' motion was rejected.

M. Michelen then moved for urgency for a proposal to abolish the presidency.

Jolebois supported the motion.

M. Rebot appealed to the United Republicans to refuse their assent to the proposal which, he said, tended to discredit the republic.

M. Michelen's motion was rejected by 309 to 191.

The Chamber adjourned until Tuesday.

Grevy Asked to Resign.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—M. Grevy in the interview this morning said he would leave to M. Clemenceau the fullest latitude in the choice of colleagues.

M. Clemenceau replied that the devotion of the President to the Republic was indisputable, and that he might render her a lasting service by resigning, in view of the fact that his authority had sustained a blow that was hurtful to the Republic.

M. Grevy intimated that his refusal to resign was not final. He asked M. Clemenceau to join with MM. Floquet, Goblet and De Freycinet in a conference on the subject of his resignation. The conference was of three hours' duration. No decision was reached.

A conference on the subject of the President's resignation was held in accordance with M. Grevy's request, and MM. Floquet, Goblet and De Freycinet adhered to the opinion of M. Clemenceau. M. Grevy finally announced that he would appeal to other statesmen for assistance.

President Grevy says that for many reasons he desired to retire to private life, but it was his desire to quit the Elysee Palace with honor. Therefore, he would remain in office until things were so arranged that he could take his departure with dignity. He felt that this was due to his past life and the office he held. He must avoid setting a bad precedent. He referred to M. Wilson as the victim of a political intrigue against himself.

The conference was renewed in the evening, when MM. Clemenceau, Floquet, Goblet and De Freycinet each declined to accept the task of forming a Ministry.

READY TO BEGIN BUSINESS.

The Labor Commission Will Open Its Sittings in Toronto To-morrow.

TORONTO, November 22.

The Labor Commissioners are in town. They did King-street yesterday afternoon—most of them did. Commissioner John Armstrong, in a new suit and shiny plug, got in his "sledge-hammer work on the outside," while Commissioner Sam. Heakes piloted Commissioner Walsh of Nova Scotia and Commissioner Clark of New Brunswick about the city. Secretary Blackeby went on through to Galt and took all of the blank forms and documents with him.

The commission is being deluged with invitations to visit different parts of the country. It is expected that it will take twelve months to get through with the work—it will take twice that length of time if all the invitations are accepted. They will visit both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, the lumbering and mining centres, and probably some places in the States. They have already distributed through the post thousands of circulars setting forth the objects of the commission and the scope of the enquiry, so that the people may be forewarned of their coming.

The first evidence will be taken in Toronto. A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the parlor at Shaftesbury Hall. It will simply be an informal affair to talk over with different persons the best hours for the commission to sit, and to make arrangements for the different labor bodies to be represented as will best suit their convenience. The commission desire to obtain evidence from all classes of the population. The taking of evidence will commence on Wednesday in the Federal Bank building on Wellington street.

The Outrage at Orangeville.

ORANGEVILLE, Nov. 16.—Mr. J. P. Macmillan, County Attorney, has instructions from the Ontario Government to offer $1000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the parties guilty of the dynamite outrage last evening at the house of Inspector Anderson here.

A Clergyman Burned Out.

PENETANGUISHENE, Nov. 21.—The English Church parsonage, occupied by Rev. G. M. Kingston, was burnt to the ground this evening. It is not known at present whether there was any insurance or not on the building. The furniture was insured and was mostly saved, but in a rather bad shape. The amount of insurance on it could not be ascertained.

THE LABOR COMMISSION.

The Commission appointed by the Dominion Government to enquire into subjects connected with labor and it relations to capital has organised and will hold meetings in various centres of industry for the purpose of hearing evidence bearing on the subjects under consideration. The scope of the Commission is a wide one, including the relation of labor to capital, the hours of labor, the earnings of laboring men and women, methods of arbitration for the settlement of disputes between employers and employees and generally any means that may be advanced for promoting the material, social, moral and intellectual prosperity of the working classes.

The demands of labor organizations, in Canada as well as elsewhere, for changes in laws which they believe will benefit workingmen, and the trouble and loss caused by strikes, make it necessary for the Government to thoroughly investigate the grievences and the causes which lead to the troubles. No portion of the people should be placed at a disadvantage by the law, and if those whom labor organizations speak for are so placed, it should be known and the proper remedy applied; and if anything can be done to avoid or promptly adjust disputes between employers and employed it is in the interest of the country that it should be done.

The evidence taken by the Commission will no doubt supply materials for a thorough understanding of the questions, and as it is composed of able men and men acquainted with the position of workingmen its report will doubtless be valuable.

TRYING TO RALLY THEIR FORCES.

Reform newspapers are trying to keep their forces from obeying the retreat sounded by Mr. J. D. Edgar, M. P. The Montreal Herald points out that Mr. Edgar's opinion is only the opinion of one man, and the London Advertiser publishes an elaborate article to show that he made a serious mistake. The latter paper dwells on the difficulties that would arise if Canada had control of its own tariff laws while a treaty of unlimited reciprocity with the United States was in force.

The objections to Mr. Edgar's scheme are strong ones, although it would not be so humiliating to Canada as Commercial Union as at first proposed and as still advocated. As the London Reform organ says, with Commercial Union "we must have a common tariff," which means that Canada would have to adopt the United States tariff. Not only that, but the power of altering the customs tariff, of changing the inland revenue taxes and of amending or controlling customs regulations would be lost to Canada and would be exercised in this country by the United States.

It does seem, from Mr. Wiman's silence and the utterances of these papers, that Mr. Edgar's not of warning is to go unheeded. Very well, let the followers of Mr. Wiman proceed. It will be as well to knock the whole scheme to pieces at once, as to have it dismembered gradually by its friends.

Press advocates of Commercial Union comment upon Mr. Chamberlain's reference to that scheme in the interview with Washington reporters. But they have little to say in regard to his statement that the Canadian Government was willing to arrange a reciprocity treaty and that the British Government would be pleased to assist in doing so.

The suggestion made by Mr. Atkinson, of Boston, that the United States should purchase the Canadian Maritime Provinces, was, it seems, only made to demonstrate the benefits Commercial Union would bring to the States. But Canada is not prepared to sell part of her territory, nor to give herself away.

Gen. Sheridan recommends an addition of 5,000 men to the United States army. He probably wants to give more of the numerous officers a man to command.

The London Free Press appears in a new dress of type. It is an able and enterprising newspaper, and deserves its success.

COUNTESS NARONA.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

THE FIRST PART.

With these particulars began and ended the discoveries made by Ferrari's courier friend. The police were on the lookout for the lost man—and that was the only hope which could be held forth, for the present, to Ferrari's wife.

"What do you think of it, miss?" the poor woman asked, eagerly. "What do you advise me to do?"

Agnes was at a loss how to answer her; it was an effort even to listen to what Emily was saying. The reference in the courier's letter to Montbarry—the report of his illness, the melancholy picture of his secluded life—had reopened the old wound. She was not even thinking of the lost Ferrari; her mind was at Venice, by the sick man's bedside.

"I hardly know what to say," she answered. "I have had no experience in serious matters of this kind."

"Do you think it would help you, miss, if you read my husband's letters to me? There are only three of them—they won't take long to read."

Agnes compassionately read the letters.

They were not written in a very tender tone. "Dear Emily," and "Yours affectionately"—these conventional phrases were the only phrases of endearment which they contained. In the first letter, Lord Montbarry was not very favorably spoken of—"We leave Paris to-morrow. I don't much like my lord. He is proud and cold, and, between ourselves, stingy in money matters. I have had to dispute such trifles as a few centimes in the hotel bill; and twice already, some sharp remarks have passed between the newly married couple, in consequence of her ladyship's freedom in purchasing pretty tempting things at the shops in Paris. 'I can't afford it; you must keep to your allowance.' She has had to hear these words already. For my part I like her. She has the nice, easy foreign manners—she talks to me as if I was a human being like herself."

The second letter was dated from Rome.
